HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

AND OINTMENT.—HEALTH AT ALL TIMES.—The journey from infancy to age is beset with dangers from accidents or diseases, nearly all of which may be remedied by the use of the excellent medicaments discovered and manufactured by Professor Holloway. The Pills cast out the countless impurities which are constantly gaining admission into the stomach and circulation. The Ointment cools and soothes inflammatory tendencies, disperses diseases of the skin, and heals ulcerations, irrespective alike of their depth or duration. Both Pills and Ointment are carefully-prepared vegetable extracts, uncontaminated by any mineral matters, whereby the thousand evils which were engrafted on the constitution by mercury or antimony are altogether avoided, and secondary illnesses are unknown after Holloway's treatment.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Our advices from this port by the present mail extend to the 3rd Feb.; the French mail from London Dec. 5 arrived out on the 26th Jan. The Japan Herald contains the following items of news:—

A meeting of the Asiatic Society of Japan was held at the Grand Hotel on the 14th of January, the President, J. C. Hepburn, Esq., M.D., taking the chair. After the nomination of some new members had been proceeded with, Captain Bridgford read his paper on "Yezo, a Description of the Isbi Rari River and the new Capital Satsporo," for which a vote of thanks was returned by the society. Sir Harry Parkes said that he believed Captain Bridgford's paper was the first account that had been published of the centre of Yezo.

Cheques have been drawn and paid for, $125,000 each, in favour of England, France, and Holland, as an instalment of the Shimonoseki Indemnity money. The share of America is in abeyance for the present.

There is a rumour current to the effect that a former high official has been called upon by the Government to pay some $300,000, alleged to be due from him. This demand is said in some way to be connected with the sale of Government rice, made under the auspices of the ex-official referred to. A mercantile partner of his, in an extensive way of business at Osaka, is said to have committed suicide in consequence of the inability of the firm to meet the large sum the Government requires. In default of payment (which is apprehended), it is said stringent measures will be resorted to by the Government. A term of ten years' imprisonment has been mentioned as having been threatened.

We have lately seen a good deal of surveying going on at the Bund, and also in the harbour, and on enquiry we are led to believe that the Government intends to make a pier running out from the coal depot of the P.M.S.S. Co., about one mile along, and in such a way that large vessels could lie alongside. This is a most desirable undertaking, if properly carried out, and will be a real boon to the shipping interest.

The statement of passenger and goods traffic by the Imperial Government Railways, for the week ending Sunday, 25th of January, 1874:—Passengers, 30,600, $8,049,00. Goods, parcels, &c., $538.61. Total, $8.587.61. Average per mile per week, $477.09. Corresponding week, 1873: Number of passengers, 24,321; amount, $7.483.90.

It is affirmed that the road from Hakodadi to Sapura (the new capital of the Kaitakushi) has cost the sum of $600,000. Its length is about 70 ris.

By a proclamation of the 20th, the Mikado gives up 36,000, yen of his annual income toward army expenses.

The agents of the China Trans-Pacific Steam-Ship-Company, Messrs. Hudson, Malcolm and Co., entertained a number of the residents of Yokohama recently on board the Vasco de Gama the first vessel of the Company's line despatched from this port to San Francisco.

After luncheon Sir Harry Parkes called upon the company to drink success to the new line. Much, he said, as we were indebted to the great company which had hitherto held the monopoly of the trade between China, Japan and the Western Coast of America, there was still room for enterprise in the same direction, and the establishment of the new line would do no more than stimulate that healthy competition by which the public welfare is promoted.

Mr. Hudson returned thanks. He said that it was not in the spirit of opposition that the company which he represented was formed. The friendly rivalry of legitimate enterprise was the origin of the company's endeavour, and he felt sure that there was ample room for it; he proposed the health of Captain Rice, of the Vasco da Gama, the pioneer vessel of the line; and Captain Rice replied, expressing a hope that he might sooner or later see all those who were assembled as his passengers, or those of the other ships of the company.

Much satisfaction was expressed at the arrangements for the accommodation of passengers, and the past and probable performances of the ship between this and San Francisco were freely canvassed.

The Empress has received the families of the Foreign Ministers; Lady Parkes, Mrs. and the Misses Bingham, and Madame de Groote were presented. The Empress expressed pleasure at seeing them, and received their congratulations on the new year and wishes for her Majesty's health and happiness. The Mikado was present, and added a few words of welcome.

It is now in contemplation by the authorities of the Mombusho to erect new and improved buildings for the use of the Kai Sei Gakko (Polytechnic School), and to devote the present edifice to the use of the Guai Koku Gakko (Foreign Language School). The old sheds occupied by the latter are in a state of advanced dilapidation, and cannot longer suffice for the accommodation of the pupils. The new Polytechnic School will be erected within the grounds of the Kaga yashiki, in Hongo, in the north of the city. The new buildings will be separate from each other. This arrangement will afford greater security against fire. They will be of a more durable material, and will be built in finer style than those now in use.

Contrary to the expectations of his friends in Japan, Mr. C. O. Shepard, late U.S. Consul here, prior to his reaching Washington, resigned his appointment. Mr. Wayne, of Georgia, succeeds him, and may arrive by the next American steamer.

One of the samurai of Kochi Ken, captured on suspicion of being concerned in the attack on Iwakura, has confessed his guilt; but he has refused to name, or give any clue to the discovery of, his companions.

The Paper Hunt for the cup presented by R. H. Brunton, Esq., was one of the most successful we have had, although unfortunately we have to record two accidents. Tempted by the beauty of the weather, there was a very large meet, many ladies gracing the scene with their presence.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 6th Feb.; no later mail from London had arrived out. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

A meeting of the shareholders of the Shanghai and Pootung Foundry and Engineering Company has been held. A resolution was passed that in view of the unsatisfactory result of the working of the business the company should be forthwith wound up and dissolved. The directors were accordingly authorised to effect a sale of the plant, stock, buildings, land, &c., belonging to the company, on the most advantageous terms they can obtain. The company have since sold their property and plant, &c., to Messrs. Boyd and Co., at a price which, after paying off all liabilities, will yield a return to shareholders of fifty taels per share, equal to fifty per cent.

After a short preliminary trip on the river last Sunday, with the view, probably, of testing her engines and general preparedness for a longer excursion, H.I.C.M.'s No. 5 frigate went outside on the 4th Feb., on a trial trip as far as Gutzlaff. She is entirely worked by Chinese. It is likely that, instead of returning to a state of masterly inactivity off the Arsenal, the frigate will lie at Woosung till ready for a longer cruise up the Yangtsze, or northward for inspection by Li Hung-chang, as we mentioned a few months since.

A sham fight has been held between the Volunteer Corps and a naval brigade from the British ships of war in port. It attracted, as usual, a large concourse of spectators, and appeared to excite much interest, both among them and the men engaged. The mystery is, why so many men who can afford time to march out alongside the volunteers, and to look on at the combat from the top of grave mounds, feel diffidence in joining the ranks. The fact of so many spectators assembling proves that interest is felt in the corps, and we could wish that the interest took the more practical form of enlistment.

The annual meeting of shareholders in the Racket Club has been held. The report and accounts, shewing a satisfactory account of the year's working, were passed. Messrs. Cooper, Cumine, Gundry, Jones, Maitland, Scott, Turnbull, Vickers and Wheelock were elected a committee for the ensuing year. The committee were instructed to repair the floors of the courts at an expense not to exceed Tls. 750. A new bye-law was passed limiting the number of shares to be acquired by any individual member to seven.

At a meeting of the Mih-ho-loong Fire Brigade the following officers were elected:—E. W. Rice, Foreman; F. A. Groom, 1st Assistant Foreman; E. Tobin, 2nd ditto; M. Hawtrey, Hon. Secretary; E. Henderson, M.D., Surgeon. Messrs. Low, Thorn and Little form the committee for the ensuing year.

A Masonic Ball has been given at the Club, and proved a great success. It is difficult to estimate the number present, but it may be taken roundly at 200, including sixty ladies. The rooms were tastefully decorated, and the supper was worthy of the Club caterer's renown.

We hear that Mr. Mayers has declined the appointment of Secretary to the Municipal Council, which had been informally offered to him.

The foundations of the mortuary chapel are reported to be unsafe. Instead of being built in the first instance on raised earthwork, or a solid foundation, the chapel was, from motives of economy, erected on piles standing some five feet out of the ground, the enclosure underneath being left hollow, and a mud bank raised only externally. Inspection has now shown that the piles are rotten, and will have to be removed and replaced by a concrete foundation.

We learn from Peking that the weather so far this winter has been, with the exception of a couple of days, very mild. No snow has fallen since the Emperor and the Imperial Princes prayed for snow on the 9th Jan. Nothing of interest has occurred in the diplomatic world during the last week, if we except the fact that the Peruvian Mission are reported to be busily engaged with their Treaty. The race committee has held a meeting, and drawn up the programme of the races for the spring of 1874. Much sickness prevails, owing to the unusually dry and mild winter. There has been no fall of moisture for months, except a very slight attempt at snow on the 2nd January. The Peruvian Minister has been laid up with a severe attack of fever, but is recovering. The French Minister has also been ailing from the same complaint. It is reported that the Government are selecting a large body of Mongol troops now assembled at Kalgan, to march against the Mahomedans in Uliasutai.

Our Hankow correspondent writes:—Business is dull in the extreme, and the weather is very unpleasant, cold and wet.—On the 21st January the English and Russian gunboats in port were tastefully decorated with flags, and the latter fired a salute of 21 guns in honour of the marriage of the Duke of Edinburgh to the Russian Princess.—Meetings are all the rage just now—Race Club, Recreation Ground, Ice Club, and the Church-going community.—Our church having now been handed over to the community, on condition that no further expense be entailed upon the British Government, I hear that steps will shortly be taken to obtain a clergyman from home, to conduct the services regularly, which will be, I hope, a great improvement upon the present method of procedure. Our next theatrical performance is fixed for the 5th February, and rehearsals are now in full swing.

Newchwang letters report the sudden occurrence of extreme cold, and the fall of the thermometer to 4 below zero. The cold has caused great distress among natives, and many have been frozen to death.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 11th February; no later mail from London had arrived out. The Daily Press supplies the following items of intelligence:—

The public examination at the Government schools took place on the 10th February, in the presence of the Governor, Hon. Mr. Austin, Hon. C. Smith, Hon. P. Ryrie, Mr. Romano (Portuguese Vice Consul), &c. After his Excellency the Governor had distributed the prizes he addressed the scholars, encouraging them to persevere in their studies.

We understand that Lady Kennedy and Miss Kennedy will leave for England before the hot weather sets in.

The business of the Harbour-Master's Office will on and after the 16th Feb. be conducted at the new offices, near the Pacific Mail Company's office.

The Gazette announces that the Ordinances abolishing the Court of Summary Jurisdiction, reconstructing the Supreme Court, and introducing the new Code and Procedure, have been approved.

The returns of the criminal cases at the Supreme Court during the past year show that there were seventy-one persons tried, of whom fifty were convicted and twenty-one acquitted. The larger proportion of the charges tried were for larceny and theft. There was only one trial for murder, and in it the prisoner was convicted.

An extensive fire occurred at Canton on the evening of the 6th, which burnt down the Kung-suh house of the old Co. Hong, and a large number of shops in the neighbourhood. A considerable amount of property was lost, and it was feared some lives had also been sacrificed, as two explosions were heard at the commencement of the fire.

As was to be expected, the rejection of the Japanese Yen by the Chamber of Commerce as a medium of currency has been the subject of some comment in the Japan papers, but we are glad to observe that the motives which led the mercantile men of this place to adopt that course have not been misunderstood. The speakers at the meeting were especially careful to avoid saying anything which might appear to be distrustful of the Japanese; and fully recognised that they were entitled to every courtesy as well as to a feeling of sympathy in the efforts which they are making, and in most directions successfully, towards progress.

We alluded the other day to the desirability of conceding municipal rights to the people of Hong Kong, and the importance of the question for consideration at least is a good excuse for again returning to it. We do not at all mean to impute that generally public affairs are mismanaged in the colony, but now and again instances crop up of actions which, under the present system of Government, display an amount of red-tapeism which is more apparent than agreeable. The Executive Council are not, perhaps, so much to blame for this as at first might be imagined.

The weather has taken a somewhat extraordinary turn for the time of year. A few days since there was a smart thunderstorm, and the wind blew in powerful gusts, veering round to different quarters. The harbour became so rough as to cause considerable damage among the sampans, and the barometer fell in the space of an hour, between 2.30 and 3.30, from 29·98 to 29·84. At about four the weather became calm again. During one of the squalls a Yow-mah-tee fishing junk capsized, whilst endeavouring to make for that place from Syingpoon; and a cargo-boat also capsized, coming athwart the chain of the American ship Sumatra.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 20th Feb.; the outward French mail from London Jan. 16 arrived on the 18th Feb. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

H.E. the Governor has temporarily appointed Mr. J. G. Davidson as Commissioner with Tunku dia Oodin, and after the conclusion of the piracy case Mr. Davidson will have to visit the Linghy river, close to Malacca, to discharge other duties before his return to Singapore.

A considerable quantity of pepper, belonging to a Singapore trader, was stolen from an island in the Straits under the Dutch rule, and on the 11th a boat was seized in Singapore river, containing twenty-two bags of the stolen produce, the bags having the owner's mark on them. The Chinese boatmen, two in number, were arrested on a charge of fraudulent possession. The case is still under investigation here, but the prisoners will most likely have to be handed over to the Dutch authorities.

The great facilities now afforded for going over to Johore, while no doubt a blessing in most ways, nevertheless afford unwonted facilities to fraudulent debtors, who have only to go over there to elude payment, and defy our writs; and unless Government takes immediate action, and enters into some arrangement with the liberal and enlightened ruler of that country to give up all debtors from this on application from our Court, the evil must increase to a distressing extent. A case in point may be cited to prove the threatened danger of the convenient refuge so near at hand. A Javanese trader owing some $700 to a European here, and in sufficently good circumstances to pay, with a writ out against him, very deliberately blinds the bailiff's subordinates, goes over to Johore, settles there, and sends for his family to join him, knowing that our law cannot touch him there. Therefore, the sooner such a state of things is mended the better for the community at large.

Owing to the exceptionally high price of gambier and black pepper many fresh plantations are being opened up on the Johore territory. Almost daily applications are being made by Chinese for grants of land, and they do not scruple to take it in localities at distances from water communication hitherto deemed impracticable and unprofitable. Although the soil of Johore is capable of producing other articles of commerce than gambier and pepper, yet, with a few exceptions, these are the only articles raised for exportation in any considerable quantity.

The Government Gazette contains notifications to the following effect:—

Her Majesty has confirmed the Ordinance for the transfer of Courts deposits.

A corrected notification announces that Mr. C. B. Waller is appointed Acting Superintendent of Prisons at Singapore.

Her Majesty has directed the issue of Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the Colony, appointing Francis Snowden, Esq., Senior Puisne Judge, and George Phillips, Esq., Junior Puisne Judge, of the Supreme Court.

Lieut. T. A. Fox, Harbour Master at Penang, is appointed Assistant Postmaster at that Settlement.

Capt. J. H. Satterthwaite is appointed a member of the Fire Commission, v. J. W. Fuller, Esq., resigned.

Oriental Bank Corporation	$278,200
Chartered Mercantile Bank (Penang)	272,297

With respect to the trial of the nine pirates on board H.M. ship Thalia, we understand that the prisoners have since been landed, and will be tried in customary form by the native court on shore; the Thalia, however, will continue to lie off the village to afford security to Tunku dia Oodin and the Court against surprise or interference. We learn by the Rinaldo since the above was written that the trial of the pirates at Qualla Jugra was concluded on the 15th instant, and that they were all sentenced to death except one, who is a mere boy. The execution was carried out on the following day, the men being krissed on the beach.

The steamer Pulai, belonging to H.H. the Maharajah of Johore, has returned from the usual monthly visit to the rivers on the west coast of the Johore territory. The places touched at were all quiet, and showing signs of progress.

Under none of the forms of government through which it has pleased Providence that the Settlement should pass in its maturer years has its police ever come in for any share of commendation. Indeed, its defects and its asserted incompetence have been a never-failing theme for the censure of our public writers. It is true that the police is not a particularly popular institution in most countries, but we question if in any other place of like size to this the force is viewed with such hopeless want of confidence. What sensible man ever leaves his godowns or his residence to the protecting care of the police? Who that places any value upon his time thinks of reporting a loss or a theft to the police? Who in any altercation with hack-gharry men or similar infliction ever dreams of appealing to the police? We may safely affirm of those who do so that they are very new colonists, and that they have a painful experience before them.

The directors of the Tanjong Pagar have issued their report, and are able to declare a dividend of ten per cent. After allowance for all necessary payments, there remains on the working of the half year the sum of $30,914.18, which, added to $3,839.93 brought forward, makes $34,754.11.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

TIENTSIN.—The markets were quiet and prices unchanged.

HANKOW.—Advices are conflicting. While some shippers received favourable reports and satisfactory sales, others were advised of an "absence of demand for all imports, and prices nominally unchanged."

SHANGHAI.—Piece Goods: The Chinese new year, by its proximity, was exercising its customary influence upon markets. Business had not yet wholly ceased, but it was becoming smaller, and a week would probably see it closed for the holidays.

FOOCHOW.—Sales had been:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., 2,200 pieces at $2.72; do. 7 lbs., 2,500 pieces at $2.25 to 2.30; T-Cloths, 8 lbs., 400 pieces at $2.97; do. 7 lbs., 2,100 pieces at $1.92 to 2.22; do. fine 7 lbs., 750 pieces at $2.62 per piece; lead, 720 pigs at $8.75 per picul.

MANILA.—The market for Plain Staples had continued quiet during the fortnight, and there was little alteration to note in values. After the commencement of the Chinese new year buyers were expected to enter the market more freely. Coloured goods of suitable styles and assortments continued in demand.

BATAVIA.—The market continued very quiet, the Chinese dealers being busy preparing for their New Year festivals, and as this would last at least a fortnight, it was not expected that much business would be doing for a month to come. For the coming season, however, a good business was expected, as the coffee crop will, it is expected, prove a very fair average, while the Paddy fields promise a very plentiful harvest.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

SHANGHAI.—The following settlements of Green Tea comprised the whole business of the week. Prices continued firm for all grades. Fychows, Moyunes, &c., 1,733 half-chests at Tls. 24 to 43; Pingsueys, 250 half-chests at Tls. 43 to 43; Shanghai packed, 1,543 half-chests at Tls. 23 to 24; total, 3,526 half-chests. Stock, 11,552 half-chests. The export to Great Britain (lost cargoes included) had been as follows:—

Black	63,129,458 lbs.	against	64,062,246 lbs.
Green	8,512,685 „	„	10,572,075 „
	71,642,143 „	„	75,634,321 „

FOOCHOW.—No business had been done in Congous, and the only transactions reported during the interval had been the settlement of the remaining Souchongs, i.e., 200 half-chests and about 100 chests, at full prices considering the quality. The S.S. Priam for London, the Sarah Nicholson for New York, and the Lady Belmore for the Colonies, were shortly expected, and these vessels would complete the season's export.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—There is a fair demand for Brazil Coffee, and sales were made of 4,502 bags Rio, cargo Juno, at 25½c. In mild Coffee there is a firm tone, though business is rather inactive. We quote as follows:—Java (Government bags) 30c. to 31c.; Java (mats) 28c. to 31c.

CORDAGE.—Prices are as follows:—Manila Cordage, sizes above 12-thread, 16½c.; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, ¼ in. and 5-16 in. diam., 17½c.; do. 12-thread, ⅜ in. diam., 17c.; do. Hay Rope, 17c.; do. Cordage, Bolt Rope Yarns, 18½c.; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, 19½c.; Tarred Manila, 16c.; Fine Tarred Manila Lath Yarn, 17½c.

HEMP.—A large stock of Manila has arrived, but the better class goods are still scarce. The current price for Manila is 9½c. (gold).

INDIGO.—The demand is very limited. Sales of Manila have taken place at 65c. to 80c. currency, and Madras at 85c. to 90c.

RICE.—The market is steady, with a fair demand.

SUGAR.—The stock of Raw Sugar is about double what it was this time last year. The business is, however, moderate. Refined is in rather better request.

SPICES.—After considerable business the market is quieter, but prices are generally steady. We quote as follows:—Mace, $1.28 to 1.30; Nutmegs, $1.15 to 1.20; China Cassia, 25c. to 25½c., and Batavia, 24c. to 26c.

TIN.—Straits Tin is quoted 26⅞c. to 27c., and Banca 28½c.

TEA.—Oolong and Green are weak, and holders are more willing to make concessions to induce sales. Japan is steady and firm, and in limited supply, especially the low grades. The line trade is without activity of note. By auction 1,280 half chests Japan sold at 27½c. to 64½c., and 100 do. Japan 40c., cash.

RUNNING DOWN BY A P. AND O. STEAMER AT GRAVESEND.—On the 17th instant, the Princess Somiwatty, of 1,000 tons, was sunk off Gravesend by the P. and O. screw steamer Indus. The barque was at anchor off the Ship and Lobster, just below Gravesend; and at about a quarter-past nine o'clock, the morning being quite clear, the Indus steamed up the Reach. When a short distance below the barque the steamer had to alter her course, and come over to the southward, to get astern of a billy-boy schooner. The tide was running up pretty strong at the time, and before the steamer could get round into her proper course again she ran into the barque, striking her on the port bow. The force of the collision was so great that the steamer made a large gash right into the hull of the barque, and the latter sank within ten minutes of the occurrence. The crew on board the barque numbered about twenty, with a passenger; they were taken out of the rigging by watermen. All escaped without hurt except one sailor, who, being sick and in his berth at the time, was jammed amongst the splinters, and received some injuries, though not of a serious character. The existing law clears the owners of the Indus from all liability in the matter, as the vessel was in charge of an authorised pilot. Should the collision, however, prove to have been the result of any carelessness on the part of the pilot, he is liable to a fine not exceeding £100.

THE sketches made for the Illustrated London News by Mr. Simpson have been placed on exhibition at the Burlington Gallery, Piccadilly. The collection is fitly called by the title of "Round the World," for it embraces drawings of the most varied scenes from Rome to Abyssinia, and from Sedan to Circassia. Among the more interesting of the drawings are "New Breakwater at Alexandria," "Suez," representing the new docks and entrance to the Canal, all formed on a sand-bank, and, a few years since, a mile or so out of sea, "Temple of Heaven, Peking," and "The Great Wall of China."

AT the next meeting of the Royal Geograpical Society a paper will be read "On a Journey in the Island of Yedo and on the Progress of Geography in Japan," by Mr. R. G. Watson (late Charge d'Affaires in Japan).

THE ATCHIN WAR.

VERY little further news has come to hand during the past week as to the progress of the War in Atchin, but we observe in the columns of a contemporary another long letter from their special correspondent, written at Batavia. This last circumstance tends to confirm our previous conjecture, that the careful Dutchmen relegate all mere journalists to a safe distance from the real scene of operations. They probably argue that whenever they are successful they can blow their own trumpets for themselves, and should reverses overtake them it is as well not to let the facts get abroad. The letter, for all that, is interesting, and confirms, to a remarkable extent, the opinions we hazarded in our preceding articles. Thus, even in Batavia, the complaint goes round that the "Government reports, short as "they are, sometimes contradict each other, and are con-"tradicted again right and left by those in possession of "private information." It appears, too, that the Atchinese on the 14th January broke through the Dutch lines in front of the Kraton, and actually reached one of the hospitals in the rear, where they killed six, and wounded eleven, of the patients. Besides all this, in the confused melée which took place when the troops came up in the dark, one of the Dutch officers was shot atand killed by his own men. We do not praise these barbarities on the part of the Malays; our object in quoting the passage is because it shows us that the Dutch at the time must either have been very weak numerically, or else very careless in their dispositions. Now, also, we get some acquaintance with the circumstances under which the Kraton fell, "a result considered (on the 27th January) as deciding the war." It turns out that the Atchinese had cleared away before the Dutch entered the stronghold, and that their artillery and ammunition had been gradually withdrawn. "Gradual" is the term most applicable to all the incidents of this very leisurely war. The Dutch were very gradual in making their approaches, and the Malays were gradual in retreating. General VAN SWIETEN is gradually strengthening himself in his present positions, and still more gradually pushing aggressive operations; meanwhile—if we are to credit the telegrams—the Netherlands cruisers are gradually inducing the chiefs along the coast to recognise the Dutch supremacy. It is now nearly two months since we heard of the "result considered as deciding the war," but that end has not yet been accomplished. The Atchinese are fortifying themselves inland, their leaders remain unapproachable, and refuse all overtures of peace. In the interim sickness is at work among the European regiments and among the Malays; the resources of Atchin are being wasted; the non-combatant population are compelled still to endure all the miseries of a protracted war, while on the Dutch themselves financial burdens must press with increasing heaviness. If there must needs be war let it be sharp, sudden, and decisive, like our own campaign in Ashantee. "If 'twere done, then 'twere well when 'tis done 'twere done quickly." For our own part we wish that the Dutch would take this saying to heart, and if they are not content with what they have already accomplished, then let them shake off their national torpor, try something more adventurous than planting their own colours in a fort already abandoned, and should they be really determined to annihilate the independence of Atchin then let them destroy it mercifully by a swift, stout, blow, and not devote it to the slow tortures of a lingering death.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, MARCH 17.

During the whole of the past week the German Parliament has been engaged in the consideration of two very important Ministerial Bills, the first of which was the definite re-organisation of the army. In one of my former letters I informed your readers that the Government proposed to fix the numerical strength of the active force in time of psace at 401,659 men, and, secondly, to allow this new law to remain in force till repealed. The debate on the first reading showed that a great divergence of opinion existed, which made it the more difficult to cause the different fractions in the House to combine their forces and offer a direct opposition. The principal stumbling-block was the fixation of the above-mentioned figure. The Conservative opposition and the Progressionist party proposed to reduce the number to 385,000, but the motion made by Count Bethusy Huc was lost; several other amendments were also dismissed by great majorities, and the National Liberals requested the Government to reconsider the subject and inform the House when the second reading came on whether they would not be content with 360,000 men. The second part of the question, relating to the duration of the law, involves a great financial, and even constitutional, principle, for if Parliament accepts the indefinite period proposed, it voluntarily sacrifices and gives up one of its most jealously guarded privileges—the right of control over the largest item of expenditure of the national Budget. On the other hand, the Government argues, and very justly, that if the most important element of strength for the safety and defence of the country is dependent on annual votes for the army, and the goodwill or caprice of Parliament, they may refuse the grant just when the efficiency of the army is most urgently required, and if not able to take the field at the right moment, it is impossible to foresee the consequences, or to what degree of danger and difficulty the country may be exposed. Self-preservation is undoubtedly admitted by all writers on international law from the time of Vattell down to the present day to be the first law of nature, and the experience of the last two wars—first with Austria and then with France—shows the importance of being the first in the field and carrying hostilities into the enemy's territory, instead of being unprepared and suffering the country to be invaded. The Bill was read the first time, and the second reading will be placed on the order of the day some time this week.

Then the Compulsory Vaccination Bill was read and finally passed, but so great was the opposition, and so closely were the numbers balanced, that it was only carried by a majority of one, the ayes having 141 and the noes 140, the opposition being principally composed of the Ultramontanes, the Alsatians, the Poles, and the Social-Democrats, who had all combined to oppose the Bill. Only one clause (the 14th), relating to compulsory re-vaccination, was struck out; but, on the other hand, a resolution moved by Dr. Loewe, for establishing a Central Board of Health for the whole Empire, was carried by a large majority.

The Norddeutsche Bank at Hamburg last week held its seventeenth annual ordinary general meeting, to receive the report of the directors, which was deemed satisfactory, considering the financial panics and commercial distress of last year. A dividend of 10½ per cent. was proposed and adopted (in 1872 it was 13 per cent.), and then the needful elections took place, when Mr. Edgar Ross, of the firm of Ross, Vidal and Co., was chosen one of the directors by 1,752 votes, whilst Senator Gustave Godeffroy was re-elected President and Herr Robert Kayser as Vice-President of the Court of Administration. The shares of the bank command a premium of 46 per cent., and are a favourite investment here, as offering undoubted security and a good interest on capital.

I have to express my great regret that in my last letter, through inadvertence in copying my MS., the International was included among the banks which had to be liquidated, owing to losses. I am happy to say that the International is in a very satisfactory condition, and for the last year declared a dividend of 7½ per cent.

We learn from Berlin the interesting fact that last week a young Japanese of the name of Tsusy was baptised in the church of St. George, by the Rev. Pastor Dahms, and was christened by the name of Ernest. A numerous congregation had assembled to witness such an unusal event, the ceremony lasting altogether two hours, as previous to the act of baptism the youthful neophyte had to undergo a searching examination as to his knowledge of the Bible and the principles of Christianity, which he passed in a most creditable manner. The young Christian has selected the profession of arms as his future career, and has obtained permission to enter the Military School at Berlin as a Gentleman Cadet.

Herr Eduard Julius Erdmann is appointed German Consul at Samarang, vice Fr. von Laer, resigned.

Arrivals from the Far East:—Mr. Consul Troup, family, and attendants, from Japan; A. H. Maertens, L. P. Müller, and — Ferlin, from Shanghai; Mr. and Mrs. O. Fürst, E. Rose, and — Maack, from Batavia; J. Alabor, from Hong Kong; C. Rasch, from Hiogo; Rehling, from Calcutta; and Kiesulf, from China.

COMMERCIAL.

The whole disposable stock of Cassia Lignea (36,000 chests) in the hands of importers has been taken out of the market at the reduced price of 71 marks to 74 marks. Tea continues firm, and the sales by importers comprised 876/4 chests and 3,540/8 do. Congou, 639/8 do. and 149/4 do. Souchong, and 100/4 do. Pekoe—all per Jylland, from Foochow. Rice also firm; stock so much reduced that no extensive purchases could be made except for forward delivery. Pepper is lower, and difficult to sell; Singapore nominally 67-68, Penang 66. Oil of Star Annis also lower, with every appearance of a further decline.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVAL.—Psyche, from Hong Kong.

SAILED.—Leonore, to Nicolayefsk; Joachim Christian, to Hong Kong; Iphigenia, to Singapore.

That unfortunate steamer from Calcutta, Queen Elizabeth, that has been recently lost in the Mediterranean, with 1,700 chests of indigo on board, was largely insured here, and the Hamburg underwriters are heavy losers,—it is said to the amount of a million marks.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, MARCH 18.

After a six days' debate the Fortress Bill passed the Second Chamber by sixty against six votes, and if our Lords are not obstinate we may forthwith begin with an improvement in our means of defence. It is to be hoped that none of our neighbours will attack us within the coming eight years, because so much time will be required, besides thirty-two millions of florins, to complete our new fortresses. I need not say that the very large majority was unexpected, the more so because there was great diversity of opinion with respect to the Bill. Some of the members (notably Storm van'sGravesande, Nierstrass, and Insinger) were of opinion that the matter was one not to be settled by the Chamber. Others shrunk from the proposed measure, because they considered that a Minister who was only temporarily in office should not be charged with its execution. Others again thought that the Bill went too far, and asked too much, while, on the other hand, Messrs. Stieltjes and Storm regretted that the provinces of Groningen and Friesland were not to be included, but would be left entirely at the mercy of an enemy, and Mr. Saaymans Vader protested against the dismantling of the fortresses of Veere and Flushing. Mr. Dam declared that he would vote against the Bill if one stone remained of the fortress of Zutfen. The strongholds on the Scheldt were made the ground of complaint by other Members. Messrs. de Roo and Stieltjes urged that it would be a national calamity if the Yssel-line were given up. The period of eight years was quite enough to induce Mr. Bredius to vote against the Bill—and indeed I can assure you that if the Chamber had determined to reject the measures, there were a hundred reasons available. The Chamber will now deal with the proposed reorganisation of our Consular staff abroad, of which merchants have made much complaint of late years.

The consequences of the rejection of the Monetary Bill are still unknown. It is positively asserted that Mr. Van Delden wished to resign, and that he only remained in office at the persuasion of his co-Ministers. When the King returns from his seat het Loo we may perhaps hear about some decisive step being taken, and probably the Cabinet will determine upon dissolving the Chamber. General discontent prevails throughout the country because the Second Chamber wastes so much of the national time; but on the other side it must be acknowledged that the Liberal Cabinets which have succeeded each other have done very little for the nation. If the Chamber is dissolved it is highly probable that the Cabinet of Mr. Fransen van de Putte will share the fate of that of Mr. Gladstone.

The last Reuter's telegram about our war with Atchin has made a very painful impression, and the Ministerial papers can only express a hope that it may be proved to be incorrect. I need scarcely say that your article, "The War in Atchin," was not received here with much favour, and is represented as being manufactured simply to annoy the Dutch nation. The expression of hope that Lord Derby might see his way to some sort of mediation to stay the waste of lives has especially created indignation. Several papers ask the Minister of the Colonial Department to telegraph the names of the soldiers as well as those of the officers who are killed, but Mr. Fransen van de Putte declines.

Some time ago a Commission was appointed by the Society for the Welfare of the Javanese to report what could be done to promote the education of the natives, and a report, drawn up by Mr. Neurdenburg, has been published. The Commission proposes—first, to introduce a simple method of elementary instruction for the children of all classes of natives; secondly, a system of instruction, which is adapted for young men's schools, on a small scale, to be established throughout the country, to give instruction in agriculture, the use of European tools, drawing, &c. This important report is the first step towards improving education in our colonies, which is of the greatest urgency.

A meeting has been held by our Protestant clericals in support of the plan for establishing a seminary at Batavia or Banda. The necessary funds are not yet fully subscribed, a sum of f.100,000 being wanted—say 400 subscribers of f.250 each. A gentleman of the Hague—Baron v. L. v. S.—has given a donation of f.2,500. If the undertaking had a less orthodox colour perhaps it would meet with better success. The moderate Protestants now abstain from participation.

In a former letter I mentioned that rather large sums are being contributed by our Roman Catholics in aid of the persecuted bishops in Germany. Henceforth every week a day will be specially named on which to ask for the mediation of Heaven.

Our Money Market offers nothing to report. Business is very quiet, and, although money is abundant, a general distrust prevails, which checks transactions.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

COFFEE.—In waiting for the Trading Company's auction, when 84,015 bs. will be put up for sale, and which will take place to-day, only a few transactions have taken place. The brokers' valuations for the auction are based on 64½c. for good ordinary Java.

SUGAR.—The market is unaltered; about 6,000 mats have been sold at the prices of last week.

TEA.—There is a brisk demand for the lots of Java, which were brought under the hammer in the last public sale, and an advance has been paid. On the 26th instant will be put up for sale 3,384/4, 1,522/12 and 54/16 chests China ex Lord of the Isles from FOOCHOW, which are valued as follows: Congou 50c., to 150c., Souchong 80c. to 170c., Pekoe 110c. to 200c.

RICE.—A lot of 7,200 bs. uncleaned Java ex County of Sutherland changed hands.

SPICES.—Quiet, but prices very firm.

JAVA TOBACCO.—Several parcels of sundry marks have been sold at prices that did not transpire. The stock includes 9,133 bales Java, and 308 bs. Sumatra.

COTTON.—The market is somewhat firmer, and prices are higher, in consequence of the decreased imports from America.

HIDES.—Business in East India sorts has been large, but as the brokers decline to give the prices the reports are limited to the enumeration of the parcels sold.

DRUGS.—Very limited business.

RATTANS.—100 piculs ex Lydia and 130 piculs ex Aneta Garibaldi changed hands.

CACAO.—24 bs. Java found buyers.

INDIGO.—About 100 chests Java sold at prices that did not transpire.

MANILA SAPANWOOD.—A lot of about 50,000 kilo. sold for export at a very high price.

TIN.—The market is very quiet, at lower quotations. The price of Banca has declined from f.62 to f.58½. Billiton is nominally worth f.56½ to f.57.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—Prime Cochin is quoted f.24½, and prime Ceylon f.22½.

JAPAN SILK.—A lot of 32 bales, bought in at the last auction, found buyers at very low prices. The market for this article is very dull.

THE TREATY WITH PERAK AND LAROOT.

THE new Treaty concluded with the Malay chiefs who have been struggling for supremacy in Perak and Laroot is drawn up in such clear terms that to readers at all familiar with the Straits it will almost explain itself. The preamble sets out the reasons why British intervention has become necessary, and then calls attention to the existence of previous treaties (notably that of 1825), by which we are bound to assist Perak if the Sultan of that Kingdom desires our aid. Then the different positions to be occupied hereafter by the rival claimants to the throne, and the Governor of Laroot are determined; a British official is to reside at Perak, another subordinate officer at Laroot, and the advice of these political agents is to regulate the collection of the revenues and the general administration of the Kingdom. Two small pieces of territory are ceded to Great Britain. This is perhaps the only portion of the Treaty which is likely to be misapprehended. In the one case, that of the Krean river, the latter has hitherto formed the boundary of Province Wellesley, but there has of late been much robbery and violence in Laroot, and in order more effectually to keep down freebooters, and to prevent smuggling craft from sheltering themselves just outside British territory in the watercourses that feed the Krean river, it has been found essential to bring the water system of the Krean, as a whole, henceforth under the control of our police.

The same remark applies to Pulo Dinding and Pulo Pangkor. These islets never were any real good to us, but the reason why we secured them originally is because, if left to Malay Rajahs, they sooner or later shelter pirates. We most of us know what used to go on up and down the Indo-Chinese Coast. The pirates lurk in some island off a sea-port or the mouth of a river. The Governor on shore declares his inability to expel them, for he has no forces except on the mainland, and these pirates are outside his jurisdiction. Meantime he privately receives a share of their booty, and privately furthers their ends in return. Now this sort of thing must by some means or other be stopped, and the best plan has been found to be the making the islands at any rate British territory. The pirate prows are then afraid to hide themselves there, and if they do we can deal with them. In the case of Pulo Dinding recent occurrences have shown that in order to keep the Straits really clear we must get control of the sea-coast opposite as well, and this end we have therefore secured by the eleventh article of the new Treaty.

The cost of the two political residents, with their establishments, is to fall on the revenues of Perak, while the expenses incurred in consequence of our recent intervention will be paid by the Governor of Laroot, in whose principality the disturbances occurred, and who is responsible for the chief share of what has happened. The State of Perak was formerly tributary to Siam; but Captain BURNEY, in 1827, made a treaty with the Court at Bangkok, by which, amongst other things, the complete independence of Perak was secured. This independence made it easy for us to intervene. Many of the other Malay States—Tringanu for example—still owe allegiance to the Siamese, and of course in such instances we could not do more than insist that the King of SIAM should restore order and peace to the dominions of his tributary. We are not complaining against this circumstance; we think that the Siamese have in late years become quite strong enough to quell Chinese rioters, exterminate pirates, and repress disturbance; but we mention the point because we observe at least one of our contemporaries hinting that Sir ANDREW CLARKE will probably ere long have to deal with the affairs of other Malay chiefs as he has dealt with the Rajah of PERAK; and it ought to be carefully borne in mind that our Treaty relations with these potentates in each case vary considerably, and that a uniform policy in our negotiations with them would therefore be out of the question. We cannot help remarking here that, if our opinion is correct and the Governor of Laroot has been saddled with the whole expense by the intervention, on the ground that the party responsible for the difficulties should pay the costs of settling them, then Sir HARRY ORD ought surely to have been made jointly liable for at all events a share of these charges, inasmuch as by a proclamation "of questionable legality," as some called it, or "clearly illegal," as it has been described by others, he allowed arms to be supplied to the Governor of Laroot, and thus intensified the fury of the struggle.

We do not regard the Perak Treaty as anything more than a sensible arrangement for restoring order and fostering commerce in that petty State. Its influences and operation will be local. It has lately been described as "the introduction of the seeds of civilised Government into the Malay Peninsula, destined seemingly to change the face of that country;" but the author of such a phrase must have worked his brain up to concert-pitch, else he would not have sounded so high a note. For all that, however, we must give Sir ANDREW CLARKE credit for his promptness, his good sense, and his moderation. Looking at the general equity of such a question as this it must, we think, be clear that we were not going an inch beyond our duties in acting as we have now done. It was by our direct action that Perak was erected into a completely independent kingdom, and the power of Siam to control the succession to the throne, and to keep down disorder, was taken away. Hinc illæ lacrymæ; when the throne became vacant pretenders started up, and even had there been no internal strife of this sort, yet what power of his own has this Rajah—an autocrat of our creation—to keep down robbers, to chastise pirates, or to hold rude clans of riotous Chinese miners in check, that is, at least, unless we aid him in these undertakings, which are obviously among the first duties of a monarch? His own real subjects, his Malay people, the Rajah could probably at all times manage, but since the days when we set him up to taste the sweets of uncontrolled authority, and to make experience of its attendant duties and cares, a new set of inhabitants, we refer, of course, to the Chinese, have invaded his domains. These are a class whom he has not the material force, even if he possessed the spirit, to compel to obedience to his laws. How can he administer justice to them, or how enforce his decrees? Thus in the interest of the Rajah and his officers, in that of his people, for the sake of the property of British subjects, who own tin mines or land in Perak and Laroot, and, finally, because the paths of commerce must, at all hazards, be kept free from pirates, we were bound to intervene to secure the tranquillity of Perak. This being our duty, we have limited our action to the mildest measures which the due attainment of our ends will admit of. We leave the Rajah his territory (with two small and indispensable reservations); we leave him, too, full power to deal with questions touching Malay religion and custom. We secure him an income out of his revenues sufficient for his requirements; we take nothing except the cost of our Political Agents for ourselves; and we think that such a course is much more commendable than the plan of annexing Perak, as the Dutch would have done, burning the chief town, as we have done in Ashantee, or, lastly, leaving matters alone, as non-interventionalists would probably have advised.

THE rumour which we referred to some time since, as to the discharge of the foreign employés at the Arsenal at Foochow, it appears—by advices by the last mail—was well-founded, and a considerable number of French artizans have arrived at Marseilles. We believe that all the works connected with the Arsenal are to be abandoned.

SHOULD THE STATE IN TIMES OF SCARCITY PROHIBIT THE EXPORTATION OF RICE?

THE above is a question to which public attention in India has lately been drawn, and one which has a peculiar interest for many of our readers who have had experience of the grain-trade in the Far East. Lord NORTHBROOK was recently advised by the Government of Bengal to stop the export of rice from the Indian dominions to foreign countries, and we know that on two occasions the Government of Siam, when their harvests failed, forbade any exportation of grain. The Viceroy of INDIA decided against such a proposition, and he has just published in a somewhat elaborate minute the reasons which led him to this conclusion. We think he was right in his view, but we cannot help adding that his arguments are in one or two points incomplete. He begins by reducing the case down to the practical question whether the export of common rice from Bengal (which has never exceeded 446,000 tons in the most favourable years) ought to be stopped. To prohibit growers to export the best or "table" rice would be simply to withdraw from them the means they require in order to provide themselves with cheaper kinds of food, and therefore this course must be left out of consideration. We also incline to set aside the food requirements of Ceylon, Mauritius, and the Bengal coolies in the West Indies or elsewhere, to which this exported rice is usually sent; for, though Lord NORTHBROOK lays stress upon the point, these consumers need not starve because the Calcutta supplies are temporarily cut off. But we agree in the view that to stop the export of this comparatively small amount would have but little effect in cheapening food for the 66,000,000 Bengalees who eat 30,000 tons of rice in a day. Lord NORTHBROOK, however, seems to us in error when he makes the admission that the action of Government in prohibiting the export of rice would have considerably lowered its price. Not necessarily so by any means; for unless the authorities were at the same time to seize all the existing stocks of paddy at a regulation price all the natives who hold them now, forewarned of the scarcity, will stick to their hoards and retain them undisposed of till the high famine prices show symptoms of a decline, and then they will sell. For all that we agree that one great safeguard against a famine lies in the diminished consumption which naturally results from the rise in prices due to anticipated dearth; because people then begin to economise their food. Either, therefore, the prohibition would—as we contend—not lower the price of grain, or if it did then Lord NORTHBROOK is right in saying that to lower the price artificially at the commencement of the famine is, by the consequent increase of consumption, to absorb the additional stock which the embargo on the export trade supplies. To these difficulties we have next to add the evils consequent upon the disturbance of the labour market and trade by Government restrictions imposed at what is really a commercial crisis. By disappointing our regular customers we induce them to seek their food supplies in other and more trustworthy quarters, and thus we permanently injure—perhaps destroy—our ordinary export trade in grain. This is not merely a financial disaster. To check the export trade of a commodity is to discourage its production, and hence any measure that would weaken the export trade in rice from a country would also lessen the capacity of that country to meet a future period of scarcity by reducing the average of its annual cultivation. The direct losses entailed upon shippers, merchants, mill-owners, and such like great employers of labour in consequence of a prohibition of this sort are also peculiarly severe; and, besides this, the circulation of capital is checked by the blow struck at commerce, and numbers of people are thus thrown out of work at a period when most of all they need employment. Lord NORTHBROOK is right in insisting—as we have done once before—that what is really wanted to prevent a famine in the East is to have the creeks and roads—the channels for conveying the food—in the most efficient state, so that grain, which can always be collected in abundance at the outports, may be easily, cheaply, and swiftly carried to the spots where the real pressure prevails. To forbid the export of rice is not, therefore, to increase the stock of food in the districts distressed, for the particular rice which is thus stopped at the port where the ships await it does not—cannot—come from the districts where the famine threatens, but from some wholly different regions where the harvests have been good. It will therefore still have to be carried to the actual localities of the dearth before it can be of any service there; and hence if the Government interference with commerce brings so many incidental evils in its train, we ask what advantage there can be for laying an embargo on this particular lot of rice, and taking it up from the outport in preference to some other lot of precisely the same quality which has been imported by the State from abroad?

THE Gazette notifies the appointments of Mr. FRANCIS SNOWDEN, the Puisne Judge of the Straits Settlements, to be Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Hong Kong; of Mr. GEORGE PHILLIPPO to be Senior, and Mr. THEODORE THOMAS FORD Junior Puisne Judges in the Straits Settlements. The announcement of knighthood having been conferred upon Chief Justice SMALE, of Hong Kong, is also formally gazetted.

IN our Japan news will be found an announcement that the Japanese Government have paid an instalment of the Simonoseki indemnity. As this indemnity has been allowed to stand over indefinitely the payment indicates a flourishing condition of the finances, as well as the determination to ask no favours of foreign powers.

WE understand that the Chevalier DE SCHAEFFER, at present Consul-General in London, has been appointed to succeed Baron CALICE as Austro-Hungarian Minister in China and Japan. Baron CALICE has been transferred to Bucharest, and Baron SCHREINER will be transferred from Egypt to London.

WE are glad to find by this mail's advices that Mr. MAYERS has not accepted the post of Secretary to the Municipal Council, Shanghai, but retains his post as Chinese Secretary to the Legation at Peking.

THE King of ITALY has nominated Rajah BROOKE, of Sarawak, to be Commendatore of the Order of the Crown of Italy.

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE SUMMER PALACE AT PEKING.

The following passage is from a book now very difficult to procure, "The Story of the Chinese Expedition, as Compiled from French Official Documents." After stating that the Summer Palace was the favourite residence of the Emperor of China, who only repaired to the Peking Palace when he had to take part in official ceremonies, the writer continues:—"This palace consists of a series of buildings separated from each other by lakes, bridges, and artificial hillocks. Many of them are constructed of gilt cedar-wood, while the varnished tiles, some blue, others green or yellow, combined with the trees in blossom, blend their colours in a very effective manner. As is the custom in the East, close to the part of the palace in which the Emperor resided were buildings filled with silks, furs, provisions, and all the accessories of the household, which numbered ten thousand persons. The Emperor could not have left the palace three hours before the arrival of the French troops. When the latter entered they must have imagined themselves rather in a museum than an Imperial residence, for ornaments of gold, silver, and precious stones were arranged on shelves all along the rooms as if for an exhibition. The first feeling was one of wonder, and for some time nothing was touched, but, the charm once broken, the whole was divided among the troops, each man receiving a certain quantity according to his rank, and as laid down by the Royal decree of the 2nd of May, 1832, concerning the distribution of prize-money. It seems certain that the sum of 800,000 francs in gold and silver ingots, also divided among the troops, had been brought to the palace for the current expenses of the Imperial household." Such being the case, it is impossible to argue that "la perfide Albion" instigated the loot of the Summer Palace.

An "Eye Witness" writes to The Times:—Those who were present when the English Ambassador and the French General met will long remember the courteous formalities at the threshold of that Palace of which we had all heard so much, and the impressive assertion that "nothing in the Palace had been removed or injured." But they will remember, also, the evidence of their own senses. They saw that tents occupied by French officers of all ranks were full of plunder; they saw the smoking ruins of a pavilion which had been looted and burnt; and they saw the empty boxes from which some hundreds of valuable watches had been abstracted. I prefer to say nothing about the "mixed Commission" or the find under the pavilion. The facts were not as General Montauban states them; and the bulk of the English prize money was the proceeds of a sale by auction of the loot surrendered by individual officers in obedience to a general order.

Monetary and Commercial.

The annual report of the directors of the Agra Bank (Limited) states that the net profits realised, in addition to the intermediate half-yearly dividend, at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, paid in October last, enable them to recommend a second half-yearly dividend at the same rate, making 5 per cent. for the year, free of income tax. It is also proposed to add £14,000 to the reserve fund, and to carry forward £1,513.

In anticipation of the annual meeting, the directors of the International Bank of Hamburg and London have issued their report. The net profit for the year amounts to £73,392 18s. 3d. A dividend at the rate of 9 per cent. per annum is recommended, the sum of £15,000 is to be placed to the reserved fund, and £5,742 14s. 3d. to be carried forward to the new account.

The directors of the New York, London, and China Steamship Company have declared an interim dividend of 5 per cent. on the paid up capital.

The warning we gave last year of the utter inadequacy of the current premiums in the India and China trade was not too soon. It is now very clearly demonstrated that risks by steamers, viâ Suez Canal, are more hazardous than vessels round the Cape. The loss of the Woosung and Queen Elizabeth, running into about £1,000,000, has staggered the insurance offices and Lloyd's, and outward risks to India and China at once advanced to 30s. and 35s.—free of particular average. The rates for new season's teas from Hankow are to be 70s. At present it does not seem so much a question as to the class of the steamer as the class of the captain, and we believe if more caution had been shown in the selection for steamers the losses would not have been so great. No person should command a steamer that has not had at least two years' experience as an officer in a steamer. The navigation of a steamer is totally different to a sailing ship, and cannot be learned in a few months on shore.

Mr. Maitland, a director of the London and Provincial Marine Insurance Company, confirms the opinions put forth in the letter addressed to The Times signed "C. I.," which appeared in our last issue. Mr. Maitland says that one fertile source of the loss of vessels is the racing of steamers, the object of many masters appearing to be speed in preference to safety. Alluding to the vessels recently lost, Mr. Maitland says, "If we hear of occasional accidents even to the steamers of the P. and O. and Messageries Companies, whose officers know the road well, what must continue to be the result if long, low, fast steamers, laden with most valuable cargoes and still more valuable lives, are to go rushing up the Red Sea heedless of all but making a quick passage!"

The Silk Association of America in their monthly statistics show the imports of Raw Silk at New York and San Francisco for the month of February and the first eight months in the fiscal year ended June 30th to have been as follows : 1867, pkgs. 527, value $388,953 ; 1868, pkgs. 2,864, value $1,552,125 ; 1869, pkgs. 4,331, value, $2,353,867 ; 1870, pkgs. 3,344, value $1,660,808 ; 1871, pkgs, 4,358, value $2,831,602 ; 1872, pkgs. 6,300, value $4,028,098; 1873, pkgs. 8,340, value $5,260,497; 1874, pkgs. 5,212, value $2,990,121. The importations of Manufactured Silk during the same period were : 1867, pkgs. 13,527, value $14,247,481 ; 1868, pkgs. 12,174, value $11,389,682 ; 1869, pkgs. 14,754, value $13,893,335 ; 1870, pkgs. 16,737, value $15,017,057 ; 1871, pkgs. 19,331, value $18,448,314; 1872, pkgs. 25,795, value $24,565,327; 1873, pkgs. 23,912, value $21,737,056 ; 1874, pkgs. 18,532, value $15,351,583.

Negotiations have been current for rates of freight for the new season's teas from Hankow and Foochow, but we believe no distinct settlements have been made. The Cutty Sark and Lammermuir are said to be fixed to load at Hankow. The P and O. and other steam lines will be fully represented, and the result may probably be the same as last year, that the first will have the lowest freights.

The Eastern Telegraph Company's Vigo-Lisbon cable has been repaired, thus re-establishing direct communication with Egypt, India, and the East.

Captain Hozier, formerly correspondent of The Times, has been appointed Secretary at Lloyd's.

There has been a further demand for Bar Silver for India during the week, and the price has improved from 58⅞d. to 59⅛d. per oz. standard, and we quote that price as the nearest. Mexican Dollars by the West India steamer, £35,985 in value, have been sold at 57¼d. per oz., chiefly for refining purposes, and participating in the rise of the Silver Market, these dollars have since been placed at 57⅜d. per oz., showing a further rise of ⅛d. per oz.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade returns for February show a serious falling-off, the total declared value of the exports being £18,228,803, against £20,333,606 in February last year. The amount for the two months is £37,701,270, against £40,632,153 in the corresponding period of 1873, and £37,409,796 in the same period of 1872. The decrease was in all the leading commodities. The declared value of the imports in the month was £31,350,828, against £27,619,517 in February, 1873, and £28,711,649 in February, 1872, but much of the excess was due to larger receipts of cereals and provisions.

The following is an extract from these returns of the figures which refer to our Export trade with China and the Far East :—

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

The general aspect of the Produce Markets has been one of unusual dulness, and the movements in prices have been mostly of an unfavourable character. The relapse in several articles from the previous speculative activity and enhanced value has become severe, Coffee having suffered a rapid decline of about 15s. per cwt., making a total of 20s. to 25s. from the highest point; Pepper has further importantly declined, and Black is now 1½d., and White 2½d. per lb. lower than on the 1st of January; during the same period Manila Hemp has receded fully £5 per ton, and Tin as much as £22. The demand for Sugar shows no improvement, and prices are again cheaper. Rice has fluctuated, but closes firmly for floating cargoes.

TEA.

There is no improvement in the tone of the market, but prices with few exceptions show no change, as importers continue firm holders. The export trade for the Continent shows no signs of revival, and to New York and Canada has been smaller than for some time past.

Black.—Red-leaf: Old siftings sell at 5d. to 5½d., new at 7d. to 8d. per lb. Amoy kinds slow of sale at 10½d. to 11½d. Flavoury kinds with leaf at 11d. to 1s.; good flavoury, Sayune, and Kaisow kinds at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 4d. per lb. show no change. Medium Kaisow at 1s. 5d. to 1s. 7d., and fine and finest at 1s. 9d. to 2s.; transactions have been on a small scale. Pakling: No change. Tayshan leaf: Dealers hold full stocks, and sales have been less frequent. Black leaf: The grades good common to fair at 11d. to 1s. 1d. have sold a shade lower; the higher grades are held firmly, and the limited transactions establish no important change in values. Souchong and Oolong: No change. Scented Tea: The cargo ex Lothair has been on offer the past few days; the quality as a whole is not satisfactory; a few parcels olive coloured, both of Orange Pekoe and Caper, have been taken at extreme prices, but the bulk of the cargo remains unsold, glazed kinds being still out of favour. Foochow Orange Pekoe: Good to medium quality has been sold at 1d. per lb. decline, as supplies of late have been somewhat heavy. Green.—The market is cleared of fine Moyune. At auction on the 17th inst. old season's Teen Kai and Ping Suey kinds sold irregularly, in some cases at 3d. to 4d. per lb. reduction. Ping Sueys do not go freely into consumption, and consequently stocks accumulate. Japan kinds: Olive leaf of late imports leave favourable results.

SILK.

The improvement in the market has developed into active enquiry for China Silk, and a considerable business has been done, and prices have stiffened until they now show a full shilling advance from the lowest point, and the market, although rather quieter towards the close, still maintains the same firm tone. Canton Silk, without being in much demand, has nevertheless benefited by the movement in North Chinas, and is firm at 13s. 6d. for good market Tsatlees. Japans are also better, although the enquiry is not general. Deliveries are good; being from 1st to 18th March: China 2,134, Canton 427, Japan 399, Bengal 214; Total 3,174 bales.

CAMPHOR.—The market has continued dull; no transactions have been entered into in China, and 500 tubs Japan offered were retired.

COCOA-NUT OIL has moved off but slowly, Cochin at £38 to £40 according to quality; Ceylon in pipes at £35 15s. to £35, and in hogsheads at £36 10s., also 50 tons January sailing at £36; by auction 78 casks Ceylon sold at £36.

COIR GOODS.—A larger supply of Yarn has been offered at the public sales, viz., 1,904 bales 142 tons; there was a good demand, and the whole was disposed of at 10s. to 20s. above the previous quotations. Fibre has sold at firmer prices; 93 tons Ceylon Yarn sold, ordinary coarse to good ordinary at £26 5s. to £28 15s., low middling £29 15s., medium to good medium at £31 5s. to £34, good £36 10s. to £37 5s.; 2,025 ballots (5½ tons) Ceylon Fibre sold at £17 5s., 130 ballots (16 cwt.) Ceylon Brush at £36 15s., also 147 cheeses (2½ tons) ditto at £24 to £24 15s. Straw Plait: At auction, of 91 bales China, 40 bales damaged sold at £6 to £7 per bale. Kitool Fibre: 2 tons Ceylon sold at 6d. to 7d. per lb.

CUTCH has been quiet at last quoted prices.

CUBEBS.—Market firm at last quotations.

COPRA is scarce and in demand.

COLOMBO ROOT continues in demand, but supply is large; 400 bags sold at 12s. to 12s. 6d. for good part wormy, and 7s. 6d. low, being previous value.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—Market quiet; 5 cases Reed sold at £9 15s. for good but mouldy; and of 11 cases lump offered 4 sold; superior bright at £11 10s. to £12 10s., damp £8 2s. 6d. per cwt.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed very dull; small private sales at 8s. 9d. to 9s. Cassia very dull; small sales at 4s. 7d. Nutmeg very quiet, and 8 cases retired. Cinnamon scarce, and 31 cases bitter sold at 8d. to 10d. per oz.; 33 cases leaf fair sold at 3d. to 3¼d. Citronelle steady. Lemon Grass firmly held, 17 cases sold at 3d.

EBONY.—Market quiet; of 70 tons Ceylon placed on offer half sold at £13. 7s. 6d. to £18 per ton.

GALLS.—Prices of China have slightly given way, owing to further arrivals; of 950 cases offered, one-third sold at 54s. per cwt., and a small proportion at 53s. 6d. privately. At auction Thursday 200 boxes China were chiefly sold at 53s. to 53s. 6d., being again easier.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Siam scarce; a single case brought £23 5s. for fine. Sumatra steady, and fine scarce; of 20 cases, half sold at £8 to £8 7s. 6d. for fair 2nds. Copal dull; 537 cases at auction retired. Damar very firmly held. Gamboge quiet; 5 cases retired.

GALANGAL ROOT.—Market quiet.

GAMBIER.—Prices are easier; 450 tons sold privately at 24s. 9d. ex ship, and about 24s. 6d. ex warehouse. Small sales since ex quay and ex warehouse at 24s. 10½d. to 25s. About 1,000 bags Cubes have been placed at 38s. to 39s. for fine, and at auction 216 mats were retired.

GUTTA-PERCHA.—The auctions have embraced 236 baskets, 251 blocks, and 4 tons, of which a small portion only sold at 11d. to 1s. 3d.; privately there has been less doing.

HEMP.—The market for Manila has been quiet, with small private trade at slightly easier rates.

HIDES.—At the public sales Thursday there was an improved demand for East India, and light weights of good quality realised full prices to ¼d. per lb. advance. Heavy weights sold rather irregularly, but without material change on the average; the tendency was, however, in sellers' favour. Ordinary and common qualities met with active competition, and may be quoted fully ¼d. to ½d. per lb. dearer. Buffalo, of good to prime quality, realised full prices, whilst fair to ordinary were in limited demand at barely former rates. INDIA-RUBBER.—The market has continued very quiet, and there are still sellers of Borneo at 1s. 6d. per lb.

ISINGLASS.—Without alteration.

JAPAN WAX has been quiet; of 315 cases offered, about half has been sold at £3 to £3 1s. per cwt. for fine quality.

Of 1,220 bags offered, over 700 found buyers; last week fair at 9d. per lb.; this week fine Singapore at 8⅜d. to 8⅞d.; fair at 8⅛d. to 8½d.; Penang, good, at 8d. Afloat nothing whatever has been done in either Black or White.

RHUBARB.—But little business has been done in China. At auction, of 130 cases offered, over half sold at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 5d. for fair; 6d. to 9½d. ordinary and middling; and 3d. inferior.

RICE.—In the absence of important demand on the spot, operations have again been chiefly confined to floating cargoes, most on speculative account, prices of which have fluctuated, a decline of 6d. per cwt. having since been recovered; business was effected in Rangoon at 11s., and at the close at 11s. 6d. In Bengal business has been done afloat at easier rates, and Madras is also cheaper. On the spot prices of soft kinds are 3d. lower, and Japan, of which large arrivals have taken place, have declined about 1s. per cwt. Several large parcels offered by auction went off as follows:—14,505 bags and mats Japan per Gordon Castle chiefly bought in at 12s. 3d. for fair to 13s. for good, about 7,000 bags being sold, sound of fair quality at 11s. 6d., first-class sea-damaged at 11s.; 1,087 bags white Bengal bought in at 13s. 6d. to 14s. 6d., and 2,728 bags Ballam at 13s. RATTANS.—Market quiet, except for fine, which are scarce; 7,260 bundles sold; Singapore at 4s. 7d. to 4s. 9d. per 100 canes.

SAGO.—The market has been very dull. Public sales have embraced 1,451 bags, of which a small proportion only sold; small fair at 14s. 6d. to 15s. Flour firmer; 1,500 bags Singapore sold privately at up to 14s. 9d.; and at auction, of 638 bags, part sold previously privately; and about 40 bags in the sale at 14s. 9d. per cwt.

SHELLS.—The monthly sales were held on the 17th inst. Mother o' Pearl: The sales included 168 cases Manila, which were all retired; there being no demand except at 10s. per cwt. under last sales prices. Tortoise: The auctions embraced ten cases Manila and Singapore, three of which only found buyers at 24s. 6d. per lb. for good and fine mottle shell; small to large in sorts; 20s. 6d. ditto thinner and part dull and dark; and 17s. 6d. chicken to medium; being about the former value.

SAPANWOOD.—Ceylon is very firm and scarce; 3 tons offered were sold at £13 per ton. Manila and Siam are also very scarce, and are in active request.

STAR ANISEEDS have continued quiet; small private sales have been effected at £6, and of 63 cases at auction a portion sold at £5 2s. 6d. for mouldy and £4 12s. 6d. for damaged.

STICKLAC.—Siam has been quiet on the spot, but afloat about 1,000 boxes have changed hands at £8 per cwt.

SOY.—No business reported; 50 hogsheads and 100 cases Japan offered at public sales were retired.

SPICES.—Cinnamon: The market has been very quiet, demand having been restricted since the last quarterly sales. Cassia Lignea: About 6,000 cases have been sold here, and 37,000 cases in Hamburgh at reduced prices, which have not transpired. 363 cases offered at auction were retired. Buds quiet; 50 cases retired at £6, without a bid. Cloves: Quite neglected, 17 cases Penang retired; of 5 casks Amboyna, part sold at 1s. 4½d. (1 lot 2⅜d.); fair 2d. to 2⅛d. Pearl has been in better request, and last week 150 bags were sold at 22s. 6d. to 23s. for good bright medium; this week 340 bags were retired, and there was little demand. Flour is much wanted at 2½d. per lb. for good.

TIN.—The market is steadier, Straits being firm at last week's quotation, £94 per ton on the spot and afloat. Banca is quoted £102, Billiton £96, showing a further decline.

Copper: The charters from Chili for the first fortnight in February amount to 2,800 tons, since the announcement of which the market for Bars has been easier. Lead quiet. Spelter quiet. Quicksilver firm.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

The market has been quiet, but a steadier feeling is prevalent, due chiefly to increased activity in the Liverpool Cotton Market. The inquiry is more general, and buyers have operated on a larger scale, apparently with greater confidence. Quotations show no noticeable change, but producers show greater firmness, and for good makes of Grey Shirtings purchases have increased sufficiently to place production under engagement extending over some considerable time forward. The commoner makes meet with little favour, at current rates. Yarns are without alteration, but the position at the moment is scarcely so strong as that held by Goods.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS.—Disease in some shape is ever rife amongst mankind. Impurity of blood or irregularity of function is constantly giving rise to despondency, debility, or distempers. In the above-named remedies the community can have at a little cost the safe and certain means of preventing, checking, and curing both outward ailments and inward maladies. Ample, plainly printed, and very intelligible directions accompany every package of both Ointment and Pills, which only require attentive study to be his or her medical adviser. The earlier these powerful remedies are employed after discovery of the disease, the more rapid will be their action in expelling from the system all noxious matters and restoring health.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

A correspondent writes:—His Excellency the Viceroy is spending his winter at Pow-ting-foo. Very severe winter in the North of China; plains around Tientsin entirely frozen over, and H.M.S. Elk, French Conleune, and Russian Morges, frozen in the river. It is said in reliable quarters that the Emperor would never grant another audience to the Foreign Ministers, and no Minister has ever applied for one, although as regards British interests in China many important questions might be urged. As delivery of grain is to be taken at Tungchow, fifteen miles from Peking, there are some hopes of the Chinese Government being induced to allow steam launches to run between Tientsin and Tungchow (one hundred and twenty miles), a great boon to every one; it will be for the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company to urge it, as they have to deliver the grain. The Chinese will celebrate their New Year's festivities on the 17th February. The river is not expected to be opened much before the 5th or 6th of March. The winter trade here is in a most depressed state.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 13th Feb.; the French mail from London Dec. 19 arrived out on the 6th Feb., and the following P. and O. mail of 26th Dec. on the 11th Feb. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

We publish among our law reports an interesting and important decision lately delivered by Sir Edmund Hornby on a special case submitted to him—under the clause of the rules of the Supreme Court regulating the submission and decision of questions of law without formal suit—between the Municipal Council and the Oriental Bank Corporation. The Municipal Council, in accordance with the land regulations, and a resolution passed at the last ratepayers' meeting for a general reassessment, assessed the Bank's premises at a rental of Tls. 8,000 per annum. The Bank appealed against this as excessive, but the Court of Appeal confirmed the assessment of the Council. The Bank still maintaining the assessment to be too high, it was agreed to submit to the Chief Judge for his opinion whether the decision of the Court of Appeal was final. His Lordship is of opinion that it is final, and supports his judgment with a lucid and interesting chain of reasoning, which clearly establishes the status of our local self-government.

We understand that Messrs. Leroy, Aymeri, Mackintosh and Wheelock have resigned their seats on the French Munsipal Council—in consequence, we believe, of some divergence of opinion between themselves and the Consul-General as to the validity of the last elections.

At a meeting of the Mi-ho-loong Rifle Company it was resolved to accept an offer by Captain Whyte, H.M.S. Cadmus, to provide a drill sergeant for the company—and to insist on attendance at drill. The funds of the corps were shown to be in a satisfactory condition. It was resolved to hold the Mi-ho-loong ball as usual, and Messrs. Rice, Mackenzie, Groom, Clarke, Dent, Dunman and Tobin were elected a ball committee.

An unusual case. arising out of a change of masters on board the British ship Alhambra, has been decided at the Supreme Court, before Mr. Mowat. The main facts have already been disclosed in a prosecution against the chief officer for refusing to obey the orders of the new captain. The case arose from the new captain, W. G. Beadle, having taken out a summons calling upon the superseded captain, C. H. Nelson, to show cause why he should not deliver up all documents relating to the ship in his possession or under his control. His Honour having enquired into facts as to the ownership and agency of the vessel, decided against defendant. He said that if defendant thought he had been wrongfully discharged, his remedy lay in an action against those who had removed him, not in withholding papers relating to the ship or its owners.

A memorial from the native merchants of Shanghai has been presented to the Taoutai, and subsequently published as an advertisement in the Shunpao. It complains that the weight of taxation in this province is crushing trade, and prays for the abolition of certain local imposts and the reduction of barrier dues to the rate prevailing in Chekeang.

Our Hankow correspondent writes :—The annual meeting of landrenters and taxpayers has been held. The leading feature was the upset of the retiring Council's bund scheme, and the adoption of a new one. The lighting of the Settlement, and the police force, were also subjects of discussion, and no doubt the new Council will give attention to these subjects at their future meeting. We have had a big fire in the city, somewhere about 300 houses burnt. Business completely collapsed, and will probably remain so until after China new year.

A Tientsin correspondent writes that the ice broke up on the 23rd Jan., and the river off the British Settlement was quite open on the morning of that day.

FOOCHOW.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

On the 16th of February the great ship-building yard at Foochow will cease to be under European direction, the Chinese thinking they are sufficiently advanced in naval architecture to carry on the work themselves. This yard during its existence has launched fourteen magnificent ships, thirteen of which are about 900 to 1,000 tons, and one of 2,000. There is also another nearly built, which will be shortly launched, thus making a total of fifteen ships. It has employed some fifty European workmen, chiefly French, together with a European director and staff, all of whom are under an Imperial Commission directly appointed from Peking. No one who has ever walked through its workshops can say aught but praise of the conscientious working of its chief European director, Monsieur Giquel; and all must acknowledge he has done his share in the work of the regeneration of China in taking her out of the groove of her usual style of ship-building, replacing her junk of huge and unwieldy proportions by a ship of fair and symeterical form, which will with credit carry the flag of China through the neighbouring seas. Although ship-building has been the main feature connected with the Foochow dockyard, another branch deserves mention. A certain number of Chinese youths have been instructed in mathematics and navigation, and have gone through the usual curriculum of our naval schools, under the able instruction of Mr. Carroll, and as they were found sufficiently advanced they were drafted off into a training-ship, where the knowledge they had acquired at school was practically put to the test, and after passing through this ship were appointed officers or commanders of the vessels of the fleet. This branch of the dockyard has been productive of the greatest good, for it has turned out a tolerable number of Chinese sailors versed in scientific navigation. The training ship was under the command of Capt. R. Tracey, R.N., whose heart was in his work, and who has given his pupils a real taste of what the sea was by taking them on a voyage to Penang, and cruising for months along the stormy coast of China. The director of the dockyard has, during its brief existence of some seven years, done his best to help to raise China to a level of European nations. He has well succeeded in his naval architecture, for the last two ships built are said to have been wholly constructed by the Chinese, without any European supervision, and if one could come to Foochow, and see the Chinese steam fleet assembled here for the holidays, they would be struck with wonder and astonishment to see how adroitly they are handled. China is not asleep; she may not be making such rapid strides as Japan, but nevertheless the schoolmaster of progress is abroad, and his influence is being felt through the land; and conservative though her policy may be, she will, I am sure, as time rolls on, bear favourable comparison with her more impulsive sister, Japan. In dismissing its European instructors the Chinese Government have behaved most liberally, some £20,000 being granted for distribution among them, independent of a most magnificent cumshaw to the director, M. Giquel. Besides these large monetary presents, a yellow jacket has been conferred upon M. Giquel; orders, medals, and buttons have been granted to the rest with no niggard hand. There is one thing connected with the retrenchment of expenditure connected with this dockyard which must not be lost sight of by our Consuls, and which greatly concerns our prosperity as merchants. We ought in a body to insist upon the taking off of the Lekim Tax imposed upon foreign trade. This tax was first put on in this province to enable the Government to cope successfully with the rebels, and after their defeat continued to provide the means of carrying on the Foochow dockyard in order to enable them to build a fleet to be ready for contingencies in the future. We have patiently borne these imposts on our trade, and have enabled China to accomplish both these ends, and we only now in justice demand that this double tax upon our imports may once and for ever cease to exist. With regard to the revenue that may be required for the future efficient working of this ship-building yard, I would suggest that a sum should be set aside from the Customs revenue for that purpose which the Imperial Government can well afford; and this would away with the necessity of levying that vexatious Lekim Tax which has for years fettered and paralysed our commerce, and which has been levied in direct and violent opposition to the spirit of our treaty.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 19th February; the French mail from London Jan. 9 arrived out on the 15th Feb., and the following P. and O. mail of Jan. 16 on the 18th Feb. The China Mail supplies the following items of intelligence :—

A boat accident, by which a large number of persons lost their lives, occurred in Hong Kong harbour. A new steam-launch, named Wan Loong, was announced to make her first trip to Canton, and a charge of only fifty cents being made for the journey, a large number of passengers—estimated from 200 to 300—embarked. The vessel was owned partly by Chinese and partly by foreigners, and much interest was felt in her. But few Europeans were on board, and they included Captain Herriot (in command), Mr. M'Bain, and Mr. Scott. The steamer started a little before seven, and soon after she left Burd's wharf she sheared over, from the sudden putting down of the helm to clear another vessel. The passengers on the upper deck thereupon became alarmed, running from one side to the other, and the vessel, after a few heavy rolls, filled and sank. The officers on board the Police Chop seem to have anticipated some mishap, and they went immediately to the rescue. Aid was also sent from the Princess Charlotte, the Hartford, and several house boats, and by these means many of the passengers were rescued. All the Europeans were saved, and it is not known how many lives were lost—probably not far short of 100. It is said the boat was insured. Several dead bodies have been recovered, and an inquest upon them will be held.

The coal at the naval depot at Kowlong was recently discovered to be on fire. The steam launch was called into requisition, and took over about a hundred coolies, who set to work moving the coal, and meantime the Princess Charlotte signalled to the fleet for their assistance. The coal did not blaze, but was smoking, and so hot that the coolies could not stand upon it. Several small fire-engines were procured from the Princess Charlotte and other ships, together with two belonging to the Naval Yard. These measures proved successful, and the fire was finally got under.

A fire has occurred on board the ship Colombia, bound for San Francisco. The crew had mostly cleared out for shore. Inspector Grimes ordered the small cannon to be fired, and lights to be fixed at the mast to attract attention. There was not a blue light or rocket on board the ship. The water police were communicated with and were soon on the spot, several cargo boats followed, and later the Fame steam-tug. Energetic efforts were made to extinguish the fire, but without success. It was found impossible to run the vessel ashore, and she was then scuttled in the after part. She did not, however, sink; and about twelve o'clock the flames burst through the fore deck, and, extending to the rigging and other parts, the ship appeared one mass of fire—a truly magnificent sight.

It is probable that but few people appreciate the rarity of the Cutting Creeper lately presented to the City Hall. We learn that two very handsome offers were made to the late owner if he would part with it, but, as he had already presented it to the museum, he refused to do so. It is said that between one and two hundred dollars was the price offered.

Our local Recreation Club committee when hard up for ideas may take a hint from Labuan. At the last athletic sports fête which took place in that minute colony, horse and canoe races were agreeably varied by pig and buffalo competitions. To see some of our well-known local athletes chasing a buffalo with a greased tail round the race-course would probably attract a large crowd of spectators. The buffalo is evidently a touch ahead of the pig.

We learn that the revenue junks stationed at Cheong Kwan O, a place just outside the precincts of this harbour and within the Ly-ee-moon Pass, have been rather busy lately in their little game of squeezing. The petty officials in charge levied a blackmail on every junk passing there, and on the refusal of one of them to pay, threats of arrest were made, until the interference of the Kyfong brought them to reason; the squeezers, however, arrested one of the most prominent members of that body. The immediate result of this was that all the shops closed at once, and would not reopen until an apology had been offered. We learn that the matter has been referred to the Canton authorities.

We are informed that the M.M.S.S. Ava, on her way down from Shanghai, narrowly escaped a collision with a P. and O. steamer, which must have been the Travancore. The night was foggy, and the P. and O. vessel was going slowly.

The conjuring entertainment at the Garrison Theatre on the 10th was of a very high order. All the old standard tricks of Professor Anderson—of whom the performer was a disciple—were given with great skill and were received with great applause from a densely-packed house. A larger room would suit performances of this kind better, and the performer need have no hesitation in giving a seance in the City Hall. He is exceedingly clever.

A rifle match took place between eight inspectors and eight sergeants of the police force, for a silver cup subscribed amongst themselves, on the 10th, at the Kowloong rifle range. The competitors were Inspectors Batten, Grimes, Cradock, Grey, Gair, Orley, Stroud and O'Brien, with points 28, 12, 33, 25, 25, 36, 32 and 16 respectively, and Sergeants Dodds, Thomson, Youngson, King, MacBeth, Thompson, Wassenius and Cameron, with points 30, 22, 28, 5, 18, 25, 36 and 44 respectively. From the above score Sergeant Cameron was the best shot, and Sergeant King the worst. On the Inspectors' side, Inspector Grimes was the worst shot, but he hit the bull's eye twice, and had he not met with an accident to his hand a day or two ago, he might have stood a good chance of winning the cup. As Inspector Orley had scored 36 points, and as the prize fell to the lot of the Inspectors, he was the lucky winner.

We observe that the new Attorney-General, Mr. Bramston, has arrived by the French mail.

The cricket match between the Hong Kong Cricket Club and the Garrison ended in a defeat for the latter by between fifty and sixty runs.

A letter from Swatow says:—H.I.C.M.S. Chen-to, Mr. J. Langelier commanding, arrived from Hong Kong, having a Mandarin junk in tow. General Fang came down to Swatow from Chau-Chau-fuh on the 30th, his principal object being to take measures for the deepening of the various branches of the River Han, in order to afford greater facilities for trade to several large cities, between which and the sea they form the connecting channel. The General visited on the 2nd inst. the American and English Consuls and the Commissioner of Customs. The usual salute of three guns was fired from each of the Consulates on his arrival and departure, and from the Chen-to, as his junk passed her. The Taoutai is also down here for a short time.

The case of Blow v. Forbes and others was heard in the Supreme Court, before Chief Justice Smale, on the 12th February. Mr. Hayllar, the Acting Attorney-General, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Kingsmill for the defendants. The plaintiff was Captain Blow, of the steamer Lord of the Isles, and he sued the defendants on one or more clauses of a charter party for the charter of a steamer for three months, on a voyage from Hong Kong to San Francisco and back, at $2,500 per month. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, less five days' freight for detention at San Francisco.

At the meeting of shareholders in the China Traders Insurance Company the report of the committee, which appears in another page, was adopted.

At the meeting of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank the directors' report was adopted. The Chairman, Mr. S. D. Sassoon, said—The last time he addressed a meeting of shareholders it would be remembered that he alluded to a large sum which had been advanced to the Pier and Godown Company. The directors then considered that the advance was fully covered by the value of the property, it having cost about three lakhs to the company. At the auction, however, no higher bid than $89,000 was made, and it was not sold. Although the directors fully believed that it was worth the money advanced, and that it would yet realise it, they had judged it wise to write off the sum. The other matter which had caused loss was the fraud committed by Stoddard at Shanghai, known as the Lead frauds, whereby the bank had lost $30,000—a matter to be deeply regretted. This, however, had been provided for out of the half-year's earnings.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 26th Feb.; no later mail from London had arrived out. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

A serious accident occurred to the Honourable Thomas Scott, M.L.C., as he was going to office. Mr. Scott was driving a pair of horses, one being newly broken, in a light buggy, and the new horse, which had been restive all the way to town, became unmanageable when coming over Cavenagh Bridge, and broke into a run. Rounding the corner sharp, the buggy capsized, and was dragged on its side, with Mr. Scott caught underneath it, till it was brought up opposite Flint-street by collision with a phaeton, which was also upset. Mr. Scott was extricated at once, and taken into Messrs. McAlister and Co.'s, where medical assistance was procured and his wounds dressed. These, though serious, were found to consist only of a very severe flesh wound below the knee, and some bad bruises; luckily, we might say almost miraculously, no bones were broken. Subsequently Mr. Scott and his wife narrowly escaped drowning by the wreck of the Sun Foo, bound for Hong Kong.

H. E. the Governor and Admiral Shadwell have visited Salangore and Langkat, to endeavour to put a stop to the piracies that have become so frequent in the rivers and creeks of the native States bordering the Straits of Malacca, and to insist upon the observance of the existing treaty with Salangore to this end. The visit was eminently successful, and resulted in effecting a reconciliation between the Sultan of Salangore and Tunku dia Udin, the ruler of Klang and Salangore, between whom there had been an estrangement. The pirates were tried on board H.M.S. Thalia, by a native Court, of which Tunku dia Udin was President, and all but one condemned to death, the sentence being carried out on the beach. Major McNair, the Colonial Engineer, and Mr. J. G. Davidson, who were left as Commissioners to represent H.E. the Governor during the trial, returned to Singapore in the Thalia after seeing the sentence carried out. Besides the trial and execution of the pirates, the Sultan also paid an indemnity of 385 piculs of tin as compensation to the relatives of the murdered men, and there can be little doubt that the late proceedings will make a lasting impression. We publish in the present issue the existing treaties with Salangore, Rambow, and Johole, which evidently need revision, and will probably be replaced by better defined engagements when opportunity offers; but in the meantime it is essential to the safety of life and property that the Sultan of Salangore and his sons should be compelled strictly to adhere to the terms of the treaties now in force, instead of constantly violating them with impunity, as they have done for so long.

The Commission that has been sitting at Laroot to settle the claims for compensation arising out of the protracted Chinese faction quarrel there has, we believe, concluded its labours, as two of the commissioners, Captain Dunlop and Mr. Pickering, left Penang yesterday on their return to Singapore. No particulars, however, of the settlement effected have as yet been made public.

The vessels of H.M. squadron are about to leave for their stations. The Salamis proceeded homeward after the visit to to Salangore, and the Rinaldo, also homeward bound, leaves shortly. The Iron Duke, with Admiral Shadwell, leaves for China, and the Frolic goes to Manila and China.

The Chinese New Year rejoicings began on the 16th, and as their noise and uproar has been augmented by the natives in their celebration of the Mahomedan Moharrum, the streets of the town have during the past few days been unusually gay. These festivals, are however, nearly over now; the natives will end their masquerade this week, and the Chinese New Year rejoicings will close with a louder uproar than ever on the 3rd proximo, after which matters will settle down in their usual groove, and we trust general business will be resumed with renewed activity.

A letter from Malacca says:—The Chin Chin tin mines, regarding which I wrote you about six months ago, have turned out very successfully, and the shareholders have got the whole of their capital back again, and have since advanced another $3,000. It is said that during the three months the tin mines have been worked they have yielded 160 slabs of tin, and that the metal is of a superior quality to that of any other tin mining district in the Malayan Peninsula. None of the tin has as yet been exported to the Singapore market, owing to the Chinese New Year holidays.

A meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held at the Exchange Rooms, to give an expression of the views of the Chamber on the recent action of the Government in Perak and Laroot. The object of the meeting was explained in a few remarks by W. H. Read, Esq., the chairman, after which the following resolution was carried unanimously:—

The Chamber of Commerce having taken consideration the engagements lately entered into by the chiefs of Perak in the presence of his Excellency the Governor, desires respectfully to express its entire approval of the measures adopted to put a stop to the piracy and misrule which have so long prevailed in that province; and it sincerely trusts that his Excellency will continue to pursue the just, firm and conciliatory policy thus inaugurated, until the whole of the so-called independent states of the Malayan peninsula shall be brought under similar control.

The Chamber is satisfied that it is by such measures only that a rich and fertile country, which has been too long neglected and allowed to lapse into anarchy, can be brought under British influence and opened to civilisation and commerce, and that they constitute the course of action most worthy of a great nation.

IN reference to the loss of the French mail steamer Nil, near Yokohama, we regret to state that the passengers (who are not yet correctly known) were not saved.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The market for Manufactured goods had continued in an unsatisfactory state throughout the interval; prices for all the chief staples were declining and stocks were increasing. But little business had been done either in Cottons or Woollens. In Metals also sales had been small, and arrivals considerable.

CHEFOO.—Messrs. Wilson, Cornabé, and Co. report that during the month under review business in 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings has been fairly active, but in other Cotton fabrics there has been nothing done whatever. We look for a continued inquiry for 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, and hope to see an improvement in the demand for T-Cloths after the Chinese New Year. Drills rule very low, and for Fancy Cottons we have no inquiry. Woollens continue dull of sale, and prices are unaltered. Metals: Iron is in good inquiry, flat kind being especially wanted; Lead has slightly improved in value, but the demand is by no means brisk.

HANKOW.—Business had been on a most restricted scale, and no improvement was looked for until after the Chinese holidays.

SHANGHAI.—Considering the near approach of the Chinese New Year holidays a fair amount of business had taken place, but there was no elasticity in the market, and in some cases prices were a shade easier.

FOOCHOW.—The following sales had been reported:—2,000 pieces 7 lbs., T-Cloths at $1.90 per piece, and 500 pieces 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings at $2.75 per piece. Lead, 300 pigs at $8.25 per picul.

HONG KONG.—There had been nothing doing, business being suspended in consequence of the Chinese New Year holidays.

BATAVIA.—Business was at a complete standstill owing to the Chinese New Year holidays.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Bowstead and Co. report as follows:—During the early part of the fortnight the Chinese New Year holidays interfered with business, and few transactions were reported. Since the market reopened a considerable business has been done, 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings have found buyers at $2.40 to 2.42½, and 7 lbs. are in some demand. T-Cloths, light weights, and 6 lbs. have been taken to a fair extent. White Shirtings, both fine and medium qualities, have been active at former rates. A moderate business has been done in 40's Grey Yarn. Sales of 18 to 24's at low prices are reported. Dyed Cottons continue very dull. Woollens are in moderate request.

PENANG.—The Chinese New Year holidays had taken up the greater portion of last fortnight and it was only towards the close that dealers had resumed business, and transactions so far had been very retail. Prices remained unchanged, although the tendency was somewhat in favour of buyers.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been another fortnight of comparative inactivity; arrivals had just kept pace with the demand, and settlements of about 2,000 piculs were all that have to be reported. Stocks remained small, and of not very desirable quality; of the grades above fine there were none on offer. Quotations were nominal. The Atalanta, via Suez Canal, with 359,364 lbs., and the Corea, with 477,596 lbs., for New York, had sailed, and it was not likely that there would be any further export except per steamer via San Francisco. Export from 1st June to date, 10,539,817 lbs., against 9,835,881 to corresponding date last year.

HANKOW, KIUKIANG, FOOCHOW, AMOY.—The season was over at these ports.

SHANGHAI.—No business done in Black, and only a small business in Green, the reduced stock of the latter offering but a poor selection.

CANTON.—Market unaltered; only a few small settlements effected.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Dealers had exhibited more disposition to meet buyers and more business had been done in the interval, but at lower prices. Quotations showed a decline of $30 per picul for Oshus, and $20 for Hanks. Settlements to date 10,700 bales (against 9,300 bales to corresponding date last season); stock, 2,300 bales.

SHANGHAI.—During the early part of the fortnight a more current business had been carried on, a decline in values of Tls. 5 to 10 per picul on best chops having been established by a sale of No. 3 Dragon Chop at Tls. 442½, No. 3½ at Tls, 415, and No. 4 at Tls. 375; which, with a somewhat improved tone of the home advices, induced more buyers to come forward. Subsequently there had been much less activity shown, and the Chinese having refused to grant any further concession in price, business had been limited to 500 bales, principally common Tsatlees and Kahinga. Best Red Peacock was still held for Tls. 360, but there are no buyers at this price. Settlements for the past fortnight, Chinas, 1,500 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 1873, 51,300 bales; against 1872, 52,700 bales; 1871, 46,300 bales. Comparative unsold stock on this market on the 11th Feb. 1874, 3,000 bales; 1873, 1,200 bales; 1872, 1,000 bales.

CANTON.—Scarcely any transactions had been effected, owing to the Native holidays.

EXPORT OF COTTON GOODS TO THE FAR EAST.

The following is a summary of Mr. Sam Mendel's Tables for the present month, containing details of the quantities of Cotton Manufactures and Yarn shipped from the ports of London, Liverpool, Southampton, and the Clyde, to Hong Kong, Shanghai, Japan, Singapore, Batavia, Manila, and Ceylon, during the month and twelve months ended 16th March, 1874, compared with the corresponding periods of the two preceding years:—

CONSULAR CHAPLAINS.

In a circular addressed to Consuls at places where there are Church establishments receiving grants from the Government Lord Granville says that it certainly could not be incumbent upon Her Majesty's Government to subsidise churches where the British residents were indifferent and the congregation scanty. In the case of communities where the Church establishments were necessary they should be self-supporting, as the reliance upon Government support was often the means of neglect in the matter of endowments, donations, collections, &c. This being the case, the grant to Church establishments for 1874 will be at half rates, and in 1875 will cease altogether. It is intended, however, to make an exception in favour of those places where the churches are maintained to a considerable extent by the masters and mariners frequenting the port. An allowance of £100 will be continued to Marseilles, £150 Trieste, £100 Corfu, £200 Alexandria, and £150 Malaga.

Naval and Military.

A suggestion of Sir Andrew Clarke, that the Straits Settlements, at the present time included in the military district of Major-General Whitfield, in command at Hong Kong, should be made a separate command, is under consideration.

Major-General the Hon. St. George Gerald Foley, C.B., has been appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Guernsey, in succession to Lieutenant-General E. Frome. Major-General Foley served in the Crimean campaign in 1854-56, and served as military secretary to the expeditionary force in China from March, 1857, to February, 1860; was present at the capture of Canton in December, 1857 (brevet of colonel), and other affairs in the neighbourhood; served throughout the campaign as British commissioner at the head quarters of the French army in China from February, 1860, to March, 1861; was present at the storming and capture of the Taku Forts, the actions of the 18th and 21st September (mentioned in French despatches) and subsequent advance on Peking (good service pension, Commander of the Legion of Honour, medal with three clasps).

A series of experiments has just been made at the Royal Arsenal, Woolwich, with a 14 centimetre breechloading rifled built-up steel gun, which is to be despatched forthwith to China, for the purpose of competing with a 15-centimetre steel Krupp gun, for the armament of two frigates now in course of construction in the Chinese naval arsenal near Shanghai, for the Government of that country. Each of these frigates is to carry twelve guns, six upon each broadside, and the weight of the projectiles to be thrown is about sixty pounds. The gun at present under consideration has been manufactured by Messrs. J. Vavasseur and Co., and consists of a tube of steel, tempered in oil, surrounded by a series of coiled steel rings, with the exception of that part of the chase near the muzzle. The breech piece is a solid forging of steel, and the trunnion ring is of the same material. Its dimensions are as follows: Length of tube 101¼ inches, width at thickest part 18½ inches, and calibre to surface of bands 5.5 inches, that to bottom of grooves being 5.55 inches. It is, of course, polygrooved. The projectile, weighing 60 lbs., is surrounded by copper wire. The weight of the gun is three tons, and the charge of gunpowder proposed to be employed 12 lbs. of pebble or "P." The results obtained with this gun during the trial at the Woolwich proof butts were satisfactory in the extreme, and the mean velocity of the projectile was very considerable, amounting with 15½ lbs. of pebble powder to 1,538 feet per second, and with 12 lbs. of pebble powder to 1,413 feet.

The corvette Modeste, Capt. Thomson, arrived at Malta on the 12th inst. from Plymouth and Gibraltar, on her way to China. She will be delayed about ten days to repair damages incurred in a gale off Cape de Gatt, having lost her bowsprit and foretopmast. She also requires some defects to be made good in her engines.

Surgeon-General Sir William Muir, K.C.B., who was principal medical officer of the China Expeditionary Force, under Sir Hope Grant, in 1860, and was mentioned in the despatches, has been appointed Director-General of the Army Medical Department.

The German frigate Elisabeth, Capt. Livonius, arrived at Malta on the 15th inst. from Gibraltar, bound for Yokohama. She will have to remain here some time and be docked, to repair damages received from getting ashore in the Straits of Gibraltar.

Captain Clarke, whose regiment, the 57th, is now serving in Ceylon, is to remain on the staff of Major-General Warre, at Belfast, until February next, when the General's time will expire.

The office of Admiralty Director of Education, which has for some years been held by the Rev. Dr. Woolley at an annual salary of £1,200, is abolished.

Mr. Minney, Paymaster in the Control Department, who served in China from 1857 to 1861, retires on a pension, after twenty years' service.

An Assistant Military Secretary is not, we understand, in future to be allowed the Major-General Commanding in Ceylon.

THE INDIAN FAMINE IN RELATION TO THE OPIUM QUESTION.

WE beg to call the attention of our readers to the letters on the above subjects which have appeared in the Edinburgh Courant. They are important in view of "British opium policy and its results in India and China," becoming at no distant date one of the leading political questions of the day; in consequence of prizes being offered of two hundred pounds and half that sum, for the two best essays on it, and to be adjudicated by Sir CHARLES E. TREVELYAN, Sir H. BARTLE FRERE, and Sir LOUIS MALET. Both letters approach the consideration of the topic in a serious and temperate manner, commensurate with its gravity and importance at the present juncture. Mr. MCLAREN points out the great extent of land under poppy cultivation in India, which has been more than doubled since the East India Company left the produce of the deleterious drug and the monopoly of its purchase and sale as a doubtful legacy to the Imperial Indian Government. How far these lands might have raised bread-stuffs for the population at the present crisis, so as to alleviate their distress, is the question at issue. The Chairman of the Edinburgh Chamber of Commerce is of opinion that if these poppy plantations had been sown with cereals there would have been probably a good supply of grain and roots to aid materially in feeding the starving population. In reply to this statement the writer, under the signature of "Tirhoot," and who appears to be practically conversant with agriculture in Bengal, states, with logical argument, that the drought would have affected any crop within the famine districts, simply from want of rain in the autumn of 1873. Be that as it may, there can be no doubt that this vexed opium question should be seriously discussed, under the new phase it has assumed from the dire effects of this famine.

THE causes which induced the American Government to refuse acceptance of their share of the Simonoseki indemnity are founded, we presume, on that purely high-minded principle which gives a "sprat to catch the mackerel," and is akin to the "pleasant policy" pursued by their Minister in negotiations concerning the revision of the Treaty, and other demands of foreigners.

M. CHARLES DE STRUVE, whose appointment as Russian Charge d'Affaires at Yedo was noticed in our last, we understand was Political Agent in Turkestan, and decided some important geographical questions at and about Kokan. He was imprisoned at Bokhara several months. His brother, M. OTTO DE STRUVE, is Superintendent of the Pulkowa Observatory.

IN our Holland correspondent's letter will be found an avowal on the part of the Dutch Government, that Atchin must be completely conquered, and, to save further complications, must be annexed. We foreshadowed this some months since.

MR. LEONARD WRAY has given a lecture on the Straits of Malacca, in which he points out the miserable manner in which our Government have deserted the Sultan of ATCHIN. A report will be found in another column.

THE Budget will be introduced on the 16th of April. It is not expected that any alteration will be made in the duty on tea or other such articles. The "Free Breakfast Table" cry is now buried with the old Government.

PARLIAMENTARY papers have been published in connection with the Audience Question, the Macao Coolie Trade, Consular Outfits, and Chaplains, which will be found detailed in our present issue.

WE understand that leave has been granted to Mr. KNOX, H.B.M. Consul-General at Bangkok, and that Mr. NEWMAN will take charge during his absence.

THE P. and O. steamer Teheran has been launched at Dundee, and the Kashgar has been bought by the directors from Messrs. LAING, Sunderland.

M. CHARLES DILLON will probably leave Marseilles in May, to assume charge of the French Consulate at Tientsin.

THE CIVIL SERVICE ESTIMATES.—CHINA, JAPAN, AND THE FAR EAST.

The Civil Service Estimates for the financial year commencing on the 31st inst., and ending with March, 1875, have been issued. The grand total of these Estimates, inclusive of the amount required for the Post-office Packet and Telegraph Services, is £18,800,661, being a decrease of £549,492 upon those for the year just closing, which amounted to £19,044,117. The decrease occurs on the following votes:—Class I., £96,960; class II., £56,561; class III., £105,126; class V., £89,328; class VI., £19,562; class VII., £42,917. On the other hand there is one vote showing an increase, viz.:—Class IV., £104,418. The votes in the various classes are as follows:—

Class I.—Public Works and Buildings, £1,297,178, against £1,394,138 the previous year.

Class II.—Salaries and Expenses of Public Departments, £1,933,356, against 1,989,917.

Class III.—Law and Justice, £4,332,607, against £4,437,733.

Class IV. — Education, Science, and Art, £2,577,398, against £2,472,980.

Class V.—Colonial, Consular, and other Foreign Services, £586,763, against £676,091.

Class VII.—Miscellaneous, Special, and Temporary Objects, £31,480, against £74,397.

Revenue Departments, Packet and Telegraph Service, £7,513,683, against £7,451,103.

Civil Service, Classes I. to VII.	£306,036
Revenue Departments, &c.	243,456
Total increase	£549,492

Turning from the general summary of the figures presented to those which specially refer to the Far East, and commencing with the Diplomatic Service, we find votes of £6,000 for Her Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary in China, of £800 for the Secretary of Legation, of £800 for the Chinese Secretary, of £600 for the Assistant Chinese Secretary (this item appearing in the estimates for the first time), of £440 for the Assistant and Accountant, and of £600 for the Surgeon. The salary of the official holding the office of Assistant and Accountant is £20 above that for last year—£420—in accordance with the regulation which prescribes that he shall receive an annual increase of £20 up to £500. We may here state that a sum of £2,800, being one-third of the net expenditure upon the Diplomatic Service in China, is contributed by the Indian Government and paid into the Exchequer. Another estimated source of revenue is comprised in the Fines, Fees, and other casual receipts connected with the Consular Service, which are calculated at £9,000 for China and Japan. As regards Japan, the figures present totals of £4,000 for the Minister, £800 for the Secretary of Legation, and £700 for the Japanese Secretary. These amounts differ in no respect from those for the past year. The salaries of the assistants, &c., are included under one total for all Legations. We come next to the Consular Services, which, as regards China, figure for the following amounts:—

Canton	£1,600	Newchwang	£900
Shanghai	1,500	Ningpo	900
Foochow	1,300	Amoy	900
Hankow	1,000	Cheefoo	800
Tientsin	900	Swatow	800
		Taiwan	800

The total is £11,400, which is the same as last year. The total required for Vice-Consuls is likewise the same as in the last Estimates, viz., £4,050, the details being Shanghai, Kiukiang, and Whampoa, each £750, Canton £700, Pagoda Island, Foochow, £600, and Taku £500. The remaining charges for the China Consular Service may be thus summed up:—Assistants £6,900—namely, six first-class at £400, a like number of second-class at £350, and eight third-class at £300 each, there being no change under this head. The amount required for Interpreters is also the same, £5,500. Writers and Linguists figure for £2,879, an increase of £5; Student Interpreters for £3,150; Teachers for Student Interpreters for £459, and the Shipping Clerk at Shanghai for £400; the three last-named items standing precisely as in the previous estimates. Passing on we find an estimated amount required for "Wages and allowances to Gaolers, Constables, Watchmen, Boatmen, Porters, Coolies, and others employed in public services" of £4,833, an increase of £31 on the last estimate, which was £4,802.

This section of the Estimates concludes with a number of items which are termed "Incidental Expenses." These are headed by the Consular-office expenses, viz., Canton and Shanghai, £275 each; Swatow, Amoy, Foochow, Ningpo, Hankow, and Tienstin £100 each; Newchang, Chefoo, Kiukiang, and Taiwan, £75 each; Pagoda Island, Whampoa, Tamsui, and Taku, £40 each; total, £1,610. Then follow estimates for Legation Guards and Escorts at Peking, £543 (increase £18); outfit and travelling expenses for Consular Officers and Student Interpreters, £2,800 (decrease £200; printing and stationery, £430 (decrease £50); postages, £600; contributions in aid of Church establishments, £200 (decrease £159; allowances for purchase of coal, £305; Consular Prison expenses, £600 (decrease £150); Medical attendance, £1,300 (increase £100); and relief of distressed British subjects, £100 (decrease £50). Except where otherwise stated these amounts are the same as those which appeared in the Estimates for 1873-74.

The estimated cost of "Salaries, Allowances, and Wages" for the Japan Consular Service presents a total of £13,307, an increase of £53, the total for the past year having been £13,254. The amount required for Consuls is £3,500, the same as the last estimate; viz., Hiogo £1,000, Nagasaki £900, Hakodadi and Kanagawa each £800. The Vice-Consulate at Yedo is set down at £600, and those at Yedo and Ne-e-gata for corresponding amounts, the total charge for Vice-Consulates being, as for last year, £1,800. The remaining charges on account of the Japan Service are as follows:—First-class Assistants, two at £500, two at £400, total £1,800; Second-class Assistants, four at £300, total £1,200; Interpreter's Allowances to Assistants, £500; Student Interpreter's, £800; Japanese Interpreter and Translator, £500; Medical Officer, £500; Writers and Linguists, £520; Gaolers, Constables, &c., £2,188 (increase £53). We then arrive at the "Incidental Expenses," which include the following items:—Pay of Legation Escort, £849 (decrease £118); Allowances to Consular Officials for outfit and travelling, £1,250 (decrease £250); printing and stationery, £200; postages, £150; contribution towards Church establishments, £400; allowances for office expenses, £650; allowances for coal, £500; prison expenses, £250 (decrease £50); medical attendance, £200; relief of distressed British subjects, £50 (decrease £50). These amounts are the same as taken in the last Estimates, unless it is otherwise stated.

The estimate for the Supreme Court of China and Japan presents a total of £8,126, against £8,101, an increase of £25, the Law Clerk receiving £750 instead of £725. The remaining charges under this head exhibit no variation, being as follows:—Judge, £3,500; Deputy Judge, £1,200; Law Secretary, £750; Chief Clerk, £350; Clerk for Civil Causes, £400; Criminal Clerk and Assistant Clerk, each £306; Chief Usher, £200; Chief Constable, £164, and Messenger, &c., £200.

The special expenditure set down for the Consular Establishment in Siam presents the following items:—Consul-general, £1,200; Interpreter, £500; First Assistant, £400; Second Assistant, £350; Medical Attendant, £300; one Student Interpreter, £200; Writers, £58; and Gaolers, Constables, &c., £417. The total amounts to £3,425, the same as in the last estimates.

The differences existing between the present and the last estimates in the expenditure upon the Consular Services in China, Japan, and Siam, may be readily appreciated from the following recapitulation of the figures of which we have given the details above:—Salaries, Allowances, and Wages are charged £64,570, against £63,236, an increase of £1,334; Outfits and Travelling expenses £4,300, against £4,750, an increase of £450; Legation Guards £2,600, against £2,883, a decrease of £283; Incidental expenses £4,400, against £4,700, a decrease of £300; Printing and stationery £650, against £700, a decrease of £50; Chapels and Chaplains, £600, against £759, a decrease of £159; Prison expenses £950, against £1,200, a decrease of £250; medical attendance £1,500, against £1,400, an increase of £100; and relief of distressed British subjects £150, against £250, a decrease of £100. The only item which figures for the same amounts as in the last estimates is the charge of £800 for postages. The grand total of the Estimates for the Consular Services in the Far East is £80,520, showing a reduction of £158, the total of the last Estimates having been £80,678.

Other places in the Far East, the charges for which are not included in the total given above, figure for the following sums:—Manila Consul, £1,100; Allowance for Rent, Office Expenses, &c., £600; Vice-Consul, Sual, £400; Batavia Consul, £200; Borneo, Consul-General, £300; Allowance, £200. There is no sum allowed for a paid Consul at Saigon, but an amount of £400 appears as an allowance for office expenses, &c., the same as last year. The only alteration in this section of the Estimates is with regard to Manila, where the allowance of £300 for a Vice-Consul is struck out, but an increase of £400 appears in the Estimate for Rent and Office expenses.

The sums required this year, on account of Consular buildings in China and Japan, amount to £33,227, being for building, repairs, contingencies, and office expenses, £25,000; rents of Legation and Consular buildings, £6,366 (£2,237 China, £3,129 Japan) and allowances for house-rent to officers of the Supreme Court at Shanghai and to Linguist at Whampoa at £1,861. This is £133 more than the estimate for 1873-74, which was £33,094.

Appended to the Estimates there appears an account of the pensions and the superannuation allowances which are granted to retired officials who have served at home and abroad. Amongst these we find the subjoined grants for services in the Far East: Sir R. G. Macdonell, Governor of Hong Kong, £1,000; Sir Rutherford Alcock, British Minister in China £1,550; Robert Rienaecher, Colonial Treasurer at Hong Kong, £162; G. A. Trotter, Clerk to the Chief Justice at Hong Kong, £65; H. W. Parr, Harbour-Master at Labuan, £50; the Rev. M. B. Bailey, Chaplain, Yokohama, £68; John Campbell, Medical Officer in Siam, £90; Charles St. George Cleverley, Surveyor General at Hong Kong, £78; W. H. Fittock, Consul at Ningpo, £507; J. B. Goddard, First Assistant in China, £93; Patrick Hague, Vice-Consul at Ningpo, £193; F. Harvey, Consul at Chinkiang, £420; H. F. W. Holt, Interpreter in China £136; F. C. Macgregor, Consul at Canton, £1,200; George Morrison, Consul at Nagasaki, £360; Horace Oakley, First Assistant at Canton, £90; P. B. Walsh, First Assistant in Japan, £85; C. A. Winchester, Consul at Shanghai, £816. The foregoing are pensions and superannuation allowances. The following are compensation grants made on abolition of offices, or reduction of salaries, &c.:—T. Rennie, Auditor of Consular Accounts in China, £200 (suspended while Mr. Rennie continues to hold the post of Lieutenant-Governor of St. Vincent); Ying-Ta-Sing, Messenger at Shanghai, £21; Ma, Gatekeeper at Peking, £10.

There is also appended to the Estimates the usual account of sums expended during the last financial year—1872-73—for special missions and services, also for outfits, passage money, &c. Among the items under these heads appear the following:—Expenses of entertaining the Japanese Embassy, £907; grant to Mr. Watson, Secretary of Legation at Yedo, for outfit, £135; passage of Sir Andrew Clarke to Singapore, £800; passage of Sir Harry Ord from Singapore, £800.

THE AUDIENCE QUESTION AT PEKING.

(THE TIMES.)

To those who are disposed to consider the modern world as exclusively hard, practical, and business-like, wanting in romance and deprived of all the picturesque pretensions which characterise more ancient history, we recommend the perusal of a narrative just issued in the official shape of a Parliamentary paper, and marked as "China. No. 1 (1874)." The story describes the settlement of a question which could only have arisen in one region of the globe, and was strange enough even there. It amounted to this:—Were Great Britain, Russia, France, the United States of America, and Holland to be considered entitled to an audience of the Emperor of China, or was the grandeur of the Celestial Empire so unapproachable that nothing in the nature of equality could be recognised in any other dignities of the world! After describing the ceremony which took place at the Audience, The Times goes on to say:—

Of course, it will occur to many of our readers that all this was much ado about nothing; but that is not the opinion of our representative at Peking or of foreign residents in China. They, on the contrary, attach the greatest weight to the concessions thus exacted from the Imperial Court, and are only suspicious that the Chinese officials may have contrived to divest the ceremony of its true import in the eyes of the people. The Emperors of China have now had the experience of a whole generation to teach them their true position in the political world. They have seen their armies defeated by the Powers they pretend to ignore, their cities taken and held to ransom, their capital occupied, and their own palaces destroyed. They have signed treaties of peace dictated by the conquerors, and have, in fact, found themselves as helpless before the arms of Europe as a King of Ashantee. Yet, for all this, the make-believe of unapproachable supremacy is kept up, and Powers which are sometimes credited with the idea of turning the whole Empire into a Protectorate are barely allowed to send their Envoys into the presence of the Emperor. It certainly seems an absurdity, but there is a kind of wisdom at the bottom of the pretension, and the Foreign Ministers at Peking were doubtless right in dealing with the question as they did. The event, however it may impress ourselves, produced, according to Mr. Wade, an immediate and important effect upon the officials and people of China. The Foreign Ministers were thought to have gained a great point, and to have advanced materially their own position and that of all foreign residents in the Empire. Mr. Wade even records with equal satisfaction and surprise that the Grand Secretary, before quitting the capital on a three months' furlough, condescended to a signal and unprecedented piece of civility. He did not, indeed, call at the British Legation to take leave, but he apologised for not doing so, and the proceeding is commemorated as full of significance. We trust these anticipations of our representative may be realised. Our interests in China are very considerable, and if they can be effectually promoted we can well afford to smile at the conditions attached to the process.

Monetary and Commercial.

An increased demand for cotton in Liverpool has served to strengthen the Manchester Market, and there has been a good general inquiry for goods, but an advance asked by producers has checked business, and transactions have been limited in extent. At the close a rather quieter feeling prevails, and buyers show little disposition to give out orders at the full current rates, while at last week's quotations offers are made to a fair extent without finding acceptance.

THE SALANGORE PIRACIES.

The Morning Post of Friday gives a description of the visit of Sir Andrew Clarke and the Admiral of the trial and execution of the pirates, and concludes:—It must be admitted that the Sultan afforded the Court of Inquiry every facility in the production of witnesses; amongst those for the defence, his son, Rajah Yacoob, was examined, and his evidence clearly proved his complicity in the piracies, though it was not sufficiently strong to justify his being taken into custody. The guilt of another Malayan chief, the Rajah Mahdie, who was said to be with the Sultan, seems to have been established, and a demand for his arrest was made. It is very doubtful whether the Sultan will fall in with this request, though he has shown a desire to adhere to his promises in other respects, and has given a compensation of $5,000 to the owners of the boat that was carried off, and which, it may be added, was found up the river and towed down to Singapore by the Rinaldo. Moreover, as a warning to others of his subjects disposed to follow the men executed in similar evil practices, their bodies have been buried in a prominent position on the river bank near the Quallah, and over the tomb has been erected a post conveying to all persons passing up and down the river information of the crime and the punishment that had been inflicted on the perpetrators of it. A further good deed was done by the Thalia, on the request of Tunku Dia Oodin, in the complete destruction of the stockades on the Langkat. These holds of the pirates have all been burnt down and utterly effaced, and the guns found in them rendered useless. The facts which have been recounted above show that a work of great importance has been accomplished by Sir Andrew Clarke's expedition to Salangore. He appears to have succeeded in effecting the measures which he proposed at the outset, and there can be no doubt of the impression which his energy and the influence he has been able to exercise upon the ruler of the country will have on the marauding class of his subjects. It is to be hoped that the cessation of piratical outrages for the future will prove that the course adopted by the Governor of the Straits Settlements has borne good fruit, and we think we are not over sanguine in believing that piracy will be suppressed in Salangore as effectually as it seems to have been in Laroot. Should this be the case, as there is every reason to expect, Sir Andrew Clarke will have deservedly earned the gratitude of the colonists and the approbation of the country.

THE GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY.

A meeting of the Royal Geographical Society was held on the 23rd inst., the president, Sir Bartle Frere, in the chair. Among those present were his Excellency Morimichi, Chargé d'Affaires of Japan; Kinzo, secretary of the Japanese Legation; Sir Harry Verney, Sir H. Rawlinson, Sir Rutherford Alcock, Colonel J. A. Grant, Lord Cottesloe, Admiral R. Collinson, Admiral Sir W. Hall, Admiral Richards, Admiral E. Ommanney, Mr. A. B. Mitford, and Dr. J. Rae. The principal business consisted in the reading of a paper "On a Journey in the Island of Yesso and on the Progress of Geography in Japan," by Mr. R. G. Watson (late Chargé d'Affaires in Japan). Mr. Watson, with reference to the first portion of his subject, said that any information which he could impart with reference to the island of Yesso had been to a great extent forestalled by a paper which was read before the Society some time since, giving the account of a journey made by Capt. Blakiston in the island. He, however, went on to describe some of the geographical and mineralogical features of the island, and then referred to the system by which the Japanese Government are endeavouring to increase the number of its inhabitants by a process of colonisation. Although as large as Ireland the population, according to the latest census returns issued by the Japanese Government, is under 200,000. The native inhabitants are far behind the Japanese in civilisation, and the Government were adopting various means to improve their condition in this respect, not the least singular being the education of a number of young Japanese girls—partly under European supervision—with a view to their becoming the wives of the islanders. A considerable number of the aboriginal inhabitants belonged to, the singular hairy race called Ainos. Mr. Watson expressed his belief that although richly wooded and picturesque, abounding in coal and other minerals, with salmon and other fisheries of surprising abundance, the island would have continued in its neglected condition had not the Japanese Government been stimulated to action by the encroachments of the Russians in Saghalien, immediately to the north of it. The climate is cold, and Mr. Watson was glad to sit over a fire even at noon in the dog-days, and to sleep under a thick quilt at night; still the mangolia grows in its forests, and rice and maize are cultivated. He advocated the removal of the capital from Hakodadi to Endermo, the latter place being more central, and having a magnificent harbour. A complete survey of the island is now being carried out by the Japanese Government, who were also directing attention to the improvement of the roads, and to the general development of its resources. Mr. Watson then proceeded to the second portion of his subject, "The Progress of Geography in Japan." He said that only a very few years since utter ignorance prevailed on the subject, but now the whole country had been traversed by Englishmen or Americans, and we possessed nearly as much knowledge of its features as of those of European countries. The rule established by the Japanese Government prohibiting foreigners from travelling beyond certain distances from the Treaty Ports still existed, but it was not now strictly enforced, and in the case of persons travelling in the interests of science it had been altogether relaxed. Mr. Watson then referred to the enormous progress in civilisation made by the Japanese in a short period of time, and the great change effected thereby in the conduct of the people towards foreigners. As an instance of this Mr. Watson stated that shortly after his arrival at Yédo as British Charge d'Affaires he concurred with a proposal made by the Japanese Government to withdraw the guards which had hitherto accompanied any official of the Legation who might have occasion to traverse the city, these guards being answerable with their lives for the safety of those whom they were charged to protect. Since the withdrawal of the guards Mr. Watson had visited every part of the city, both on horseback and on foot, and although he had gone about entirely unarmed, had never once been molested. This was not the case in Yedo only, for in every part of Japan foreigners were now received with courtesy and kindness. European systems of education are everywhere superseding the old native methods, and persons of distinction are already following Western customs in laying aside the symbols of their rank, except on State occasions. Mr. Watson concluded his observations with a few remarks upon the present political situation in Japan, in the course of which he said that he disagreed with those who considered that the changes which had lately been made in the administration of the Government and in the manners and habits of the people had been too rapid to be lasting. He believed that, on the contrary, the progress would be continuous and increasing, and he predicted a great future for a country where such an unprecedented improvement had been effected. At the conclusion of Mr. Watson's remarks, which were listened to with evident attention, the Japanese Chargé d'Affaires and the Secretary of the Legation expressed, through the President, their surprise and gratification at the great interest shown by the large audience in Japan. Mr. A. B. Mitford and Sir Rutherford Alcock also addressed the meeting, and Mr. Watson received the thanks of the President.

In the course of the meeting Sir Bartle Frere stated that from the latest news which had been received regarding the remains of the late distinguished traveller and Fellow, Dr. Livingstone, they had been informed that the remains of the doctor had arrived near to Zanzibar, and that Lieut. Murphy was expected to reach the coast in February. Lieut. Cameron, too, was returning from Unyanyembe to Ujiji, to recover Livingstone's letters.

Among the new Fellows who were elected was Mr. Colborne Baber.

THE BISHOP OF VICTORIA.—The Bishop of Victoria (Hong Kong) was present at a meeting of the British and Foreign Bible Society at Alexandra Hall, Blackheath, on the 24th inst. The meeting was well attended. Mr. Hewlett, from the Society, gave an interesting description of the progress of the Society's operations, which showed a large increase in the distribution of Bibles in foreign lands, especially Russia; and he looked on the Royal alliance just contracted as hopeful for a larger propagation of the Gospel in Russia. He stated that although our Government had not taken much trouble to inform the Shah of Persia of the foundation of England's greatness, yet the Society had presented him and all his suite, numbering nearly 100, with a handsomely bound copy of the Bible. Bishop Burdon then followed, and pointed out that during his twenty years in China he had ample means of knowing the great good effected there by the Bible Society in the distribution of Bibles. He narrated some cases bearing on the point, and explained that he had been engaged at Peking in effecting a more useful translation for the Chinese. He urged the people of England to exert themselves to send more missionaries and stop the opium trade, which was an enormous stumbling-block to their progress.

SOME few of the articles exhibited in the Chinese section of the Vienna Exhibition are now on view, we observe, at the Crystal Palace. They consist only of a few articles, however, among which the most noticeable is a very handsome carved screen and panels, exhibited by Colonel Cooke, of Ningpo, and two or three elaborately carved cabinets. The Ven. Archdeacon Gray's collection has been received, we understand, by the Crystal Palace Company, but, in view of the expected arrival of Mr. Gray in England, the cases are not yet opened, and await his personal superintendence in the difficult matter of suitable and artistic arrangement.

A NEW YORK paper states that a lady in New York city is now trying some Japanese servants imported by her husband, who has recently returned from Japan. They experience considerable difficulty in fulfilling their household duties, and are very proficient at breaking china and falling down stairs. Their altercations with the milkman and baker in the early morning are sufficiently interesting to attract to the windows the majority of the people living in the immediate vicinity, and their comments in native language upon the costume of visitors make the latter very uneasy.

LORD DERBY has received a deputation whose members protested against the circular of Lord Granville, dated July 31, 1873, which would, as they contended, have the effect of withdrawing allowances to British consular chapains under the Act of George IV. The different speakers requested the present Foreign Secretary's favourable intervention in the matter. Lord Derby promised that he would look into the matter, though he did not at the present moment see his way clear to grant the relief in this direction which these gentlemen sought.

THE Committee on the Liquidation of the late Emperor Napoleon's Civil List have decided that the Chinese collection at Fontainebleau and the Armoury at Pierrefondes are the property of the State, and ought not to be restored to the Empress.

ON behalf of the Queen, a levee was held on Thursday at St. James's by the Prince of Wales. The presentations included Mr. Arthur Davenport, H.B M. Vice-Consul at Shanghai, and Mr. Skinner, of the Ceylon Civil Service.

A SUIT of Korean armour will be among the objects from the Far East shown at the forthcoming International Exhibition.

THE fourth and concluding volume of Mr. Thomson's Illustrations of China and its People has been issued by Messrs. Sampson Low and Co. The photographic illustrations fully equal, if they do not surpass, in excellence those which were given in the previous volumes, while the letterpress affords a lucid, although terse, explanation of the places and objects depicted. We shall review the work at length in a future issue.

YUEN-MING-YUEN.

COUNT PALIKAO'S evidence before the EMPEROR'S Civi List Commission in reference to the looting and destruction of Yuen-Ming-Yuen revives an unpleasant memory. Neither the act itself nor the atrocities which led up to it are agreeable subjects for contemplation. The wholesale destruction of splendid edifices, of art treasures, of books, of gems and of stuffs, has at first sight—and in this case only at first sight—an air of Vandalism about it which is repugnant to the feelings of the times, and the recollection of the treachery by which PARKES and his company were made prisoners, and of the atrocious cruelties which were practised upon them, presents the Chinese national character before us in so hateful a light that we would willingly try to blot it out from our memories. We should not, therefore, have referred again to the subject had not Count PALIKAO made some statements before the Commission which convey an erroneous impression of what really took place on the occasion.

After the battle of Pa-li-kiao, or eight-mile bridge, from which the Count takes his title, the allied armies advanced on Peking, and marched along the east face of the city, intending to attack, if necessary, the walls on the north side, and to gain possession of the EMPEROR'S favourite retreat of Yuen-Ming-Yuen. So far the various correspondents whose letters have recently appeared in The Times (vide our last number) are agreed. But the subsequent movements of the allied armies have given rise to some controversy, furnishing additional evidence—if any were wanted—of the difficulties in the way of writing a history even of one's own time. The weight of evidence goes to prove, however, that on the 6th October the French, without the knowledge of Sir HOPE GRANT, executed a flank march across our column, and, pushing on to the Summer Palace, occupied it about night fall. General FOLEY, who, it will be remembered, was the English Commissioner at the French headquarters, denies the correctness of this assertion, and says that the French advance on the Summer Palace was in accordance with the arrangement agreed upon between the commanders; but Professor DOUGLAS has pointed out by quotations from Lord ELGIN'S Journal and Sir HOPE GRANT'S Despatches, that nothing was known by the English General of the march of the French on the 6th of October to the Summer Palace, and that they shook themselves free of our troops by crossing the rear of our army. At all events this much is certain—that they reached the Palace on the evening of the 6th, that their whereabout was discovered by a detachment of English cavalry on the following morning, and that it was not until one o'clock on that day that the first Englishmen, in the persons of Lord ELGIN, Sir HOPE GRANT, and their staffs, crossed the threshold. At the door they were met by General DE MONTAUBAN, who assured them that nothing had been touched. Their senses, however, told them a very different tale. "They saw," to quote the words of a writer to The Times, who describes himself as an "Eye-witness," "that tents occupied by "French officers of all ranks were full of plunder; they "saw the smoking ruins of a pavilion which had been "looted and burnt, and they saw the empty boxes from "which some hundreds of valuable watches had been "abstracted." The instant Sir HOPE GRANT arrived he arranged with the French General that an allied Commission should be appointed to set apart suitable objects to furnish prize-money for the troops, and the rest were given up to indiscriminate plunder. Subsequently, however, an order was issued that everything taken by English officers was to be sold for the general good, and the result was that every private in the English force received about seventeen dollars, and the officers and non-commissioned officers sums in proportion to their rank. Among the French no such equal division was made, and rumour asserts that some members of their head-quarter staff reached Paris laden with spoils of priceless value, and that the reason why the members of the Chamber refused to listen to the EMPEROR'S request that they would grant General DE MONTAUBAN a pension on his return arose from a feeling that he had already sufficiently rewarded himself in a pecuniary sense.

But a still greater calamity was destined to overtake the summer abode of the "Son of Heaven." As one by one and in groups the prisoners who had been treacherously captured at Tungchow were restored to the allied camps, their thinned ranks and piteous condition revealed but too plainly the fact that the Chinese had supplemented an act of gross treachery by a system of atrocious cruelty. Such a base outrage made it necessary to punish in some unmistakable way the rulers of the nation, and after much deliberation it was wisely resolved that no more lasting and effective mode of inflicting chastisement on the EMPEROR as the representative of the governing class could be adopted than by levelling his favourite resort with the ground. On the 17th the remains of the English prisoners whose bodies had been given up were buried in the Russian cemetery, and on the 18th the 1st division of the English army received orders to utterly destroy the Palace with fire. During the whole of the 19th the flames burnt furiously, and "clouds of smoke, driven by the wind, hung like a vast black pall over Peking."

THE AUDIENCE QUESTION.

THE tone of Mr. WADE'S report and subsequent despatches on the subject of the Audience question, which will be found in another column, shows but too plainly in how unsatisfactory a light he is obliged to view the manner in which the right of Audience was at last conceded to himself and his colleagues. He is able to congratulate himself on the fact that "we appeared face to face with "the EMPEROR standing, because we represented Govern- "ments the equal of his own; and in the recognition of "this equality," he adds with truth, "China has com- "menced her retreat from the maintenance of that claim "to be greater and better than her neighbours, which has 'proved, more than any other, a cause of hindrance to her "improvement at home, and, as a consequence, a standing "danger to the security of her relations abroad." And he reports that the knowledge of the ceremony having been performed has had a beneficial effect on the minds of the Pekingese. But beyond this he finds no cause for jubilation. In the first place the terms of the decree in which the Audience was first conceded were open to grave objections, and though the Ministers expostulated against them, no change seems to have been made. Further, the place where the Ministers "appeared face to face with the EMPEROR" was not in the Palace or in the Palace grounds, but was in the hall where the Envoys of Siam and other subordinate nations present their tributary offerings. Thither they repaired at six o'clock in the morning, and there they waited for two hours for the advent of his Imperial Majesty. When introduced into "the presence," the EMPEROR, instead of speaking directly to the Ministers, addressed, or rather appeared to address, for not a word was heard, Prince KUNG, who reported in Chinese what he was good enough to say his Imperial Master had said in Manchu. The audience lasted barely five minutes. Perhaps it is too early yet to judge of the effect the concession is likely to have throughout the Empire, but certainly as yet, if we may judge from disturbances recently reported from Shantung, it has produced no change in the disposition of the people towards foreigners. All credit is due to Mr. WADE and his colleagues for the prudence and patience with which they conducted their negotiations with the Chinese Government; but it is impossible to find any apology for the ungracious way in which the latter conceded to us a right which they have so long and wrongfully denied us.

TEA.

The very great dulness so long prevalent in the market continues without interruption. The amount of business during the week has been very limited, the trade buying only for immediate pressing wants, whilst exporters are still out of the market. Prices have been rather lower, especially at the public auctions, which, although moderate in quantity, have gone off heavily. The deliveries for the week amount to 2,586,000 lbs., against 2,807,000 lbs. last year.

Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings sell only slowly at the decline last quoted. Broken-leaf kinds have been steady, especially those with fair quality. Fair to good common have sold rather lower. Common to fair Kaisow kinds sold ½d. per lb. lower in public sale: good to fine are only in limited request at the decline recently established. In finest a few sales have been made at previous prices. Pak Lin kinds show no change. Black-leaf kinds: Common kinds remain dull of sale; fair to good medium only in moderate demand; in good to fine and finest but little has been done, prices showing however no material change. Newmake Canton kinds: Prices at public sale for common to fair kinds went ½d per lb. lower; privately but little has been done. Oolongs remain dull of sale at last week's prices. Souchongs show no material change, but the demand is limited. In Flowery Pekoes and Uncoloured Japans there has been no business. Scented Teas.—Canton Capers: Common to fair glazed kinds sell only with difficulty at last week's prices; good to fine, of olive colour, show no change. Foochow kinds remain firm. Canton Orange Pekoes, except the finer kinds, have been heavy of sale. For Foochow kinds the demand has been dull, except for finer kinds, which are scarce. Green Teas.—Privately but little has been done. At public sale, common to medium kinds sold irregularly, and generally at lower rates.

The deliveries for the fortnight ending 25th March, 1874, have been, home consumption, 2,652,856 lbs.; exportation, 1,080,409 lbs.; removals, 1,550,928 lbs. Total from 1st January to 25th March, 1874, 35,509,645 lbs.

SILK.

The market continues very firm, at the full quotations of last week, and although business is not quite so active, still there is a good steady demand for both Chinas and Cantons, and a fair business doing. Deliveries are good; being since 1st inst.: China 2,960, Canton 668, Japan 653, Bengal 254; total 4,535 bales.

COFFEE.—A further depression in values has been experienced of at least 3s. per cwt. At public sale plantation Ceylon sold, good middling colourý, 113s. to 114s.; middling, 110s. to 112s.; small to low middling, 104s. to 107s. 6d.; peaberry, 110s. to 112s.; triage, 84s. to 100s. Native Ceylon sold at 90s. for bold, 87s. to 88s. 6d. for good ordinary, and 80s. 6d. for small.

COCOANUT OIL exhibits little activity; Cochin is quoted £38 to £39, Ceylon £35 to £35. 10s. per ton.

PEPPER.—Black: A depressed tone still prevails, and at the public sales business has only been effected at a further decline of ¼d. per lb., at which small lots were disposed of. 1,413 bags Singapore withdrawn; Siam was bought in at 6⅝d. to 6½d.; Penang sold at 5⅝d.; Batavia at 5⅜d. Privately 200 bags have been sold, good Penang at 5⅞d. White: This market is similarly depressed, and at auction offers were only made at a still further reduction, and the bulk of the supply was withdrawn, only 150 bags Singapore being sold, good at 8d., being ¾d. lower than last week.

RICE.—A more active demand has prevailed for floating cargoes, and an advance of 3d. per cwt. has been established. On the spot the demand has also improved, and prices have slightly recovered, Saigon being sold at 9s. 10½d., including damaged, and Bassein at 11s.; cargoes have been sold for arrival. Rangoon arrived off coast, at 11s. for Bremen. Old Rangoon, December sailing, at 11s. 3d. open charter. Rangoon, March-April, at 11s. 6d., for United Kingdom only. Necransie, ship named, March-April shipment, at 11s. 3d. open charter. One of 1,200 tons Necransie, April to June shipment, at 11s. 3d. open charter.

SUGAR.—A very quiet tone has prevailed, with small sales on the spot at former rates; and floating cargoes at easy prices.

SPICES.—Cloves: There is little demand, and in auction 26 bales 80 bags 14 casks Amboyna were all bought in at 1s. 5d.; 26 cases good Penang were sold at 1s. 10d., being 6d. below the recent highest point. Nutmegs: At auction 10 casks defective Java sold at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5d., and 39 cases Singapore Wild at 1⅛d. Mace: 39 cases fair Penang bought in at 3s. 9d.

SAGO.—In auction only 320 bags good bright small pearl were offered and sold at about the previous value at 17s.

TAPIOCA continues dull of sale, and of 721 bags Singapore offered only 130 bags sold, fine white at 2¼d., old greyish at 1⅞d., the remainder being bought in at 2d. to 2⅛d. Pearl: A large supply of 839 bags has caused a decline of 1s. to 1s. 6d. per cwt., about 550 bags being sold, dull to good medium at 22s. 6d. to 23s. 6d., bullets at 23s.

TIN continues dull. The principal event in the week has been the sale of Banca and Billiton, by the Dutch Trading Company, 19,400 slabs Banca, 3,100 slabs Billiton, the former realising 55.35 guilders, equal to £96 in London; the Billiton 53.50 guilders, equal to £93 in London; but at the close quotations are lower, both Banca and Billiton being obtainable at £3 per ton below the rates realised at the sale. The closing quotation for Straits on the spot is £91, afloat nominal.

MESSRS. JOHN ELDER AND CO. have launched from their shipbuilding yard at Fairfield, Govan, a screw-steamer, the Princess Amalia, of 3,500 tons gross and 400-horse power nominal, for the Stoomvaart Nederland Company, Amsterdam, constructed for that company's service between Holland and Java via the Suez Canal. The steamer is of the following dimensions:—Length, 383ft.; breadth, 40ft.; depth, 31ft. 6in. She will be fitted up in a very elegant and handsome manner, having accommodation for 76 first-class, 32 second, and a few third-class passengers. The engines, which are being supplied by the same firm, are upon their compound principle, having two inverted cylinders, direct-acting—one of 50, and the other 86 inches diameter; stroke, 3ft. 6in., with steam windlass, winches, and all recent improvements. This is the sixth vessel Messrs. Elder have built for the company, and they have in hand for them two other steamers.

THE P. and O. steamship Nyanza, which was built at the Thames Ironworks in 1864, and purchased last year by the Union Company, has been converted into a screw steamer by Messrs. Gourlay Brothers and Co., of Dundee, and has been taken to Stokes Bay for trial at the measured mile, previous to being placed on the mail line between Southampton and the Cape.

In this number are included 15 sailing vessels reported missing. Steamers lost, 15—7 English, 3 American, 2 Italian, 1 German, 1 Spanish, and 1 Russian.

AND PILLS need only a single trial to make known their capabilities. No outward sore or inward inflammation can long withstand the cooling, purifying, and healing influences exerted by these twin medicaments. Be the mischief recent or chronic, grave or slight, painful or simply annoying, it will succumb before the curative virtues of these noble remedies, which can be rightly applied by any person who will attentively read their accompanying directions, which are propounded in the plainest language, void of technical terms, and printed in the most legible characters. To the man of business confined to his counting-house, and harassed by engagements, these Pills are invaluable; for the man of pleasure addicted to free living, they are priceless.

SEVENTEENTH REPORT of the Court of Directors to the Ordinary Yearly General Meeting of Shareholders, held at the CITY HALL, HONG KONG, on MONDAY, the 16th February, 1874.

To the Proprietors of the HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

GENTLEMEN,—The Directors have now to submit to you a general Statement of the affairs of the Corporation, and Balance-Sheet for the half-year ending 31st December last.

The net profits for that period, including $36,599.97 brought forward from last account, after paying all charges, and deducting interest paid and due, and making provision for all bad and doubtful debts, amount to $240,321.47, of which, after taking out Rebate on Bills not yet due, and remuneration to Directors, there remains for appropriation $226,290.53.

From this sum the Directors recommend the distribution of a Dividend of $5 per Share, being equivalent to Four per cent. for the half-year, which will absorb $200,000; and the balance, $26,290.53, they propose to carry forward to the credit of new account.

If this appropriation of profits be confirmed by the meeting, the Shareholders will have received as Dividend for the year 1873 the sum of $500,000, or 10 per cent. on the paid-up Capital, leaving $26,290.53 of undivided profits to be carried forward.

The Directors regret that the profits of the six months are unsatisfactory as compared with previous half-years, and can only attribute the falling off to the general dulness and unremunerative nature of trade. When business revives and again becomes generally profitable, the Directors have confidence that previous results will be fully obtained. The prosperity of the Corporation continues, and the Directors congratulate the Shareholders thereon. The deposits have increased $3,100,000 during the year, and the Bank enjoys the full confidence of the public at all points.

AGENCIES.

A new Agency has recently been established at Amoy.

DIRECTORS.

Messrs. H. B. Lemann and A. Joost resigned their seats at the Board on leaving the Colony, and Messrs. Wm. Lemann and J. F. Cordes have been elected to fill the vacancies. Mr. Wm. H. Forbes has been appointed Chairman of the Corporation for the year 1874, vice Mr. S. D. Sassoon, whose term of office now expires; and the Hon. R. Rowett has been elected Deputy Chairman.

According to the provisions of the Deed of Settlement, three members of the Court, Messrs. Wm. H. Forbes, E. R. Belilios, and S. D. Sassoon, retire from the Direction, but they are eligible for re-election, and offer themselves accordingly.

AUDITORS.

The accounts have been audited by the Hon. Phineas Ryrie and Mr. F. W. Mitchell, and the Directors have pleasure in recommending the re-election of these gentlemen as Auditors for the year 1874.

Hong Kong, 9th February, 1874. S. D. SASSOON, Chairman.

It will be seen from the Statement of Accounts that the net premia, after deducting Returns and Re-insurances, amount to $314,654.87.

After carrying forward to next year's accounts $20,554.84, the amount of premia on risks accepted before October 31st, but not yet terminated, and the sum of $44,998.78 to Suspense Account to meet estimated claims and losses, and providing for the Directors' and Auditors' fees, there remains a balance of $120,000 to the credit of the Profit and Loss Account, which the Committee propose should be set aside and be available as Dividend for the year.

Should this proposal meet the approval of the Shareholders, the apportionment of this amount, under Clause 133 B. of the Articles of Association will be as follows:—The sum of $40,000, or $200 per share, will be paid the Shareholders as a General Dividend; and the sum of $80,000 will be paid pro rata among all contributors of business.

The total amount of interest received, viz.:—$31,536.38, has, as provided by Clause 133 C. of the Articles of Association, been invested in augmentation of the Reserve Fund, which now represents the sum of $287,524.93.

The Committee much regret the decease of the late Mr. Sage, which has caused a vacancy in their number. Mr. Heaton retires by rotation, and offers himself for re-election.

The Auditors, Mr. R. Deacon and Mr. C. S. Sherwood, who have audited the accounts, being eligible, offer themselves for re-election.

W. KAYE, Chairman.

MACAO COOLIE TRADE.

A correspondence respecting the "Macao Coolie Trade" has been issued by the Foreign-office. Governor Kennedy wrote to the Earl of Kimberley as follows on 29th August :—

On the 22nd inst. I received your lordship's despatch of 7th July, conveying Her Majesty's gracious confirmation and allowance of the Foreign Emigrant Ships Ordinance No. 5 of 1873. Immediately on receipt of this despatch I directed notice to be given to the owners or agents and masters of the vessels engaged in the Macao coolie trade, which were lying in the waters of the colony for repairs, &c.

These vessels were as follows :—

Vessel.	Flag.	Agents.
Glensannox, steamship	... Italian	... Jardine, Matheson and Co.
Nelusko, steamship	... Belgian	... Pustau and Co.
Luisa Canevaro ...	... Peruvian	... Ditto
Columbia	... Ditto	... Ditto
Cecilia	... Portuguese	... Remedios and Co.
Agustinha	... Peruvian	... Ditto
Ysabel	... Ditto	... A. Eimbcke.

Five of these cleared at once and left for Macao or Whampoa. Of the remainder I allowed a few days in each case, so that they might be removed from the harbour without danger, though they might not be in a fit state to make a long voyage.

At the time I am writing there is but one vessel remaining—the Columbia, and she has been permitted to stay for seven days from the date of notice.

In the case of the Glensannox, she overstayed the time allowed to her, and legal proceedings were being taken when she cleared and quitted the jurisdiction of the colony.

I have received, as your lordship might expect, protests from the agents of these coolie ships as to my action, but I have not felt justified in relaxing my instructions, that each of these vessels should depart as soon as my inquiries enabled me to decide what was in each case sufficient to allow of their being removed, by tug or otherwise, from the harbour

It is unnecessary to trouble your lordship with all the correspondence which has passed, as it has been of the same tenour as the letters (copies enclosed) which I have received from, and caused to be sent to, the Peruvian Consul.

The Viceroy of Kwang-tung having been notified with reference to the expulsion of Macao coolie ships, writes a letter to Consul Sir B. Robertson, of which the following is the translation :—

13th September.

The Viceroy has the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Her Majesty's Consul's statement of the 8th instant, informing him that "the Government of Hong Kong having lately passed an Ordinance forbidding the fitting out and provisioning of ships intended for the conveyance of coolies from Macao and other places, and Her Majesty's Government having confirmed the same, notice thereof was given to the Peruvian and other vessels then in the harbour of Hong Kong, that they were to leave within three or four days : and accordingly they did so leave, and proceeded at once to the anchorage of Whampoa in this river, where they now are to the number of six or more Peruvian, one Italian, and one Belgian vessel.

"It is the duty of Her Majesty's Consul to make known to the Viceroy the publication of this Ordinance, in order that his Excellency may see that Her Majesty's Government will in no way give countenance to or support coolie emigration, except under the provisions of the Treaties and the Rules and Regulations agreed upon by the respective Governments, &c."

The Viceroy has carefully considered the information contained in the above statement, and in reply, begs to inform Her Majesty's Consul that Mr. Acting Commissioner Brown had lately reported to the Viceroy that these coolie vessels had, since they were driven from Hong Kong, taken refuge at Whampoa, and anchored in the river there. The Viceroy accordingly informed the Provincial Chancellor and Judge to order the Canton Prefect to take measures with the Nanhai and P'anyu Magistrates, and with the Commanders of the various garrisons, for the despatch of troops and police to the Whampoa river, and to notify to the officers of the Government steamers and guard-boats, and to the Customs' tidewaiters, that these coolie vessels were to be driven away from the spot and not allowed to remain there.

The Provincial Chancellor and Judge will issue proclamations on the subject ; and the Viceroy has written to the Superintendent of Customs, asking him to communicate what has been done, for the guidance of Mr. Acting Commissioner Brown.

On receipt of Her Majesty's Consul's statement under acknowledgment, the Viceroy has further directed the Provincial Chancellor and Judge to give the necessary instructions to the Chinese officers on the coast ; and he now deems it his duty officially to notify to Her Majesty's Consul what has been done.

The names of some German firms having been mentioned in connection with the Macao coolie trade, Governor Kennedy writes to the Earl of Kimberley enclosing a protest which he made to Messrs. Pustau and Co. upon the application of that firm for time to complete the repairs of their vessels.

Mr. Smith to Messrs. Pustau and Co.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Hong Kong, Aug. 26, 1873.

Having duly considered your letter of the 23rd inst., and the documents which you forwarded in your letter of the 25th inst. (which I now return), his Excellency the Governor instructs me to inform you that he is unable to sanction the Luisa Canevaro remaining within the jurisdiction of the colony, in contravention of the provisions of Ordinance No. 5 of 1873, for a longer period than five days from the 23rd instant.

His Excellency has fixed this allowance in accordance with the statement of the secretary of the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Company that the necessary repairs would be completed in that time.

In making this communication to you, I am to point out that the Ordinance above referred to was passed on the 6th May last, and that it was a matter of public notoriety that it would come into operation as soon as the Queen's confirmation had been proclaimed in the colony.

Further, the views of Her Majesty's Government as to the Macao coolie trade, to which the Luisa Canevaro belongs, and their firm intention to prevent residents of Hong Kong aiding and profiting by it, must have been well known to yourselves, as well as the rest of the community, after the publication of Lord Kimberley's despatch in the Gazette of the 1st of March.

And having regard to the instructions which are therein given, the Governor considers that he would not be justified in granting to you any further time than that stated in this letter, which is sufficient to enable the vessel to be safely removed from the waters of the colony.—I have, &c., CECIL C. SMITH, Acting Colonial Secretary.

To this communication Messrs. Pustau and Co. reply, that in compliance with a request of the Colonial Secretary, they have requested the Captain of the Luisa Canevaro to proceed to Whampoa at once. Messrs. Pustau also add :—

We, therefore, according to our duty as agents, hereby beg most respectfully to protest, on behalf of the owners and insurers (in England), and all concerned, against the Government of the British Colony of Hong Kong, and to hold them responsible for all consequences that may arise from the vessel's complying with the Government's act of "force majeure."

We have always refused to be in any way connected with the coolie trade ; but we could not help rendering assistance to distressed vessels, with the owners of which we have other business relations ; and after we had obtained from the Harbour Master, your officer, the permission, we might well have expected that she would have been indeed permitted to accomplish repairs.

We have informed the captain that our agency ceased with this date ; and we also beg you to take notice, that from this date we do not consider ourselves agents of the Luisa Canevaro.

THE ABOLITION OF THE TRADE.

The proclamation of the Portuguese Government abolishing the system of coolie emigration as hitherto carried on at Macao, calls forth the following letter from Lord Granville to Sir C. A. Murray, Minister at Lisbon :—

January 19, 1874.

I have received and laid before the Queen your despatch of the 30th ultimo, inclosing a note from the Portuguese Minister for Foreign Affairs, in which his Excellency announces that his most faithful Majesty's Government has determined to put an end to the Chinese emigration carried on, under contract, through the port of Macao, and has directed that all the provisions and regulations which are in force at Hong Kong with reference to Chinese emigrants should likewise be adopted there. His Excellency adds that the above-mentioned decision was made public at Macao on the 27th ultimo.

I have to instruct you to express to Senhor Corvo the gratification with which Her Majesty's Government have learnt the determination of the Portuguese Government to put an end to the system of contract coolie emigration through the port of Macao, which had led to such grave abuses, and you will add that Her Majesty's Government trust the authorities at Macao will exercise the utmost vigilance in carrying out the orders of his most faithful Majesty's Government in this matter.

I inclose for your information copy of a telegram from Her Majesty's Consul at Canton, reporting the issue, by the Governor of Macao, of a proclamation announcing the orders he had received on the subject from the Portuguese Government.

THE AUDIENCE AT PEKING.

The following despatches have been issued by the Foreign-office :—

Mr. Wade to Earl Granville.—(Received September 15.)

Peking, July 7, 1873.

As my telegram of June 29 will have informed your Lordship, the Emperor of China on that day gave audience to myself and my colleagues, the representatives of Russia, the United States, France, and Holland.

The Imperial decree in which the audience was first accorded appeared in the manuscript edition of the Peking Gazette of June 14, and was communicated to the Legations on the 15th, in a despatch from the Prince of Kung, of which I enclose translation. Foreign Ministers, the representative of Holland included, were at the same time invited by the Ministers of the Yamên to meet them there on the 16th. The chief objections to the decree were two ; first, that Foreign Ministers were declared in it to have "humbly begged" or "implored" an audience ; secondly, that the words "kuo shu"—Government letter, by which, in official correspondence, the Chinese describe letters of credence, or letter from the Chief of a State—were placed in the text without any of the honour due to the dignity of a foreign Government. It might be added that the words Envoys or Ministers were referred to with as little formality as they would have been had the persons referred to represented States dependent on China ; but irrespectively of the argument advanced by the Chinese, that there was a certain difference in the form employed, there would have been naturally an indisposition on the part of foreign Ministers to insist too much on what might have been regarded as offending their personal dignity rather than the dignity of their States.

Remarks on the two other points could not be avoided ; and although at the Conference of the 16th the etiquette to be observed did at last come to be considered, the discussion which occupied the earlier part of the interview had rendered progress so far difficult, that it was not until the 25th instant that the Memorandum of etiquette to be observed at the audience was agreed to by foreign Ministers. This was a revised edition of a Memorandum earlier communicated non-officially, which had been considered in a very lengthy Conference held at the Russian Legation on the 23rd. The paper in its present shape was formally enclosed to us by the Prince of Kung upon the 26th. The Yamên had wished us to sign it, as we had signed the Protocol of the 15th of May, but we had declined. I append translation of this Memorandum.

Upon the afternoon of the same day, the 26th, we met the Prince of Kung by invitation at the Yamên, to communicate translations of our letters of credence, and all conditions to be observed having been carefully reconsidered, upon the 27th his Highness wrote officially to inform us that the Emperor had verbally given orders for our reception on the 29th.

I shall mention here that the Japanese Ambassador, Soyésima Panéomi, was also invited to the Yamên on the 26th. The Chinese Ministers left it to us to fix our own precedence, and by common consent the highest place was assigned to the Ambassador of Japan. I may add that Soyésima had had difficulties of his own to surmount. His Conferences with the Chinese Minister had been separate, but from his frequent intercourse with us, we had been kept fully informed of what was passing. I feel bound to say that I think the Government of Japan has every reason to be satisfied with the part played by its Ambassador throughout this negotiation. The knowledge which, as a Japanese, he necessarily possesses of Chinese literature and of the usages of China, deterred him from undue exigence on any point of form, but he showed, at the same time, much firmness and dignity in the assertion of his rights.

It was agreed that Soyésima was to have his audience first. This, both in consideration of his rank as Ambassador, and, possibly, because the letter of the Mikado with which he was charged was not a letter of credence, but of congratulation only. The five representatives holding letters of credence, viz., the Ministers of Russia, America, and France, with myself and Mr. Ferguson, Diplomatic Agent of the Netherlands, were to be received together. The order of proceeding was as follows :—

The place appointed by the Emperor was the Tz'û-Kuang-Ko, or purple pavilion, a large storied building in the grounds west of the palace. The palace itself, that is to say, the precinct designated by foreigners the "forbidden city," lies, as any plan will show, about midway between the east and west outer walls of Peking proper. Round this precinct, at a distance of from a quarter to half a mile, runs an enceinte known as the Huang Ch'êng, usually rendered the Imperial city. This is divided into streets, and, with the exception of the grounds, of which I am about to speak, is generally open to the public. The grounds in question lie westward of the palace, communicating with it towards the southern end of a large piece of water, on the west bank of which is situated the purple pavilion. A little west of the grounds, but well within the Imperial city, stands the Pei-t'ang, a Romish Cathedral and mission house, built within the last few years upon ground bestowed upon the earlier missionaries in the reign of Kang-hi, and recovered by its present occupants under the Convention of 1860. It was settled that at six in the morning the five representatives of Western Powers should meet there. M. Delaplace, the Bishop resident, had been so good as to give us rooms to dress in. We rendezvoused accordingly at the Pei-t'ang, and were thence escorted by a Minister of the Yamên to the north gate of the palace grounds in our chairs ; the thoroughfare across the marble bridge, which spans the piece of water above mentioned, being closed to the public eastward by desire of the Emperor. We had come to the Pei-t'ang through the west of the outer city, large numbers of people being already on the alert to see the foreigners who were to be presented to the Emperor without prostrating themselves. A dense crowd was assembled in the vicinity of the Pei-t'ang for the same purpose. At the Fu-Hua-Mên, the gate by which the palace grounds are here entered from the north, we left our chairs, and were received by the Grand Secretary and all other Ministers of the Yamên, the Prince and the Ministers Pao and Shên excepted. We had been told that they would be in attendance all the morning on his Majesty. We proceeded, according to the programme, to the Shih-ying-Kung, or palace of seasonableness, a temple in which, as circumstances require, the Emperor prays for rain or for cessation of rain. Confectionery, tea, and Chinese wine from the Emperor's buttery were offered us, and, after waiting above an hour, we moved on with the Ministers to a large tent pitched westward of the purple pavilion.

The Emperor did not arrive at the pavilion as soon as we had been led to expect. The reason assigned was the receipt of important despatches from the seat of war in the north-west. The Prince of Kung and the two Ministers with him were already waiting outside the tent to explain the delay, and returned again and again, as it were apologetically, to keep us company with the rest. The grounds were thronged with officials ; but except a few men wearing Chinese sabres of antique form, I saw nothing like a soldier in our immediate vicinity. At length, after we had waited in the tent at least an hour and a half, the Japanese Ambassador was summoned to the presence, and, his audience ended, came our turn.

In front of the pavilion in which we were received is a great platform of stone, accessible on three sides by flights of steps. We ascended, as it had been agreed, after some debate, we should, by the steps on the western side, and, entering the pavilion, found ourselves at once in a large hall divided by wooden pillars in the usual northern style, into five sections. We came into this by the second section from the west, filing into the centre section until we were opposite the throne on which the Emperor was seated at the north end of the hall. We then bowed to the Emperor, advanced a few paces and bowed again, then advanced a few paces farther bowing again, and halted before a long yellow table about half way up the hall, I should say some ten or twelve paces distant from the throne.

The throne was, I think, raised above the floor of the dais on which it stood by a couple of steps. The dais itself was separated from the hall by a light rail broken right and left of the throne by low flights of three stairs each. The Emperor was seated Manchu fashion, that is cross-legged. Upon his left were the Prince of Kung, his brother, known as the seventh Prince, and another Prince, the son of the famous Sangolinsin, who repulsed our attack on the forts of Taku in 1859. To the right of his Majesty stood two other magnates, the nearest being the senior of the hereditary Princes not of the Imperial house ; the other, I believe, a son-in-law of the old Emperor, whose name was Pao-kuang. Below on either side was a double rank of high officials, which spread outwards from the throne towards us, until their flanks reached the columns marking the outer line of the centre section in which we were standing. In rear of these were others filling the flank sections east and west up to the walls. On the whole the spectacle was fair to see, although I should not go so far as to style it imposing.

Our party having halted as I have described, the Minister of Russia, General Vlangaly, as Doyen of the Corps, read aloud an address in French, of which I inclose a copy. A Chinese translation of it had been already shown to the Prince of Kung, and this was then read by M. Bismarck, Secretaire Interprete of the German Legation, who, as I have reported, had been selected from the first to act as Interpreter-General at our Conferences. In this capacity he entered the hall with us, and took his place behind M. Vlangaly.

As soon as the address was delivered we laid our letters of credence upon the table. The Emperor made a slight bow of acknowledgment, and the Prince of Kung falling upon both knees at the foot of the throne, his Majesty appeared to speak to him—I say appeared, because no sound reached my ears. We had been told, however, that the Emperor would speak in Manchu, and that the Prince would interpret. Accordingly, as soon as his Highness rose, he descended the steps, and informed us that his Majesty declared that the letters of credence had been received. Then returning to his place, he again fell upon his knees, and the Emperor having again spoken to him in a low tone, he again descended the steps, and coming up to us informed us that his Majesty trusted that our respective rulers were in good health, and expressed a hope that foreign affairs might all be satisfactorily arranged between foreign Ministers and the Tsungli Yamen. This closed the Audience, which may have lasted a little more than five minutes.

We then all withdrew in the usual fashion, "à reculons," and bowing, with the exception of M. de Geofroy, Minister of France, who had a reply to deliver from his Government to the letter of explanations carried to France in 1870 by the Minister Chunghow. That with which M. de Geofroy was charged may be considered to close all discussion regarding the Tientsin massacre. It had been conceded, not without debate, that M. de Geofroy was for this second audience to be allowed the use of his own interpreter, M. Deveria. As we retired, therefore, that gentleman was introduced. The second audience was over as quickly as the first, and M. de Geofroy presently overtook us at the Shih-ying-K'ung, whence, after a short session, we were conducted to our chairs by the Ministers of the Yamên, the Grand Secretary joining the rest at the gate. There was a strong disposition to establish a rule by which no audience should be granted except to a quorum of five Ministers. The Japanese Ambassador was nevertheless granted his audience alone, and the second audience accorded to M. de Geofroy will always be referred to as a precedent for the admission of any single Minister who is charged with a written message from his Government.

Considering the antecedents of the discussion, I regard M. de Geofroy's separate audience as the most important result of the whole, always with a single exception. That exception is the concession of the audience, at all, to a number of foreigners declining not only to perform the kotow, but even to bend the knee. We must remember the long-standing pretension of the Emperor of China to this act of homage, and the tradition of isolated supremacy on which that pretension has been based. The Empire has, for the first time in its history, broken with the tradition ; not, it may be, with a good grace, but still has broken with it past recal ; and while I would anxiously deprecate a too sanguine estimate of its results, immediate or remote, I am as little disposed to undervalue the significance of the change that has been effected. We are not free to forget the conditions under which but a century ago the Representatives of friendly States were admitted into the presence of the Sultan at Constantinople, and the extract which I inclose will remind us of what but three years since was the position of a foreign Minister before the Mikado of Japan. In a country like this, therefore, where forms of longer standing far than in the sister strongholds of immutability so largely usurp the place of substance, it is not to be disputed that in its present departure from precedent an important beginning has been made. There may be—there is—very much in our late reception that falls short of the standard of our requirements, as authorised by the usages of the Western world ; but we appeared face to face with the Emperor, standing, because we represented Governments the equal of his own, and in the recognition of this equality China has commenced her retreat from the maintenance of that claim to be greater and better than her neighbours, which has proved, more than any other, a cause of hindrance to her improvement at home, and as a consequence, a standing danger to the security of her relations abroad.

The Prince of Kung to Mr. Wade.

The Prince of Kung makes a communication.

The Yamen having presented a Memorial to the throne, showing that the foreign Ministers resident in Peking have begged a for an Audience to present letters from their Governments, had the honour to receive, upon the 20th day of the 5th moon of the 12th year of the reign Fung Chih, the following decree :—

"The Tsungli Yamen having presented a Memorial to the effect that the foreign Ministers residing in Peking have implored [us to grant] an Audience that they may deliver letters from their Governments, we command that the foreign Ministers residing in Peking, who have brought letters from their Governments, be accorded Audience. Respect this!"

Decree, reverently made, to the Ministers of Russia, the United States, England, and France (named as usual and titles given in full).

Fung Chih, 12th year, 5th moon, 21st day (June 15, 1873).

Revised Memorandum of Etiquette to be observed at the Audience, forwarded by the Tsung-li Yamên to the Foreign Ministers on the 26th June, 1873.

(Translation.)

The Foreign Ministers will bring with them M. Bismarck as their interpreter in common. M. de Geofroy will bring M. Deveria as his interpreter in particular.

The Ministers will alight from their chairs, or horses, at the Fu Hua Gate,a and they will there be received by the Ministers of the Yamên who will accompany them, in the first instance, to the Shih Ying Kung,b where for a short time they will rest. If his Majesty be pleased to bestow refreshment upon them,c it is here they will partake of it.

Their escort d will remain in a tent outside the Fu Hua Gate, where there will be persons to attend to them. Their retinue e will also remain hereabouts. Neither escort nor retinue will enter the Fu Hua Gate.

As soon as his Majesty, coming from the eastern side of the building, reaches the inner (lit. rearmost) hall of the Tzu Kuang Ko, the Ministers of the Yamên will accompany the Foreign Ministers and the interpreters to a marquee f to the west of the Tzu Kuang Ko, where they will wait a short time, until his Majesty shall have entered g the Tzu Kuang Ko. The Ministers of the Yamên will accompany the Foreign Ministers and the Interpreter, M. Bismark, up the western flight of steps into Tzu Kuang Ko by the space west [it is assumed, of the centre space].h

The speech (or speeches) of the foreign Ministers ended, they will each one spread his Letter of Credence i upon the Yellow Table.

His Majesty the Emperor, making some special sign of affability (probably a bow), will say (lit. answer) that the Letters of Credence have now been received, and make gracious j remarks and put kindly questions.

These will be interpreted with solemn reverence by the Prince of Kung.

[Foreign Ministers] when they come into the door [of the hall], when they are speaking, or stating their names, as also when questions are addressed to them, and when they make answer, also when they retire, will, in token of extraordinary respect, make reverences, as it was originally agreed (or proposed) they should.

The forms will be settled by rehearsal before the Audience. When the ceremony is ended, the other four foreign Ministers and the interpreter, M. Bismarck, will retire by the western flight of steps. The Ministers of the Yamên will accompany them to Shih-ying-K'ung, where they will wait a short time, M. Deveria being meanwhile brought in by Ministers of the Yamên into the Tzu Kuang Ko.

M. de Geofroy will speak, and will spread upon the Yellow Table the answer k to the letter of the Chinese Government.

His Majesty will, as before, acknowledge the receipt [of this letter].

The Audience (lit. business) thus concluded, M. de Geofroy and M. Deveria, the interpreter, will retire, the Ministers of the Yamên accompanying them to the Shih Ying Kung. Thence, the whole party being reassembled, they will conduct the foreign Ministers and their interpreters out of the Fu Hua Gate.

The arrangements set forth above are made because the Emperor having to receive Letters of Credence, a Decree has been received from his Majesty according an Audience. Hence the liberality of the ceremonial.l

Address to the Emperor of China, delivered by M. Vlangaly, Minister of Russia, as Doyen.

Sire,—Les Représentants de la Russie, Vlangaly ; des Etats Unis d'Amérique, Low ; de la Grande Bretagne, Wade ; de la France, Geofroy ; et des Pays-Bas, Ferguson, ont l'honneur d'offrir au nom de leurs Gouvernements à votre Majesté Impériale leurs félicitations à l'occasion de sa majorité et font des vœux pour la durée de son règne et la prospérité de son peuple.

Ils espèrent voir dans le règne de votre Majesté la continuation du règne de son illustre aïeul, l'Empereur Kang-hi, qui, en élevant la Chine au sommet de sa gloire et de sa puissance, y donna accés aux sciences et aux arts de l'Occident.

La Chine, Sire, retrouvera sous le Gouvernement de votre Majesté ces heureux jours, et les Puissances étrangères, qui ont des Traités conclus avec votre Majesté Impériale, verront avec plaisir le développement des relations et le raffermissement du bon accord qui existent avec votre vaste Empire.

Nous avons l'honneur, Sire, de déposer les lettres qui nous accréditent en qualité d'Envoyés Extraordinaires et de Ministres Plénipotentiaires auprés de votre Majesté Impériale.

M. BISMARCK, INTERPRETER.

Mr. Wade informs Earl Granville that M. Bismarck, Secrétaire Interprete of the German Legation, has agreed to undertake the office of Interpreter General at the Conferences on the Audience question. Mr. Wade encloses a copy of the letter of address to M. Bismarck which he and his colleagues signed. The address is one of compliment, and is intended as an acknowledgment of the service rendered by M. Bismarck.

The signatures are those of A. Vlangaly, Russian Minister ; F. E. Law, United States Minister ; T. F. Wade, British Minister ; L. D. Geofroy, French Minister ; and J. H. Fergusson, Dutch Minister. In a subsequent despatch to Earl Granville, Mr. Wade informs his Lordship that it had been expected, before the event, by some people that the descent of the Government from its pinnacle would be unpopular. As soon as the decree of the 14th June appeared, however, missionaries called upon Mr. Low to state that even its publication had greatly assured their flocks. Since the Audience, M. de Geofroy had also received the congratulations of Romish missionaries from all parts of China. The Princes who waited on the Emperor had been surprised and pleased at the demeanour of the Ministers, and that Mr. Low, the American Minister, had received the same assurance from the Prince of Kung, his Highness alluding very pleasantly to the last occasion of their meeting.

Lord Granville, in reply to Mr. Wade, expresses the satisfaction felt by Her Majesty's Government at the way in which the negotiations had been conducted.

THE STRAITS OF MALACCA

On the 24th inst. Mr. Leonard Wray, a member of the Royal Colonial Institute, read a paper upon "Our Settlements in the Straits of Malacca," in the theatre of the Society of Arts. The Duke of Manchester occupied the chair.

The lecturer, in commencing his remarks, stated that the position of the Straits of Malacca or anything connected with them was but little known until recently. He then proceeded to give a sketch of the history of the various places in the Straits and the inhabitants, in the course of which he stated that the Atchinese were a mixed breed of Malays, Battas, Javanese, Tamils, Arabs, Siamese, Hindoostanees, cum multis aliis, the Tamil predominating. The Portuguese had visited Atchin, but were ill-treated ; the Dutch afterwards visited it in 1600, and after a great deal of dissimulation obtained a factory there, and in 1602 the English visited it for the first time, the captain of the ship being a Mr. Lancaster, who immediately won the affections of the people. The Sultan Peduckra Siri in 1613 wrote to King James I. of England, begging the English monarch to send him out an English wife. He had sent to him two brass cannons of large size but very thin, and one of those guns had been captured the other day by the Dutch in the Kraton. It bore the following inscription : "Thomas and Richard Pit, Brethren, made this peece, ano. 1617." The Dutch could not conquer the Atchinese in those days, yet they used them to overthrow their rivals, which they did in 1640.

The imports and exports of Singapore amounted in 1871 to £14,613,696. According to the census of 1871 there were, in the then settlements, 308,097, out of which there were only 1,730 Europeans and Americans. The revenue of the then settlements, in 1871, was £298,711. The Portuguese commenced trading with Malacca in 1508, captured it in 1511, and held it until 1640, when the Dutch, aided by the Atchinese, wrested it from them. In 1795 they surrendered it to the English, who restored it to them in 1818, and received it back again in 1825, in exchange for Bencoolen. That was a short-sighted and most unwise bargain on the part of the British, and was rendered still more mischievous by the cunning stipulation of the Dutch that the English should utterly destroy the strong and important fortifications for which Malacca was so famous. He had stated that the Dutch had acquired by degrees several very important positions on the great island of Sumatra ; but as they never could obtain possession of Atchin, it could in no way be alleged that they owned Sumatra. From the reign of James I. friendly relations were established between Great Britain and the Sultan of Atchin, and this friendship had, with very slight breaks, been continued. The Atchinese hated the Portuguese and the Dutch, and threw themselves upon their friends and protectors, the English. A solemn treaty was concluded in 1819 between them, whereby England engaged to defend Atchin, and particularly against the Dutch. In 1824-5 England ceded her settlement in Sumatra to the Dutch in exchange for Malacca, reserving the independence of Atchin.

In 1868 the Dutch wished to obtain the relaxation of the treaty, whilst getting the recognition of the British Government of all the territorial acquisitions made by them up to that date (which acquisitions were accomplished facts) ; but, as Lord Derby truly declared, all mention of Atchin was purposely excluded, and its status remained unaltered until 1871. In that year the late Ministry of England thought proper to conclude "the Sumatra Convention," whereby the Dutch gave up to Great Britain the fort of Elmina, on the Gold Coast, in exchange for which England was supposed to have withdrawn her protectorate over Atchin ! In other words, England gives over to the tender mercies of the Dutch that people whom we had by solemn treaty bound ourselves to protect and defend ; that country which actually may be considered to be the key to our Settlements in the Straits of Malacca, and to that great thoroughfare of our trade with China and Japan, for the little fort of Elmina. The result has been our country has been plunged into an ignominious war with a set of savages, some of our best troops sacrificed, our treasure poured out like water, and, worse than all, the good faith of the British nation treated as a thing not to be depended upon. To Atchin the fruit has been, that her country, without any just cause, without any provocation whatsoever, has been twice invaded, her coasts blockaded, her towns, forts, and villages have been bombarded, assaulted, and captured, her inhabitants have been recklessly and cruelly slaughtered ; and a third invasion in the ensuing autumn is now threatened. We should mediate, and obtain the immediate withdrawal of the Dutch troops from Atchin ; making, on the one hand, to Atchin a compensation for our great default, and, on the other hand, returning to the Dutch the Fort of Elmina, and such conquests as we made (if any) during our defensive war with Ashantee. The Treaty of 1819, which the "Convention" could not set aside, was still, and would remain, in full force. If the deplorable events which had arisen out of that unauthorised act of the late Ministry should, as he hoped they would, lead to the passing of a legislative enactment, whereby no Ministers (whether Radical or Tory) shall have the power to alienate any of the territorial possessions or protectorates of Britain without first obtaining the consent of Parliament, then, perhaps, some good might come out of the evil.

The noble Chairman said that the only remark that he had to make was that some body of men, with more or less authority, and with more knowledge of the circumstances of the British Empire than British statesmen usually possessed, should be constituted and consulted in reference to measures of this nature. The negotiations with Holland about the Straits of Malacca and the settlement on the West Coast of Africa seemed altogether unimportant at the time. Nobody noticed it, and all seemed utterly ignorant of the circumstances and the policy involved in these transactions. Such ignorance was only to be obviated by the necessary consultation of statesmen with people acquainted with the circumstances and principles involved in such matters as they might arise. That was an additional argument for a Council representing all parts of the British Empire, which he and others had advocated.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Wray for his paper terminated the proceedings.

AGRA BANK (LIMITED).

The ordinary general meeting of this company was held on the 21st inst., Mr. James Thompson in the chair. The report of the directors was taken as read.

The CHAIRMAN said that the past year had not been one particularly favourable to banking operations in the East. During the course of the year money had been exceedingly plentiful, and sound and profitable investments had been proportionately sought after and correspondingly scarce. There was, however, lately a change in this respect, and money all at once became far from abundant in India, and the interest on money had increased, he might say, since the beginning of the year at least 2 to 3 per cent. If the present state of things continued the result would show to advantage in the profits of the present year. The balance sheet exhibited an augmentation, though not a large one, in the current account balances as compared with what they were in the previous year. As he had often stated, the directors regarded this as satisfactory evidence of progress, and as a most satisfactory future. First it showed that the bank was appreciated and used by the public in its proper capacity of a bank, and that the bank fulfilled its functions in that respect; and, secondly, it supplied the bank with funds to accommodate its constituents on fair and reasonable terms; and, last of all, it was that class of accounts which did more than any other to promote the bank's profit. They, in fact, fulfilled a double duty, they benefited the constituency, and they benefited the house at the same time, and therefore it was that he had availed himself of the opportunity which had been from time to time afforded him at these meetings, of impressing upon them to do what they could to promote those accounts, which he was sure everyone of them would do according to the opportunity afforded him. The directors had endeavoured to carry on the business with the utmost prudence and caution, and had acted on the old American motto of "Feel your ground and go ahead," and he was sure the shareholders would not have the less confidence in the management because the directors adopted that course, and endeavoured to place the house upon a basis of strength and substantiality.

He was happy to say that during the year all the branches had worked well, with the exception of the branch at Shanghai, at which place the management until recently had not been what the directors could have desired. They had recently changed it, and they hoped to have improvement in consequence. No doubt shareholders had seen a report of an action which was heard in the American Consular Court, in which this bank was the plaintiff and Oliphant and Co. were the defendants. It was the imperative rule in this bank that in all advances upon any goods, or upon the security of property, that the goods pledged to the bank should be examined by the manager, and ascertained to be what they were represented to be, and also that they were in safe custody, which should secure to the bank undivided control over them. In April last year the manager, who had retired from the service of the bank, made advances on some lead warrants, which were, in fact, receipts for goods deposited in certain places, and which in this instance professed to be deposited in the custody of Messrs. Oliphant and Co., but the manager seemed to have made the advance without making inquiry to satisfy himself that the goods were in order. The manager who succeeded the manager who made the advance discovered that the goods never had any existence, and that the warrants were fictitious, and the legal question arose whether under any such circumstances Messrs. Oliphant and Company were liable. The case was tried, and the bank was defeated on the ground that the goods did not exist, and he believed this decision was in accordance with both English and American law. It must be manifest that, if the positive instructions of the board had been carried out by the manager who made the advance, such a loss could not have been incurred. He might mention that an action had been commenced against the late manager for the recovery of the money. The shareholders would be pleased to hear that the amount of £48,000 set aside to meet the losses incurred through the failure of Gledstanes and Company had proved amply sufficient for the purpose. The amount of profit made at the head office and branches during the past year had amounted to £71,482, of which £50,000 had been set aside for dividend, and £14,000 carried to the reserve fund, leaving about £8,000 which had been placed to the credit of the doubtful debt account. Referring to the low price of the shares, he said it was a puzzle to the directors, inasmuch as the capital of the bank was intact, and the bank was paying a much better dividend than many railways whose shares stood higher in the market, but which paid no dividend at all, or a very small dividend. In conclusion, he moved that the report and accounts be received and adopted.

Mr. J. CARRINGTON seconded the resolution, which, after a few remarks from Mr. MORLAND, was put to the meeting, and carried. The CHAIRMAN moved that a dividend at the rate of five per cent. per annum, free of income tax, be declared. Mr. PALMER seconded the motion. Mr. MORLAND contended that a larger dividend should be declared, and a smaller amount carried to the reserve fund. He moved, as an amendment, "That the dividend be at the rate of eight per cent." The amendment was seconded by Mr. BARKER, but ultimately, in deference to the general wish of the meeting, it was withdrawn.

The directors and auditors were re-elected, and a vote of thanks to the chairman and directors then terminated the proceedings.

THE BANK OF HINDUSTAN, CHINA, AND JAPAN (LIMITED)—IN LIQUIDATION.

A large and influential meeting of the shareholders of this Bank has been held, to receive a report from the liquidators; Mr. Alderman ALLEN in the chair.

The report presented stated that the last report of affairs, together with a statement of receipts and expenditure, showed that about one million and a half of liabilities had been liquidated, and that the assets consisted of "cash or securities which can be immediately realised, £12,000; assets yet to be collected, expected to realise £18,000; together, £30,000." The sources from which the £18,000 was expected to be realised were also indicated, the larger portion being the turn-out of two mortgages in Bengal, which had not yet been realised, but which the correspondents of the company have been instructed to sell forthwith. The sale had not taken place earlier, as it was considered by the liquidators that they were not in a position to secure a good sale; but they hoped that their estimate of those assets would now be fully realised. These assets at present consist of cash and securities which can be immediately realised, £20,489; and assets yet to be collected, estimated to realise £11,180—£31,669. The larger portion of the latter item (£11,180) depended upon the success of the agents in carrying out the instructions for the sale of the two mortgages, and the balance had to be collected from failed estates and arrears of calls; the arrears in the latter were still very large, and that with the exception of some paying by instalments the contributory list was practically exhausted, and not more than £1,000 could be safely calculated from that source. The Chairman moved the reception and adoption of the report, and proposed the following resolution: "That the report and accounts of the liquidators be received and adopted, and that all necessary proceedings be taken forthwith to carry into effect the proposed arrangement with the Imperial Bank of China, India, and Japan (Limited), and such agreement referred to in the report now submitted to the meeting." The resolution was seconded and carried unanimously.

The following resolutions were also put to the meeting, and carried: "That this meeting, having read the statement of the liquidators of the present position of the bank, is of opinion that ten shillings per share should be forthwith returned to the shareholders who are entitled to participate therein, and requests the liquidators to make such return, and further to continue their efforts to realise the remainder of the assets, and close the liquidation as early as possible." "That the additional payments to Messrs. Allen, G. Macnair, and Captain Engledue, be such a sum as will increase their remuneration to the aggregate amount of £8,000 to the close of the liquidation." "That the shareholders desire specially to recognise the services of the secretary, Mr. R. S. Tomlin, and hereby request the liquidators to pay him, in addition to his current salary to the close of the liquidation, a sum equal to one year's salary, in recognition of his attention to the interests of the shareholders during the liquidation."

A vote of thanks to the chairman and his brother liquidators closed the proceedings.

The "Messageries à Vapeur de Cochin Chine"—Messrs. Larrieu and Roque proprietors—was established in 1872 for the transport of Government stores, troops, &c., on the waters of French Cochin China, the Government having granted a very handsome subsidy equivalent to about $12,000 per month, to which the King of Cambodia liberally added $2,000, to induce regular steam communication with his kingdom. These subsidies are amply sufficient to leave a handsome interest on the capital invested; but, besides, a very considerable amount is derived from outside freight and passengers, there being no competition. The fleet at present consists of four steamers, three of which, the Saltee, Ataloe, and Viaco, are of about 400 tons register each (these were bought in England). The fourth is the Powerful, formerly a tug boat on the Saigon river. These are quite sufficient for present Government requirements, but there is such an abundance of freight offering from Cambodia during the fish and cotton seasons that the proprietors intend to purchase at least one more large boat for the line to Chnom Peuh (the capital of Cambodia). Although this undertaking is such a very profitable one for the proprietors, it would be nothing without Government aid, which is fixed for nine years. Considerable dissatisfaction prevailed in consequence of Governor Dupre (who is now on his return to France) having made the contract without advertising for tenders for the service.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Our advices from this port by the present mail extend to the 17th Feb.; the French mail from London Dec. 19 arrived out on the 8th Feb., and the following P. and O. mail of Dec. 26 on the 13th Feb. The Japan Herald contains the following items of news:—

The feelings of alarm as to approaching troubles have, to a certain extent, subsided; but news of a disquieting nature, viz., that an uprising of the samourai in Saga Ken (province of Hizen), who demand war with Korea, has taken place, again cast doubts as to the permanence of peace. The outbreak is said to be confined to the samourai class, and therefore not to embrace the farmers and peasantry. The troops of the Kiushiu military divisions have been mobilised, and there seems to be no great apprehension in the capital of the results of the émeute. If it leads to a re-consideration of the claims of the samourai upon the new Government, and a satisfactory adjustment of these, it may not ultimately afford ground for regret. The rebel leaders number altogether about 2,000 men, and are divided into three sections, having three different objects in view. The members of one section of this party are called "Saikan Ron," that is, enforcing an expedition to Korea; the second are "Hoken Ron," desirous to re-establish the feudal system, with Daimios, as before; and the third are, "Jai Ron," whose avowed purpose is to sweep out all foreigners from the empire.

The very serious aspect which affairs have assumed may be inferred from the fact that the Council of State has been sitting en permanence for two days and two nights. Terashima, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, since the news of the troubles got abroad, has been inaccessible to the Foreign Ministers, lest interrogatories should be put to him which it would be inconvenient for him to answer. He has, therefore, very opportunely fallen sick. Okubo, Minister of the Interior, has received the Imperial order to go down to Saga ken, to settle the troubles. He has left in a man-of-war, accompanied by several officers of the Department of the Interior. The Government Kencho has been seized by the insurgents, who have taken away the sum of $200,000 from the district bank of Ono.

A memorial, signed by several ex-members of the Cabinet, and praying for the establishment of a Council-Chamber, greater liberty of public discussion, and, in a word, freer institutions, has been presented to the Cabinet, and favourably received. Of course it has excited a great deal of discussion, and is freely praised and blamed by the native newspapers. It is deficient in practical suggestion, though indicative of a desire, possibly, of the necessity for modifications in the machinery of government. Eto Shimpei, ex-Minister of Justice, who is one of the party who sent the memorandum to the Mikado about establishing a Parliament, is recognised as the leader of the Saga rebels.

On the 23rd January the Mikado presented new colours to some regiments of the Guard, the day being observed as a fête in Tokio. On the same day the Empress held a reception, when the wives and families of the foreign Ministers were presented to her.

Government, but the latter are using all their endeavours to have the ex-territoriality jurisdiction abolished, which point the representatives having been instructed by their respective Governments to refuse to concede, negotiations may be said at present to be in a dead lock.

We learn that the Colonisation Department, the Kaitakushi, which has cost an enormous sum of money from first to last, with most unsatisfactory results, is to be abolished by being absorbed into the new Department, the Ministry of the Interior. There is, however, to be a searching enquiry into the scandals that have prevailed with reference to the working of the Kaitakushi. The accounts, contracts, &c., are to be overhauled, and supposing this necessary work to be well and thoroughly done by honest and capable officers, some interesting revelations will result.

On the 11th Feb. the foreign men-of-war in harbour were decorated, and salutes were fired by the Japanese land-battery, in honour of the anniversary of the coronation, 2,534 years ago, or thereabouts, of the founder of the present dynasty of Mikados. In addition, the Japanese public offices were closed, and the whole of the native town and environs manifested their appreciation of the day in a bounteous display of bunting.

Iwakura, whose wounds were not of a serious nature, has nearly recovered. Some seven men have been apprehended on suspicion of being concerned in the attempted assassination. One of the men has been tortured, and has confessed his crime.

An extraordinary general meeting of the British Episcopal Church has been held at the British Consulate (Russell Robertson, Esq., in the chair), for the purpose of deciding on the propriety of raising the pew rents, the adoption of the report of the Committee of Ways and Means, and the re-constitution of the Church, together with other matters relating to its future management. After the proposal for the adoption of the report upon the subject of Ways and Means had been carried, Mr. Cargill proposed the following resolution :—"That a special committee be appointed to consider and report upon the reconstitution of the Church, rendered necessary by the discontinuance of the allowance by H.B.M.'s Government, and other matters incidental thereto." After this resolution had been carried a second resolution was passed to the effect that the members of the Special Committee just appointed, together with the present Trustees and Treasurer, be requested to form themselves into a general committee to gather the sense of the subscribers, and report on the subject of the intermediate and permanent appointment of a chaplain.

A case has been heard at the German Consulate, in which Tsujia Jusaboro sued Messrs. Schultze, Reiss, and Co. in the sum of $2,100 bargain money, deposited on a contract made between the two parties, for the delivery of 7,000 cases of kerosene oil in 250 days. From the evidence it appeared that the term of delivery had been changed after the making of the agreement into 150 days, and, as was alleged by the plaintiff, by the banto of the defendants, and with their knowledge. Owing to the non-delivery of the goods within this latter term the case was laid. It was proved to the Court that the change had been made from 250 into 150, but by whom could not be ascertained. The Court, after consultation, gave their decision in favour of the defendants.

A fire has occurred the results of which entail one of the most serious losses the Settlement has had to sustain for some time past. The French Naval Hospital, on the bund, the building consumed, constructed for the purpose to which it has, during nine years, been successfully devoted, is now a heap of charred débris. The only portions which have not fallen a prey to the flames are the stone outhouses and the stone basement of the main building, which latter portion, flooded with water a foot deep in the interior, and enveloped with smoke and falling rafters in flames, in one short hour after the commencement of the conflagration, is all that remains of the original edifice.

Our market report is not favourable, as in consequence of the large and continually increasing stock of all classes of imports, combined with a weaker demand, prices are still falling, and all branches of business are in a very depressed state.

Great anxiety was felt for some days as to the safety of the P.M.S.S. Alaska, which did not arrive here until the evening of the 5th Feb., nine days over contract time. The delay was caused solely by bad weather.

A scheme is said to be under consideration for improving the harbour of Yokohama, by building piers so as to shelter the anchorage from the prevailing winds.

M. Oscar Colleau, French Consul at this port, will shortly leave for France. During his absence he will be replaced by M. Plichon (élève Consul), at present attached to the Consulate.

A running match, which has caused some little excitement amongst our athletes, has come off at the grounds of the Amateur Athletic Association, between Mr. A. H. Dare and Mr. J. Jaquemot, junior. The distance was two miles, and the prize was a very handsome centre-piece. Mr. Dare eventually won by over a hundred yards, doing the two miles in 11 min. 36 sec., Mr. Jaquemot taking 12 min. 24 sec.

It is said that the Budget for 1874, prepared by the Minister of Finance, shows a very favourable state of the national finances.

(LATER INTELLIGENCE VIA SAN FRANCISCO.)

On the 22nd and 23rd of February news was received of the first encounter between the national troops and the insurgents, which occurred probably on the 21st and 22nd at the small town of Todoroki and at Ariyama, in the near vicinity of Saga, which latter city had been in possession of the rebels for several days. The number of Government troops was small, not exceeding a few hundred, the first who arrived. The resistance offered to them was so slight that the affairs were hardly considered in the light of serious skirmishes. The best results appear to have been the proofs of spirit and loyalty shown by the national soldiers. The rebels retreated in confusion towards Saga, upon which their assailants were advancing at last accounts. The dissatisfaction is not believed to have spread beyond the very limited space in which it first manifested itself. This is absolutely all of importance which has transpired.

The Pacific Mail Company's steamer Great Republic arrived at San Francisco on the 19th ult., with advices from Yokohama to the 24th Feb., of which the subjoined summary has been telegraphed to the New York press :—

The Chamber of Commerce of Yokohama strongly recommends an order for the storing of petroleum at a safe distance from the city, but the Government has taken no action in the matter.

The registration of the people has been disregarded for a long time, but it has now been accurately accomplished, and the census shows the population of the Empire to be 33,100,000.

The work of constructing a telegraph line northward is progressing favorably.

CHINA.

PEKING AND TIENTSIN.

In the Peking Gazette of the 21st Jan. there is an edict announcing that the Empress mothers had recommended that his Majesty, accompanied by themselves, should during the second moon of next year (the latter end of March and beginning of April) visit the western imperial burial grounds, to burn incense and offer up their prayers at the tombs of his Majesty's ancestors. As the road and the serais to the western burial grounds require repairs, and as the imperial household treasury has no funds to execute such works, Tsing-gan, the officer in charge of the treasury, has advised that the Commissioner of Finances of Chihli province be ordered to furnish the necessary funds. His Majesty therefore commands Li Hung-chang, the Viceroy of Chihli, to direct the Provincial Commissioner of Finances to provide twelve thousand taels, the sum required to execute the necessary repairs, and to pay the money into the household treasury before the closing of the Yamuns for the new year holidays. In the Gazette of the 27th there is an edict announcing that the Emperor and his uncles the Princes Tun, Kung, Chun, and Fuh, will visit certain temples and again burn incense and offer up their prayers to Heaven for the fall of snow, to benefit the agriculture of the North of China. This is the fourth time that the Emperor has this winter publicly visited the temples and prayed for snow to fall. The edict is of considerable length, and alludes to the failure of his former prayers. It is feared that if no snow falls the winter crops of wheat will perish, a fearful calamity for the mass of the people in this region; hence his Majesty's anxiety.

The Gazette records the following official changes and promotions :—Chung-shih to be president of the Criminal Board. This official is the elder brother of Chung-how, formerly in office at Tientsin. He was formerly General-in-Chief over the Manchow troops in the province of Szechuen. He only lately returned to Peking from Jehol, in Mongolia, where he had been Governor in charge. He is known to the Foreign Ministers, and has been congratulated on his promotion. He is considered to be well disposed towards foreigners. Ho-show-sze to be chief of the Too-cha-yuen ; an important and very influential office in Peking. Yin-chaou-jung to be vice-president of the Board of Magistracy. Sung-kin to be vice-president of the Board of Finances. Lew-yew-ming to be vice-president of the Criminal Board. Paoukeun to be chief of the Hanlin-yuen College. Paoukeun holds the position of one of his Majesty's guardians. He is also one of the chiefs of the Tsung-le Yamun ; and at the last New-year called on the Foreign Ministers in company with Wanseang. He is considered to be friendly disposed towards foreigners.

A correspondent writes :—"How speedily we might get the approval of the present Emperor to the making of a railway between Tientsin and Peking, if we could only have it in our power to despatch his Majesty from Tientsin for Peking at 5 A.M., in bitterly cold weather, and just as we saw our barometers foretold a north-west storm coming on, in one of the ordinary travelling carts of the country, the carter being instructed that he must make the journey to Peking in thirty-two hours, as it is performed by travellers now-a-days. On his Majesty arriving at Peking at 1 P.M. on the following day every bone in his body would be aching, his head would feel as if it were going to split open, he would have had no sleep the previous night, and would be frightfully hungry, from having been unable to procure anything like properly cooked food in the horribly dirty caravanserais on the road. If any foreigner would then incidentally communicate to his Majesty the fact that he could make the same journey in a couple of hours, and as comfortably as if he had been sitting in an easy chair in his palace, if he would only be pleased to authorise the making of a railway between Tientsin and Peking, I can picture to myself that he would without a single moment's hesitation issue an edict rigorously commanding that a railway be instantly made between the two places, no matter whose vested interests might be affected by so doing."

HANKOW.

A correspondent of the North China Herald writes as follows :—

We have had our third theatrical performance, which was quite up to the first two in point of excellence. The pieces were A Phenomenon in a Smock Frock, and Found in a Four-wheeler. Our talented little orchestra delighted us with some very nice music during the evening. We are particularly well off for musical talent at present, and are going to be treated to a concert (vocal and instrumental) free of charge. The programme bids fair for providing a very pleasant evening's entertainment.

Regarding municipal matters I thought all excitement was over for a year, but it seems not, for while I was penning my last few lines two of our re-elected councillors, considering the overthrow of their Bund Scheme a vote of censure, were actually writing out their resignations to be forwarded to H.B.M. Consul. This involves an election of two others to take their place, and a meeting for that purpose is called for the 25th Feb. At the meeting I hear that another Bund Scheme is to be brought forward, which, if carried, will cost the Council somewhere about Tls. 4,000. We are pretty nearly as bad as the French Municipal Council in Shanghai, and may probably have more resignations and more Bund Schemes, ad lib.

The Chinese are preparing for the New Year holidays. The Custom House, Consulates and Banks are to be closed for some days on that account. A China Bank has failed for Tls. 5,000 ; the proprietor has vanished, I believe. No business of any kind doing. River rising rapidly.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 20th Feb. ; no later mail from London had arrived out. The following items of news are from the North China Herald :—

The annual meeting of the North-China Branch of the Asiatic Society has been held, F. B. Forbes, Esq., President, in the chair. There was a small attendance of members. Colonel Yule was admitted an honorary member, and Messrs. G. B. Glover and J. L. Mateer resident members of the Society. Mr. C. E. Hart, Dr. Carmichael, Mr. M. O. FitzGerald, and Mr. Dorabjee Burjorjee Tata were proposed as members. The Secretary, Mr. T. G. Smith, then read the report of the Council for the past year, and also the librarian's and treasurer's reports. The last showed a surplus in hand of Tls. 473.1.7, after paying all claims to date, and exclusive of a considerable amount still to be collected from non-resident members. The cost of certain improvements would, however, reduce the balance by about Tls. 150, but there would remain sufficient funds for the printing of the Society's Journal. These reports and accounts were accepted and duly passed. Officers and Council for 1874 were then elected as follows :—President, F. B. Forbes, Esq.; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. Seward and Wylie ; Secretary, Mr. T. G. Smith ; Corresponding Secretary, Mr. J. E. Reding ; Treasurer, Mr. P. K. Dumaresq ; Librarian, Mr. H. Cordier ; Curator, Mr. W. B. Pryer ; Members of the Council, Rev. J. Thomas, Dr. Macgowan, Sir Edmund Hornby, and Messrs. Medhurst, Kingsmill, and Viguier.

The President and Corresponding Secretary announced the presentation of a number of works, and exchange contributions from kindred societies. Revised rules in draft were laid on the table, to be passed a month hence, and meanwhile the President invited suggestions upon them from members, among whom proof impressions had been circulated. Mr. Cordier read a brief memoir of the late M. Francis Garnier, the explorer, who was a member of the Society. The President then read an Address, in which he glanced at the origin and progress of the Society, reviewed the work it had done, gave a short resumé of the scope and value of its journals, and ended with a number of practical suggestions calculated to further its usefulness and popularity. These suggestions relate chiefly to the formation of a Museum and the extension of the Library, to which he thought might be added a collection of Chinese Literature and a M.S. department—for the reception of casual communications and a memoranda, such as might be furnished by members of shooting parties. The president having concluded his interesting and valuable paper, Rev. Mr. Butcher, in a few appropriate and complimentary remarks, proposed a vote of thanks, in which he was seconded by Mr. Wylie, and warmly borne out by the meeting. Mr. Michie then proposed a resolution which was seconded by Mr. Wylie and carried, to the effect that the Council should take immediate steps to organise the museum, borrowing Tls. 1,500 from the Recreation Fund trustees at five per cent. to meet the preliminary expenses, the president intimating that the trustees of the fund had expressed their willingness to aid the project. The current income of the Society will, it is believed, suffice to meet the additional current outlay involved by the museum, as well as interest on the loan.

A meeting of subscribers to Trinity Church has been held, to consider a proposal from the trustees of the Seamen's Church at Pootung, regarding the appointment of an assistant-chaplain. It will of course be remembered that, on the departure of Mr. Syle, Mr. Butcher undertook the duties connected with the Seamen's Church, pending the engagement of a clergyman for that purpose. It was then suggested that it would be well to permanently combine the working of the two trusts, both Trinity and Pootung Church being placed in Mr. Butcher's hands, and an assistant-chaplain engaged, towards whose salary the Seamen's Church trustees would largely contribute. This arrangement is undoubtedly the best ; and steps have been taken under it, in England, to obtain the services of a clergyman. These have, however, been hitherto unsuccessful, and it was felt that the proposed salary would have to be increased. The meeting was called on Saturday, to formularise and decide on the necessary arrangements, and proposals very much to the following effect were brought forward and passed :—1st, That it be decided to accept the proposition of the Seamen's Church, Pootung, to contribute, under certain conditions, Tls. 1,500 per annum towards the stipend of an assistant-chaplain. 2nd, That the Trustees be authorised to engage an assistant-chaplain, for a term not exceeding three years, at a salary not exceeding Tls. 2,500 per annum. 3rd, That the annual Christmas collection be devoted to the stipend of the assistant-chaplain, and that the Trustees be instructed to raise the balance required, say Tls. 600 per annum, in such a way as they may consider best.

Among the advances in the production of ordnance at the Kaou-chang-meaou Arsenal has to be noted the making of the first gun on the Woolwich principle. It is a rifled twelve pounder muzzle-loading, formed of a solid steel tube with reinforcements of coiled wrought iron, and has been turned out under the supervision of Mr. Alfred Bayley, the inventor of some important improvements in the small arms department. Orders for sixteen forty-pounders of the same kind are now being executed under the management of the same gentleman.

After the endless grumblings, the numerous representations, and the protracted discussions regarding the Woosung Bar, there is something startling in the following brief and business-like announcement, taken from the Straits Times :—

> The Municipal Commissioners, not long ago, drew the attention of Government to the manner in which the Singapore river is silting up, and we understand the result is that a dredging machine will be got out to clear the river.

Is our cosmopolitan Government (says the Herald) a failure, and do they manage things better at Singapore than Shanghai ? We have been in the habit of admiring the working of our self-governing machinery, perhaps because it is so complex and peculiar that it is rather wonderful it should go round so well ; but there is a simplicity and a directness about the above announcement which absolutely shocks us, when we think of the fearful and futile struggles that have occurred over the getting of a dredger for Shanghai. No intermittent grumbling ; no massing of public discontent ; no letters to the papers ; no surveys to contradict surveys ; no representations to Chambers of Commerce, to Consuls, to Customs dignitaries, to Ministers, or to such diplomatic drags as the Chinese Foreign-office ! Only six lines to say that a body whose business it is to see that a river is kept open have made certain representations to another body whose business it is to keep it open. Objectors may say that the positions are not parallel. Quite so ; there is this important distinction, that apparently it has not yet been decided whose business it is to keep the Shanghai river open, or how. Ordinary mortals think it is the Chinese Governments, but Ministers apparently doubt, since they show no disposition to insist on action.

Thieves are always active about the time of Chinese New Year, and this has been no exception to the rule. We have lately chronicled several cases that have come before the Mixed Court, and the Hsien has, we believe, also had his hands full. Among other cases, a foreign house at Loonghwa was broken into last week and ransacked by a gang of burglars ; on the following night a passenger boat was stopped on the river and the occupants robbed of some $1,000, with which they were returning home for their New Year holiday ; among minor thefts we hear of two bales of opium taken by force, in open day, from a boat lying alongside a jetty at Namtow. Ningpo men are accused generally as being the most active thieves this year. One "boy" from the Chekeang province is now undergoing a sentence of cangue in front of the Kechang hong, for large thefts of property from his master in that establishment. It is a curious incident in Chinese manners, that a respectable Chinaman tried to get the scoundrel released for a new year's holiday, guaranteeing that he should return and complete his sentence afterwards!

As Mr. J. Pearson, of the I. M. Customs, was walking down the Peking-road, a few nights since, he was attracted by the cries of a woman, in the Lower Yuen-ming-yuen-road. On turning aside to ascertain the cause, he found a Chinaman in the act of assaulting a native woman. With a view to stop the struggle Mr. Pearson interposed, but the Chinaman immediately turned upon him, and with a knife stabbed him in the lip and in the back of the neck. He held on, however, until a native constable came to the spot, but in taking the fellow into custody the constable also received some very severe wounds about the hands and wrists, and a dangerous stab about two inches deep in the side. It appeared from the statement of the woman that on leaving a house in the immediate vicinity of the affray, she observed the prisoner hiding behind a gateway. Suspecting his motives, she took the precaution to remove her ear-rings, which she had hardly done before the prisoner, who is a stalwart Ningpo man, rushed upon her, forced a finger shielded with paper into her mouth to prevent her calling for assistance, and flung a quantity of pepper in her eyes. He then commenced to rob her of the ornaments she wore in her hair, and met her vigorous resistance with very rough treatment. Her presence of mind, however, does not seem to have deserted her, for she bit his finger with such effect that he was glad to withdraw his hand, and the mark formed a means of identification afterwards. The prisoner was taken before the Mixed Court magistrate, and was ordered two hundred blows, to be kept in close confinement until after Chinese New-year, and then to be dealt with in a proper manner.

We hear that the remaining three members of the French council—Messrs. Charrier, Chagneau, and Juvet—have now resigned office, so that, as Dr. Galle is in England, the concession rejoices in a state of complete municipal freedom.

A meeting of shareholders in the French Gas Company has been held. The accounts show a profit on the year's working of Tls. 7,063. An interim dividend at the rate of 5 per cent., absorbing Tls. 1,900, was paid in July, and it was agreed to declare a further dividend of 6 per cent., which will absorb Tls. 2,280, carrying the balance to the reserve.

A marine named Charles Reynolds, of the U. S. S. Lackawanna, while on sentry at the gangway, was seized with an epileptic fit, and fell into the river and was drowned. His body has not yet been recovered. He was a native of New York, and it is said had been subject to these fits.

While a gang of coolies were employed in hoisting cargo from the after hold of the Antenor, one of them who guided the winch chain lost his balance and fell to the bottom of the hold, a depth of more than thirty feet. On being hoisted to the deck he was found to be quite insensible. The other coolies treated the matter with the utmost indifference, but some foreigners present having applied the readiest means of resuscitation, and finding them of no avail, at once sent the sufferer to the hospital, where he died shortly afterwards.

The Herald relates the following amusing story :—

Some short time ago a Chinese graduate who was passing through the city of Shanghai went into a teashop, and, sitting down at a table where another customer was already seated, called for some tea to refresh him after a fatiguing walk. After a while, a third customer entered the shop, sat down between the two, and called for some tea. The waiter came up with a small caldron in his hands, to receive the order of the new arrival, and on going away to attend to it, put his caldron down on the ground between the newly arrived customer and the graduate. In the meantime the new arrival, watching his opportunity, seized the caldron, and putting it on his head, as a cap, waited for his tea. The waiter returning, immediately missed his property, and looking down on the ground where he had placed it, uttered sundry exclamations of astonishment. "What's the matter," asked the sharper. "I cannot see my caldron, which I placed on the ground when going for some tea for your honourable Sir!" cried the waiter. "Dear me; how very strange," was the reply. "Are you a city man?" "Oh dear no, Sir; I am from the country." "Ah, I thought so," rejoined the sharper; "now, let me give you a piece of advice; whenever you have a caldron in your hands, and you want to get rid of it in order to attend to any business, always put it on your head as a cap, just as you see mine is now, and then no one can take it from you without your immediately noticing the loss!" Having given this sage piece of advice to the bewildered waiter, the sharper, quietly finishing his tea, left the shop. On hearing this story from the graduate himself, we asked him how he could possibly sit by and not inform the master of the teashop as to the character of his customer. "Oh, quite impossible," replied he; "if I did so, I should have the entire gang to which the sharper belonged down upon me for evermore!"

The subjoined items of intelligence are from the Shanghai Budget :—

Among our intelligence from Swatow we observe that General Fang has visited that city, with the view of arranging for the deepening of the river Han between the sea and several important cities, and to secure to them increased trading facilities; so that our demand to have the Whampoo deepened cannot be regarded as a foreign innovation. Is there no General Fang about Soochow to do for the greatest emporium of China what is being done for a number of unnamed towns round Swatow?

The Paper Hunt of last Saturday started at the Rifle Butts, and after a stiff spin through a biting snow-laden wind, finished at "Dent's Godowns." Mr. Walker playing Apollyon with the Light Weights; and Mr. Limby's pluck and perseverance in many a hard-fought field at length winning for him the Heavy Weights Cup. He rode his pony Cheetah.

Our readers will be glad to learn that our energetic A.D.C. have already another performance in such a forward state of preparation that it is expected to be put on the boards on the 24th Feb., that is, as nearly as may be, one month after their opening night. The entertainment is to consist mainly, if not entirely, of a burlesque extravaganza, known as Romulus and Remus, which will, however, be doubtless made use of as convenient vehicle for the usual amount of local songs, sly hits, &c. The cast of the piece is such as to afford the highest hopes of a most amusing evening.

The annual exodus of foreigners on up-country excursions during the Chinese new year holidays began to manifest itself at the close of last week, houseboats of all sizes and colours lining the several jetties on the Bund and shipping supplies.

One third interest in the British barque Chieftain was sold at public auction on the 13th Feb., by Messrs. Wheelock and Co., and realised Tls. 10,000.

We are glad to learn that the trial trip of H. I. C. M. frigate No. 5 on the 4th Feb. has turned out most satisfactorily. When she left the arsenal she was drawing 20ft. 2in. aft, and 18ft. forward, with her battery all on board, making her armament complete, except two guns, and all her stores, as well as seven days' coal. Arriving at Woosung she crossed the bar without touching. She had done the distance from the arsenal to Woosung in one hour and thirty-two minutes, steaming at half-speed, but with ebb tide. With an indicated horse-power of 1,920, she made the rate of fourteen knots. After going out four miles beyond the Light Ship she turned back and anchored at Woosung. She will remain there till the 16th day of the Chinese new year (March 4), when she will proceed to Nankin.

The following is Messrs. Frazar and Co.'s Annual Review of the Green Tea Market :—

A feature of novelty in the Green Tea business this year has been a secret combination, early in the season, on the part of the principal buyers, to prevent high prices being paid at the opening of the market, but it was not sufficiently comprehensive to be effective, some of the smaller houses, who were not in the secret, having been tempted by the comparatively moderate prices at which Pingsueys could be had to commence purchases, and their lead was soon generally followed. It is to be regretted that such attempts on the part of foreigners invariably fail, while the natives are as invariably successful in their combinations to support prices. One strong reason for this is the fact that positive orders are received from home for particular chops without regard to price, and another lies in the desire to be first in the consuming markets with the new season's teas. Thus for the sake of securing a few favourite chops, or realising slightly enhanced prices on the first teas to reach the home market, the business for the season may be ruined, as it is exceedingly difficult to effect any material reduction on the range of prices established at the opening. Our market for Pingsueys was opened on the 25th of June, at prices about 8 taels under the early rates of the previous season, but as no inclination was shown to continue purchases at the figures first paid, tea-men soon submitted to a concession of about 2 taels per picul, when buying became general, chiefly for the English market. Receipts of country teas were much delayed by want of water in the canals, caused by the drought which prevailed during the summer and early autumn months, and as stocks continued small for a long time tea-men were enabled to be firm in their demands. On the 21st July, the first chop of Teenkai was settled at taels 40 per picul proportion, which was considered a very full price (in view of) the depressing advices from the United States, and the fact that much lower limits had been generally sent out) but about five taels per picul under the opening rates of 1872. Moyunes reached us in small quantities about the middle of August, and the first settlements were made at but little reduction on those of the previous year. At this time teamen were firm holders of finest teas, and on the best grades of Teenkais an advance of fully two taels had been established, while in Fychows a decline to an equal extent had taken place. Up to the 20th September most of the purchases were made by English firms, but then advices coming to hand of the financial troubles in the United States, and stocks having accumulated, our market weakened considerably, teamen showing a willingness to accept two taels under previous prices for all grades, except the finest Moyunes; meanwhile freights having declined, and sterling rates having also dropped, which increased the inducement to operate, most of the American houses then entered the market, at first cautiously, but with increasing confidence as it became apparent our supplies of teas would be considerably less than last year. Buying went on steadily throughout October for America and in November large settlements were made at a further small reduction. Disastrous advices now began to reach us of the outturn of the first shipments of Green Teas to London, which entirely checked operations for that market, particularly in Pingsueys, which became completely neglected. Purchases of country teas still continued actively for America, however, through the early part of December, when telegrams coming to hand of a probable reimposition of the duty on teas in the United States, increased competition set in, particularly for the few remaining fine teas, which were quickly taken at an advance in many cases of two taels or more, and our market was soon cleared of all desirable chops. More attention was then directed to the common grades, which had hitherto remained comparatively neglected, and an active business was done in these kinds during the early part of December and throughout January, at prices gradually stiffening until an advance of about two taels per picul was established. Pingsueys then being almost the only teas remaining in quantity, once more attracted the attention of buyers, and some activity prevailed in them at a slight advance on the lowest prices current. A few country teas still continue to be offered, but generally of an undesirable character, and the business of the season may now be considered as virtually closed.

As regards the quality for the past season, the Pingsuey crop has not been satisfactory; the early arrivals seemed preferable in colour and drawing to the yield of the preceding year, but the style was much inferior, and as the season advanced the leaf soon showed signs of deterioration; the common kinds have been for the most part spurious, and in infusion and cup very inferior. Shanghai packed teas have not been in much request, the price obtainable in many instances not covering the cost of manufacture. Fychows have not been a profitable venture for the teamen, owing to careless preparation, and haste to place them on the market. They have turned out generally to be dull and mixed in appearance, and rather coarse and dark in the cup. Taipings have been especially out of favour, not having had one good quality to recommend them. Teenkais we consider inferior in style to last season's, but we make the tea to be purer and better in the infusion and drawing; we attribute the falling off in style to haste in the manipulation. The teas from this district showed considerable deterioration towards the close of the season, many of the so-called Teenkais having really come from the Fychow country. As for the entire Green Tea crop we think it has not been very satisfactory, and consider that prices have ranged too high.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 26th February; no later mail from London had arrived out. The Daily Press supplies the following items of intelligence:—

For some days there have been rumours of a somewhat vague and inconsistent character, to the effect that a disturbance had either been threatened or had actually occurred at Peking, and that Mr. Wade has been informed that the Chinese Government could not guarantee the safety of foreigners should they continue at Tientsin, and that, at that place, inflammatory placards have been posted, and the fans, made after the Tientsin massacre, bearing a picture of the affray, distributed. Under these circumstances, it is stated that the Minister has intimated to the naval authorities that it would be advisable to despatch as many war vessels as can be spared to protect the ports, and especially Tientsin, and that this request will be complied with. It is also stated that one of the leaders of the factious party, who took a prominent part in the Tientsin Massacre, has appeared at Peking, and is found to be in favour at head-quarters, in place of having been banished, as was stated to be the case. The above is the version of the affair which is most generally credited; and we believe the main facts may be taken as authentic. There need not necessarily be cause for great alarm, as experience shows that the Chinese officials are by no means slow to declare their inability to protect foreigners when disquieting symptoms arise, and this is often done with no other object than that of seeing how the rumour of the danger will be received, and ascertaining, if possible, what will be the next step taken.

The report of the Captain-Superintendent of Police has been published. It takes a satisfactory view of the state of crime in the colony. The most important feature is the fact that there has only been one case of piracy during the year, but Mr. Deane points out that such cases are likely to be on the increase on the final closing of the coolie barracoons at Macao at the end of next month, as this measure will throw a large number of desperate men out of employment.

We learn that the late Peruvian ship Columbia intended to take passengers for San Francisco, as well as cargo, and that the Oracle and another Peruvian ship are coming over from Macao for the same purpose, in consequence of the difficulty they find themselves placed in on account of the suspension of the coolie traffic. These ships, however, might, if our information is correct, save themselves the trouble of coming over, as it is very doubtful whether the Government here will allow them to take passengers.

The Gazette notifies that Mr. Bramston has been sworn in as Attorney-General, and it is also notified that he is appointed provisionally Puisne Judge, and that the Hon. Mr. Hayllar will continue to act provisionally as Attorney-General.

In celebration of Washington's birthday, Captain Calhoun and the officers of the U.S. flagship Hartford have given a reception on board their vessel. It was very numerously attended. Among those present were the Governor and Miss Kennedy, the Chief Justice and Lady Smale, Hon. Mr. Austin, Mr. D. H. Bailey, U.S. Consul, &c. The vessel was very tastefully decorated with flags, &c., and the name of Washington appeared in evergreens over the quarter-deck. Dancing was kept up with spirit, and a sumptuous tiffin spread, at which bumpers were heartily drunk in honour of the day.

The case in which three seamen and a carpenter, named Haris Christensen, Harry Schrapper, Sorene Christensen, and Carl Warsenky, were charged with cutting and wounding the chief officer of their vessel, the German barque Norma, with intent to kill him, has been heard before the magistrate, Mr. May, by whom the defendants were committed for trial at the Criminal Sessions of the Supreme Court.

The fifth ordinary general meeting of the China Fire Insurance Company (Limited) has been held at the office of the Company. There were present: Mr. Lowcock (chairman); Hon. P. Ryrie, Messrs. Heaton, Hoppius, McIver, Cowley, A. Lind, Karberg, Jensen, Newton, Green, Sharp, Fairbairn, L. Cameron, G. Falkner, Kaye, and Coughtrie. The report was adopted and Messrs. Hoppius and McIver, together with Messrs. Heaton and Ryrie (who offered themselves for re-election) were re-elected to the board.

An extraordinary meeting which was to have been held for the purpose of authorising certain alterations in one of the Company's articles did not take place, owing to a want of sufficient attendance.

Subjoined is the report of the Directors of the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Company, Limited, to the 31st December, 1873:—

The gross earnings of the company, for the six months, amount to $253,091.79, on which there is a net profit of $36.352.97, and this, with the balance brought forward from the last half year of $2.255.34, makes $38,608.31 available for distribution. Of this sum the directors would recommend the usual payments:—To Contributing Shareholders. $4,000; Directors' fees, $2,500; Auditors, $250. And would suggest that the steamer Fame be reduced to $25,000, an additional outlay upon her for new boilers having become necessary, makes her cost now in the books at $26,531.87, say $1,531.87; leaving a balance available of $30,326.44.

Before recommending a dividend, the Directors would like to take the sense of the meeting, as they understand that many of the Shareholders would prefer to have the above amount written off. The Directors are glad to state that they have paid $20,000 of the loan due to the Hong Kong Fire Insurance Company, thereby reducing their debt to $230,000. The Docks are in very efficient order in every way, and although the increase of gain upon the previous half-year had not been large, and, in fact the business done has been smaller, the results on the whole, they hope, will be considered satisfactory, and, with the improvement of trade generally, they trust the future will prove more remunerative.

A cricket match between a team of twelve from the Coast Ports and the Hong Kong Club has been played. The team from the Coast Ports consisted of two from Canton, two from Swatow, three from Foochow, and five from Amoy, and their appearance in the field gave the impression that it would be a close contest, but the result of the match was that their innings ended for the small total of twenty-eight runs, leaving the Hong Kong Club victors by 256 runs. Though beaten so decisively, the Coast team have been by no means disgraced, and their bowling and fielding were capital, considering most of the men had never played together before.

Six more dead bodies have been dragged up from the bottom of the harbour, at the spot where the Wan Loong foundered, making a total of twenty-six, fifteen of which were taken out of the steamer, and the remainder dragged for.

Messrs. Westall, Galton and Co.'s Weekly Tea Letter, from Foochow, dated 21st February, says:—

Since the 24th ultimo no transactions whatever have taken place. The total export for the season has been closed by the following departures: the str. Priam, for London, on the 15th instant, with 584,000 lbs., taking also for New York 39,770 lbs.; the Sarah Nicholson, for New York, on the 13th instant, with 961,505 lbs.; the Lady Belmore, for the Colonies, on the 21st instant, with 237,217 lbs. The Export to Great Britain, the Continent of Europe, and the Cape of Good Hope is 55,532,101 lbs., against 53,781,094 lbs.; to America, 4,700,349 lbs., against 7,733,710 lbs.; to the Colonies, 12,760,618 lbs., against 14,726,733 lbs.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 6th March; the P. and O. mail from London Jan. 23 arrived out on the 27th Feb., and the following French mail of Jan. 30 on the 3rd March. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

H.M.S. Thalia has left for Malacca and Penang, taking down detachments to relieve the troops stationed at those Settlements.

We have been requested to inform Europeans who may contemplate going to Perak, that it is for the present unadvisable to do so without first consulting the Government authorities of this Colony.

His Highness the Maharajah of Johore has received from the Reigning Duke of Saxe Cobourg and Gotha, cousin of the Queen, the decoration and diploma of the Order of Saxe Ernestine.

The steamer Corregidor, which left Singapore for Manila on the 6th Feb. to continue her voyage hither from Glasgow, arrived at her destination on the 20th Feb. She is owned by the firm of Russell and Sturgis there, and is intended for navigation in Philippine waters.

A theft has been committed from the office of Mr. Myer, in Commercial-square, that for coolness equals anything we have heard of for some time past. Mr. Myer, after coming to town, left his box, containing papers and some $200 in notes and dollars, on his desk, and went out, leaving his office in charge of his Tamby. The Tamby also left for a minute or two, and during his absence a cleanly dressed Chinaman walked in, took the box, and was proceeding along with it on his shoulder, when, fortunately, he was stopped near Cavenagh Bridge by a policeman, who questioned his right of possession, and not receiving satisfactory replies, detained him. Mr. Myer, returning to the office soon afterwards, discovered his loss, and after making enquiries hastened out to report it, when he found both the box and the thief in the policeman's custody. The fellow was taken at once to the lock-up.

A LONDON office of the Inspectorate-General of the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs has been established at Storey's-gate, St. James's Park. Mr. J. D. CAMPBELL has been placed in official charge of the office as Commissioner of Customs and Secretary.

THE THREATENED DISTURBANCES IN THE NORTH OF CHINA.

HONG KONG, APRIL 5.—All causes of apprehension at Peking and Tientsin have disappeared.

THE SUEZ CANAL DUES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, MARCH 31.—The Minister for Foreign Affairs consulted yesterday the Legations with regard to M. de Lesseps' last letters declining to except the compromise of a surtax offered him by the Porte in pursuance of the recommendations of the International Commission, declaring that he will revert to the tax of f.10 per ton of net tonnage in July next, levying the present higher rate until then. He, moreover, affects to throw the whole responsibility for any loss which may occur to the Canal upon the Ottoman Government. The meeting was adjourned, without offering any opinion to the Porte, it being thought by the Foreign Ministers necessary to apply for instructions to their respective Governments. The Porte has not yet received an official copy of the protests of M. de Lesseps, dated the 20th and 21st of March, which are based upon Article 17 of the deed of Concession.

CONSTANTINOPLE, APRIL 6.—The Porte having consulted the various Legations, has refused M. de Lesseps's application for further delay in collecting the Suez Canal dues on the net tonnage of ships as determined by the International Commission, and repudiates M. de Lesseps's claim for damages.

LOSS OF THE "NIL."

YOKOHAMA, MARCH 30.—The Nil has sunk head foremost between two rocks; depth 30 (probably fathoms); lat. 34·37, lon. 138·47 (Greenwich); two sailors, one passenger named Muraour (or Luccioni), and the ship's baker are the only ones saved.

NAGASAKI, MARCH 30.—The Baourayn (str.) has returned with Luccioni and three of the crew of the Nil (str.). She reports that the Nil struck near Cape Idzu, at 11 P.M., 20th, during rainy weather backed off, and foundered in deep water; eighty-nine of the passengers and crew lost. Salvage operations improbable.

THE CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA.

The Times correspondent in the United States makes the following remarks upon the subject of the Chinese in California:—

The people of California do not take very kindly to their Asiatic brethren, who are crossing the Pacific in such considerable numbers. In the United States' Senate, resolutions of the Californian Legislature have been presented, which protest against any further subsidy to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, the line for which the gigantic iron steamers City of Pekin and City of Yeddo are being constructed at the Delaware river shipyards. At the same time other resolutions of the same body were presented, which instructed the Californian delegation in Congress to use their influence to have the American Treaty with China modified, so as to discourage the further immigration of Chinese. These documents were presented by the new Californian "Granger" Senator Hagar, who on this occasion made his maiden senatorial speech. He said the matter was of the greatest importance to the people of the Pacific coast, and was assuming such proportions as to require the attention of the general Government. He did not think it was properly understood either in the Senate or throughout the country. Quoting the Treaty, he said his people would not object if its provisions were observed, but in practice they were daily violated. There were 80,000 Chinese in California, and not one in a thousand came there in accordance with the Treaty. This immigration was contrary to the laws of Congress for the suppression of the Slave Trade. Coolie immigration to Australia had been suppressed, and similar steps must be taken by our Government. In a recent conversation with Mr. Lowe, the American Minister to China, that gentleman had informed the Senator that the Emperor of China was opposed to this migration, but that it was carried on from the port of Hong Kong, to which place the Chinese were enticed by agents, and thence shipped to California. They did not come with their families nor surrounded by home comforts, but under contracts for servile labour They were all owned by companies in San Francisco, who had their agents in China to secure them for servile labour and ship them here. Immigrants from Europe understood very well that in California they must come into competition with Chinese labour, which they could not afford to do, and consequently they were discouraged from going to that State. The food of the Chinese is inexpensive, hence other labour cannot compete. Thousands of our own people are in the streets of San Francisco destitute of the necessaries of life, because Chinese labour has crowded them out. China might send us one million, or even five millions, of the surplus population without experiencing any incovenience. Women were brought for purposes too vile to be mentioned. The people of California were powerless to administer any remedy, and they appealed to Congress for action. He, therefore, offered a resolution directing the Committee of Foreign Relations to advise with the President in regard to the expediency of opening negotiations with China with a view to a modification or enlargement of the Treaty, so as to check the importation into the United States of Chinese women for immoral purposes, and Chinese males and coolies in fulfilment of contracts for servile labour. The resolution being read, Senator Hamlin, of Maine, said that the Senate was not the Treaty-making power, that resting entirely with the President. He thought there was no precedent for the resolution, and he therefore objected to its present consideration. It was consequently laid over, and here the debate ended.

MAJOR CHARLES DUPERIER, formerly of the 80th Foot, committed suicide at Plymouth on the 5th inst. The deceased officer left a note, attributing the act to consciousness that his reason was giving way, and a vague fear that he should end his days in a lunatic asylum. Major Duperier, while in the 4th Light Dragoons, was employed in Persia from 1833 to 1839 in organising the army of the Shah, who conferred on him the gold medal of the Order of the "Lion and Sun." He afterwards served with the 26th Regiment in China, being present at the engagements at Ningpo, Chapoo, Shanghai, Woosung, Chinkiang (where he was wounded), and Nanking. His next service was rendered with the 80th Regiment in the Burmese War of 1852-53, including the operations at Donabew against Nameatoon. For his military services he received the China medal, with a medal and clasp for Pegu. Since his retirement from the service he had been for some years adjutant of the Plymouth Rifle Volunteers.

WE notice the arrival at Port Said of the screw steamer Glenearn, one of the "Glen Line," on her passage to China, after a run of 12 days and 3 hours steaming from the West India Dock, or 12 days and 15 hours, including 12 hours at anchor off the Nore. This, we believe, is the fastest run made by any screw steamer from London to the Canal, and adds another laurel to the Clyde ship-builders and engineers. This vessel was built by the London and Glasgow Engineering and Iron Ship Building Company, who yesterday launched a sister ship to the Glenearn, which will shortly take her place as one of this line. The new steamer is named the Glenfinlas, and is of 2,200 tons burthen, her dimensions being, 330 feet by 35 feet by 24 feet 6 inches. The Glenfinlas will be fitted by her builders with compound surface-condensing engines of 320-horse power nominal, combining all the latest improvements.

The Times of April 4th contains a letter from a correspondent at Rangoon in which an account of the occupation of Tonquin is given. The details of the expedition under Captain Lagree and Lieut. Garnier appear, otherwise there is nothing but what our readers have been already made acquainted with. The letter concludes as follows:—The Comte de Rochechouart is still at Mandalay with the French Mission. carrying on negotiations with the Court of Ava. It is understood that the King asks for political concessions which are not contained in the convention agreed to in Paris by the Burmese officials last year, and this requires a reference to the French Government. The events in Tonquin and the altered terms of the Treaty with Burmah seem likely to give French interests a far more prominent position in Indo-China than they have hitherto held.

IN a letter which appears in The Times of the 2nd April, from the Shanghai correspondent of that journal, dated Feb. 12th, an extract is given of the petition addressed to the Taoutai by the Chinese merchants, praying for the remission of the Likim-tax. A full account is also given of the theatrical case and the progress of newspapers for the Chinese.

MR. Walanche, Secretary to the Japanese Legation, Vienna, with his wife, was entertained at a soiree by the foreign minister, Count Andrassy, and subsequently by Prince Auersberg.

GENERAL HEINE is in St. Petersburg, and has been well received by the Royal Geographical Society and other bodies.

HAMBURG, MARCH 31.

The ordinary annual general meeting of the International Bank of Hamburg was held last week at the Exchange Rooms in this city; Baron Westenholtz (in the absence of the president and vice-president) in the chair, when the report of the directors was read and the balance-sheet laid before the shareholders, from which it appears that the earnings of the bank in 1873 amounted to 1,469,106 Reichs marks, including 1,011,214 marks as their share of the profits of the London establishment. After deducting salaries and other charges for administration, there remained a clear profit of 1,417,036 marks, which was disposed of as follows:—35,426 marks (being 2½ per cent.) to the reserve fund, 24,080 marks to the delcredere fund, 96,322 marks for remuneration to the directors, and 1,260,000 marks for the dividend of 16 marks 80 pfgs. per share, or 7 per cent., on the 75,000 shares (on which 40 per cent. are paid up), whilst the indivisible remainder, 1,208 marks, was carried over to the next account. The reserve fund now amounts to 124,538 marks, and the delcredere fund to 103,947 marks.

The German Parliament is now adjourned till after the Easter holidays, but without coming to any definitive resolution on the vexed question of the Army Organisation Bill. It is much to be regretted that Prince Bismark is unable to make use of his personal influence in support of the Ministerial project; but he is at present confined to his bed, and by the latest accounts from Berlin will be incapacitated from appearing in the House during the present session; and, if better in the summer, will, by the advice of the medical men, go to some bathing place to seek alleviation for his acute rheumatic pains.

Before Parliament adjourned for the Easter vacation they voted the supplementary Budget for 1874, among which are the following items:—90,000 thalers for the expedition to observe the transit of Venus, it being now definitively settled that the places of observation are to be Chefoo, the Mauritius, Kerguelen Island, and the Auckland Islands; 65,000 thalers as the first instalment on the purchase of a plot of ground on which to erect the offices of the new Statistical Department, the total requirement being 130,000 thalers: 150,000 thalers for the purchase of a plot of ground for the erection of a building for the German Embassy at Vienna; and 1,000,000 thalers for the extension of the telegraph system. The total amount voted is 1,534,865 thalers, which are to be covered by the surplus of the profits accruing from the mintage of the new currency in 1873 and 1874. These are put down in the ordinary Budget at 2,000,000 thalers, of which 300,000 thalers have been disposed of, but the remainder is available for the above items.

According to the Strasburger Zeitung, Dr. Feindel, a native of Alsatia and thorough master of the Oriental languages, hitherto employed as custos of the University library at Leipzig, is appointed as attache and interpreter of the German Embassy at Peking. Dr. Feindel is the first Alsatian appointed to a post abroad under the Foreign-office, and on his arrival at Berlin, had a most flattering reception from the Crown Prince.

COMMERCIAL.

There is no alteration in the Tea market, the demand being very slack and confined to the execution of small orders for immediate consumption. Rice is firmer, as the stocks are extremely reduced in quantity; the 7,200 bags of Indromayo as well as the 10,900 bags of rough Bassein, that arrived here last week, per Elisabeth and Nyord, were sold on arrival, and went direct to the cleaning mills. Cassia Lignea is in demand at the late reductions, and 7,000 chests of fresh arrivals were sold at 71 to 72 marks. Pepper continues to give way; Singapore is offered at 66 to 67, Penang at 64 to 65, and white 102 to 103. Of China Galls a parcel of 290 chests, lately to hand, were immediately sold at remunerating prices, and the market is firm. No transactions to report in Spelter; nominal price lower, and might be bought under 23 marks per centner.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Elisabeth, from Batavia; Nijord, from Bassein; Zeus, from Hong Kong; Formosa, from ditto; Zanza, from Whampoa and Canton.

RUSSIA.

At the suggestion of the Government, special attention is being directed to the extreme east of Asia. The various scientific societies are now strongly taking up the questions of developing the resources of the Island of Saghalien and the promotion of commercial relations with China. The Society for the Promotion of Trade and Industries has very warmly entered into a project, drawn up by Mr. Butkofski, for the working of coal-mines in Saghalien. He proposes to start a company with a capital of £7,500 for the working of the mines, and for the exportation of the coal to China and Japan. The necessity of securing possession of the entire island, with the view of making it a penal settlement, is strongly urged upon the Government.

M. Wm. Heine, who has returned to St. Petersburg after a lengthened stay in Japan, will shortly read a paper before the Geographical Society descriptive of his recent tour. He is also engaged in bringing out a large work on Japan, the most prominent feature of which is a collection of folio photographic views, which have been skilfully reproduced at Dresden from dry plates which the artist, M. Heine, took out with him.

An exhibition of textile plants, and machines employed for their cultivation, is to be opened at St. Petersburg on the 1st (13th) of June next, by the Ministry of State Domains. The object is to give a survey of the actual state of cultivation of those plants, and to make the landowners acquainted with the implements and machines necessary or useful for that purpose, and employed in Russia and abroad.

ROTTERDAM, MARCH 25

Important events have occurred since I last wrote. In the first place, an interpellation has been made in the Second Chamber about our war with Atchin. Mr. Messchert Van Vollenhoven asked the Government for information regarding the origin and object of the war, about which, till now, much secrecy has prevailed, although the nation has waited anxiously for official declarations. He wished to know, first, do the Government intend to send fresh troops in the place of those who are wounded or killed; second, shall we secure our object by the measures which have been taken; third, shall we be able to furnish the necessary supplies if the war lasts a long time; fourth, how will the cost be covered; fifth, what are the intentions of the Government? It is not long ago that the Minister declared that it was neither the intention nor the wish of the Government to annex the empire of Atchin. Is this policy maintained? Widely spread rumours, as well as the tenor of some telegrams, make this doubtful; but in order that no doubt may prevail, he asked the Minister the question direct. It is, he said, of enormous importance to know if we are contemplating the annexation of the country. It concerns not only the future of Atchin, but also that of Holland. Mr. Fransen Van de Putte, in reply, thanked the member for the opportunity afforded him of furnishing the necessary information, there being no reason whatever for secrecy. In the first place, he could declare that there were ample supplies of men and material for prosecuting the campaign—more troops and more ammunition had been forwarded than had even been asked for. Statistics would be laid before the members, so that it was of no use to enter into further particulars on this point. The Minister regretted that he was still unable to publish the names of the killed and wounded, but the Governor-General had telegraphed that full particulars are published in Javasche Courant of the 10th of March, which will arrive here in April. To telegraph all the names would be impossible. Regarding the monetary question, the Minister declared that an amount of 39,000,000 francs was at disposal, partly owing to the enormous prices recently realised for coffee. In the month of May, last year, he asked for a credit of five and a half millions, and another million will be asked for in a few days. The first and second expeditions had cost 7,355,000 francs, so that the total amount of expenditure—so far as is known—has been 13,855,000 francs, and the amount still at disposal, the Minister flatters himself will not all be wanted. But it is impossible to say at the present time what the entire cost will be.

When you published your article stating that "the Dutch wanted Atchin, as Nicholas wanted Constantinople," a storm of indignation arose; but nevertheless, you were quite right. In plain words, the Minister declared that the war must be continued till "a satisfactory result" is obtained. It was the first intention of the Government to conclude a treaty similar to that which was concluded with Siak, as the Minister has stated several times before. This would maintain the integrity of Atchin like that of Siak. Instructions in this sense were given to General Van Swieten, when he received the command of the second expedition, and not long ago the General declared, in one of his letters, and in the most positive terms, that the war would not be continued if the Government of Atchin would consent to conclude such a treaty. But a change in the situation made new measures necessary. On the 29th of January the Governor-General declared—of course on the authority of General Van Swieten—that it was very improbable that we could conclude such a treaty as would warrant the integrity of Atchin. The Lieutenant-General asked by telegram if it would not be best to annex the country. The General went on to say that such a policy had become necessary, after all that had occurred. The Atchinese had behaved themselves in such a way that benevolence and confidence would be totally misplaced. In a subsequent telegram from General Van Swieten, forwarded from Atchin on the 28th of January, mention was made of the reported death of the Sultan by cholera, and thereupon he said:—"If this rumour is confirmed or denied there cannot be any question of concluding a treaty with this or any other succeeding Sultan. He has declined to accept our conditions, he has killed our ambassador, and has made a treaty an impossibility. There is no other choice; we must annex Atchin." The Minister now had to reply. After having consulted the Council of State, his instructions were forwarded on the 2nd of February. They contained orders to construct fortifications of such strength as to prove that they were intended to be permanent. It was furthermore directed that all the dependencies must be called upon to acknowledge our authority and our flag, and that if they declined to conclude treaties (similiar to that of Siak) with us they must be brought under our direct rule. The Government Commissary was instructed to act according to the circumstances, but in any case was to see that our sovereignty was acknowledged. The latest telegrams state that this has already been done on the West Coast, and wherever our authority has been acknowledged, the blockade has ceased, trade is free, and everything may be imported except war material. In some places trade has already been reopened. The main opposition (and this is also shown by Reuter's telegram) comes from Penang, where many Atchinese are established. The Minister promised that he will publish in the Staats Courant the several documents which have arrived by last mail, and stated that these will prove that the endeavours to enter into negotiations with Atchin were pursued as far as possible. Mr. Van de Putte finished his speech by declaring that he has given every information in his power, and that the Government would lay before the members documents containing the whole history of this war, under condition, however, that they should not be published. The Minister will furthermore lay before the members the documents regarding the military (inquiry) about the first expedition. They are not required to be kept secret, but the Minister thinks that when the members have read them, they will not be inclined to publish them. But if the Chamber wishes that they should be made public the Minister has no objection. It is impossible, the Minister repeated, to make peace now; the subjugation of Atchin must be secured. Mr. Nierstrasz said that after the statement of the Minister it was impossible to continue the debate, and he proposed a postponement. The Minister agreed, but asked that the documents should be returned to him before the 9th of April, when the First Chamber meets.

These are the outlines of this important Ministerial statement, which contains much that is worthy of ample consideration. When the Byblad (the official parliamentary paper publishing the speeches) is published, we perhaps can better judge than now if the Minister has succeeded in proving that circumstances have forced the Government to annex Atchin, and that when war commenced such a course was not intended.

The reports which Mr. Fransen Van de Putte promised are already gazetted. They are very voluminous, and I can only give you their principal tenour. General Van Swieten sketches the whole history of the war up to the 18th of January, and he deals especially in extenso with the unsuccessful endeavours made by him to induce the Sultan to conclude a treaty. The Ambassadors sent by the General were murdered, and after that it was impossible to forward any more letters, because no trustworthy persons were to be found who would undertake their delivery. At this juncture, the English man-of-war Thalia arrived, the Commander, Captain Woolcombe, being charged to hand to the Sultan an autograph letter from Queen Victoria. The Captain asked for the assistance of General Van Swieten, which was granted at once. But it proved impossible to land with a sloop in the neighbourhood of the Kraton, so that our Commander advised Captain Woolcombe to forward a letter to the Sultan asking him to send a trustworthy person to receive the letter of the Queen. The Arab, Ali Bahanan, went with this letter, on the 1st of January, to the Kraton; he returned, and said the Sultan wished for a delay of three days before giving his decision. Captain Woolcombe, however, was not inclined to wait so long, and Ali Bahanan then took the Queen's letter to the Sultan, and in the same envelope a letter from the General. This nearly cost the Arab his life. The letter of the Dutch Commander was torn to pieces, whilst the Queen's was read, but its tenour, so it is said, seemed very disappointing.

Another item of interest is the fall in the coffee prices, which has caused a kind of panic in our commercial and financial circles, and indeed not without reason. The Opposition paper asserts that it is a national calamity; every cent per pound less makes a difference of one million to our Treasury. Java wants more and more every year, and the war with Atchin costs enormous sums. It is a fact that the State loses by this fall in prices about one million and a-half, and nothing indeed could prove more strikingly that our financial system is as badly based as it possibly can be. If the price of coffee declines to the usual quotation of 40 cents, it will be impossible to make both ends meet. Our Budget depends upon the more or less speculative demand for this article. Let us hope that what has now occurred will make us somewhat wiser.

Not only outside the Chamber, but also inside, many complaints are made about the bad financial system pursued in Java, as shown by the section report upon three indemnifying Bills asking credits in excess of the budgets of 1871, 72, and 73. Some members were of opinion that indeed too much had been expended in Java, and that if the Government had the right to ask for supplementary credits it is of no use to fix the expenditure at all. It seems, others asserted, that confusion prevails in our financial system, that our receipts and expenses are not exactly known, and that there is much want of control. One of the Members asked for information why ten small steamships, which were wanted for the service in Java, were ordered in England, and why they were not constructed here. The Minister had acknowledged in the First Chamber that they could have been made at less cost here than in England, but he added that the Dutch builders could not get them ready in time. In anticipation of a written reply the Minister stated verbally that he does and will do all that is possible to improve our financial administration in Java.

Some days ago the inauguration took place at Tilburg of the monument in memory of King William II., erected by our present King, Prince Henry, and the Grand Duchess of Saxen Weimar Eisenach. The monument is placed on the square before the palace. The ceremony was presided over by Prince Henry.

It will create some interest in Java to hear that Colonel J. C. J. Kemples will be appointed Governor of the Royal Military Academy; and that Mr. S. E. W. Roorda Van Eysinga has been appointed State Engineer in the Canton of Vaud (Switzerland).

ROTTERDAM, APRIL 1.

Before the members of the Second Chamber left the Hague for the Easter recess a rather sharp debate took place between some members of the Opposition and the Minister of the Colonial Department, which indicated that a storm is near at hand that may, perhaps, sweep away the Cabinet. The Chamber dealt with the Bills to grant credits in excess of the Budgets of 1871, 1872, and 1873, and Mr. Nierstrasz brought forward a complaint that the Minister had ordered engines for some of our small men-of-war in England instead of from our own ironworks. Mr. Van Kerkwyk—a Liberal—followed up with a protest against the mismanagement of our public works in Java. "Management and works," he said, "are both bad. There is much want of activity. I am convinced that all the returns which we receive here are arbitrary, if not quite wrong. Returns are given of public works which two years ago were already finished, and in that way we are cheated over and over again." The leading member of the Opposition, Mr. Van Zuylen, secured a more important point by asserting that the Minister, by laying before the members the documents regarding the war with Atchin, made the Chamber responsible for the altered policy, and the annexation of that Empire. The Premier protested against this view, asserting that the Cabinet was alone answerable; but the Opposition was not content, and it is more than probable that the subject will give rise to a stormy debate when the members re-assemble. The Atchin war will become a strong weapon of attack for the Opposition. But if the battle should be won by them, it is more than probable that the defeated Cabinet, instead of leaving the terroir to their opponents, will at once dissolve the Chamber and endeavour to obtain by some popular measure a majority in the new Parliament. In waiting for events no minister of the Naval Department has been appointed, and it seems to be the idea of Mr. Fransen Van de Putte to incorporate the department with his own.

Several Liberal papers and some Radical journals approve of the annexation of Atchin, which they think far more reasonable than that Germany should annex Holland. The Arnhemphe Courant, the most liberal of the Liberals, says that now that we have conquered Atchin it is politically humane and consistent that we should retain possession. But what is it worth to us? Will it cover our outlay? The answer is, Yes, because the possession of Atchin consolidates our authority in Sumatra and in the whole Archipelago. The fate of Atchin will be an example to the other principalities, and the moral prestige which we gain by conquering the empire is well worth all the outlay and trouble. Although years must elapse before we shall be able to speak of a favourable balance of revenue and expenditure, still under Dutch rule the country has a future. The people are energetic, the country is excellent for trade, and it possesses everything needful for the establishment of an active commerce. The question is, whether we are able to govern it well, or whether we shall be content to make of it a pepper country, a tea-garden, or a coffee plantation, and ourselves to become merely the shopkeeper to sell its produce? We hope, concludes the Courant, that some better policy than this may be pursued.

The report of the Parliamentary Commission on the petition of Mr. C. P. K. Winckel has been gazetted. The general conviction of the Commission was that the law was strictly observed in this matter, but there is a minority who do not agree with the measure, being of opinion that the Government of Java ought not to have ordered Mr. Winckel to leave the Colony unless disturbances had broken out at Samarang or elsewhere in consequence of his newspaper articles, and it had been thus proved that his presence was subversive of public order. The majority of the commission, however, consider that the articles were written in such a manner that there was fear for the worst consequences.

The commission propose to approve the decree ordering Mr. Winckel to leave the Colony.

It was lately mentioned by you that the screw-steamer Prinses Amalia, built for the Steamship Company Nederland, had been launched at Glasgow. For the same company two other vessels have been ordered, the Prins Hendrik and the Voorwaarts, which are to be ready this year. There is much reason to fear that in a few years the whole shipping trade to Java by sailing vessels will be annihilated. It will be impossible for our East Indiamen to find freight at the high rates which are necessary to cover their costs. By the English steamer Warrior, which was chartered by the company, a reinforcement for the East India army of 200 soldiers will proceed.

A lady, Mrs. Cort Heilgers, who has just died at Deuenter, has bequeathed her whole fortune (it is said of one and a half million) for the benefit of Freemasonry in Holland. This is the first time that a lady has disposed in that way of her fortune. The heirs protest against this will, but in vain. The question now is, what the Masons will do with the money.

I gather from the debate upon our Consular Bill, which was duly carried, that whilst general dissatisfaction prevails regarding our Consular system in the East, the very highest approval was expressed with regard to the English gentleman who holds that office in Singapore. Several members said that it would be impossible be find a better consul.

Up to this time it has been very difficult to make small remittances from here to Java, and the Minister has introduced a measure by which it will be possible to remit by means of post-office orders sums not exceeding f.150, at a cost of 20 cents for every 10 guilders when remitted from here, and of 10 cents for f.10 when remitted from Java.

The King has signed the decree to incorporate the Java brigade. The infantry of that corps will be garrisoned at Haarlem and the artillery at Delft, and a Lieutenant-Colonel will be placed in command. Some time, however, will elapse before a beginning is made with the organisation of this corps.

It has created much satisfaction here that General Verspyck has accepted the command of the army in Atchin. Many asserted that he would not do so, because General Van Swieten had been sent out to lead the second expedition, General Verspyck being passed over.

I regret to record the death of Dr. Westerhoff, who since 1849 has been a M.P. He died at the age of seventy-three, at Warffum. He was a warm supporter of Liberal principles, and a strong partisan of Mr. Thorbecke.

Concerts and other entertainments are being given in many places, to collect money on behalf of our wounded soldiers in Atchin. Considerable sums have in some instances been realised.

The Vaderland says that the duty on soap is to be abolished, and that an equivalent will be found by increasing the duty on spirits.

The King has appointed Mr. Trakranen, ex-Minister of the Colonial Department, President of the Dutch Trading Company.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

COFFEE.—The market is dull, and prices have declined. Good ord. is now only worth 53c.; transactions very limited.

RAW SUGAR.—Market unaltered; business of no importance. Holders decline to operate at the market value.

TEA.—Prices are firm, which, however, checks business.

RICE.—Nothing of importance to report.

SPICES.—A lively demand has prevailed for Nutmegs and Mace.

TOBACCO (JAVA).—Several parcels of sundry marks have changed hands, and a good demand prevails, especially for covers of cigars.

TIN.—Before the auction Banca could easily be bought at f.55 to f.54½. The sale, however, had a most satisfactory result, the average prices being f.55.35 for Banca, and f.53.75 for Billiton. But immediately after the auction offers came from every part, which proved that the auction prices were "made." On the same day it was very easy to buy at f.54 to f.53½. The market closes dull, and holders would even accept lower prices.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—Prime Ceylon is quoted at f.22½.

LISBON, MARCH 21.

Mr. Francisco Mendes, who, it will be remembered, required the production in the Lower House of the matrimonial contract between his Majesty D. Fernando Saxe Coburg Gotha and the late Queen D. Maria II., has delivered his opinion upon that document. He pointed out that his Majesty could not continue to receive the allowance of £22,200 now that he had married again. He (Mr. Mendes) understood that a special commission would be appointed to consider the subject, but seeing the Government intended to maintain the statu quo, as they had done with regard to the illegal allowance to Dr. Anguss, he should abstain from proposing the appointment of a commission. He added that he was actuated simply by economical motives, and not from any ill-feeling against the Royal family. Although Republican, yet he had defended the Constitutional Monarchy, but if the Monarchy was opposed to progress and liberty, as it seemed to be, then he (Mr. Mendes) would declare his Republican principles and ask of a Republic that which a Monarchy either could not or would not grant.

Mr. Mendes's speech was opposed by all the members of his party, thirteen in number, including its chief, the Bishop of Vizen. The rest of the House heard him in silence. The Miguelite party, which is not at present represented in the Lower House, is preparing for the coming elections, which take place in November. In some parts of the north private meetings have been frequent, and more or less enthusiastic, as the Carlists were victorious or unsuccessful. The Liberal party do not fear the result of any Carlist victories, but it is intended to call the attention of the Government to the conduct of the Miguelites with regard to the Carlists.

A Naval Committee have reported favourably upon the proposal made by Mr. Moody, the English engineer, to construct a railway between Pietona and Laurenco Marques. Many Spanish emigrants who took part in the insurrection of Carthagena are expected here, and others have already arrived. Mr. Antonio Auguste Auguias is appointed Portuguese Commissioner at the Exhibition of Wines in London. This gentleman is a district professor of chemistry in the Polytechnic School, and director of the Industrial Institute. The Naval Minister intends to introduce a Bill into Parliament for the purpose of revoking the predial contribution in India. The impost of 6 per cent. upon the duties of import and export in the province of Angola will be abolished.

Our readers will note with general and hearty approval that among those who have received honours at the hands of the Sovereign, for services rendered in the Ashantee war, is included the name of Staff-Surgeon Fegan, R.N., an officer well known in Hong Kong, Canton, and on the China Coast as an accomplished, skilful, and scientific doctor, and esteemed wherever he was known as an amiable and highly-cultivated gentleman. His appointment as C.B. is a reward well earned, and reflects credit on the profession as well as on the individual. Dr. Fegan's service in China was frequent and prolonged. In 1863 he visited China as Surgeon in Admiral Osborn's well-meant but ill-fated Chinese flotilla; returned to England at the break-up of the fleet, and was again appointed to H.M.S. Princess Charlotte in Hong Kong a few years later. His many friends in China will hear with rejoicing of his well-earned distinction.

It has been found necessary to revive the office of storekeeper in the dockyards. It was abolished by Mr. Childers, and the duties tacked on to those of the master shipwright; but the various duties put upon the shoulders of that important functionary have proved to be too onerous; one man cannot satisfactorily discharge them all, and therefore "assistant storekeepers" will be appointed to the dockyards.

Major Pearse, Royal Artillery, having completed his period of staff service as Deputy Adjutant-General Royal Artillery at Woolwich, is about to be succeeded in that office by Major and Brevet Lieut.-Colonel W. H. Goodenough, Royal Artillery, late Military Attache at Vienna.

The death of Capt. W. P. Pinchard, late of the 70th Regiment, is announced. He joined the army as ensign in the Ceylon Rifles in 1855, and exchanged in 1867 to the 70th Regiment. Shortly afterwards he sold his commission.

The Audacious, the new flag ship for the China station, has a large number of shipwrights and other hands employed on her at Chatham Dockyard, in order that she may be completed by as early a date as possible.

Admiral Sherard Osborn has had in preparation for some time past, and will shortly publish, a naval work on the Reserve Forces, which cannot fail to be of great value.

It has been shown that the statements which recently obtained publicity asserting that there had been desertions from H.M.'s ship Sultan are totally false.

The Portuguese corvette Infanta Don Joao arrived at Malta on the 20th ult., from Goa and Bombay, bound for Gibraltar.

MILITARY EXPENDITURE IN THE STRAITS.

THE contribution paid out of the revenues of the Straits Settlements towards the expense of maintaining a body of troops there amounts in round numbers to £60,000 a year, and we think it would be a wise as well as a welcome act on the part of Sir ANDREW CLARKE if he were to inaugurate his first year of office by some effort to free the colony from what we believe to be a burden as unnecessary as it is grievous. The military establishment at present on that station consists of two companies of Royal Artillery, one wing of a European regiment, and one regiment of Madras Native Infantry. Out of this force half a battery of artillery and two companies of the Madrasses are quartered at Penang.

We have described this body of troops as unnecessary, and we shall have no difficulty in making good our words. Let us first consider what would happen were one of the great European Powers to declare war against England. In such an event the Straits Settlements could have no danger to fear, unless that Power were France. France, however, has her hands already too full to dream of a quarrel with this country, and though she certainly has soldiers and gunboats in Cochin-China, yet have we no fleet in the China seas too? It is not likely that our Admiral would ever allow a French squadron to give him the slip and leave Saigon; but still, in the last and worst result, the paltry handful of European soldiers in the Singapore barracks could not even prevent a hostile force from landing, much less avert a bombardment of the shipping and port. After all it is but waste of time to spin finely-drawn arguments such as these. Wars, fortunately, between great Powers are preceded by some few weeks' notice; and if it were thought expedient effectively to garrison Singapore or Penang the telegraph wires would bring over all the requisite forces from India in a fortnight. But for the defence of the Straits Settlements we must always depend in the main upon our navy, and not upon military garrisons. So much for that part of this question which relates to perils from abroad; it remains to bethink us whether the interests of the colony are served internally by the maintenance of this mock army on her shores. There cannot be a pretence that the European communities are in danger of massacre; for, firstly, no such concerted attempts at violence have ever been made upon the white people in the Straits; and if any such risk really existed, we should not find forty-seven Europeans living peaceably and devoid of alarm at Malacca, amid a mingled host of 77,000 Malays and Chinese, with not a single soldier to protect them from harm. The same remark applies to Province Wellesley, where there is a large native community, but no more than ninety-six European settlers. Half a battery of artillery at Singapore and the same at Penang, with about one hundred native troops for guards would, to our mind, meet all the military requirements of those settlements. That small force is handy in case of a fire, and also to act as a guard of honour whenever official receptions are held. The £60,000 would, we believe, be reduced to £10,000, while the peace and safety of the colony and its inhabitants would remain unimperilled. Every step towards relieving taxation tends also to stimulate production, and makes the ship of commerce ride higher out of the sea. We trust, therefore, that this subject will be pressed upon our new Administration.

EVERY one interested in the real welfare of China will watch with satisfaction the experiment which is now being made at Foochow, of placing the dockyard at that port under the sole management of the Chinese. The employment of Europeans in the various dockyards has always been considered as a provisional arrangement, and the course of instruction which has been given, under the superintendence of M. GIQUEL, to the native students and workmen at Foochow, was specially designed to fit them for the task of carrying on the work when the time should come for the withdrawal of their foreign instructors. There is something peculiarly characteristic in the course thus followed by the Chinese. They have learnt by experience, more or less bitter, that we are vastly superior to themselves in the arts and sciences. They feel, therefore, that to place themselves on a par with us they must first consent to learn from us. This much they are willing to do, but having acquired all the knowledge they consider necessary, they are determined to throw off their leading strings at the earliest possible moment and to walk alone. The presence of foreigners in their dockyards is looked upon by them as a necessary evil, and the sooner they are able to give them their congé the better they are pleased.

FROM reference to telegrams which appear in another part of our columns it will be seen that the Suez Canal matter has again caused some difficulties. It is evident, from the fact that the matter has been laid before the foreign ambassadors, that a strong desire exists at Constantinople to treat the disappointed shareholders with every consideration, but it cannot be expected that Europe will revise a decision which is scarcely three months old, or will impose a further voluntary tax upon the commerce of the world, even for such a noble undertaking as the Suez Canal. The Canal Company would therefore act wisely in accepting the generous rates which have been offered, lest, as the Porte hints, the proffered surtax should be withdrawn and the laws laid down for measurement should be enforced.

THE Pacific Mail Company's new vessel City of Pekin has been launched at Chester, Pennsylvania. She is 435 feet long, 58 feet beam, 38 feet depth of hold, 5,250 tons measurement. This steamship is three feet more in breadth and depth of hold than the last White Star steamer, thus making her total cubic area nearly one-ninth larger, although the latter vessel is twenty feet longer. Four other iron steamships, of from 1,700 to 5,000 tons, are being constructed at the Delaware Ironworks, one of which, the City of Yedo, a sister ship to the Pekin, will be launched shortly.

WE understand that the following gentlemen are to be rewarded by the Austrian Government with the Order of Francis Joseph for services rendered to the Vienna Exhibition in connection with the Chinese department:—GEO. GLOVER, Esq., Commissioner of Customs, Shanghai; GEO. HUGHES, Esq., Commissioner, Amoy; F. KLEINRACHTER, Esq., Commissioner, Swatow; F. HIRTH, Esq., Canton; and Colonel COOKE, Ningpo.

BY a reference to the reply given by the Under-Secretary for the Colonies to the question of Mr. PALMER, M.P. on the Singapore Immigration Act, we are glad to see a confirmation of what we stated last month, viz., that the Act would be modified or abolished.

THE appointments of Messrs. THOMAS SCOTT, ROBERT LITTLE, M.D., and Wm. RAMSAY SCOTT to be members of the Legislative Council of the Straits Settlements are gazetted.

WE understand that the Treaty of Perak has not yet been put in train for ratification, and the matter must now remain over until after the Easter vacation.

FENG-SHUI.

An interesting paper, entitled "Fêng-Shui," appears in the Cornhill Magazine for March. The writer takes as his text the refusal of the Emperor of China to accept the short line of railway which some English capitalists proposed to construct, free of expense, for Imperial use, with the object, of course, of thus inserting the thin edge of the wedge in the hardened crust of Chinese obstructiveness. The advantages of a railway system in a vast country like China are too patent to require argument. "What, then," says the writer, "is the obstacle to China's imitating her progressive neighbour Japan by the adoption of railways? It is Fêng-Shui," and some other causes which he enumerates. One great cause, however, has escaped the writer; perhaps he was not aware of its existence. The Chinese have had bitter experience of the troubles caused by the foreign rowdy element at Shanghai, on the river Yangtsze and elsewhere, and they are afraid that if they allow foreigners to construct railways and open mines in the interior, the rowdy element must perforce be there, and that endless disturbances and trouble will be the consequence; so, driven to bay, they take refuge in Fêng Shui, against which we know well, from personal experience, that all argument is at present quite thrown away. In the foreign settlements at the Treaty ports Fêng-Shui fares badly, but in the interior even the foreigner must respect it, if he would live in peace. Of this the writer in the Cornhill gives an amusing instance. Some German missionaries, having been troubled with thieves, added a couple of watch towers to their schoolhouse, and thus infringed upon Fêng-Shui. "One of these little towers was just visible over the rising ground to a tomb on another hill a quarter of a mile off. The enraged descendants of the occupant of that tomb gathered the village together against the missionaries, and threatened to burn down their establishment. In vain did the missionaries argue that so small a portion of their building could be seen from the tomb that if, as was most reasonable, one supposed that the deceased spirit preferred to sit upon his semicircular arm-chair-like grave, instead of fatiguing himself by standing upon it, he would then not have the obnoxious projection within the field of vision at all. No matter, the offensive towers must be pulled down. As usual in China, it was found that even Fêng-Shui could be propitiated by a gift; and the missionaries bought toleration of the disturbed spirit for a certain number of dollars paid down to his representatives in the flesh." Some years ago Governor Amaral, of Macao, was not so fortunate. He persisted in making new roads, regardless of tombs, and he expiated his contempt for Fêng-Shui with his life. These instances will be sufficient to show how easily Fêng-Shui and railways would come into collision.

What Fêng-Shui is has hitherto been a mystery to Europeans, or all writers on China have avoided the difficult question, or, at any rate, declined to go into it at any length. Sir John Davis, writing more than thirty years ago, says that "the term may in general be construed by the word luck, and it has been supposed that in a country like China, where nearly all long journeys are performed by water, 'good wind and water,' or, in other words good luck on a journey, has by degrees come to signify good luck in every circumstance and condition of life." This remark which is not noticed by the writer in the Cornhill, is hardly a satisfactory elucidation of the great Fêng-Shui difficulty. A learned German student of Chinese Buddhism (Dr. E. J. Eitel) has gone into the whole question, and in his pamphlet "the curious in such matters may read a complete exposition of the origin, character, and influence of Fêng-Shui." The remainder of the article in the Cornhill is an endeavour to summarise Dr. Eitel's views. "As a practical art," the writer remarks, "Fêng-Shui is the terrestrial sister of astrology, . . . and by its means a man learns not only what his fate is, but how it may be modified to his own advantage." He then quotes two passages from Dr. Eitel, on the former of which he observes,—"The configuration and character of the surface of the earth determine the weal or woe of its inhabitants. Rising grounds, groups of trees, pools of water, winding roads, when properly situated and combined, are the causes of health, wealth, peace and happiness to the fortunate dwellers in these desirable localities." On the two passages together, which may be briefly described as setting forth the good and bad Fêng-Shui of Hong Kong from a Chinese point of view, the writer in the Cornhill says:—"Now that we have before us the twofold energies of Fêng-Shui, baneful as well as blessing, we see that it is a materialistic fatalism, according to which human happiness and misery, virtue and vice, are determined, or, at least, mightily influenced by invisible currents of nature's breath flowing over the surface of the earth, adapting itself to its inequalities, attracted or repelled by its elevations and depressions, its straight lines and curves." Again, the Chinese notion is that "Fêng-Shui will guard its believers against wantonly and wickedly opening passages for the pernicious influence of nature, among which straight lines and straight ridges are the most fatal. It can, therefore, preserve China from the inevitable destruction of national prosperity that would follow the making of railways, which would not only destroy many most important features of the good Fêng-Shui, but in their long straight ways and their deadly embankments positively invite every noxious influence to devour the land." This will, of course, appear "unmitigated nonsense" to the English reader, but it is the result at which the Chinese have arrived by certain mental processes, which Dr. Eitel has investigated in his pamphlet. The writer in the Cornhill concludes his interesting paper with these words:—"Fêng-Shui is the very audacity of superstition, and it will hold its own until it fades away before the progress of Christianity, or the 'spread of science, or the influence of both combined.' Devoutedly we do hope that this much wished for report may speedily arrive, and that Fêng-Shui and all other impediments may soon be removed from the paths in China."

ATCHIN.

("ALGEMEEN HANDELSBLAD," AMSTERDAM).

The plans of our Government have entirely altered. In place of maintaining Atchin's integrity under Netherlands Protectorate, it has been decided to increase our authority in that land either entirely or partially. Was this reversion of tactics right? Such is the question of the moment, and which will be argued by the States-General in the Chambers as soon as the Government make known the contents of all papers relating to the matter. From what we know at present as to the state of affairs in Atchin, we see no difficulty in coming to a conclusion as to the ultimate results. Already those whose opinion is certainly to be relied on have decided unanimously that there is only one course to pursue, and that is entire or partial incorporation. The Indian Government quite confirm us in this. The Commander-in-Chief and the States Adviser, who were both in favour of closing a treaty, are now fully convinced that nothing less than the entire subjection of Atchin will close the war. Meanwhile the grounds for such a course must be plainly shown. The nation must be sure that the difficult task we have undertaken was rendered imperious under prevailing circumstances, and extending our power and authority a necessity. We will draw a line of comparison with the results of the British expedition on the Coast of Guinea and our expedition against Atchin. The British expedition ended by burning the chief town of their enemy, after a very difficult and steady passage into the interior of the country, after which a treaty was closed with the King of Ashantee, and the British troops are now again in their mother country. We have also conquered the Sultan; his principal stronghold has fallen into our hands, and, although he is not entirely subdued, his force is broken, and many under his authority have come over to our side. Can we also let our troops come back, and for the future give assurance of Atchin being subdued? No one with any knowledge of our position in the Indian Archipelago will answer this question in the affirmative. Great Britain, having only a few possessions on the Gold Coast was not obliged to subdue the Ashantees, but merely to chastise them, whereas we have quite another work to perform in Atchin. For holding our authority in that island, as well as in the whole Archipelago, it is rendered indispensable that we show our power to those inland States who defy us; and, further, now we are once engaged, to see that our victory is not unfruitful. The great amount of lives and money both expeditions have cost against Atchin must not recur again. We must not close our eyes to the instability of the Atchin Government, which will gradually grow worse, nor yet the insecurity of merchandise at sea, which will, sooner or later, require a new expedition.

OUTFITS FOR CONSULAR OFFICERS.

A letter has been addressed to Her Majesty's Consuls abroad from the Foreign-office, bearing date February 14, 1874, informing them of the steps proposed to be taken to carry out the recommendations contained in the report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on the subject, of July 16, 1872, and which are to come into operation on the 1st April next. The letter encloses extract of a report from a departmental committee, consisting of Lord Tenterden, Mr. W. H. Gladstone, M.P., Mr. T. V. Lister, Mr. S. Blackwood, and Mr. W. H. Wylde. The following is the extract: "First, with regard to outfits and journeys, we are of opinion that the intentions of the House of Commons Committee would best be carried out by retaining the present scale of allowances for outfit, and by extending to the General Consular Service the rule in force in the China, Japan, and Siam Consular Service for the payment of passage expenses. Secondly, with regard to pensions, that every two years' service in unhealthy climates should count for three years in calculating the pension, as is done in certain cases in the Army or service on the West Coast of Africa; the posts to which this rule shall apply to be clearly defined, for which purpose a circular has been addressed to Her Majesty's representatives abroad calling for the necessary information. Thirdly, with regard to leave of absence, that Consuls should be allowed to accumulate the leave for which they are already entitled to full pay, at the rate of one month in each year of previous residence on the public service abroad, and that the time occupied by the journey out and home should not be included in the leave. Any case exceeding six months on full pay to be subject to special consideration by the Secretary of State. It appears that the rules in force in the China, Japan, and Siam Consular Service for the payment of travelling expenses are the following:—"An officer on a first appointment shall be paid the whole of the expense of the journey to his post for himself alone, and the third of the expense for his wife and family, the number being limited to five persons besides himself, of whom one may be a female servant. These payments will be made by the Foreign-office, on production of the necessary vouchers. On returning home on leave of absence after a residence of five years, and merely for reasons of personal convenience, such officer shall be paid one-half of the expense of his own journey, and one-third for his family, the same limitation being observed in regard to numbers as in paragraph 1. A similar indulgence shall be granted in cases of leave of absence obtained at any time on sick certificate. This arrangement will also be applied to all cases of officers returning from England to their posts."

The letter from the Foreign-office, which is signed by Earl Granville, explains that the new rules will only apply to salaried consular officers, and not to consular officers at unpaid posts, or to consular officers engaged in trade. It is also to be distinctly understood that the permission to accumulate leave of absence for any period on full pay is to be subject to the approval, in each instance, of the Secretary of State.

A Journey in Shantung. By the Rev. ALEXANDER WILLIAMSON, of Chefoo.

We cannot allow Dr. Williamson's account of his last journey through the most important districts of the Shantung province to pass unnoticed, for such notes of travel are of the greatest value in aiding us to form our trading relations with China. On this occasion, for special reasons, Dr. Williamson took his wife with him, and it is pleasing to have to record that they met with civility far beyond their expectation, and this "was peculiarly manifest at one city which had long been famous for its asperity to foreigners," and at which, on his first visit, Dr. Williamson had "met with a most uncourteous reception." At Tsi-nan-foo, the capital of Shantung, the party "visited the Roman Catholic cathedral, built in foreign style, and the chief Mohammedan mosque, now beautifully repaired and more conspicuous than ever;" and Dr. Williamson remarks that "both buildings present a telling comment on the late miserable veto placed on British missionaries, interdicting them from building or even renting houses in the interior unless under a false pretext in the name of converts."

The travellers found the natives not only willing but eager to avail themselves of their medicines and medical advice, and "this was a most satisfactory feature, more especially as it showed the confidence of the people in foreign skill and honesty of purpose. . . . This desire for advice was as marked far from the port (Chefoo) as in the neighbourhood, showing us that the people, among themselves, must talk respectfully and kindly of us." Undoubtedly, the value and importance of foreign medical missions in all parts of China cannot be over-estimated.

Commercial enterprise does not appear to have made much headway at present in the province, and "the mining operations have received a shock of late from which it may take a little time to recover. Some years ago the alacrity with which foreigners bought the native gold induced a large number of natives to search for the precious metals. The stir which was made about galana, and iron, and coal also greatly interested and encouraged the people; but mandarin action and terrors were too much for them, and consequently the mining temperature has gone down almost to zero." The folly of the authorities in actively opposing the introduction of European machinery for the working of coal mines is painfully transparent, "and their action in reference to the supply of their new Steam Navy and Transport Service, still further illustrates their stubbornness," for they are positively buying foreign coal at extravagant rates, "when they could procure their own coal equally good at from six to ten shillings per ton!"

The crops in Shantung last year were remarkably good, but "this may not materially advance the trade of Chefoo." This will sound oddly at first, but the reason is obvious, for any "deficiency (in the crops) is supplied in junks from the coasts of Manchuria, and these junks take foreign goods back with them in return." In this connection Dr. Williamson gives some curious instances of the "extremely prolific character of the millet and sesamum. . . . We are familiar with thirty, sixty, or a hundred fold; but here I find in the case of the Ku-tze (Sletaria italica) "one seed produces from 8,000 to 11,000 grains." This is the staple food of the strong Shantung and northern men, and foreigners invariably enjoy it.

Dr. Williamson regrets to record the extensive cultivation of the poppy. "The Chinese Government," he says, "still honestly hope to deal with the native question. . . . . They have also a most wholesome fear of any wider distribution of this drug; and that is one of their great covert objections to railways, or to admitting us freely into the interior in any manner whatever."

With regard to the penetration of foreign goods into the interior, our writer says that "one notable improvement which we observed was the increased exhibition of foreign goods for sale in the towns and markets. In some places—well known to me in former years—I think I may say I saw ten pieces of shirting for one, and I found even in most remote districts among the hills a sprinkling of Manchester and Bradford goods. . . . There is a tremendous market in China yet for all kinds of foreign wares. The great hindrances at present are undue taxation, and the wretched means of communication." The roads in Shantung are in a lamentable condition; "in certain directions regular highways were once laid out and streams bridged, but now all is in ruins. Thus, in many places the carter takes possession of the field, and makes a detour as suits him best and the farmer of the road;" a sight which we also remember to have seen a dozen years ago in the province of Chihle. This state of the roads, when water-carriage is out of the question, makes a most serious addition to the cost of transporting goods into the interior, and the most efficacious remedy would be the construction of railways, for which purpose, as Dr. Williamson points out, an enormous amount of cheap native labour would be available. The writer is also strongly in favour of putting the Grand Canal in proper working order again, and remarks that the most formidable difficulties are far from insurmountable, and could be easily overcome with the help of Western appliances. The Yellow River is a much more difficult problem to deal with, but it "will never be of much importance in a commercial point of view, except locally, i.e., from point to point."

We would also call attention to Dr. Williamson's observations respecting the condition of the people, whose physical state, he thinks, very much resembles that of the Scotch in the last century, and he is of opinion that "we only need to get fairly among them and secure their confidence." Our author's concluding paragraph is full of pregnant hints, but want of space precludes us from quoting more than the last few lines. "With a knowledge of their language," he says, "ordinary politeness, tact, and a good character and reputation, an intelligent man has nothing to fear, but everything to gain. . . . The great difficulty is that under-current of officialism of which I have spoken, and which will never be put down until our representatives take wider views and a firmer position at the Capital." In taking leave of this paper we would express our opinion that if only a few more able men like Dr. Williamson would traverse the interior of the country, and publish careful notes such as these, they would take the surest step towards materially advancing the true interests of foreigners and Chinese alike.

Illustrations of China and its People; a Series of 200 Photographs, with descriptive Letterpress. By J. THOMSON. Vol. IV. London: Sampson Low, 1874.

Mr. Thomson has now accomplished his task, and in the fifty-seven additional illustrations which make up the concluding volume of his work he has really rendered most valuable assistance towards familiarising the European world with the appearance and characteristics of scenes in the North of China. The first two plates in the volume now before us are filled with portraits of Chinese Ministers of State, and interest us not so much on account of the celebrity of the personages whom we there find represented, as because the details which in each case form the background of the picture give trustworthy specimens of domestic architecture in China, and of the costumes worn by the high officials of the Peking Court. Important information as to the political institutions of the Flowery Land has been furnished in the letterpress which accompanies these photographs, and is perhaps really of more value than the views themselves.

Artistically there are two impressions in this volume, which in taste, delicacy, and execution approach as near perfection as it is possible for human workmanship to arrive. We refer to the picture of the Hall of the Classics in plate 9, and to the Marble Bridge in the Yuen-Ming-Yuen, which is presented to us on plate 47. But the photographs which will probably be found most interesting by the general public are those which were taken in the thoroughfares of Peking. Thus on the 21st plate we are introduced to the central street in the metropolis of China; we see there "The Beggars' Bridge," and the beggars who, though they are so poor and friendless that when winter arrives with its keen frosts they will, many of them, be found frozen to death round the parapets of this Imperial bridge, yet careless of the future gather in groups during the summer heats, to gamble away the little they have been able to scrape together. We gain, too, a good glimpse of the general traffic of the Peking streets. These and many others, such as the costermongers, curiosity dealers, peep-showmen, butchers, and cooks, are all pointed out to us, and the truth is well brought home that the arts of advertising, puffing and quackery, and the tricks of trade are at least as well known to the Chinese as they are among the nations of the West. Photograph 39 is a small picture representing a Manchu funeral procession. We recommend our readers to peruse the letter-press which accompanies this illustration. There they will find a strange and yet most touching description of the rites and ceremonies practised among the Chinese towards those who are at the point of death and after decease. That people "do not admit the idea of death; the close of one's days is simply the passage from life to life, from one world into another, or from one state of existence into a different one." Acting on these notions, they buy for themselves beforehand the coffins in which their mortal remains are to repose, and their friends attire them in the costliest robes when the hour of their dissolution approaches. They put on holiday clothes to die in! Mr. Thomson was so fortunate as to obtain a photograph of some Koreans who chanced to be on an official visit to the Court at Peking. Probably this was the first occasion on which a member of that secluded race has stood in front of a camera.

The last three photographs in the volume present us with a view of the Nankow Pass, of an ancient Buddhist arch which spans that stony defile near the village of Kew-Yung-Kwan, and of one of the inner spurs of the famous wall. The latter, says Mr. Thomson, is an object neither "picturesque nor striking;" viewed simply as a wall, its masonry is often defective, and it is neither so solid nor so honestly constructed as one at first sight would imagine. This is undoubtedly true; in the parts more remote from the capital the rampart not unfrequently consists of a simple embankment of heaped up earth, with a narrow external facing of stone, perhaps not even that. Marco Polo leaves it undescribed, though it was undoubtedly in existence during his stay in China, but it may be that he never saw it except at its meanest parts. But after all, as Mr. Thomson has well pointed out, the end for which the wall was built was probably attained. It served as a clear unmistakable boundary line, beyond which the barbarians outside were not to advance, and as to repelling invasions, it must be remembered that Genghis Khan himself was repulsed before the inner spur. It is not "picturesque" and it is not "striking." How should it be, running, as it does, over mountain ranges, grand, lonely and wild? Can the lowly height of a wall which man's hands have put together contrast advantageously with the width and majesty of the limitless hill-sides along which it creeps? The wall was not constructed with an eye to scenic effect, but as a line of demarcation and defence.

Space forbids us to say more of Mr. Thomson's pictures. He can hardly expect the untravelled public to realise the labour, trouble, energy, and enterprise required to attain his end; but at any rate the beauty of the pictures he has produced will assuredly win general approbation, and we cordially hope that the success of his volumes will be as great as their merits, so that he may find that the time and money which he spent upon his undertaking has not been bestowed in vain.

Voyage en Asie, La Japon, La Chine, La Mongolie, Java, Ceylan. L'Inde. Par THEODORE DURET. Paris: Michel Lévy Frères, 1874.

Counting from the day of his landing at Yokohama to the time of his departure from Bombay, M. Duret was only just fourteen months in the East; still he contrived to visit in that short space of time most of the places of interest in Japan, China, Java, Ceylon, and India, and it follows of necessity that his book partakes, in a great measure, of the nature of a sketch. In his preface he avows his intention of systematically avoiding mention of a "crowd of things which have been described by previous travellers;"—a resolution which we think any writer of a book of Eastern travel would find it very difficult to carry out in its integrity, but which will probably account for M. Duret's brevity in treating of the more important centres of commerce in the East.

What struck our traveller the most in Japan was the small size of everything,—from houses and rooms down to teapots and teacups,—and the constant good humour which he says is so noticeable a trait in the Japanese character. During his visit to Yedo M. Duret paid great attention to Japanese art in its various phases, and he and his friend made a collection of bronzes; when there he also studied the political state of Japan, to which he devotes a chapter. He appears partly to regret the great changes which have been and are being accomplished in the country, and remarks that picturesque old Japan is passing away, and that in the course of five-and-twenty years people who come from Europe to seek for it will do so in vain. He also calls attention to the singularity of the fact, that of all the countries of Asia it is that which has been longest closed to Europeans, which is found to-day to be the best prepared to receive the germs of their civilisation and develop them. After leaving Yedo he visited Kioto, which, he says, has ever been a city of luxury and amusements. While there he went to a theatre, and formed a high opinion of the theatrical powers of the Japanese; he also gave a dinner at a native restaurant to some Japanese officials, which offers an occasion for some remarks on music and dancing. Besides its temples, he says, Kioto does not possess any monuments remarkable for their architecture, for the palace of the Mikado is hardly worthy of notice; the temples, however, constitute a magnificent series of religious buildings, and, though constructed of wood, they realise by their beautiful and vast proportions all the conditions of fine architecture. Returning to Osaka, M. Duret crossed over to Shanghai; but although the "model settlement" (as it has been termed) made some impression on him, he does not devote any space to it, and soon proceeded up the Yangtsze to Hankow.

Hankow, Wuchang, and Hancang, he says, together form a great centre, which has always passed for one of the most populous in China. Pere Hue put the number of inhabitants down at eight millions, an estimate which is out of all reason, but our traveller goes almost to the opposite extreme, and does not consider that it exceeds 500,000. For our own part, judging from a personal knowledge of the localities, we are inclined to think that the aggregate population is somewhat over a million; but anyone who is acquainted with these places will know how difficult it is to form even a rough guess on the subject. We quite agree with M. Duret in his opinion that the population of China has been much exaggerated, but in estimating the number of inhabitants in a Chinese town, he should bear in mind that Chinamen pack very closely indeed. In coming down the Yang-tsze, our traveller stopped at Nanking, the former capital of the Empire, and we can imagine his surprise at finding inside the walls "no town, nothing but a vast naked space, a desert." The famous Porcelain Tower did not escape the sacrilegious hands of the Taiping rebels, and nothing remains now of its nine stories but a heap of rubbish. A good deal of the material, we believe, was used in the construction of Li Hung-Chang's Arsenal! M. Duret makes a mistake in saying that Chinkiang is about halfway between Nanking and the sea, for it is some fifty miles distant fron the former and a hundred and fifty miles from the latter. At Chinkiang he hired a native boat and went up the Grand Canal to Yangchow, and we are glad to learn that, although the suburbs remain a mass of ruins, as the rebels left them, yet the interior of the city is already rebuilt and wears a busy aspect. Having returned to Shanghai, M. Duret next turned his steps northward to Tientsin and Peking, and in speaking of his journey between these two places, he describes the roads as frightful and the carts as abominable; clearly he had been spoiled by the luxurious accommodation of the steamers. He spent sometime at Peking, visiting the various points of interest, and then went for a trip into Mongolia, reaching Dolonor, by way of Ku-pei-kow and Jehol. The chief objects of interest there are the great temples, round which there is a large collection of houses inhabited by lamas. M. Duret returned to Peking from Mongolia by way of Kalgan (Chang-chia-kow) and Nankow, and the road through the latter pass he rightly calls "epouvantable;" we know it well, and, to quote our author's words, "Ce n'est qu'une succession de défilés et de précipices." At Peking he set to work and searched through the numerous curiosity shops in the Chinese city, and made a collection of bronzes; he also availed himself of his opportunities to study the political and social state of China, making himself acquainted with the Governmental and literary systems of the country. From Peking he went to the southern extremity of the Celestial Empire and saw Canton, visiting also Hong Kong and Macao; and he concludes this portion of his travels with some rather bitter remarks, born, we fancy, of envy at the superior success of British commercial enterprise in the Far East. Apropos of the coolie trade being forbidden at Hong Kong, he observes, "But if the English have shown themselves scrupulous about taking part in the export of Chinamen, they have never had the least scruple about poisoning them, and even going the length of making war in order to force the poison on them!" Has M. Duret ever heard of native-grown opium? and does he think it less poisonous than the Indian article?

Having dwelt at such length on M. Duret's journeyings in Japan and China, we can only add, in concluding our notice of his book, that he spent the last five months of his Voyage en Asie in brief visits to various parts of Java and Ceylon, and a rapid tour through the chief towns of India.

The Morning of My Life in China, and Peking, the Goal,—the Sole Hope of Peace. By GIDEON NYE, Jun. Canton: 1873.

Mr. Nye has published in a pamphlet form two lectures which, under the above titles, he delivered before the foreign community of Canton, and we must compliment him on the manner in which he has so successfully combined instruction with amusement in treating of so interesting a period. To say that these two little books are intensely interesting to all who were actors in the scenes described is but a very mild platitude indeed.

In his first lecture Mr. Nye gives us an outline of foreign intercourse with China from the last year of the East India Company's régime (1833) to the imprisonment of the foreign community in 1839. He commences by explaining the circumstances of his own arrival in China towards the close of 1833, and relates in graphic terms the manner in which he and his cousin, Mr. Hathaway, were "smuggled bodily" into Canton. In those days foreigners laboured under what seem to us now the most outrageous disabilities; supercargoes, officers and crews of ships alone were allowed to go to Canton, and then in their own vessels, the use of native boats being forbidden them; foreigners were debarred, too, from the use of sedan-chairs, and irritating restrictions were placed on their employment of native servants; and the Chinese were especially rigid in their exclusion of foreign ladies. Against this obnoxious rule Sir William Baynes fought gallantly, but in vain; the only result of his chivalrous action being the complete stoppage of the whole foreign trade for six weeks! So unpleasant was the actual situation of foreigners at Canton in those days that Mr. Nye says that "it was aptly likened to the condition of the animals in the Zoological Gardens of London."

The names which Mr. Nye mentions will be familiar as household words to the older generation of residents in Canton, to wit, "the more recent holders of the office of Chief Supercargo, Sir James Urmston, Mr. Drummond, who afterwards established his claim as Viscount Strathallan; Sir George Staunton, Sir Theophilus Metcalf, Sir James Bannerman, Sir Walter Frazer, Mr. Majoribanks, Sir William Baynes, and Mr. Plowden." After the Company's chief, the most prominent individual was Mr. William Jardine, the first of the name in China, and "a very courteous man, and very generally popular;" his partners were Sir James Matheson and Mr. Henry Wright, "who had not left the hong for seven years, and who on looking around found he had no hat." Messrs. Russell and Co. were then, as now, the most prominent of the American firms. On the dissolution of the Company Mr. Thomas Dent was joined by Mr. Robert Inglis and Mr. Joseph R. Reeves. Mr. Lindsay, Secretary of the Company, established a house of his own, as did Mr. James Daniell and Mr. J. C. Whiteman. Besides merchants there were professional men of mark. Dr. Morrison, Mr. G. Chinnery, who "wielded a vigorous and facile, though somewhat wayward pencil;" Dr. Thomas R. Colledge, the Company's surgeon, "who succeeded Dr. Pearson, the introducer of inoculation among the Chinese;" Dr. Anderson, Sir John Davis and Dr. R. C. Cox. Among Americans of note were Mr. Augustine Heard (then head of Russell and Co.), Drs. Bridgman, S. Wells, Williams and Parker; Messrs. James P. and Russell Sturgis, Mr. Charles W. King (Olyphant and Co.), a prominent actor and writer, &c., &c.

Some thought that it would have been better if the English Government had appointed an ambassador immediately on the demise of the East India Company, but Mr. Nye is of opinion that the tentative course which was pursued was the most judicious. The first superintendents of trade were Lord Napier, Mr. Plowden, and Mr. Davis (ranking in the order named), of whom it is well-known that Lord Napier was literally worried to death by the Chinese within a very short time of his arrival.

Then came the commencement of difficulties about opium, on which, however, not much stress was laid till 1836 or 1837, and "the impelling motive then was the efflux of treasure." It was not till December, 1838, that matters took a decided form, which culminated (in the following spring) in High Commissioner Lin demanding the surrender of all opium, and "making prisoners of all foreigners in Canton." In those troublous times, in speaking of which it is almost invidious to mention names, the gallantry of Sir C. Elliot and the courage of Mr. Dent must not be passed over without commendation. In his concluding remarks Mr. Nye evidently feels acutely the fact that Canton does not now hold the pre-eminent position of former days, and he gives expression to a hope that "the rights of its geographical position may be restored to it."

In his second lecture Mr. Nye proposes to inquire into the origin of China's pretensions to universal supremacy and the causes of the first war. He considers that "China's egotism was legitimately derived, for she had emancipated herself from the feudal system many centuries, whilst Europe yet wore its shackles, . . . and when the tide of Western commerce began to beat along her shores, she opposed a resolute front to the foreigner, as a constituted and compact Empire, self-contained and self-sufficient, and has since offered but one instance of successful revolution, when the present Dynasty achieved the conquest of the Empire."

Mr. Nye next resumes the thread of his narrative respecting the imprisonment of foreigners in Canton, and relates the straits they were put to, endeavouring at the same time to give a light air to the sad story by anecdotes respecting Mr. Snow, the United States Consul; Mr. Samuel R. Rawle, afterwards of Hong Kong and Macao; Mr. Samuel Fearon, the Messrs. Tiers, &c. At length, in May, 1839, they were free to leave, and so great was the exodus that less than thirty remained. At Sir Charles Elliot's request direct British trade with Canton was at this time suspended. "In the absence of vessels of war," as Mr. Nye observes, "it was impossible to forcibly restrain all persons, but such was the general unanimity that but two vessels got into port. One gentleman attempting to come to Canton was seized by the Chinese and held for a while; another came up on a visit of observation in an American ship, being a new arrival at Macao, by ingeniously changing his real name of Silverlock to Whitehead," and we have reason to believe that his "visit of observation" was well repaid by his earning from £8,000 to £10,000 a day in commissions! A few Americans remained in the place to keep "a hold on the trade, and thus conserve the vast commercial interests of England;" and it was very soon seen, as Mr. Nye naïvely remarks, that this arrangement suited all parties in interest. About this time the house of Russell, Sturgis, and Co. was merged in that of Russell and Co., Mr. Delano, of the former firm, joining the latter as partner; and Mr. Joseph Coolidge established the firm of Augustine Heard and Co.

In April, 1840, news arrived that England had resolved to exact redress for past injuries, and all "were thenceforward on the tiptoe of expectancy;" but they had to wait till June 22 (more than fifteen months after their imprisonment) before the fleet, under Admiral Elliot and Commodore Sir Gordon Bremer, arrived. During the blockade which ensued, Captain, afterwards Sir Harry, Smith came to Mr. Nye's house to reconnoitre a Chinese position, and he was "accompanied by the celebrated and then venerable Thomas Beale, former head of the house of Messrs. Beale and Magniac (the predecessors of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co.), and father of the late Mr. Thomas Chay Beale, of Shanghai."

Sir Charles Elliot's opinion was that the Bogue Forts should be blown up as a local measure, and Mr. Nye thinks that "the withholding of a wholesome local blow of redress was a real lapse in statesmanship." The "inability to reach Peking," and the warlike measures adopted at this time, are matters of history, and we need not touch on them here. Mr. Nye's account of his hairbreadth escape from Canton on the night of May 21st is of thrilling interest, and had it not been for Mr. William A. Lawrence, of New York, he might not now have been alive to tell the tale; as it was, he was just in time to get off with his friend in Mr. Andrew Jardine's barge. Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Morss (Olyphant and Co.) were captured by the Chinese and imprisoned, but on the arrival of Sir Hugh Gough and Sir Fleming Senhouse (the new military and naval chiefs) they were released. After various operations the "campaign of Canton ended with no marked effect upon the relations with the Court of Peking; but its inception and conclusion alike reflected the diplomatic ability of Sir Charles Elliot. . . . . But before even its inception was known in England, two chiefs, into whose hands fell swords without scabbards,—Sir Henry Pottinger and Sir William Parker,—came out to supersede Sir Charles Elliot and Sir Gordon Bremer, and, in conjunction with Sir Hugh Gough, carry the war to the North." Mr. Nye had always maintained that Peking was the goal, the sole hope of peace, and that it was expedient to have a minister with the right of residing there; and in conclusion he claims, in modest terms, that he "had discerned from the first, in this necessity to reach Peking and end, once for all, the assumption of supremacy, that one of the several wholes which the history of foreign intercourse with China has since presented as the very key-stone of the arch of the superstructure of peaceful relations."

We take the following from the Academy:—

In a lecture on "Vestiges of Antiquity," delivered before the New York Geographical Society last year, by Dr. A. Le Plongeon, and now published, resemblances are pointed out between the architectural ruins of South America and those of Assyria and Egypt. Coincidences, also, in the religious symbols, rites, and beliefs of the inhabitants of the Old and New World are brought together in great abundance. There is one piece of linguistic evidence brought forward by Dr. Le Plongeon in support of the often asserted communication between China and America which deserves attention. He writes:—

That some of the inhabitants of these countries (China and Japan landed in South America is certain; but it is certain, also, that they did not influence the civilisation or religion of the population among which they commingled; nay more, they even retained their own habits and language. To-day, on the northern coast of Peru, exists a small village called Eten, the dwellers of which speak a language that their neighbours are unable to understand, but they find no difficulty in holding communion with the Chinese coolies, who of late years have been imported thither. Besides, in searching among the ruins in the Grand Chimu's City, situated between Trajillo and the pool of Huanchaco, some silver idols have been found, inscribed with very ancient Chinese characters. Some have likewise been dug up from the mounds in the Valley of Chincha Alta, 400 miles to the southward. I have examined these idols carefully. They bore marks of being very ancient. Two that were in my possession represented a man sitting cross-legged on the back of a tortoise. The head was shaved except the top, from which depended, hanging on the back, a lock of long hair braided Chinese fashion. In one of them the heads were wanting. This was placed between two pillars, surmounted by a perfect arch. The characters, sculptured in alto relievo on the pillars, were so time-worn and defaced as to be illegible. Not so with the other. The arms of the figure were extended; the hands rested on short pillars. There was no arch. And notwithstanding this relic was very much eaten by the rust and the salts contained in the earth, where for centuries it had lain undisturbed, some signs were plainly visible on the pillars. They somewhat resembled the Chinese writing, but seemed somewhat different from those in use to-day. The finding of these relics was quite important in my estimation. I set forth in search of a person who could interpret them for me and dispel my doubts. I knew a very intelligent Chinaman, acknowledged to be by his countrymen a gentleman of great literary attainments. He examined the queer object for a long time; looked at it on every side; then, without speaking a word looked at me—looked at my relic again, his features betraying astonishment, nay, veneration, not altogether free from awe. He was evidently overcome by a strange feeling. "Very old," said he at last. "These are very ancient characters, used in China thousands of years ago, before the invention of those now employed. They mean Fo-Hi." This was sufficient. In remote times the Chinese had visited this country, and no doubt the present dwellers of Eten are some of their descendants.

What the intelligent Chinaman intended was, probably, not that these characters meant Fo-Hi, but that they were the characters invented by Fo-Hi, Fo-Hi being a mythical person, who is believed to have invented not only the Chinese letters, but Chinese music, law, marriage, and several other things. But however that may be, the two statements that idols made of silver found in South America contain ancient Chinese letters, and that the inhabitants of Eten speak a dialect intelligible to Chinese coolies, deserve attention and—verification.

Yu-Pe-Ya's Lute. A Chinese Tale in English Verse. By AUGUSTA WEBSTER. London: Macmillan and Co. 1874.—The writer of this little book has hit upon the somewhat curious plan of giving an English poetical version of the French translation of a Chinese story. She does not, however "profess to give any portrait of 'Le Luth Brisé,' with its prim, high-pitched style, contriving as it does to combine the ultra-prosaic with the ultra-poetic;" and, in point of fact, she takes the merest outline of the Chinese story, and fills it in with poetical matter which might as well, if not better, have been written about any other country. The result, as might be expected, is not very satisfactory, especially when we consider that the writer—to quote her own words—has invented all her geography and topography except the names! The gist of the tale is briefly this:—Yu-Pe-Ya, a man of high rank in the service of the ruler of Tsin, had been sent on a mission to the sovereign of Tsou, his own native land. He was passionately fond of the lute, and when storm-bound on his return journey, he accidentally made the acquaintance of a woodman named Tse-ky, who was also a proficient in playing on the lute. After some coyness on Tse-ky's part, they swear eternal brotherhood, and as Tse-ky will not, for family reasons, accompany him home, Yu-Pe-Ya promises to come and see him in the following year. He then makes his newly-found brother a handsome present, and bids him farewell. On returning at the appointed time to seek Tse-ky, he meets his father (Lao-Pay) by chance, and inquires his way of him. Lao-Pay tells him that his son is dead, and in the course of conversation informs him that he used his present in buying books, and eventually wore himself out by toiling hard all day for the support of the family, and spending his nights absorbed in study. We think that the writer of the book before us cannot know much of China, for—to cite no other instances—she calls a state junk a barge, and describes Yu-Pe-Ya as placing in his belt a purse of gold!

Number 3 of Vol. II. of the China Review is quite equal, in point of interest and variety, to any of its predecessors, and we congratulate the energetic editor on the success which has attended his literary venture in Far Cathay. Mr. Allen's translation of the "Young Prodigy" is a very capital rendering of scenes in Chinese social life, though we could wish that the translator had chosen a novel of a more characteristic nature. Mr. Hirth contributes a most elaborate and carefully-studied description of the peninsula of Lei Chow, for which and the immense labour bestowed on the subject he deserves the most cordial thanks and recognition of geographers, historians, ethnologists, and scientific men generally. Such contributions as this give a backbone to the Review, and show that there are earnest and able students of Chinese matters now at work in China. It is a comparatively thankless task to elucidate a vexed problem in Chinese geography, but we who know their value welcome Mr. Hirth's intelligent labours, as throwing important light upon the least known and most misunderstood empire in the world. Mr. Eitel contributes a masterly sketch of the Hakka tribes, in which he displays his usual philosophic power and literary skill, and the remainder of the Review is well filled with articles on various matters.

A valuable article has appeared in the China Review, entitled "Notes on Chinese Commercial Law," which is from the pen of Mr. Albert O. Dulcken, the editor of the Hong Kong Daily Press. The subject has before attracted attention, but the attempts hitherto made at discovering the principles of Chinese Commercial Law have been unsuccessful, owing chiefly to the fact that sufficient allowance has not been made for local customs. In his "Notes" Mr. Dulcken says:—"One of the chief motives for endeavouring to find out how far there was anything in the form of mercantile law in China was the idea for some years entertained—and we believe not yet abandoned—of, if possible, establishing at the Treaty Ports, where, in consequence of the ex-territorial jurisdiction, there is often much difficulty in the legal settlement of commercial disputes, a code which should form a common basis of transactions between Chinese and foreigners." After noticing the efforts of Mr. Alabaster and Mr. Forest, of the Consular Service, to arrive at some conclusion upon the subject, which ended in their agreeing that there was nothing in China worthy the name of commercial law, the writer proceeds to give a few general principles of law which he has found in his experience either acted upon in commercial transactions or relied upon by the Chinese in cases which have been brought before the Mixed Court at Shanghai. The law as applied to the purchase of goods in China is similar to that in England, the principal of caveat emptor being a prominent feature in it. The laws in China with respect to broker and principal, the writer says, are little understood by foreigners, although there have been several cases in which the position of the middle man as understood by the Chinese was clearly set forth. The law as regards master and servant seems rather summary. The master can discharge, or the servant leave, at a moment's notice. The Chinese law with regard to guarantees differs from the English, inasmuch as that a verbal guarantee is considered binding in China. Considerable obscurity exists on the score of partnership law, but as this obscurity is rather general, even in countries where a proper code exists, the Chinese can scarcely be regarded as exceptional in the matter. Mr. Dulcken has pointed out enough to show that certain broad principles of commercial law are established among the Chinese, and his valuable paper will doubtless be largely appreciated by the commercial community.

The April number of Temple Bar contains a very superficial and unsatisfactory article, entitled "Manners and Customs in China," which, as we learn from the advertising columns of our contemporaries, is from the pen of a lady, who bases her sole claim to have travelled through China on the fact of having paid a brief visit to Canton. How any one with such an extremely limited knowledge of the subject can pretend to describe the manners and customs of the vast Celestial Empire passes our comprehension. Two or three instances, taken at random, will, we think, conclusively prove the writer's unfitness to deal with a task like that which she has undertaken. She asserts that all Chinese houses are adorned with balconies; that her "boy" was also willing to act as "chair-bearer;" and that "Chinese talking is a series of hard sounds, jerks, digs, and snaps." We must allow that she does not go very far wide of the mark in her somewhat flippant description of Chinese music when she says that "two tom-cats encountering" (we are not told what!) "on a midnight prowl are faint though truthful illustrations of that fearful rending of the air." Though we have lived for several years in various parts of the Flowery Land, we never before heard that "nearly every boy is instructed by the monks in reading." The writer has evidently never learned why nunneries are so generally suppressed in China, or she would not have ventured to assert that the nuns "dedicated their virginity to Buddha." Of matters hymeneal she is intensely ignorant, for she has the audacity to palm off on the British public the statement that "the only marriage ceremony" consists in the fact that the bride has "been carried home in state by her husband's relatives." Again, to assert that "the Chinese are most particular about their swine, and keep them penned up in the utmost cleanliness and comfort, rivalling the Dutch in their scrubbing and washing," is a gross violation of the truth, as will be at once patent to any one who has ever really travelled through China.

Monetary and Commercial.

Tenders for £500,000 in bills on India were received on the 1st inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—To Calcutta, £300,000; and Bombay, £200,000. Tenders on Calcutta at 1s. 10½d. will receive about 90 per cent.; and on Bombay at 1s. 10½d. about 40 per cent.; above in full. These rates show a reduction of ½d., or about 2 per cent., compared with the last allotment.

The directors of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China have declared a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum for the half-year ended the 31st December last, payable on the 16th inst. The annual meeting is called for the 21st inst.

Subjoined is the report of the directors of the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company, Limited, issued in anticipation of the meeting to be held on the 14th inst.:—

The directors submit the annexed annual account and balance sheet up to the 31st December last, which completes the first year of the Amalgamated Company's operations. The total earnings of the company for the year ending 31st December, 1873, amounted to £223,323 12s. 6d., the working expenses to £48,992 12s. 9d., and the repair and maintenance of the cables to £14,116 11s. 1d. Interest on debentures and income tax have absorbed a further sum of £3,239 9s. 7d., leaving a balance of profit for the year of £156,974 19s. 1d. Three interim dividends of 1½ per cent. each, aggregating £89,887 10s. 0d., have already been distributed, and there now remain £67,087 9s. 1d. for appropriation. The directors now declare a further dividend of 2 per cent., free of income tax, making a total of 6½ per cent. for the year, which will absorb £39,950, leaving a sum of £27,137 9s. 1d., which will be carried to the reserve fund, thereby raising it to £41,554 10s. 4d. The debenture debt, which at the commencement of the year amounted to £17,100, has been reduced to £13,100, by taking up the bonds as they became due.

Two interruptions have occurred to the company's cables during the year, the first in May last, off the Nicobar Islands, and the second in October, caused by the cable being picked up and cut by an axe near Hong Kong. These, as well as all other repairs, were promptly effected by the company's own servants, and by its own vessel, and with the exception of the two cases above stated, which from their distance necessarily occupied some ten days or a fortnight, no other delay beyond a few hours has occurred. The cables are at present in good order, and working satisfactorily. The retiring auditors, Mr. John Ball and Mr. Henry Dever, offer themselves for re-election.

Reports have been current of the failure of a Glasgow firm engaged in the iron trade, with liabilities estimated at from £300,000 to £400,000. The house is said to have been involved to the extent of about £70,000 with the house of Watson and Campbell, who lately suspended. The failure of a firm in Mincing-lane is announced, but no circular has been issued. Large losses in coffee, the fall in which of late has been extremely severe, are stated to be the cause of the failure.

We understand that the Trident Marine Insurance Company have stopped taking risks pending a meeting of the shareholders, to be held on the 10th.

The announcement of the result of the tenders for the Government bills on India has caused decided depression in the silver market, and bars have declined to 58½d. per ounce. Mexican dollars are in demand for China at 57½d., a decline of ½d. per oz.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

In the Colonial Produce Markets last week the tone of business was dull, and there will not be any public sales before the 9th inst., owing to the Easter holidays. Several articles have further declined in value, but the most important fall is in coffee—viz., 6s. to 7s. per cwt. since last mail. At this reduction there are no sellers, many importers having withdrawn supplies. Sugar remains inactive, and the uncertainty of the duty question exercises still a very unfavourable influence on the home deliveries.

In the Tea Market transactions have been altogether unimportant. The Spice Market is flat, with lower prices generally. Rice is firm, cargoes of soft grain being slightly dearer.

TEA.

The market continues very quiet, importers and dealers waiting the issue of the Budget; the limited transactions, chiefly in common kinds, and mostly at public auction without reserve, have been at prices occasionally favouring buyers. The export trade to all quarters has been of no importance. Deliveries do not compare favourably, being:—

SILK.

Considerable business has been done in Chinas and Cantons at prices which show an advance of a full 1s., and occasionally 1s. 6d., upon the lowest moment in February, and although the market is now quieter with the commencement of the Easter holidays, still the tone is good, and prices are very firm. In Chinas the inquiry has been pretty general for Tsatlees of all grades, and also for Taysaams; and in Cantons, chiefly for market No. 4 Tsatlees, which now sell readily at 13s. 6d., and anything rather better than the ordinary run, up to 14s. Japans, although firm, are not sharing in the general inquiry, at the same time good and fine parcels of Mybash are looked after. Deliveries for the past month are good, and arrivals having been, as expected, small, stocks of all kinds are now lighter than at this time last year, being in the aggregate nearly 6,000 bales less.

COFFEE.—There has been an entire absence of activity in the market during the week, holders keeping back their stocks until the close of the holidays on the 6th inst. The small sales of Plantation Ceylon which have been effected show a further decline of about 6s. per cwt., the prices realised being—triage, 73s. 6d. to 80s.; small to middling, 95s. to 101s. 6d.; peaberry, 95s. 6d. per cwt. In native Ceylon no sales are reported.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—Market quiet; Ceylon quoted £34 10s. per ton.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—Market quiet; 7 cases lump sold at £6 17s. 6d. to £7 for good quality.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is more firmly held; small sales at 9s., closing sellers at 9s. 3d., but no buyers. Afloat about 200 cases have changed hands, chiefly at 8s. 6d., closing at 8s. 7½d. to 8s. 9d. Sellers at the latter figure. Cassia continues very dull; 20 cases sold privately at 4s. 5d. Nutmeg: Quiet.

In auction 440 bales sold at 24s. 9d. to 25s., also 1,450 mats cubes offered, and a few sold at 33s. to 34s. for free rather dark.

GALANGAL ROOT continues scarce.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Siam steady; of 45 cases offered the bulk sold at £19 10s. to £26 per cwt. for good to fine. Sumatra steady, and fine scarce; of 89 cases, three-fourths sold, fine at £11 to £12, fine seconds at £8 17s. 6d. to £9, fair to good £7 10s. to £8 10s., thirds 45s. to 92s. 6d. Copal dull; of 1,201 cases at auction a small proportion only sold at 20s. to 22s. for fair to good clean hard, and 12s. to 14s. drossy dusty and very coated. Damar very firmly held; of 151 cases about one-third sold at 49s. to 50s. for good Batavia slightly specky. Gamboge quiet; 5 cases retired.

HEMP.—Manila without alteration; no transactions reported.

INDIA-RUBBER is very quiet; Borneo is quoted 1s. 5d.; Singapore, 1s. 6d. to 1s. 6¾d. for rather foul.

JAPAN WAX.—Market quiet; of 200 cases offered in auction about half sold at 61s. for fine saucer, and 58s. middling yellowish; fine privately at 60s.

PEPPER.—Black has continued very dull. Singapore has sold at 6d., Penang 5⅞d., closing very quiet. White is about 1d. per lb. lower, and very little business has been done.

PLUMBAGO.—Ceylon continues quiet; of 467 barrels at auction one-half sold; Lump, fair to fine at 19s. to 24s. 6d., Chips, middling, 12s., Dust, 9s. 6d. to 11s.

RHUBARB.—At auction, of 162 cases China offered, the bulk sold, at 5s. per lb. for fine bold selected, 2s. 7d. to 2s. 8d. medium good fracture, rather rough coat, 1s. 9d. to 2s. duller and smaller, 1s. 2½d. fair, 11d. to 1s. 1d. high-dried pale, part pinky, and 8d. wormy and dark.

RICE.—The demand has shown less activity, but prices have been firmly maintained. Most of the parcels offered on the spot have been bought in, the demand being chiefly for floating cargoes. The cargoes sold for arrival include Rangoon, February to April shipment, at 11s. 9d., open charter; Necransie, at 11s. 4½d., open charter; broken Necransie, at 9s. 4½d.; new Rangoon, March-April shipment, at 11s. 9d. open charter.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY, LIMITED.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS.

GENTLEMEN,—Herewith your Directors have the pleasure of laying before you the Balance Sheet and Profit and Loss Account of the Company for the half-year ending 31st Dec., 1873.

After making allowance for all necessary payments, there remains on the working of the half-year the sum of $30,914.18, which, added to $3,839.93 brought forward, makes $34,754.11 at your disposal, subject only to payments under Clause 68 of the Articles of Association.

Your Directors therefore propose that a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum should be declared for the half-year ending 31st Dec., 1873, which will expend $28,960 of the above sum.

The declaration of the above proposed dividend will bring into operation Clause 68 of the Articles of Association, necessitating a payment to the Directors of the sum of $3,193.70, leaving about $2,600 to be carried forward.

During the year $12,000 have been written off the value of your property, for depreciation, and this, in the opinion of your Directors, is a sufficient sum, considering that $16,034.54 have been spent in upkeep during the above period.

Of the 3rd and 4th series of debentures which fell due on the 10th Oct. last, amounting to $203,400, $53,400 were paid off, and the remaining $150,000 provided for by the issue of a 7th series of debentures at the same rate of interest, and maturing on the 10th Oct., 1878. Various loans have also been paid off, amounting altogether to $10,800, reducing the liabilities of the Company by $64,200.

You will observe that the Reserve Fund has now attained the satisfactory amount of $67,248.

Your Directors therefore congratulate you on the prosperity of the Company, and would call your attention to the improvement in revenue, which has enabled you to maintain on the increased capital the substantial dividend now again recommended, and this notwithstanding the considerable loss resulting to the Company by the enforcement of the quarantine regulations in the early part of the half-year.

The West Wharf, as well as the houses for the Company's workmen, and that intended for the accommodation of captains of vessels, mentioned in our last report as in progress, have been finished, the extension of the blacksmiths' shop is completed, and a furnace for heating large iron plates has been added to its appliances. A cupola has also been erected, enabling the Company to execute castings in iron as well as in brass.

It has become necessary that the Company should be in a position to receive and store outward cargo, as well as to receive inward cargo and goods in transit as hitherto, and as the present godowns have been found insufficient for the purpose, your directors have determined on the construction of three more in convenient positions similar to those already erected; the foundations of two of these godowns are in a forward state.

The reading room presented to the Company by Jasper Young, Esq., has been largely availed of, having been visited during the half-year by upwards of 3,000 persons, chiefly officers and seamen of vessels lying at the wharf. Divine Service is held every alternate Sunday, the chaplain to the Seamen's Mission officiating.

The efficiency of your staff and plant has been fully maintained.

THOS. SCOTT, Chairman.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present P. and O. and Pacific mails bring advices from this port to the 24th February; no later mail from London had arrived out. The Japan Herald supplies the following items of intelligence:—

The rising of the samourai in Saga Ken has proved far more serious than was originally supposed. In the first contest which has occurred a battalion of Government troops has been defeated, and all (with the exception of six) killed. Rumours of several victories gained by the troops are current, but owing to the Government endeavouring to keep news secret, it has been forbidden to give information to the newspapers. There is great difficulty in obtaining authentic intelligence. Meanwhile the Government are despatching all the available troops and men-of-war to the disturbed district; but it seems at present a moot question whether they can be relied on when they arrive at their destination, or whether many of them will not rather side with the insurgents. A rumour is current that Nagasaki is in the hands of the insurgents, but we are not inclined to believe in it. All that is known for certain is that the insurgent party were marching on Fukuoka; but Okubo, with his 1,600 men, may, combined with the troops already there, perhaps be able to hold them in check. Much, however, will depend on whether the Hizen men are joined by those of other Kens. Though there have been several peasant risings in different parts of Japan since the present Government was instituted, the samourai—that wield the sword of the Empire, and who govern it—have not hitherto participated. Now it is otherwise; hence the present insurrectionary movement is formidable from that circumstance alone. Opinions are divided as to whether the Government will be strong enough to put down the insurrection, or whether the insurgents will be powerful enough to put down the Government. We wait the issue of events, for in reality very little can be ascertained by journalists. The confident assertions of one of the newspapers, that the Government will be successful in its endeavours, meets with little credence, since it has become known that these sort of assurances are purchasable for a consideration. With the object of affording additional protection to the foreign inhabitants in the event of the insurrection menacing that city, H.M.S. Ringdove, hitherto stationed at Kobe, has received orders to proceed without delay to Nagasaki. In anticipation of possible eventualities, the ships of the China squadron have been directed to hold themselves in readiness for any emergency that may arise.

The Director of the Mint, Major Kinder, has favoured us with specimens of the new copper coins, of the respective values of two sen, one sen, one-half sen, and one rin. In general appearance the coins resemble the gold currency struck at the Osaka Imperial Mint. They are handsome and well proportioned. In the centre a distracted dragon is seen writhing in all the mazes of convoluted confusion, evidently in agony with having taken something disagreeing very much with its interior economy. The dragon is certainly in a very bad way indeed, and the sooner the Japanese permit him to die, the less barbaric will their coins appear.

The 22nd Feb. being the anniversary of the birthday of Washington, the men-of-war and many of the merchantmen in harbour were decked out in their brightest colours, and at noon salutes of twenty-one guns were fired in honour of the occasion. The gaiety of the scene was considerably marred, however, by the continued drizzling rain.

The Minister of Finance has presented a very favourable report, in which he states that the surplus of income over expenditure for the year ending on the 1st January, 1874, is nearly 5,000,000 rios.

Part of the French garrison at this port has left for Saigon, though it would have seemed more desirable rather to increase than decrease their number in the present critical state of affairs.

Consequent on the China New Year and the insurrection, our markets are still duller than before; prices are still falling, and no transactions have taken place except in velvets and sugar, both at lower rates.

Our amateurs, assisted by Mr. G. Pauncefort, have given a theatrical performance, as have also the German amateurs, and Professor Vanek has given several seances here.

The Japan Mail contains the following summary of news:—

The storm which has been for some time gathering burst last week over the provinces of Hizen and Kaga in the Island of Kiushiu. In the first brush the Imperial troops were worsted, and it is reported that some of the Government buildings, barracks in Saga, offices, &c., have been burnt down. Considerable reinforcements have been sent southwards, and several vessels of the Imperial fleet have followed the transports. Reports were rife that Nagasaki was in the hands of the insurgents, but later news has shown that this is untrue. Shimadzu Saburo, uncle of the present Prince of Satsuma, and an all-influential man in the clan, has been despatched to Kagoshima on a special mission from the Mikado. His loyalty to the Government is unquestioned, and the clan has repulsed emissaries from Saga despatched with the view of inciting the Satsuma men to rebellion. So long as these remain staunch nothing very grave is to be feared, and the probabilities are greatly in favour of their so remaining. Yedo is quiet, but very uneasy. The business of the Governments goes on as usual; the higher officers of the Government are confident not only that it is quite strong enough to put down the present disturbances, but that this will be done within a short period. We venture on no prophecies to this effect, but merely state the confidently expressed opinion of high officials. Disaffection among the Imperial troops has been seriously imputed to them, and this not altogether without reason; but the Government must have taken this into account, and yet relies confidently on its power to prevent the flames from spreading. Osaka and Kobe are quiet.

The Prime Minister has issued a proclamation, explaining the present condition of affairs, and exhorting the officials and people to a loyal course of action. For the causes of this outbreak we must look chiefly to the discontent of the samouria produced by the recently issued scheme for the commutation of their hereditary and life pensions. The cry for a war with Korea is a mere pretext, and would subside if the claims of the samouria were appeased. The measure from the first seemed to foreigners a hard one, but was explainable on grounds more particularly given in our summary of the year 1873, and on the belief that the Government has had so long to mature it, that the natural supposition was in favour of its being acceptable to the samourai.

The section of railway between Osaka and Kobé rapidly approaches completion, and was to have been opened in May, under the auspices of the Mikado. But it is to be feared that the occurrences above referred to will delay the ceremony, though this for no long period, we trust.

The Asiatic Society has published the first volume of its Journal of Transactions. At a meeting of the society Mr. Satow read a paper upon the Shintoo shrines of Isé.

Iwakura remains at his post as Udaijin, though he is popular neither with the Cabinet nor the people. Against this it may be said that he is determined, firm and prompt.

A project has been formed to build a new church on the Western bluff.

HIOGO-OSAKA.

Advices extend to the 19th February; the P. and O. mail from London Dec. 26 arrived out on the 15th Feb. The following is taken from the Hiogo News:—

We have received the statistics of trade for the ports of Hiogo and Osaka for the half-year ending the 31st of December last, as compiled by the Chamber of Commerce. It will be remembered that the trade of 1872 showed such a very large increase on that of 1871 that it is nothing surprising if we find that a reaction should set in which should prevent the returns for the past year bearing such a relation to those of 1872 as did these latter to those of 1871. This seems to have been actually the case, the total amount of exports and imports showing a considerable falling off. This falling off we believe to have been owing, at any rate in a very great measure, to the want of facilities in Japan for the transaction of such an export trade as she might do, and the measure of which must, of course, be somewhere about the capacity of her absorption of foreign manufactures; and the transactions of the last six months of 1873 offer testimony tending to confirm the truth of our opinion, the permitted export of grain helping materially to place the trade of the second half of the year on a sounder basis than it would otherwise have appeared to stand. In tea, the article of largest export, there has been a falling off altogether of $200,000, which we think may be attributed principally to causes in America (rumours that tea was again to be taxed by the United States Government having materially interfered with the market), and that proportionately less of the present 1873-4 season's tea has been shipped early in the season than was the case in 1872-3. Other exports that show a decrease are silk-worms' eggs, $50,000; cocoons, $12,000; waste silk, $75,000; wax, $38,000; camphor, $62,000; copper and bronze, &c., $100,000; isinglass, $13,000; fish, $12,000; seaweed, $79,000; tobacco, $133,000; medicine, $45,000; beche de mer, $12,000; awabi, $24,000; silk, $30,000; rags, $17,000 —besides various other smaller amounts, against which list there would have been very little to set to the credit of increases had it not been for exported grain, which had already up to the 31st of December reached the value of a little over half a million of dollars. The article of export which most of all seems to have fallen short of merchants' expectations is silk. In the earlier days of Kobe it was thought probable that a large silk trade might be done here, but so far these anticipations have not been realised. What effect, if any, the opening of the railway through to Kioto might have we do not pretend to know, but it is never a very easy thing to alter the locality of a market, particularly when it has possessed a monopoly so long as has Yokohama the foreign silk trade. The appearance of rice and wheat in the list of exports is a cheering sign, but so much has been written and said on the subject that we have very little to add at present. The first shipments have only just reached Europe, and before we can venture upon any speculation for the future we should like to see the London prices settle down. We incline to think that it will at any rate for some time to come be rather a speculative trade, as the price in Europe will always be to a great extent regulated by the supplies from nearer markets.

Amongst the imports, shirtings and T-cloths have improved, as have velvets, china figures, iron, cotton, and kerosine oil, but we find a falling off in cotton yarn, lustres, and orleans cloth (assorted and Italian), mousselines de laine, mohair, sugar, &c., the total imports being less by nearly half a million of dollars In the corresponding six months of 1872 the export of treasure exceeded the import by nearly a million and a half, while last half-year the excess was a little over a million dollars. Of course most of our readers will understand that many of the figures given in these tables cannot be expected to be strictly accurate, and we may, besides, state that on this occasion more than the usual difficulty has been experienced in getting returns from the Chinese merchants, through whose hands it is well known that a large proportion of the trade of certain articles at this port passes. Altogether, although the retrospect of these six months is not so satisfactory as we should have liked to have seen it, it may be some satisfaction to Kobe to feel that she has come through the recent period of depression in Japanese trade better, on the whole, than has Yokohama.

The 2nd Feb. being the day fixed for celebrating in Kobe the marriage of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh with the Grand Duchess Marie Alexandrovna of Russia, the men-of-war in harbour, consisting of the British and Russian gunboats Ringdove and Sobol, dressed ship, and at noon fired Royal salutes; in the evening both vessels were illuminated and some rockets were fired. To show the business-like way in which the Japanese set about enjoying themselves, even in very small matters, we may state that in consequence of its having got about that fireworks would be let off by the shipping, a number of natives had established themselves on the bund wall, with the usual paraphernalia of blankets, hibachis, teapots, &c.

Uriu, Superintendent of Customs at the ports of Kobe (Hiogo) and Osaka, is about to take his departure for Yedo, probably with a view to his promotion. He is a man of no mean personal attainments, and though a section of the foreign community may be of opinion that he was too much inclined to an arbitrary assertion of the rights and powers of the Custom-house over the affairs of which he presided, his zeal for the prosperity of the department which he served was not unsuccessful, as a comparison of the statistics of the trade of these ports with the Custom-house returns before and since he assumed charge will sufficiently testify, and we sincerely hope that his undeniable merits will receive the reward which they deserve.

The property situated on the hill, and known as the Walhalla has been put up at auction, and knocked down to C. Wiggins, Esq., for Mex. $2,550; also lot 68 on the Concession, with the buildings thereon for Mex. $4,000, Messrs. Bonger Brothers being the purchasers. The following lots of land on the Foreign Concession have also been sold:—Lot 97, containing 267½ tsubos, to Messrs. Stucken and Rasch for $775; lot 123, containing 225 tsubos, to Mr. Kuhhardt for $1,050; and lot 124, containing 225 tsubos, to Mr. Richter for $1,200.

We notice that the Imperial Mint is issuing its new copper currency, a considerable quantity being already in circulation at this port. It is a handsome coin, worthy of the Mint officials, and we hope to live to see the day when tempos and cash will be of value only as curiosities.

The amateur "dramatics" of H.M.S. Ringdove have given an entertainment at the Gymnasium Theatre. The performance consisted of the farce Catching a Mermaid, some songs, and the burlesque Bombastes Furioso. Both pieces were well put upon the stage, the "get-up" and dresses of the performers being exceptionally good, and the theatre was filled with an audience who seemed highly amused, and who are no doubt genuinely grateful to our visitors for their kind efforts to please.

NAGASAKI.

The negotiations for the disposal of the Takasima Colliery have terminated in the transfer to the Japanese Government of the whole of the interest in this property; and a distribution of the proceeds of the amount it realised is being made to those interested. We understand that the majority of the foreign staff hitherto engaged in working the mine are to be retained in the service of the new owners. The latter have also engaged to complete all the outstanding contracts entered into by the trustee. The steamtug Argus has not been included in the sale; and her place has been taken by the steamer known to foreigners as the Emperor, which vessel has already furnished work for the engineering factory at Akanora by breaking down after four days employment at her new duties. By the transfer of the mines to the Japanese Government the whole of the mining business in this Empire passes into native hands, and thus it becomes a monopoly, subject to the interference of a paternal government and fettered by red-tapism, which all Government undertakings must necessarily be subject to.

On Feb. 7th a fire occurred in the native town, which has terminated in destruction falling but little short of what occurred some six years since. It first commenced in one of the houses in Yorotsuya-machi, used as a bathing establishment, and owing to a very strong breeze blowing at the time of the outbreak it rapidly spread in four different directions, and has made sad havoc of the following streets: Hamano-machi, Kajia-machi, Abura-machi, Yakara-machi, Douza-machi and Amasaki. At present it is almost impossible to ascertain correctly the number of houses destroyed, but they have been variously estimated to be between 200 and 300; but scarcely any other result could have been expected, owing to the close proximity of the houses with each other, and to the chief materials used in their construction being wood. We learn that several lives were lost during the progress of the fire; the outside number is reported to be seven in all. Rumour attributes the origin of the fire to be the work of incendiaries, whose intentions were to plunder during the confusion.

Miyagawa Fusayuki, governor of the Nagasaki Ken, left here on the 5th Feb., by the P.M. steamer Oregonian. He proceeds to Yedo on some official business connected with this Ken. Hiodo Masayoshi Sanji, of this Ken, will perform the duties of his chief during the absence of the latter, who is expected to return to this port in about a month's time.

The counting of the votes given for the election of the new Municipal Council has taken place in the presence of the Consular representatives, and it was found that the following five gentlemen having received the largest number of votes, they have been declared duly elected members of the Council for the year 1874. Messrs. F. Ringer, 160 votes; H. J. Hunt, 149 votes; H. Gribble, 147 votes; Th. Russell, 145 votes; W. Robertson, 135 votes.

The execution of Jentaro, a native of Hiogo, took place on the 4th Feb., inside the jail at Sakura-machi. He was condemned to death for committing four murders at Simabara; the particulars of which were published on the 13th September last.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 27th Feb.; the French mail from London Jan. 2 arrived out on the 21st Feb., and the following P. and O. mail of Jan. 9 on the 26th Feb. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

Rumours are floating about of renewed symptoms of uneasiness at Tientsin. We are not aware that they have any very definite foundation, but it is always well to regard the course of political straws; and the reported circulation of papers and pictures recalling the massacre of 1870 is good ground for keeping a watchful eye on the North. We believe the Dwarf is likely to go on from Nagasaki to Tientsin directly the Peiho opens; but there are already several gunboats in the river, so that there is much less fear of any hostile ideas developing into action than before, when the Settlement was utterly unprotected.

Sunday was the 142nd anniversary of Washington's birthday, but, as usual in such cases, the due observance of the event was postponed till Monday, when salutes were fired by H.B.M.S. Cadmus and the U.S.S. Lackawanna. Both vessels had hung out a gay display of bunting, and many other craft in harbour paid the same tribute to the memory of the great President.

The pilot boats of the late Blackball Pilot Company were sold on Monday, at auction, by Messrs. Meller and Co. The Daniel Webster realised Tls. 4,200; the New York, Tls. 1,000; and the Traveller, Tls. 135.

The British barque Lizzie, which arrived in port the other day, brought a novel passenger from Australia, in the form of a tame kangaroo. The animal leaps about the deck, visits the cabin, and associates with a small terrier and the ship's cat as familiarly as if they were all of the same family and blood.

The American barkentine Lulu, Captain Hallet, which arrived from Nagasaki—bringing a full cargo of coals—made the voyage from this to that port and back in thirteen days.

We hear on good authority that the well-known steamer Tungting has been sold to the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company for Tls. 40,000. She is intended, we understand, to act as tender to the larger steamers between Taku and Tientsin, much as the Millet is used by the S. S. N. Company. She is likely, therefore, to have a good deal to do with the Imperial rice tribute of the provinces.

Another of the pioneers of the P. and O. Company in Eastern waters, the good old Cadiz, has gone on what may be regarded as her final voyage, having followed her old consorts, the Sultan and Ganges, up the Yangtse to serve as a receiving hulk at Chinkiang for the China Steam Navigation Company.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 5th March; the French mail from London Jan. 16 arrived out on the 27th Feb. The China Mail supplies the following items of intelligence:—

It would appear that the news of a threatened disturbance at Peking is based upon fact. The information was sent by Mr. Wade in charge of a special courier from Peking to Hong Kong direct, the messenger performing his journey in twenty days. He bore with him despatches addressed, under flying seal, to the Admiral, the substance of which, after being read by the Commodore, was immediately telegraphed to Admiral Shadwell. The answer of the Commander-in-Chief directed the Curlew, and, we believe, the Thistle, to be immediately got ready for sea, and further stated that he himself would almost immediately come north. With the actual contents of the despatches we are not of course acquainted, but we assume nothing in asserting that they pointed to a very unsatisfactory state of affairs. The fact that H.M. Minister at Peking—proverbially one of the least timid of men when the possibility of a Chinese outbreak is suggested to him—has thought the situation at Tientsin sufficiently grave to authorise the despatch of a special overland courier to the naval authorities, asking that men-of-war may be sent northwards, gives the "rumour" to which we have drawn attention an ugly significance. We are, of course, compelled to write in almost entire ignorance of how far the communication made to the foreign Ministers by the Peking authorities implied immediate danger, and only judge of its probable gravity in the light of Mr. Wade's action.

Our Foochow correspondent writes:—The R. C. Fei-Hoo has just returned from her fifth trip to the islands of Ockseu, where another lighthouse is in course of construction, and reports that the buildings are rising rapidly; the cook-house and store-rooms were finished a month ago, and the dwelling house (a fine six roomed one) is now about eight feet above the floor level; two enormous water tanks have been built in and will each hold about 3,000 gallons of water, and the light tower is now well-nigh finished, they having only one tier more of stone to lay. It is thirty-two feet high, and is a splendid piece of masonry. It is expected that by the end of March everything will be finished; this is smart work, and reflects great credit on the Assistant Engineer in charge, viz., Mr. Fawcett. This light is to be the most powerful one on the China coast, will be a revolving light, and will (owing to its great height 300 feet), be visible at a distance of over twenty-six miles.

The tower is built entirely of Ningpo stone, and was put temporarily together at Ningpo, and was afterwards brought down to Foochow in five large junks, and these again were towed from Foochow to Ockseu by the Fei-Hoo.

The Foochow Herald has the following on the Arsenal:—

The contracts of the foreign employés in the Arsenal at the Pagoda Anchorage terminated on the 12th. We understand that the sum of Tls. 60,000 was handed to the director—Monsieur Giquel—by the Imperial Government, for distribution amongst the European staff, and that the amount has been allotted in sums varying from about $7,000 to $150, in proportion to rank and length of service. Honorary rewards have also been conferred by the Emperor upon Monsieur Giquel and his staff. Monsieur Giquel receives the Order of Merit of the 1st class, and has been promoted to the rank of an official of the 1st class (Civil) Ti-tu, with the right to wear the "Yellow Jacket" (Imperial colour), an honour rarely conferred even upon Chinamen, Monsieur Giquel sharing the distinction alone with Colonel Gordon, the celebrated and honest leader of the Anglo-Chinese forces during the Taeping Rebellion. Monsieur Segonzac and Captain Tracy, R.N., have each received the decoration of the Order of Merit of the 1st class, in addition to the rank of third class officials. Messieurs Zédé, Jouvet, and Borel have been created Officials of the fourth class, and have received the Order of Merit of the first class. Dr. Poujade and Messieurs Roussett, Medard, Jules Giquel, Carroll, and Allan are given the fourth class Official rank, and the second class Order of Merit. Messieurs Robin and Brossement are created fourth class Officials, and have received a gold medal. Messieurs Guerrin, Dessant, Louis, Marzin, Pirey, Skey, Le Marchand, Pethou, Harwood, Saunders, Cubouret, Latouche and Rivasseau are created fifth class Officials, and have received a gold medal. Messieurs Schideker, Peter, Raffeman, Gueraud, Dueaneau, Boulineau, Robeson, Decanchins, Pailler, Certe Besancon, Piron, Rabillie, A. Serreau, Vidlou, Muller, Pous, Gosselin, Rey, Vastel, Kerdraon, Estienne, Beloin, and Roberdean are given the sixth class Official rank, and receive a silver medal.

In addition to the above rewards, we are informed that the Chinese Government have given two months' pay and free passages home to the entire foreign staff.

Before taking their departure the foreign employes presented Monsieur Giquel with an address.

At the meeting of the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Company, a copy of whose report we gave in our last, the Chairman, Hon. J. Whittall, observed that the accounts for the last six months had not been so good as might have been wished, but he hoped they were satisfactory. This bad state of things was owing to the dulness of trade during the season. The system of economy at the beginning of the present year had worked better than was anticipated, and promised to continue to do well. The chairman, however, did not recommend a dividend, but the question was, what was to be done with the earnings of last year. He urged their appropriation for the reduction of the debt; in this he spoke for himself as well as for the other directors. With the large debt hanging over their heads their position could not be strong, and the sooner it was reduced the better it would be. It might be that some of the shareholders were dependent mainly on the dividend for their income, but he thought such shareholders were very few. But, moreover, the paying off of the debt tended to improve their position ultimately. As regards the steamer Fame a large sum (some $1,500) had been spent on repairs, and she was now in as good a condition as ever. The report was unanimously adopted.

Upon the occasion of the opening of the Concordia Hall, Canton, Mr. Giden Nye, jun., delivered an interesting inaugural address, in which he reviewed some of the important events which had lately taken place in China.

A Canton correspondent writes:—A vessel has been built in Canton, of which vague reports have been about, but now the vessel is afloat and anchored in the river, just opposite the Medical Missionary Hospital. In exterior appearance it resembles the sea going junk with large eyes, but side wheels mar the outline of the junk pattern, and the absence of the smoke pipe leaves a sense of imperfection in the mind of one who connects side wheels with the idea of a steamer.

The motive power, however, is cold water, and the only wonder is that it has been left to a Chinaman to apply so simple a mode of propelling vessels. The perfection of an invention is its simplicity! Two overshot water wheels work the side shaft, which turns the side wheels, and at the same time work pumps which keep a supply of water in tanks above. The machinery is by no means complicated. The tanks and the propelling wheels are not yet in place, but they are all on board, and only wait the end of New Year's festivities to be set up, and then the number of knots will be tested by actual experiment!! Given a vessel of fifty tons and overshot water wheels of six feet diameter, with a constant supply of about 100 lbs. of water, and you have at least 10 knots, if the vessel goes with the tide! This vessel is built of teak in the best manner, has two cabins, and is designed as a present from a company of wealthy Chinese to his Excellency the Viceroy. The same company that built the side-wheel vessel are also building a smaller boat for this purpose. It is not yet launched, but may be seen in a shed at the south-west corner of the street immediately west of the residence of the Rev. C. F. Preston. These boats are built by a company of nine wealthy Chinese, and it is said they have spent on them not less than $6,000. As they are intended for presents to the Viceroy, no expense is spared.

The side wheel vessel already launched is attracting the attention of resident Europeans, and doubtless crowds of visitors from your colony and the ports will soon be attracted to Canton. A second inspection has satisfied me that the power to turn the water wheel will not exceed 50 lbs. of water on a leverage of 2½ feet, the semi-diameter of the wheel. This cannot move the machinery, even if the principle was a feasible one. The shareholders will learn a costly lesson, and their experiment will not be without its good results.

The following notification appears in the Gazette:—The Governor has been pleased to fix $1,000 as the limit of compensation to persons who may build on land at Kowloong under garden leases, and whose property may be resumed for public purposes before the expiration of the period for which it has been let. The Government will grant compensation to the extent of two-thirds of the value of the building. No compensation will be paid on resumption by Government of any lot, the lease of which has expired through effluxion of time; but they may rest assured that, unless the land is required for public improvements, the leases which have been or may be issued to them in the first instance will be renewed for a further period of fourteen years, under similar conditions.

The cricket match between the Coast Visitors and the H. K. C. C. has not resulted quite as well for the former as did the races—if that be any consolation. The scores for Monday and Tuesday stood as follows:—

1st Innings.—Coast Visitors, 86; H. K. C. C., 159.
2nd Innings.—Coast Visitors, 28; H. K. C. C., 202.
Hong Kong thus winning by 247 runs.

A match and a race for the Shanghai Cup came off on the 23rd at the race course, as under:

Grasshopper v. Vis-a-Vis, weight for inches, for $500. 1½ miles. Won by Grasshopper. Time, 3m. 29sec.

Shanghai Cup: $50. For all beaten ponies at the meeting that have not been placed. 1½ miles. Six started, the first three coming in as under:—Black Prince 1, Coroner 2, Sauce 3.

An effort is being made by Mr. Everitt, of the Hong Kong Photographic Company, to photograph the remarkable series of pictures now in the City Hall Museum, illustrative of the ten Buddhist Hells. It is not certain that their strong and gaudy colours will bear reproduction by photography, but, if successful, the effort will give students of Chinese life an interesting set of illustrations. It is, we believe, proposed to issue them with short letter press descriptions.

The Macao correspondent of the Daily Press says:—The second election of a deputy for Macao in the Portuguese Parliament took place on March 1st, and the result was that the Government party won by six votes against the popular party. The total number of votes was 479, of which Pinto Basto obtained 241, Dr. Magalhaes 235, Dr. Maher 2, and Capt. Tassara 1. The result has caused considerable disappointment among the general community, and would not have been obtained but for the admission, which is said not to be according to law, of nineteen persons to vote who had only recently arrived from Lisbon.

The Government party used the most strenuous exertions to obtain this result, and complaints are made of the pressure exerted by them.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 12th March; the P. and O. mail from London Feb. 6 arrived out on the 10th March.

Our Singapore files have unfortunately not come to hand by this mail.

PENANG.

The Penang Gazette says:—The Colonial steamer Pluto arrived here with four or five of the soldiers' wives belonging to the relieving detachment of the 10th Regiment which arrived in the Thalia the following day. She took back about the same number of women belonging to the relieved detachment and about forty convicts. She put in on her way up at Malacca and dropped the Chief Justice, who was to have opened the Criminal Sessions there on Monday last, and she is to call for his Honour on her way back. This arrangement is complete; but we confess that to our thinking it is rather a costly one—allowing six days' steaming for the voyage, and giving the vessel an average consumption of twenty tons of coals a day, which is a moderate allowance for her, the transporting of nine soldiers' wives, a Chief Justice, and forty convicts a distance of three hundred and fifty miles will have cost the colony at least $2,000. The same number of people might have been conveyed by any of the steamers plying between this port and Singapore for $300 at the most. We are aware that the Pluto conveyed a few provisions to the lighthouse and to the North Sands Lightship, and that this may be termed the original object of her voyage; but $1,700 (deducting $300 for passengers) is rather too high a price to pay monthly for supplying two lights with provisions. There is no earthly reason, as far as we can see, why Government should not subsidise one of the regular trading steamers, such as the Sharpshooter, or any of her line, to keep up the communication and to carry stores from the different settlements to the lighthouses, and thus save the colony the enormous outlays which the trips of the Pluto entail on it.

On the Immigration Act the Gazette says:—Whatever may have been the causes which called for the passing of the Chinese Immigration ordinance, there can be little doubt of the effects, the bare probability of its being enforced, have produced on the immigration to this Settlement; notwithstanding the increased facilities offered by innumerable steamers to encourage men to come here, it happens that immigration from China has been virtually at a stand still for the last six months. Did the Act benefit the immigrants or give them any positive protection we should rejoice at its enforcement; but since it does not, like all uncalled-for legislation, it can only be productive of harm. We give two instances as examples of how the provisions of the Act can be evaded, and coolies be subjected thereby to all kinds of ill-treatment in the neighbouring Malay states. We have known a steamer arrive outside the harbour limits and wait there until her captain had assured himself that the new Act was not in force before he would venture to come into the port; and we now hear that the same vessel has proceeded from Swatow or Amoy direct to Tongkah, where she will land a portion of her cargo, consisting of 800 passengers, we believe, and thence steam in here with as many men as she is allowed to carry by our law. If the Act before it has actually been put in operation causes such results what, we ask, will be the effects of it when it is enforced? Had the Government acted in concert with, or waited till the other civilised Powers joined them in one united course of legislation to control the Chinese coolie traffic, matters would have been different; but as it is, instead of benefiting the coolies they are doing them more harm than good, and furthermore by their legislation are interfering with legitimate enterprise in the province, by stopping immigration at a time when that country is being drained of its labour to meet the hourly increasing demand for Laroot.

The Charybdis, seventeen guns, is to relieve the Thalia on this station. When last heard of the former had reached Aden on her way out here from England.

His Honour Sir Wm. Hackett left for Singapore per P. and O. steamer Zambesi, in order we understand, to assist in the framing rules for the conduct of proceedings under the new Courts Act, in conjunction with the Chief Justice. His Honour is expected to return by the mail steamer on the 14th.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The Chinese new year had intervened, which coupled with the breaking out of an insurrection in the south, had tended to further restrict business. Yarn had again declined considerably, and the market was thoroughly stagnant; Shirtings had been in limited demand at lower rates; sales of velvets had been made at a further reduction, and in Woollens there had been but little doing. Further heavy supplies of Metals had come to hand, prices had receded, and the market was quiet.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—The month had been characterised by extreme dulness. Business had been confined within narrow limits, chiefly owing, it may be assumed, to the Japanese New Year holidays, which though officially abolished, were still observed by the greater mass of the population. Cottons.—Yarns: Prices for No. 16-24 had hardened, and were almost on a par with Nos. 28-32. Grey Shirtings: Deliveries had been on a fair scale, chiefly on old contracts, but prices were weaker at the close. Taffachelass: A good business had resulted, at easier rates. Worsted and Woollens: In Black Orleans some sales were noted, but prices were not so well supported. Mousselines were quiet. Prices for seasonable Cloths were almost nominal, in the absence of any demand worth speaking of. Iron: For Nail-rod the demand had slackened, and prices were lower.

SHANGHAI.—During the interval the Chinese had been engaged chiefly in celebrating their New Year. Occasionally, a transaction had been reported, but generally the quantity of goods changing hands had been insufficient to make a market.

FOOCHOW.—The following sales are reported:—500 pieces 7¼ lbs., Mexican T-Cloths at $2.17½ per piece, and 500 pieces 7 lbs. Grey Shirtings at $2.27½ per piece.

HONG KONG.—A fair amount of business had been done, and the market was considered to have fairly opened, but at prices which show that holders have very little confidence in the future. There had been great anxiety displayed on the part of the importers to press sales, and the dealers had taken advantage of the position to establish a lower range of prices.

CANTON.—Foreigners appeared anxious sellers of Lead since receipt by telegram of lower prices ruling at home. Sales had been effected of 800 pigs at $8.55 to $8.70 for soft brands; Quicksilver on the other hand had materially advanced, the quotation was $190, and at that figure a sale of 30 flasks had been effected.

BATAVIA.—The market had shown a little less dulness, the demand having become rather more general, and now that the Chinese new year holidays were at an end, it was hoped that inquiry would further develop itself. Prices, however, were extremely low, and covering rates were as a rule unobtainable unless long credit be given.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead's Report says:—The arrivals with general cargoes are the steamers Yorkshire and Cawdor Castle from London, and Hector from Liverpool. A moderate business had been done in Piece Goods during the fortnight. Grey Goods had been in less enquiry, but stocks are not heavy and prices have been maintained. 36 inch Grey Shirtings: 8¼ lbs. taken at $2.40 for common and $2.42½ for good makes. 7 lbs. have received some attention; sales at $2 to 2.2½. 6 lbs. continue very dull of sale. 45 inch: Retail transactions only in 9 lbs. at $2.85 to 2.87½ and in 8 lbs. at $2.37½. 32 inch T.-Cloths: 7 lbs. Mexican are in small supply and are asked for at $1.90 to 1.95. 7 lbs. ordinary are dull at $1.65 to 1.67½. 6 lbs. continue in fair request at $1.50 to 1.52½. Light weights are in poor demand. 40's Grey Yarn: A fair amount of business done at $1.20. 30's Yarn neglected and sales of 18 to 24's can only be made at very low prices. T. Red Yarn is scarce, and higher prices could be obtained. Light and Dark shades of Green have been in some request. Medium is not wanted. Orange Yarn is out of stock. No inquiry for Yellow. Imperial Red continued dull of sale. Woollens: Scarlet Camlets are in some demand at $19½ to 20. Scarlet Long Ells 12 lbs. and 9 lbs. are saleable at a moderate extent. Bombazettes have been neglected. Spanish Stripes can be placed in small quantities. Assorted and Black Lastings meet with some enquiry. Iron is steady at about former prices. A sale of Govan flat bar is reported at $4.81 "to arrive." Nailrod quiet at $4.35. Hoop is in limited request at $5½.

PENANG.—There had been an active demand during the fortnight for some of the principal staple; 6 lbs. and 7 lbs. T-Cloths, 6 lbs. and 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, and the low qualities of White Cambrics had commanded the most attention, and stocks of the ordinary qualities of these goods, with the exception of 8¼ lbs. Shirtings, had been cleared. Prices had not undergone any change, but the tendency was firmer.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—The market had shown a little more animation, and settlements for the fortnight had amounted to about 4,000 piculs: the demand had been chiefly for medium and good medium grades, with some few parcels of the finest. Prices ruled as before, and stocks in first hands were light and of rather inferior quality; arrivals had been moderate, and had not exceeded 1,500 piculs. There had been no further exports. Export from June 1, to date, 10,539,817 lbs., against 10,336,345 for corresponding period last season.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—During the month purchases had been made to the extent of 4,000 piculs, at prices showing no change on last quotations. Stock, 2,000 piculs. The steamer Atalanta, left on the 4th Feb. for New York direct, via Suez Canal, with 203,969 lbs.

HANKOW, KIUKIANG, FOOCHOW, AMOY.—The season at these ports was over.

SHANGHAI.—Black: There has been none on offer. Green: Owing to the Chinese New Year holidays, business had been almost entirely suspended. Prices showed no change.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co.'s Report says:—Our market has been very quiet, and our season may now be looked upon as closed. It is estimated that our total export to Great Britain for this season will be less by 4,750,000 lbs. than the year preceding, made up as following: short in Congou 2,000,000 lbs., Scented Caper 900,000 lbs., Scented Orange Pekoe 1,000,000 lbs., and Green Teas 800,000 lbs.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—During the fortnight dealers had shown some desire to sell their stocks, but the quality on offer being very undesirable, actual settlements had been but small. On account of the lower prices ruling here than up country, arrivals had been small, and the stock showed a reduction. Prices generally were weak, and may be quoted $10 to $15 lower; some parcels of coarse kinds were on offer, but no business had taken place in them. Settlements to date, 11,300 bales. Stock, 2,000 bales.

SHANGHAI.—Owing to the Chinese holidays business had been much interfered with, and transactions had been too trifling to allow of quotations being given. The only quotable sales had been Koo-Fong-Sings No. 3 at Tls. 445, with No. 3½ at Tls. 425; Tsu-Khe-Yuen's Kahing "Kinling" at Tls. 300; and some market No. 1 Shoongs at Tls. 260. Settlements for the fortnight 300 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 1873, 51,700 bales; against 1872, 53,700 bales; 1871, 47,200 bales. Comparatively unsold Stock on this market 26th Feb. 3,000 bales; 1873, 700 bales; 1872, 800 bales.

CANTON.—Business had been confined to a small compass, and only very trifling settlements were reported. Holders had become more anxious to sell, and would in many instances accept lower prices than were asked previous to the commencement of the holidays, but the stock of middling and common sorts offered little inducement to purchase, and no really good silk of the different classifications was obtainable.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

THE SUEZ CANAL TARIFF.

CONSTANTINOPLE, APRIL 9.—In its first reply to M. de Lesseps's letter the Porte expressed readiness to grant his request for a postponement of the application of the new Suez Canal tariff. The Porte, however, having subsequently received from the English, Austrian, German, and Italian Governments a protest against any such postponement, telegraphed yesterday to the Khedive rejecting the demand made by M. de Lesseps. The French Government declared that it did not consider that it was entitled to influence the decision of the Porte. The Russian Government stated that it had no objection to the postponement requested. The Giornale delle Colonie states that M. de Lesseps has formally protested against the order issued by the Turkish Government for the execution of the decisions of the International Tonnage Commission. It also says it is believed that he intends abandoning the scheme for a reform of the measurement of vessels, and proposes, instead, an increase of the pilot-tax.

CONSTANTINOPLE, APRIL 12.—The Giornale delle Colonie is believed to have been misinformed in stating that M. de Lesseps intends increasing the pilot tax, as at the sitting of the International Tonnage Commission, on the 1st December last, Edhem Pasha made the following declaration:—"No modification can be made for the future in the conditions of transit, even as regards towing, anchorage, or pilotage, excepting with the assent of the Sublime Porte, which will confer and agree with the chief Powers interested before coming to any determination upon such questions."

THE ATCHIN WAR.

PENANG, APRIL 10.—The Dutch have declared several ports in Atchin open to trade.

THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

Without ceremony of any kind, but in a practical, business-like way the Exhibition at South Kensington was opened to the public on Monday last. First among those who entered was Mr. Henry Cole, C.B., who, with Captain Clayton, Lieutenant Cole, and a few other of the leading directors who chanced to be present, comprised all that gave even a semblance of officialism to the beginning of the season of 1874. In truth there seems to have been rather an effort to oblige the public by throwing open the portals thus early, when in several important and what will probably be attractive departments scarcely even the preliminary preparations appear to have been made. Thus the Indian Court is for the present a sealed room; the French division is bare of all but a few bronze figures huddled together as if rather ashamed of their loneliness, and in several other sections of the Exhibition there has obviously been somewhat of hurry to get up to time. Exhibits from Germany in one class, exhibits from far Japan in another, do little more than give promise of what may be expected when a few days more have elapsed and exhibitors have had time and opportunity to place their treasures in something like order. The promised competition among the wine-growers of the world must needs be deferred until May, chiefly owing to the delay of the French and the tardiness of the Portuguese. Leaving out these exceptions, there is still an abundant show to occupy the attention of visitors. The lace department alone presents a display of costly and curious productions such as can very rarely be seen in this country. A special stand in this division is devoted to specimens and photographs of Russian lace, lent by the Duchess of Edinburgh, and it need hardly be said that these shared, along with other more elaborate displays, the particular attention of lady visitors. Another division of the Exhibition that reappears in full glory is the Museum of Economic Fish Culture—a combination of an aquarium on a small scale with a museum well-stocked with curious specimens of odd fish. The sections devoted to machinery in motion, printing, sewing, bookbinding, and various mechanical industries are also in full play. The picture galleries, if scarcely so fully furnished or so varied as in former years, are specially rich in works of deceased masters of the British school, notably Wilkie, Constable, and Egg. The Belgian gallery contains a large collection of the works of Flemish artists, but there is still a large gap to fill on the arrival of the lighter works of the French exhibitors, which, as is duly notified, are not expected until May. Outside the building itself temporary buildings are approaching completion to receive the various supplementary exhibits that add no small charm, and certainly give a relief to the more regular display within the walls. A sort of bijou refreshment room has been tastefully fitted up for the sale of Vienna beer, together with those solid accompaniments, such as German sausages, that are not unfrequently associated with this particular light beverage.

Entering by the principal door in the Exhibition-road, the first object of interest is the diving-bell, with other apparatus for walking about comfortably at the bottom of the sea, and these objects are fitly followed by a corridor full of models of lightships and lifeboats. Conspicuous among the former is a beautiful little model of the Goodwin, the new light-ship provided by the Trinity Board for those well-known fatal shifting sands. Hard by is a huge clock, with a barometrical apparatus for registering from hour to hour the state of the weather. The building contrivances and materials—a comprehensive class of objects—stretch away beyond all this, but are as yet hardly forward enough to attract many visitors. The long gallery, which shone like a rainbow last year with silks and satins of every possible and impossible tint and hue of earth or sky, is now devoted to one of the most carefully-arranged collections of ancient lace which has ever been exhibited. Revolving screens and glass cases are filled with modern lace, from Brussels, from Irish schools, and from Devonshire villages, whose cunning stitches run those made centuries ago very close indeed. The collection begins with a screen on whose revolving leaves are displayed not only specimens of historical lace, but photographs from old pictures, showing how the quaint ruffles and coppets were worn in the 15th and 16th centuries. In the middle of the avenue of saddlery, of harness, of whips, of leather trappings of all sorts and kinds, stands a case of Japanese leather work. The sheets of dark but supple leather pierced into the semblance of fine lace work have elicited much admiration from both experts and amateurs. In the rooms between the galleries, whose spacious balconies look out on the Horticultural Gardens, are arranged with exquisite artistic skill and harmony various specimens of decorative art as it may be applied to furniture and hangings. In one of these rooms are some beautiful examples of Fine Art Pottery, including a collection of ware exhibited by Mintons, showing what can be done with coloured porcelain clays. In these plateaux the effect is obtained by staining the porcelain and firing it in the biscuit oven, instead of painting it in the usual manner, and it is only the gilding which is treated by the ordinary process. Here also are magnificent shields of Damascene work in silver and gold; and a smaller specimen of the same delicate handicraft is shown in a large pendant of Holbeinesque design made by Bragg, of Birmingham, and offering a fine example of English enamelling and inlaying. The large pair of cases filled with tapestries and curtain borders designed and executed at the School of Art Needlework, under the special patronage of Princess Christian, display some really beautiful samples of what female fingers can achieve even in these modern and degenerate days. In the Fish Museum Mr. Frank Buckland has on view living specimens of the Proteus, from the Cave of Adelsberg, the Axolott, or Devil Fish, from Mexico, splendid specimens of lake trout from Neuchatel, and enough of odd specimens alive or dead to fill a whole cauldron with weird and mystic charms. The process of salmon hatching and cultivation is shown as usual, as are also numerous life-size casts of extraordinary fish of this family that have been caught in British waters within recent periods. Mr. Buckmaster's lectures in the national school of cookery will be resumed on Saturday afternoons, and will be illustrated as heretofore by practical proofs of what may yet be accomplished in the way of culinary art and economy.

In number of pictures there is certainly no falling off this year, whatever may be said as to the quality of the works which cover the walls of the galleries, the screens, and even the staircases. The mere mechanical estimate of this vast conglomeration of pictures in oil and water colour, by artists known and unknown, British and foreign, will give some idea of the quantity of fine art material which has been got together. Including sculpture, the architectural drawings, the engravings, and photographs, the catalogue tells of about 5,000 works. This, at any rate, affords ample proof that painting is flourishing amongst the nations as an industrial art.

THE CHINESE COMMISSIONERS—THE COOLIE TRADE.

(NEW YORK HERALD.)

HAVANA, MARCH 19, 1874.

The Chinese Commissioners have arrived at last, and their countrymen are expecting an alleviation of their present sad condition. The usual tactics of the Spaniards have already begun; and seeing that blustering did not prevent the Commissioners from coming, they are now treating them with ridiculous mock courtesy. Shortly after their arrival the Havana Board of Aldermen sent a commission composed of three members to welcome the Commissioners, and the latter called on the Captain General, who received them in a very affable manner, as Spanish officials of high rank always do their visitors. Later in the afternoon, Mr. Dunlop, the British Consul General, was with them, and to-day they will receive from the French and German Consuls information gathered by these gentlemen by express order of their Governments. It is understood that the Consul of the United States has only been ordered to show every civility and give all assistance to the Commissioners, but he has no special orders to frame reports for their guidance. The Diario publishes an extract from a Spanish journal this morning, which states that the American and English Secretaries attached to the commission had used every effort to obtain letters of introduction from prominent people in Spain to prominent people here, as if such letters could be of the slightest use, or an Embassy would go about begging for letters of introduction to private parties, like a commercial "drummer." The paragraph also states that these letters were not asked for Chen Lan Pin, the chief of the commission, and that they were refused by the parties of whom they were asked by the agents of the insurgents. The whole story is undoubtedly a fabrication, as the commission is not here to bother about the insinuation, but to devise means by which the Spanish Government may be induced to abolish the laws now in force condemning the Chinaman to a state of perpetual servitude. An advertisement in the Diario calls on all persons desirous of purchasing Chinamen to come forward at once and apply for those who are to arrive on the steamer Rosa, the advertisement laying particular stress on the fact that this will be the last lot to arrive toward which the purchasers will not have to enter into obligations to pay their passage back to China, just as if the purcaaser could not get rid of such obligations even if it existed. The Chinese element could have been made a source of great wealth to the islands, but the planters were too accustomed to slavery not to try to reduce the Chinaman to the condition of a slave. If planters would deposit the necessary amount for their return passage at the port of embarkation, and pay them a reasonable salary, there is no doubt that Chinamen would continue to come here and work—this, of course, if that very uncertain thing a return to peace should take place, but if the war continues, as there is every probability it will, the Chinaman will manage to eke out an existence where men of European descent would starve.

THE LOSS OF THE "KWANGCHOW."—A Board of Trade inquiry into the loss of the steamer Kwangchow, while on a voyage from Liverpool to Hong Kong, via the Suez Canal, has been held at Greenwich Police-court. The vessel stranded about sixty miles from Cape Guardafui, on the African coast. Immediately she was boarded by between 200 and 300 armed natives, who commenced taking away everything of value, threatening the officers and crew with death by brandishing knives, swords, and spears. Later in the day a chief of the native tribe came on board, and offered to leave four armed natives on board to prevent the plundering. Capt. Duncan held a council, at which it was decided to abandon the Kwangchow, and accordingly all the crew left, with the exception of the second officer, Mr. George, Quartermaster Mansbridge, and a seaman named Piscoe, who tried to save the vessel, with the assistance of several of the crew of the Singapore, who were wrecked there a short time previously. Before the salvage could be affected, the vessel broke up, and the three men, by hoisting signals, attracted the attention of a passing steamer, and were taken to Aden. The rest of the crew had been picked up and landed at Point de Galle. The Court acquitted Capt. Duncan of the charge of improperly abandoning the vessel, though they regretted that the courage of the crew generally had not been equal to that of the three men who remained behind, and, in consideration of the stranding of the ship, suspended his certificate for a month.

AT a meeting of the Russian Geographical Society, held on the 19th ult., General Heine, late in the United States Service, read a paper on the progress of civilisation in Japan, in which he related the following remarkable story:—A young Japanese who was sent to America to study, receiving from his Government an allowance of $1,000 per annum, embraced Christianity and became a Methodist. According to Japanese law he was punishable by death. Considering he was bound to notify the fact to his Government, he wrote home and renounced all further claim to his allowance. The Government of Yedo thereupon instituted inquiries in America into the manner in which the young man was following his studies; the result of these being in his favour, all the reply that he obtained from the Japanese Government in answer to his notification was an increase of his annual allowance to $1,500.

ACCOUNTS have been received from Colonel Gordon, who has succeeded Sir Samuel Baker in the mission which was entrusted to him by the Khedive for rooting out slavery in the country lying between Egypt and Abyssinia. The Colonel had reached Suakin at the end of February, and was to proceed in a day or two to Berber, where he intended to organise his forces. The Khedive has given Colonel Gordon full powers for his mission, but he has declined any higher title than that of commander of the expedition, and has himself cut down by four-fifths the salary allowed him by the Viceroy.

THE Mayor of Brighton has published an abstract of the expenses incurred by Professor Fawcett and Mr. James White (the late members) at the recent election for the borough. The ordinary expenses were paid jointly, but as Professr Fawcett did not employ any paid agent or canvassers, his total is only £373 19s., while Mr. White's is £514 3s. 7d. For so large a constituency the totals for a contested election are very small. The official return of the expenses attendant on the election for the city of Oxford is as follows:—Lord Cardwell's, £1,346 13s. 5d.; and Sir William Harcourt's, £1,233.

A RETURN issued by the Treasury shows that the gross amount received by the Post-office during the year 1872 in respect of telegraphic messages, private and special wire rentals, was £1,359,652, less £389,569, the amounts paid to submarine telegraph for message receipts collected on their behalf, and to postmasters for special deliveries. In the same period the amount expended by the Post-office for salaries, rent, and maintenance was £825,275, but this sum was exceptionally high, as it included payments which, though made in 1872, were proper to the two previous years.

THE employés of the Thames Conservancy have succeeded in raising the Princess Somiwatty, a large outward-bound barque, which was sunk about a mile below Gravesend three weeks ago by one of the P. and O. Company's steamers. Two lighters, with powerful machinery, have been employed in the work of lifting, which has been one of considerable duration. Hugh chains were successfully placed under the ship's bottom on the 4th inst., and since then she has been lifted by degrees with successive tides, and towed to a position close inshore.

AMONG the passengers by the P. and O. steamer Australia, which arrived at Southampton on the 6th inst., were twenty-one officers and crew of the steam-ship Queen Elizabeth. All the bodies, excepting three, of the persons lost in the wreck of that vessel have been recovered.

THE China Trans-Pacific Steamship Company's steamer Vancouver arrived at Port Said on the 3rd inst., in eleven and a half days from the Isle of Wight, and left Suez for Hong Kong on the 6th inst.; all well.

THE Nederland Company's mail steamer Konig der Nederlanden, from Southampton 27th Feb., arrived at Batavia on the 8th inst., and the Company's steamer Prins van Oranje left on the same day for Southampton.

ON the 4th inst. a deputation from the French residents in Japan presented M. Thiers with a set of chimney ornaments, manufactured in Yokohama.

At a meeting of the shareholders of the Trident Marine Insurance Company on the 10th inst. it was decided to wind up.

LONDON: MONDAY, APRIL 13, 1874.

CHINESE CUSTOMS' SERVICE—WHAT IT HAS NOT DONE.

A REPORT has been going the round of the London papers recently, to the effect that the Director-General of Customs, Mr. HART, had instructed his subordinates in Chinese employ to prepare for publication a series of statistical, geographical, and historical reports upon the several provinces of China, in which the Treaty Ports open to foreign trade are situated. A paragraph to this effect, apparently inspired, first appeared in the Athenæum. We hail the report with satisfaction, and we trust before long to pass in review the production in question. It is indeed, we venture to affirm, high time that the costly and extensive staff of the Chinese Customs should justify its existence. For nearly twenty years the Service has now run an unchecked career, attaining, under the guidance of its present chief, a prominence,—and, if report speaks truly, a power—which justifies us in expecting something at its hands. Surely a Service which spends probably £150,000 sterling in annual salaries may well be expected to number in its ranks able, educated, and scholarly men, competent to deal with fiscal and commercial questions in a liberal and enlightened spirit, and capable, too, of advising and convincing the Chinese officials with whom they are in daily contact of the undoubted superiority of Western methods and of the incontrovertible axioms of political economy. It may be that this is so, but we have seen no signs at present of any leavening power, any quickening, vivifying progressive impulse originating with the Customs' Service. At times, indeed, we have been inclined to think that whatever influence the Chinese Customs may exercise is employed to bolster up and support existing anomalies, and that its employés are contented to consider themselves as mere clerks—registrars and executors of the commercial decrees of their Chinese masters.

We have no means of knowing the cost at which the Service is administered, but we dare aver that the sum is one of considerable moment, and we have a right to expect, in the general interests of Europeans in China, that efficiency and economy should both be kept steadily and unwaveringly in view. As regards economy, we have, as we have just said, no data on which to base an opinion or a criticism, but we cannot be blind to the fact that a niggardly expenditure in regard to public works of general utility is too often the order of the day, and is not unfrequently aggravated and made more painfully apparent by lavish and unnecessary expenditure in out of the way directions. As regards the efficiency of the Service, we have better opportunities of judging, and, with all possible respect for the undoubted abilities of Mr. HART, we do not hesitate to say that the Service he has organised is at best of doubtful value and utility. For the initiation of the Service Mr. HART is not responsible, but during a period of about fifteen years he has controlled and guided its destinies; and we make bold to say that it is but seldom in the course of generations that a man enjoys so great and favourable an opportunity of moulding, and shaping, and wielding an instrument of such amazing possibilities and powers. With a practical carte blanche, in regard to expenditure, it might have been thought that the Controller of the Service would have inaugurated some reforms, or have induced the Chinese to depart from their time-honoured Toryism and its stereotyped jog-trot. Something even in this direction we might not unreasonably have expected, for the Customs has in the revenue which it collects a standing point and a resting-place for the lever of Western civilisation, with which the Chinese empire must infallibly, at no distant date, be moved.

But passing over this, as necessitating political action, and therefore beyond its sphere, we ask what sign of vitality, of beneficial progressive influence, has the Customs' Service to urge as a reason for its continued existence? It has not advanced our commercial relations one iota, for we have nothing now that the wise prescience of Lord ELGIN did not claim for us in his treaty fifteen years ago. It has not assisted us in regard to social intercourse, for the gulf between Europe and China yawns just as widely as ever. It has not spread knowledge of European institutions in the country, for a European is, we believe, still regarded everywhere, save in the foreign settlements, as a social pariah to be hooted at, stoned, spat upon, and treated with contumely. Lastly, it has done literally nothing in the way of making China known to Europe, and this notwithstanding the enormous facilities at its command. During the past twenty years crowds of books and pamphlets on China of more or less value have issued from the press. Hosts of students, consular and missionary, have entered upon the field of Chinese study, and not a few have already well won their spurs. But while among missionaries we can recall without trouble the names of WILLIAMSON, DUDGEON, PORTER, SMITH, TURNER, BALDWIN, MOULE, and others, who have made themselves conspicuously useful during the past decade, and among consular officials MEDHURST, MAYERS, ADKINS, WATTERS, and others, we seek in vain among the well-paid officials of the Customs' Service for any token that the outside world is held in view at all, or for any proof that the Service really contains that proportion of educated and cultivated men which Europe, as well as China, has a right to expect to find in its professedly representative and cosmopolitan ranks. True, Mr. MACPHERSON has written a brilliant account of Manchuria, Mr. DICK has published an admirable report on the trade of Tientsin, and Mr. TAINTOR a most exhaustive and interesting account of that terra incognita, Hainan; but with these exceptions we are not aware of any efforts made by the Customs' Service to utilise the resources at its disposal. We therefore hail Mr. HART'S intended publication with much satisfaction, and trust it will not only justify the continued existence of the Service, but will serve to dispel the impression now very generally prevalent, that its ranks merely afford a refuge for the untutored.

THE WAR IN ATCHIN.

THE latest news of the Atchinese is that the Rajah of GIGHEN has accepted the conditions imposed by General VAN SWIETEN. He has consequently been maintained in power, and the blockade of Gighen has been raised. This information was received at the Hague last week. We are not told the nature of the conditions made, nor is it known what part the Rajah has been hitherto playing in the war, but we may presume that the Dutch find themselves with heavy work still before them, otherwise they would not be taking pains to bring the subordinate chieftains—piecemeal fashion—to such terms as they can persuade them to accept. Sickness appears to have been inflicting terrible ravages among both the contending forces. Inside the Kraton "hundreds of dead Atchinese were "found, many emaciated, their faces blue and distorted, "showing that they . . . . . had been suffering fearfully "from cholera;" large numbers of their dead, too, were discovered in the neighbouring creeks and swamps. As to the Dutch troops, cholera (in February last) was still raging strongly amongst them. Thus two companies of negroes were reduced 25 per cent. in a short month, while to the convict coolies the disease has been equally fatal. And, as to the latter, boat-loads of them are sometimes drowned by swamping in the surf. We must say that this sort of thing is very hard upon the helpless convicts; where the coast is dangerous some safer landing-place could easily be found; and to suffer the launches to be dashed to pieces is a wanton sacrifice of human life, which reflects no credit on the Dutch officers in charge. They act very wisely in endeavouring to secure "secrecy" about such events as these. Meantime, we observe that in Holland itself the aim and ends of this Atchin war are beginning to draw a very strong share of public attention. General VERSPYCK is to supersede VAN SWIETEN in the chief command; it also turns out that the cost of the struggle has been hitherto met by the enormous profits realised on the sale of coffee. But coffee has now begun to fall, and there is a "sort of panic" in commercial circles in Rotterdam on that account. The Dutch budget is, in fact, a speculative one, depending on the fluctuating values of certain leading commodities. Should there prove to be a deficit some new tax at home will have to be imposed, and this, perhaps, may hurry on a settlement of the Sumatran difficulty. But if coffee goes up again, then woe to the Atchinese! the war will have to be continued to "the bitter end." For our part we should prefer to see the matter dealt with according to what may really be just and right, and not on a profit and loss system such as this. There is no longer any doubt that the Dutch comtemplate the annexation of Atchin, if that end can be accomplished without too much expenditure. If this was not their intention at the outset then all we can say is that they went to work in a very bungling and unstatesmanlike manner when they sought to get the SULTAN to accept their terms, and the consequence is that they have landed themselves in difficulties which we fear really leave them no course—consistent with their national honour—except to complete the subjugation of their enemy's dominion. They were wrong in the beginning, because they attempted to force their proposals on the Atchinese with too high a hand. The SULTAN was misled by depending on his unabrogated treaty with this country, and found himself left in the lurch. Finally, matters grew to such a head that the Atchinese refuse to receive the Dutch emissaries, to accept any terms whatever, or to hold relations other than hostile with their invaders. What can be done when an enemy has been beaten, and yet stubbornly declines to make peace? A fresh impediment has recently sprung up. The SULTAN is dead—so at least the report runs—and rivals are struggling amongst themselves for the possession of a crown for which no direct heir survives. Hence there is no authority really competent to sign a treaty. Meanwhile the Atchinese troops are at any rate undivided in their resolution to resist the Dutch, and are supposed to be fortifying new strongholds up country. It seems to us a hard matter for the Netherlands Government to find a dignified escape out of the complications and difficulties which thus surround them; and whether coffee go up or down, they will be forced to carry the warfare on, this year at any rate, and very probably next.

IT may be inferred from the Navy Estimates that the service of the Royal Marine battalion in Japan is not to be prolonged over the first half of the financial year.

Literature.

The publication of Ocean Highways having been discontinued, Mr. Markham has undertaken the editorship of The Geographical Magazine, issued under new proprietorship, but similar in character to the before-mentioned journal, the first number of which has been published by Messrs. Trübner and Co. Among the contents is an account of the journey undertaken by Staff-Captain N. M. Prshevalski, of the Russian army, in August, 1870, with the intention of exploring Mongolia and Tibet, and, if possible, entering India by way of H'Lassa and the Eastern Himalayas. Although he failed in this latter part of his scheme, he acquired most valuable scientific information on the geography, zoology, and botany of Mongolia and Northern Tibet.

Naval and Military.

The following officers, who last served in China, have been appointed as under:—Lieutenant T. C. HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, APRIL 8.

In waiting for the 16th, when the great Atchin battle will be fought in Parliament, there is a lull in politics. In the meanwhile the papers are still discussing the proposed annexation of Atchin. Both parties—Liberals and Conservatives—use every possible argument, the first to demonstrate that there was no after course to be adopted, the latter to prove that we are adopting a most hazardous policy, and that annexing Atchin will involve the destruction of Holland as a colonial Power. Rumours state that a league has been formed between the Radicals, Clericals, and Conservatives against the present Cabinet, and we are even assured that the members of the succeeding Ministry are already found. Time will show if this is true, but for our own part I think that if Mr. Fransen van de Putte should be defeated by such a league he would have no other choice than to dissolve the Chamber and to ask the nation to decide. There is, however, no question but that the 16th will be the "great day." A Ministerial crisis would be most inopportune now that we are near the 12th of May, when the national festival is to take place, for which preparations on the largest scale are being made throughout the country. It is said that the King will expend the money which was contributed for the present which it was intended he should receive on that day, for educating artists—which is, as is known, the hobby-horse of his Majesty.

It has created a good deal of surprise that not only did the Governor-General pass over without acknowledgment the courageous doings of our army in Atchin, but General van Swieten received no congratulations from Holland. Neither the King, the Cabinet, nor any State department congratulated him upon his victories.

Rumours are current about a marriage in the very highest life. I think it of no use to repeat the names of the parties, because there is not the least ground for the report. It, however, seems to be a fact that the King has bought a hotel in the Hague, which will be rebuilt as a palace for Prince Alexander. Perhaps I may be able to tell you more in my next letter.

The decision of the Parliamentary Commission upon the memorial of Mr. Winckel is generally disapproved by the press, which is of opinion that the action of Mr. Loudon was unjustified. The articles which were written by Mr. Winckel were imprudent, but not in the least insulting. What he did was also done by other journalists, who, nevertheless, are still in Java.

In our political circles it is widely rumoured that the Ministry will surprise the Opposition on the 16th by a sort of coup d'état by recalling the Governor-General, Mr. Loudon, who involved our country with somewhat too much haste in a war with Atchin. Perhaps it would be possible to win the parliamentary battle in that way.

On the Stock Exchange affairs are very dull, and no transactions of importance have taken place. It has created some surprise that the loan of ten millions on behalf of the Rotterdam Trading Society was not crowned with a complete success.

Monetary and Commercial.

The Indian Council, in pursuance of the power granted last month, have invited tenders for a Four per Cent. loan of £3,000,000, to be sent in on the 30th inst. The dividends will be payable on the 5th of April and the 5th of October, and the stock is not to be redeemable until the 10th of October, 1888, after which it may be paid off at par upon one year's notice. No tenders are to be for less than £500 stock, and each tender is to be accompanied by a deposit of £5 per cent., the balance being payable partly on allotment and the remainder by instalments extending to the 28th of July. For payment in full, discount at the rate of 4 per cent. will be allowed.

The report of the directors of the National Bank of India (Limited), to be presented on the 22nd inst., states that the net earnings of the bank for the year ended the 31st of December amount to £57,225; that a dividend for the year has been paid at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, and £25,000 placed to reserve, leaving £5,631 to be carried forward.

At the meeting of the Delhi and London Bank (Limited) the report stated that the net profits for the six months amounted to £9,914 3s. 8d., out of which a dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum was declared; £2,000 was set aside to meet deficiencies on realisations on the "lock-up" account, and the balance, £648 6s. 3d., was carried forward.

The Bank of Alexandria (Limited) have declared an interim dividend of 5s. per share, being 5 per cent. per annum for the six months ending the 28th February, payable on the 1st prox.

At a general court of the proprietors of the Bank of England Mr. Benjamin Buck Greene was re-elected Governor, and Mr. Henry Hucks Gibbs Deputy-Governor for the ensuing year.

Mr. William Sander Higley, who had been general manager of the London and Westminster Bank, Lothbury, since 1871, died on the 4th inst.

The receipts of the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company (Limited) for the month of March amounted to £19,530, against £17,988 in the corresponding period of 1873. The Eastern Telegraph Company's traffic receipts for the month amounted to £31,899, and to £33,572 in the corresponding period of 1873.

The Produce Markets Review prints the subjoined remarks upon the present condition of the Tea market:—

The state of depression of the tea trade during the last six or eight weeks has not, we believe, been witnessed for some years, and the causes of this condition are not, in our opinion, difficult of explanation. Throughout the autumn of last year prices were unusually low, and, as a natural consequence, a very large business was transacted. In November, however, when the lowest point of the market was reached, advices were received from China which indicated a probable falling off in the exports to Great Britain. The merchants had by this time reduced their holdings, and were consequently in a position to demand better prices, which they succeeded as a rule in obtaining; and, as trade continued active, values steadily tended upwards during December and the early part of January, till an average advance of nearly 1½d. per lb. was established. This, however, effectually checked the demand, for, as the trade generally held full stocks which had been bought at low prices, they wisely declined to increase them at advanced rates. The usual results followed: merchants for a short time firmly held their ground, but were soon compelled to give way, and prices have gradually fallen to a comparatively moderate level. The uncertainty which is felt with regard to the duty has so far prevented any improvement in trade, as, although it is very doubtful whether any reduction will take place this year, the retail dealers naturally keep as small a duty-paid stock as possible.

Lower rates have been current for Bar Silver, and business to some extent was done at 58½d. per oz. There is a slight improvement at the close, and the price may now be quoted at 58 9-16d. per oz. Mexican Dollars remain as last quoted, 57½d. per oz.

The bullion by the P. and O. steamer Venetia, from Southampton April 9, was, in silver, to Penang, £14,300; to Shanghai, £23,570; to Singapore, £24,000; total in silver, £61,870.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade returns for March show the declared value of our exportations to have been 20,100,814, against 21,744,218 in the corresponding month last year—a decline of 1,643,404, or 7½ per cent. Compared, however, with March, 1872, the reduction is only ¼ per cent. Of coal and patent fuel the quantity exported has been 1,129,740 tons, as against 977,324 tons in the corresponding month last year—an advance of 15½ per cent., while the increase in the value total is but 2½ per cent. Of iron and steel the shipments exhibit a fall of over 22 per cent. in quantity and 16⅛ per cent. in value. In textile fabrics, cotton manufactures figure for a diminution of 9½ per cent., and woollen and worsted manufactures 17 per cent.; linen manufactures have increased 7¾ per cent. (the quantity remaining the same), and silk manufactures 2¾ per cent. Among the few articles which show an augmentation in their value totals are beer and ale, 40 per cent.; chymicals, 18 per cent.; telegraphic wire, 48½ per cent.; and sheep's wool, 38 per cent. The chief falling off has been in apparel, 20 per cent.; earthenware, 22½ per cent.; haberdashery, 14 per cent.; hardware, 15 per cent.; leather boots, 35 per cent.; and machinery, 9½ per cent. Lead and tin again show a largely increased quantity exported. The total value of our exportations for the three months ended the 31st of March has been £57,802,084, against £62,376,366 in the corresponding period in 1873, a reduction of nearly 8 per cent. As regards the importations of the month, the total declared value is £29,748,865, against £29,850,113 in 1873, and £27,819,883 in 1872; a fall of nearly ½ per cent. from the former, and an advance of nearly 7 per cent. on the latter year. Of cotton the arrivals have been 1,273,241 cwt., valued at £4,811,156, against 1,418,029 cwt., valued at £6,236,216 in March, 1873; of wheat, 3,082,485 cwt., value £2,035,968, against 2,820,809 cwt., value £1,831,527; and of flour, 594,005 cwt., valued at £572,394, against 645,791 cwt., valued at £606,636, in the corresponding month last year.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

There has been scarcely any alteration in the market for colonial and foreign produce since the 3rd inst. Business has been almost entirely suspended, in consequence of the Easter holidays, and is not yet actively resumed.

TEA.

There has been no alteration in the market during the week, the holidays having occasioned an almost entire suspension of business. Messrs. Capel and Co.'s Circular says:—Our market during the past month has been unusually quiet for the time of year. The retail dealers have been working down their stocks in case any reduction should be made in the duty, and in absence of usual orders the trade here have bought very sparingly, whilst the export demand has been very light. Prices have, however, on the whole, been fairly maintained, the great bulk of importers holding firmly. The deliveries show a decline of nearly 3,000,000 lbs. for the three months ending 31st March, about 1,600,000 lbs. being in export, the remainder, being duty payments, may be made up after the question is settled. The stock in the United Kingdom on the 31st ultimo was estimated at 93,183,000 lbs., against 99,700,000 lbs. last year, and the quantity afloat (advices by letter) 4,102,000 lbs., against 9,692,000 lbs. of China Tea, and 1,361,000 lbs., against 995,000 lbs. of India Tea.

Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings have not been so readily taken of late, and show a decline of ¼d. to ½d. per lb. Broken-leaf kinds, especially those with fair quality, have been readily saleable. Fair to good common have been dull of sale at about previous prices. Fair to good Kaisows have sold ½d. to 1d. per lb. lower. In fine to finest there have been only a few sales made, ranging from 1s. 10d. to 2s. per lb. Pak Lin kinds have been in request at full prices. Black-leaf kinds: Common kinds have sold irregularly, and at public auction have occasionally sold ½d. per lb. lower; privately they have been difficult to move. Fair to good medium, being in moderate supply, prices have been well maintained, but transactions have been moderate; good to fine have sold at previous prices; in finest but little has been done. New-make Canton kinds: Common kinds, at 11d. to 1s. per lb., show ½d. to ½d. per lb. decline. Fair to good have also sold rather lower. Oolongs: Common to fair kinds have been dull of sale, but good to fine in moderate demand at previous prices. Souchongs have been in limited request, and where sales have been pressed lower prices have been established, especially for good to fine kinds. In Flowery Pekoes and Uncoloured Japans there has been but little business done. Scented Teas.—Canton Capers: The common to fair glazed kinds have been dull of sale at rather lower prices; good to fine have been fairly saleable, especially olive-coloured leaf, but latterly prices for these have given way a little. Foochow Capers continue to find a ready sale at extreme prices. Orange Pekoes: Canton kinds meet only a slow sale at rather lower prices. Foochow kinds: Common to fair have sold ½d. per lb. lower; good to fine have been saleable at former prices. Green Teas.—The export demand has been less active, but, as supplies have been moderate, prices for Moyune kinds have been well maintained. Ping Sueys, of common to medium kinds, have, however, sold at a decline of 1d. to 2d. per lb.

Messrs. Percival and Co.'s Monthly Circular says:—The market has remained very dull and depressed, and business has been on a smaller scale than we ever remember it to have been during the month of March. With a prospect of some reduction in the duty, country dealers have been reducing their duty-paid stocks as low as possible, and refrained from buying, except where absolutely necessary. This has told seriously on the deliveries, which amount to only 11,800,000 lbs. for the month, and as the Budget statement is fixed for the 16th instant, no doubt deliveries will continue small until after that date, when we may expect to see a revival of the trade in all its branches, more especially as the quantity now to arrive before the New Season's crop is small, and the stocks comparatively low.

SILK.

There is no alteration in the market to report. But very few transactions have been entered into, the market having been practically closed, owing to the holidays. The deliveries from 1st to 8th inst. have been 663 bales China, 155 bales Canton, and 128 bales Japan.

COFFEE.—The public sales were resumed Thursday, when a moderate supply was offered. The bulk consisted of pale and foreign kinds, which were bought in above the value, a few lots of coloury Plantation Ceylon selling readily at rather dearer prices; 36 casks 2 barrels 3 bags Plantation sold, small at 97s., middling to good middling bright coloury at 105s. to 106s. 6d., good bold at 109s., pea-berry at 105s. to 106s.; 300 bags Java were bought in at 90s.

COCOA-NUT OIL is very steady, but transactions are limited. Cochin is quoted £38 to £39, Ceylon £35 to £35 5s.

PEPPER.—About 250 bags Black have been sold at 6d. for Singapore, and 5⅝d. for Penang.

RICE.—A very quiet tone has prevailed, and sales have been small.

SUGAR.—The demand for all descriptions continues limited, but as holders are firm, and generally require dearer rates, purchases can only be made at firmer prices. No sales of East India kinds have been effected.

TOBACCO.—In public sale Thursday of 96 bales Java offered part sold at 3d. to 5½d.; 876 bales Japan were all withdrawn; of 457 bales ditto damaged 73 sold at 3½d. to 6¾d.; 622 bales China chiefly sold at 6½d. to 7½d.

TIN.—Straits is scarce, and the small demand which has prevailed has been directed towards Billiton and Australian. Quotations are, Straits on the spot £87 to £87 10s.; afloat nominal; Banca £93, Billiton £87 per ton

TEA.

Messrs. De Cordova and Sons' Circular, dated March 18, says :—Our last Circular was issued on the 6th ult. The business in Tea since that time has presented the appearance of a struggle between importers and dealers for the maintenance or depression of previous prices, a situation which has tended to make the market duller than it might otherwise have been. So far, the dealers may be said to have rather the best of the fight; fine to choice Greens being fully three cents gold lower, and Japans decidedly off, while low grade Greens are in large decline. Regarding the finest Greens, which are evidently in deficient supply for the remainder of the season, it would not be difficult to predict the ultimate success of importers, if only anything so desirable as a common understanding among them were practicable; but, as all previous experience goes to prove the impossibility of maintaining a combined purpose on the part of those most interested in upholding prices, it now seems probable that even finest Greens may go to lower quotations, to be followed, perhaps, by a reaction when the deficiency of these sorts shall have made itself felt. Medium and common Greens are much depressed, and the recent advices from China of large purchases of these kinds for the American market make the prospect anything but favourable to the importer. Pingsueys are depressed beyond all precedent, and are apparently hopelessly so. Japan Teas have declined from the highest point about 4c. to 5c., gold, per lb., with, however, a trifling reaction at the close for medium to good medium grades, there being little or no stock in first hands. It does not need a very sagacious prophet to foretell a heavy fall when the bulk of the large supplies on the way and yet to be shipped of the present crop of Japans shall have arrived. Oolongs remain unreasonably and almost unaccountably neglected at the present low currency. The auction sales which have been held during the month show lower prices, and there is still a total absence of speculative feeling for these kinds. Tamsuis, of which this season's crop has been very inferior, are likewise much depressed. Congous are very slow of sale, and prices are absurdly irregular. Assams are without inquiry. The decline in Greens is chiefly felt in Gunpowders, Imperials, and first young Hysons. Hysons are also lower than they were.

It is not supposed that our friends in Shanghai need our circulars or the advices of their correspondents here to convince them, by fresh arguments, that even the comparatively low prices of this season are too high for safety, and that there is danger in again competing among themselves next year for green Teas at excessive cost. It is, therefore, as a matter of record, rather than with any idea of offering instruction, that we introduce here the following points for general consideration :—1. That Japan Teas, which have already set aside Oolongs in New England, have begun to largely interfere with the consumption of Greens in the Western country, and will do so still more extensively during the coming season. 2. That the promised large supply of Japans next year (our Japan friends estimate by cable the new crop at 20 per cent. above the yield of last year) will undoubtedly keep down the prices of these Teas, and thus bring them still more into favour with the consumer. 3. That the future competition in this market is likely to be not of Japans against Greens, as has heretofore been the case, but of Greens against Japans, to enable the former to hold their place against the latter, the consumption of Japan Teas being on an increasing, while that of Greens is on a relatively diminishing scale. 4. That the high price in Shanghai must not only result in loss to the importer, but must help the 20,000,000 to 22,000,000 of Japans with which we are threatened for the season of 1874-5 to the uppermost position as against Greens. The alternative, next season, will, we believe, be very cheap Greens or a gradually increasing neglect of Greens in favour of Japans, which will be cheap by reason of very large supply.

SILK.

Messrs. B. Richardson and Son's Circular says :—Business in Raw Silk for the month last past has been dull and languid, and at the present there is little to cheer in the outlook. The expected activity of Spring trade we have not yet seen, nor signs of it even, so far. Throwsters are discouraged, and to avoid increasing their stock now talk of "shutting down" for awhile. In Sewing Silks a moderate business has been done, but even this branch lacks its usual life. At an auction sale of Hainings and usual Reeled Tsatlees there was a fair attendance, but the sale went off with very little spirit, and part of the Hainings were unsold. The stocks of really good Chinas are small, of re-reeled Tsatlees especially so, but the lack of direct silk has been easily supplied from the London market, at rates lower than from China. The advices from London and Lyons are gloomy, and with the great facilities which now exist for supplying this market from the European market, we can expect little improvement here until there is improvement there. Prices of Chinas—owing to there being few parcels offering—have been fairly maintained. Cantons have shared the general quiet, with no quotable change in prices. In Japans there is nothing new to note.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazil Coffee is dull and unsettled. In mild descriptions the feeling was at one time good, but a relapse occurred, and dulness is now the prevailing feature. We quote as follows :—Java (Government bags) 26c. to 28c.; Java (mats) 27c. to 29c.; Singapore, 24c. to 25c.; Ceylon, Native, 24c. to 25c.

CORDAGE.—Prices are as follows :—Manila Cordage, sizes above 12-thread, 16½c.; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, ¼ in. and 5-16 in. diam., 17½c.; do. 12-thread, ⅜ in. diam., 17c.; do. Hay Rope, 17c.; do. Cordage, Bolt Rope Yarns, 18½c.; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, 19½c.; Tarred Manila, 16c.; Fine Tarred Manila Lath Yarn, 17½c.

HEMP.—Business is dull, and there are no sales of importance to notice.

INDIGO.—Prices are steady, business being rather more active. Sales have been made of 25 cases Manila at from 70c. to 80c., and 10 to 12 cases Madras at from 85c. to 90c. currency.

RICE.—There is a fair demand at supported prices. Carolina is quoted at 7½c. to 7⅝c. for fair, and Rangoon 7⅛c. to 7¼c. currency.

SUGAR.—There is an active demand for Raw Sugar for refining purposes. The arrivals are free, but holders remain firm.

SPICES.—The Spice market generally is dull. We quote as follows :—Mace, $1.22½ to 1.25; Nutmegs, $1.15 to 1.17½; China Cassia, 25c.; Batavia ditto, 23c. to 25c.

TIN.—Straits Tin is quoted 24½c. to 25c. gold, and Banca 28c.

When inclement weather checks to a considerable extent the natural exhalations of the skin, an alterative is required to expel them entirely from the body through some other channel. Holloway's Pills can be confidently recommended as the easiest, surest, and safest means of attaining this desirable end without weakening the most delicate, or incommoding the most feeble. When, from frequent chills or impure air, the blood becomes foul and the secretions vitiated, these Pills present a ready and efficient means of cleansing the former, and correcting the latter. By this salutary proceeding disease is arrested at its outset, its pains and inconveniences averted, and the nervous structures saved from the depressing effects entailed upon them by an illness.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 3rd March; the French mail from London Jan. 2 arrived out on the 24th Feb., and the following P. and O. mail of Jan. 9 on the 27th Feb. The Japan Herald supplies the following items of intelligence:—

During the past few days Tokio has been in a most unsatisfactory state of perturbation. To all appearance business progresses the same as ever, but there are not wanting abundant signs of the troublous times through which we are now passing. At all hours of the day, and in all parts of the capital, are to be met men traversing the streets and wearing the two swords of old Japan. Of course not one of the lesser officials knows any more, or as much as foreigners; but they are confident, and express themselves as convinced that peace will be restored in a few days. With regard to the two-sworded men who are to be seen ostentatiously parading the streets, various rumours are afloat. One, and the most probable, is to the effect that a rising and the seizure of the Royal person is their object. That some such rising was intended is partly evidenced by the fact that the various Government offices are doubly guarded; both soldiers and police being stationed in the Shinbashi terminus, while the residencies of several foreign employés are watched by policemen. A few days since the members of the Daijokwan were summoned, and remained in session all one night, while the Palace during that time was doubly guarded, infantry, cavalry, and artillery being all posted in readiness for any enterprise. This rumour as to an attempted seizure of the Mikado is one which finds acceptance with many non-official Japanese, and it is borne out by the extraordinary preparations made to meet any violence. At present, however, all is uncertainty—the Government is utterly bewildered; and though the officials may instruct persons to make light of it, the country is passing through a crisis, the importance of which cannot be over-estimated.

Higashi Fushima no Miya, with a detachment of troops, is on the eve of quitting Tokio for the seat of war. It is stated that there are in all about 15,000 troops in the metropolis. Prince Higashi has also been appointed commander-in-chief of the Imperial fleet despatched for the South. His Highness is accompanied by General Yamagata and Rear-Admiral Ito. We hear that arms are being shipped for the South, and that the Canton and Golden Age have been chartered for the conveyance of troops. The decree prohibiting the native press from publishing war news has been rescinded. As the Government is in possession of the telegraph, it has a monopoly of the news that comes through its agency, and will take care that only such matters as it desires to have published shall filter into the columns of the native press.

The latest intelligence is that the Imperial troops engaged the insurgents on the 23rd of Feb. The latter fought hard for some time, it is said, but were eventually defeated at all points. The Government troops were following up their victory, and expected to recapture Saga immediately. Blazing villages marked the retreat of the samurai. It may be supposed that the troops were those brought or reinforced by Okubo. It is probable that they were landed on the 20th Feb., and marched at once on the insurgents, who must have been near to Fukuoka.

The annual general meeting of the Amateur Athletic Association of Yokohama has been held in the Chamber of Commerce, Lieut. Sandwith in the chair. After voting the minutes of the past year, the following gentlemen were balloted for and elected as the committee for the ensuing term:—Messrs. Watson, Abbot, Reid, J. J. Dare, and Hungerford. The discussion of other minor matters and a vote of thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.

A meeting of gentlemen interested in the formation of a literary society for young men has been held, Mr. W. W. Cargill presiding. The following resolution was proposed by the Rev. E. W. Syle, seconded by Mr. G. P. Ness, and carried :—"That the persons present at this meeting organise themselves into a society, to be called the Young Men's Literary Society of Yokohama." A form of constitution, which had been prepared by the promoters of the society, was then read, and after some discussion and alteration it was finally passed. The following gentlemen were elected the office bearers of the society :—President, Mr. G. P. Ness; Secretary, Mr. G. H. Pole; Treasurer, Mr. J. Y. Henderson.

The Pacific mail Company's steamer Alaska arrived at San Francisco on the 3rd inst., with dates from Yokohama to the 10th March. The following summary of news has been telegraphed to the New York press.

The insurrection in Saga was brought to an end on the 1st March. Okubo, Minister of the Interior, sent from Yedo to quell the disturbance, arrived at Fukuoka, a port thirty-five miles from Saga city on the 19th of February, when gathering his forces, he marched upon the insurgent stronghold, overcoming his opponents in a series of trifling skirmishes. On the 28th Saga was invested. On March 1st, the rebels abandoned the place, dispersing in various directions. Meanwhile a second body of troops had embarked from Yeddo, under the command of Higashi Fushima, an uncle of the Mikado. This expedition sailed March 1; but, in consequence of the news from Saga, was stopped by telegraph. The intelligence of the rebel collapse was coldly received by the foreigners generally in Yokohama, a different result having been confidently expected by the majority.

The recent payment of the instalment of the Simonoseki claims has been made the occasion for recalling circumstances of the affairs hitherto forgotten. The indemnity was demanded to defray the expenses of the allied expedition of 1864, commonly understood to have been undertaken in consequence of the firing upon foreign ships while passing through Simonoseki Straits. The English Minister was most active in organising the expedition, but it is now set forth that not a single English ship was ever fired upon or in any way molested, and that while the expedition was in preparation Earl Russell sent frequent despatches to Sir Rutherford Alcock stating that the passage of the Straits was not necessary, and forbidding any aggressive proceedings. The action of the British fleet was approved by the Home Government only after it had been carried through and proved successful.

As regards the cause of France and the United States, it is shown that the French Government, by the special treaty of June 25, 1864, accepted the peaceful terms of the settlement of the Simonoseki trouble, and that this arrangement was known to the French Minister in Japan before the sailing of the expedition, which, nevertheless, proceeded with sanction, and that the United States Minister was in possession of a written acknowledgment of the injury done and a written promise to pay the penalty demanded, and, also, interest, which was not demanded when he agreed to the hostile departure.

It is furthermore shown that the original intention was to fix the indemnity at $2,000.000, but that it was raised to $3,000,000, in consequence of a suggestion that the first-named sum could be too easily paid, and that, in lieu of $3,000,000, the opening of a new port might be urged and secured, a circumstance which gives the whole affair the appearance of being a movement solely for the purpose of exacting commercial concessions. These facts have all been gathered from foreign official documents.

The United States Minister will take up his residence permanently in Yedo this month, and the British Minister will follow as soon as his new Legation buildings are completed. The main body of the British attachés are always stationed at the capital.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 6th March; the French mail from London Jan. 16 arrived out on the 5th March. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

The annual general meeting of shareholders in the Shanghai and Hongkew Wharf Company has been held. Present: Messrs. A. Michie, chairman; F. D. Barnes, E. H. Lavers, and A. G. Wood, directors; and J. T. Brand, C. J. King, W. E. King, Aug. White, C. L. Grant, G. Jamieson, J. Macgregor, M. Banyard, G. A. Lindsay, G. Withers, H. A. Laurence, Dr. Little, W. G. Greig, F. A. Groom, and A. Sim, representing 1,347 shares. The following report was presented :—

The accounts which the directors have the honour to lay before the shareholders show that the company has, like most other local institutions, been affected by the general depression of trade in China during the year 1873. It will be seen that the net earnings have fallen short of those of the preceding year by the sum of Tls. 6,222.02, the balance at credit of working account for 1873 being Tls. 24,531.86, against Tls. 30,753.88 for 1872. The directors, however, have reason to hope that during the current year the company will recover its former position, and their facilities for wharfage are adequate to meet any increase likely to occur in the shipping business. It is with much regret the directors have to report the discovery of certain frauds and irregularities of their late manager, whereby the company has sustained loss. The circumstances attending these transactions are sufficiently well known to render any detailed reference to them here unnecessary, and the directors would only state that the most stringent precautions have been adopted to prevent the recurrence of these or any other species of fraud.

The usual interim dividend of six per cent. on capital was paid to shareholders for the first half of the year 1873, as up to the 30th June the earnings of the company were amply sufficient; but the diminution in business and the untoward circumstances above referred to, which have all fallen on the second half-year, leave the directors without the means of recommending a further dividend, the earnings having been all absorbed, leaving a small balance at debit of profit and loss. The 120 shares left in the hands of the directors at the last annual meeting have since been disposed of, and the paid-up capital now therefore consists of 2,150 shares, Tls. 215,000; the property account now stands at Tls. 262,169.40; the directors now retire, but are eligible for re-election.

The report was adopted, and Messrs. Lavers, Grant, Behn, King, and Lind (P. and O. Company) were elected directors for the ensuing year.

In consequence of a case that has lately arisen, where Messrs. Overbeck and Co.'s comprodore absconded with certain China bank orders belonging to the firm, the native bankers of Shanghai have addressed a letter to the Chamber of Commerce, proposing two rules with regard to China bank orders in future: first, that the absconding of a compradore shall not be held ground for a second claim in respect to orders he may misappropriate; second, that the finder of a lost order shall be entitled to a reward of 10 per cent. of its value. These rules foreign merchants are asked to sign, but we imagine they will decline the proposal as inconvenient. The question has arisen out of the terms of the settlement come to in the Mixed Court, whereby the loss was partitioned between the bank, Overbeck and Co., and Pustau and Co., into whose hands the order had passed.

A correspondent however assures us that this settlement was not a formal decision, but a voluntary compromise. A China bank order seems to be simply a bank note, for the value of which, under ordinary circumstances, you can no more claim on a bank if you lose it, than you can claim on an English bank for the value of a five-tael note if your servant steals one. The settlement in question, therefore, does not touch a principle; and there seems no reason why things should not go on as before, pending some revision of the system, if that be thought advisable. It has been suggested that the question should be solved by insistance on cash payment, instead of five days' sight, as is now the custom. If bank orders were made payable on demand, there would certainly be so much less time for them to get lost or mislaid in than under the present system. Or why do not the native banks issue orders of the nature of cheques, payable to the order of some special individual? In the meantime business is seriously hindered by the refusal of the banks to issue any orders until the matter is settled.

Tientsin, 9th February, 1874.—Statements having appeared to the effect that when investing the Consul at Tientsin with consular powers over British subjects in Peking Her Majesty's Government had contemplated the assertion of a right on the part of British subjects to trade and reside in Peking, the undersigned is instructed by Her Majesty's Minister to remind British subjects that no such right under Treaty exists, and to add that there is no authority for the assumption that it has been proposed to assert it.—J. MONGAN, Consul.

With reference to this notification the Herald says :—Does this mean that British subjects are to be denied access to Peking? It can hardly be so; but really the object of the notice is not otherwise apparent. We are not aware what statements are alluded to; but no foreign resident in China can have suspected the late Government or their Representative of a design to assert imaginary claims. They would most likely begin by claiming what is in the treaty. Yet it took fourteen years to assert the right of audience, and the transit due clause is still inoperative in the south, and imperfectly observed elsewhere. It was hardly worth while to notify, officially, that men of common clay have no right to penetrate the sanctuary of the gods.

A curious memorial has been presented to Li Hung-chang, regarding the development of the coasting trade in Chinese steamers. It is said to have been drawn up by a foreigner, but is so shallow, and withal mischievous in its tenor, that we can hardly believe it was so. His Excellency is first treated to a short dissertation on the maritime regulations of European States, and asked why Chinese alone should be forced to admit vessels of other nations to engage in her coasting trade, the writer having, notwithstanding, just demonstrated that England allows the privilege. The Chinese Government is urged, then, to notify foreigners that after a given date their ships will not be permitted to engage in this trade, "by which means the protective principle will be clearly promulgated, and Chinese steamship companies will begin to flourish;" the existence of treaty stipulations about sundry ports, and the probable disinclination of foreign Governments to abrogate them, being apparently overlooked. The principle of subsidies to mail steamer companies is next brought forward, and an inducement apparently held out to the Chinese Government to imitate the example, and recoup itself by postal revenues, by a confused quotation of large figures from the last English Budget. We fear, however, that the number of letters which would pass through a Chinese post-office, until the Government has established greater confidence than yet exists in Chinese official institutions, would hardly contribute a large revenue.

Great sensation has been caused among the native population of Peking through the news of the death of Wu K'o-tu, the Censor by whom the Manchu General Ch'êng-lu was so violently denounced for his alleged misdeeds in Kansuh. The reprieve of Ch'êng-lu from execution, after sentence had already been pronounced for his immediate decapitation, was protested against by Wu K'o-tu, who did not hesitate to tell his Imperial master in January last that the prevailing want of snow was a sign of Heaven's displeasure at the leniency shown to a criminal deserving death; and the Censor is now said to have died from grief on finding his remonstrances unheeded and himself subjected to reprimand. Our correspondent says no snow had yet fallen, on the 11th, and the weather was still remarkably mild. Negotiations were proceeding with the Peruvian mission, but its stay in Peking was uncertain. Nothing was known of the Cuban mission except that, owing to the state of things in Cuba, it would probably be detained there a long time by its inquiries.

The C. M. S. N. Co.'s steamer Fusing steamed out of the harbour on the 3rd March, the first vessel of the season for Tientsin. The C. C. S. N. Co.'s steamer Haining and the S. S. N. Co.'s Shantung left on the 4th, and the Taku, Appin, and Chihli on the 5th March.

Among the cargo of the Glenartney is a consignment for the Kaou-chang-meaou Arsenal of machinery requisite for iron shipbuilding. A steam hammer weighing fourteen tons has been landed at Hunt's Wharf, requiring the united strength of over a hundred coolies to move it with the capstan.

The Amateur Dramatic Company gave a performance on the 27th Feb. The comedietta, A Cup of Tea, with which it commenced, was brief, but well acted throughout, and the burlesque of Romulus and Remus was the most successful thing of the kind we have had for a long time. The local hits were wittily conceived and pointedly applied, and the songs and choruses were admirably given by the members of the Glee Society and the soloists of the company. The orchestra, under M. Remusat, lent its talented and efficient aid, in overture, interlude and accompaniments, with the best effect. The amateurs repeated the performance on the 2nd March, and were rewarded by a crowded house. The pit was crammed, and the upper part of the theatre was almost equally full, the number present being estimated at over 700. Both pieces went off, if anything, more easily than before, and sufficient novelty was introduced into the burlesque to give it fresh zest for those who had then heard it.

The Volunteers have been drilling with unusual activity. Probably the last sham fight showed them that they had become rather rusty; and Captain Whyte's offer to lend a drill instructor was gladly accepted. We hope all this preparation will lead to another friendly battle before the Cadmus leaves. It will very soon be too late. Paper hunting is already stopped, and in another fortnight it will be unfair to launch three or four hundred men over the crops.

The annual meeting of the Race Club was held on the 27th Feb., Mr. C. L. Grant in the chair. The accounts, showing a balance of Tls. 5,360.06, were passed; and of this amount it was resolved to devote Tls. 1,650 to paying off the remainder of Mr. Keswick's loan on the Grand Stand, including interest; and Tls. 1,750 to the purchase of five Race Club shares, leaving a balance of Tls. 2,000, or Tls. 600 less than the last year was begun with. The old committee were re-elected, viz., Messrs. G. W. Coutts, F. D. Hitch, F. M. Ringer, C. L. Grant, C. J. King, Dr. Gottberg, and Barnes Dallas, Mr. King taking the place of Sir Edmund Hornby, who retires. A motion was carried that, after the Spring meeting of 1874, the standard height of ponies should be raised to 14 hands, and that any over 13.3 should carry 5-lbs. for an extra inch or fraction of an inch in all weight for inches races. An amendment that no limit should be placed on height was lost.

A meeting of the Base Ball Club has been held. The accounts, showing a balance in hand of Tls. 160, were passed; and Messrs. T. Olyphant, J. E. Waller, L. F. Fisler, P. K. Dumaresq, S. D. Webb and J. O. Carleton (Secretary and Treasurer) were elected a committee for the ensuing year.

A concert is to be given for the purpose of defraying the passage to England of Mrs. Caine and her family.

An interesting lecture has been dedivered by Mr. Wylie, at the Temperance Hall, on the "Relics of Buddha."

The Race Course has been opened for training.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 12th March; the P. and O. mail from London Jan. 28 arrived out on the 7th March. The Daily Press supplies the following items of intelligence:—

All whose sympathies are upon the side of law and order must regret the unfortunate occurrences which have recently caused so much excitement at Macao. As is usually the case at election times, considerably party feeling was aroused in reference to the deputy to be sent to the Parliament at Lisbon, and the fact that a very large number were in favour of Dr. Magalhaes, who about a year ago was sent away by the present Governor to Timor, in consequence of some articles which he had published that were displeasing to the authorities, added further interest to the contest. Dr. Magalhaes, in fact, became the popular candidate as opposed to Mr. Pinto Bastos, whom the Government party supported. The first return of votes was in favour of Dr. Magalhaes, but as there was not an absolute majority, it was necessary to have a new poll. This was accordingly done, and strenuous efforts were made on both sides to obtain a majority—the result being in favour of the Government candidate by some five votes. This in itself was sufficient to cause considerable excitement, the more so as it appears that there were several, both officers and men, among the troops who gave their vote in favour of the popular candidate. But it appears that one point excited the public especially, and that was the fact very generally asserted that a portion of the Government votes were not valid, as they were those of non-residents in the colony. The result of all this was that something very like a petty revolution was anticipated at the holy city, and matters went so far that it was found necessary to place the colony under something very much like martial law. Fortunately matters quieted down by degrees, and nothing very serious has resulted, but very severe complaints are made of the strong measures adopted by the Governor, and there is a widespread feeling of discontent on the subject.

The steamer Sunfoo has been wrecked on a small island close by the Asses' Ears, about thirty miles from Hong Kong. The news was brought on by a pilot boat, the captain of which reported that she went ashore at about 9 P.M. on the 11th March. He stated that the crew and all the passengers had landed safely on the island, and that two open boats besides himself had put off for Hong Kong. In one of the boats was Mr. Kerr, of the Oriental Bank. They have not yet arrived, but there are no serious grounds for apprehension as to their likelihood of coming in safely. The total number of passengers on board was said to be about 150 Europeans and Chinese. The first account of the matter was to the effect that the vessel had sunk up to her deck at the time the pilot left her; but it was stated, on the other hand, that she was not seriously injured. On receipt of the news arrangements were made for the tug boat Fame to proceed to the scene of the disaster, and that vessel has left. The Sunfoo was employed on the new Australian Mail line, and was, we understand, bringing on the passengers and cargo, the mail having already arrived by the Swiftsure.

Mr. Stewart has issued his report upon the Government Schools. The main feature in the report is the satisfactory indication which it affords of the spread of education generally in the colony. It appears that at the present time a total number of 3,500 children are educated at the different schools in Hong Kong, but this, Mr. Stewart tells us, is far short of those who should be at school, although, comparing the results with those of previous years, there is much cause for satisfaction, and great encouragement to perseverance. The necessity for larger accommodation for the schools has been repeatedly urged, and we trust that steps will ere long be taken to meet this want. We regret to notice that Mr. Stewart states there is little hope of the difficulty with reference to the Morrison Scholarship being settled without having recourse to a legal decision.

The following account of the average amount of bank notes in circulation in Hong Kong, during the month ending Feb. 28, 1874, is published in the Gazette:—

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 20th March; the French mail from London Feb. 13 arrived out on the 17th March. The following summary of the news is from the Straits Times:—

The principal event has been a banquet given by the Maharajah of Johore on the 10th March, on the occasion of the first official visit of H.E. the Governor to Johore Bahru, to which the principal residents of Singapore, official and unofficial, were invited. H.E. and suite, with Lady Clarke, went over to Johore in H.M.S. Thalia, and the Pluto followed next day, affording any of the invited guests an opportunity of a trip over by water. The arrival of the English mail and the expected arrival of the homeward mail prevented many from availing of the Maharajah's hospitality on the occasion, but the banquet was, notwithstanding, a very successful one, and gave much pleasure to all who attended.

After his visit with the Governor to Salangore and Langkat, Admiral Shadwell remained here a few days, and left on the 27th Feb. in H.M.S. Iron Duke for China, the Frolic leaving the same day for Hong Kong by way of Labuan and Manila. Her Majesty's navy is, however, still represented here by the Thalia, Midge, Avon, and the gunboat Growler. The Salamis and Rinaldo have both left on their homeward cruise. The Thalia, which has been for some time the senior naval officer's ship at this station, will leave for Hong Kong on the 20th March, and will be replaced here by H.M.S. Charybdis, expected here daily, together with the gunboat Swinger. On the arrival of the Charybdis, the Midge will also leave for the north. The Avon, under a new commander, expected by next mail, will visit Klang, Salangore, Perak and Laroot, and will afterwards probably also proceed to the northward.

Since the pacification of Perak and Laroot, and the trial and execution of the eight pirates at Langkat, we have heard of no cases of piracy in the neighbourhood of Malacca or Penang, and we trust that permanent good has been effected by the prompt and well-timed action of Sir Andrew Clarke, in his recent visits to these States. In connection with the trial of the pirates at Langkat, we have to correct a serious misstatement in our last overland summary. The trial was not conducted on board the Thalia, but by the native Court on shore; nor had the two commissioners on board the Thalia anything to do with the trial or execution, their business being merely to see that the Sultan adhered to the engagements he had entered into with the Governor. Though Laroot and Perak are now quiet, and mining operations are in a fair way of being resumed, it is not yet deemed advisable for Europeans to venture there without first consulting the Government authorities here. Probably, however, when all arrangements have been perfected, these two territories will prove a lucrative field for European enterprise and capital.

The Dutch do not appear to be making much progress in Atchin. Since the fall of the Kraton they have captured two or three forts, but have directed their energies mainly to fortifying themselves in the Kraton, with a view, we may naturally infer, of permanently occupying the place. Short telegrams announce the submission of a headman or two, but the chiefs seem as hostile as ever, and the Dutch army does not appear very eager to follow up its hard-earned victories by making further inroads into the country, which is briefly described as "difficult," and where, probably, the force could not count on the assistance of the guns of the navy in encounters with its spirited enemy. There is, so far, little to show after all for the cost incurred in blood and treasure in this war, and it has been shown that, though the Kraton was said to be the last stronghold of the Atchinese, they are adepts in the art of fortification, and throw up earthworks and admirable defences with great skill, in, for them, an incredibly short time. The following is the latest telegram from Lieutenant-General Van Swieten, dated Atchin, 28th Feb. :—

"No change in the political situation; everything quiet in the neighbourhood of Bivouac and Kraton. Hard at work at our fort in the Kraton. Three war steamers left on 18th February for the North East and West coast of Sumatra with proclamations and the necessary documents for acknowledging our supremacy."

The weather during the past month or so has been oppressively hot, with scarcely a drop of rain to moisten the parched earth or the heated atmosphere. The wells have run almost dry, water is scarce and high-priced. the streets are covered with a thick layer of finely powdered dust that impregnates the very air we breathe, and the drains are choked up with accumulated filth that emits a most offensive effluvia. Under these circumstances, it is fortunate indeed that no pestilence has broken out in our midst, for, at the present time, it could not fail to be a dire calamity. It is gratifying to report that at last the Government has fully determined to provide the long needed water supply, which. but for the needless procrastination of the late Administration, might have been now far advanced, if not wholly completed.

A fire has occurred in the Chinese village at Rhio called Campong Singarang. The campong consists of a large number of attap huts, built on piles over the mud, and contains besides a number of larger attap erections used as stores. The Resident, Mr. Schiff, was early at the scene of conflagration, and was untiring in his efforts to check its progress, but it being low water at the time, the fire spread rapidly, and all attempts to save any of the buildings were unavailing. The entire campong, consisting of some three hundred attap buildings, was destroyed, and with it, we are informed, all the stores, produce, and everything else it contained. It is of course impossible as yet to form any correct estimate of the losses sustained, but our informant believes the amount will reach some $350,000 to $400,000.

On the 12th March smoke was discovered issuing from the hatches of the Italian barque Luigi Madre, Captain Marini, lying in the roads laden with Newcastle coals. The alarm was at once given, and boats came to her assistance from British men-of-war lying in the harbour. A man-of-war's boat lay alongside the ship all night, pumping water into the hold, but on the morning of the 13th, the fire still increasing, and the smoke from all the hatches becoming more dense, it was determined to beach and scuttle the vessel. The tugboat Pilot Fish was accordingly brought alongside, and the vessel was towed to a mud-bank, holes were made in her sides, and she was scuttled in three fathoms water. During the 14th and 15th, as the state of the tide permitted, hands were employed lightening the vessel, and she was floated off and towed alongside the Tanjong Pagar wharf, where the cargo is to be discharged.

Sir Andrew Clarke has remitted the sentences of rigorous imprisonment passed in the Province Wellesley Police Courts on Messrs. Thomson and Durnford, who have now each served out two months of their sentence. Mr. Thomson has therefore been released, but Mr. Durnford has still to undergo his Supreme Court sentence of three months' simple imprisonment.

We have the pleasure to announce that a superior degree of Masonry has been established in Singapore. On the 14th March, "the Mount Calvary" Chapter of Rose Croix, authority for holding which has lately been received from England, was opened in ample form and worked in the Chapter House, under Warrant granted by the Supreme Grand Council 33 deg. for England and Wales to Companions F. H. Gottlieb, M. W. S., and W. H. Read, E. S. P. M., on which occasion several of the most influential and zealous members of the fraternity were received into the Order. We are assured that this exalted degree has been most successfully introduced here.

The French war steamer Belliqueuse, Captain Libaudiere, anchored in the roads on the 18th March from Saigon, bringing down Admiral Dupré, Governor of Cochin China. The Belliqueuse saluted the British flag, the salute being returned from Fort Canning.

Mr. Evan Thompson, of Penang, has, we regret to hear, been killed by a fall from his horse.

Dr. W. Jackson has been appointed Assistant-Surgeon in Province Wellesley.

Naval and Military.

We hear that the successor of Vice-Admiral Sir Charles Shadwell, K.C.B., whose period of command on the China station will terminate in August next, has not yet been selected, the appointment of Rear-Admiral Seymour made by the late Government having been cancelled. The names of at least three gallant officers are mentioned in connection with the command, which is hereafter to be held by a Vice-Admiral, and not, as at the present time, by a Rear-Admiral with only a higher rank locally.

A return has just been published, showing the distribution of the British Army in the colonies on the 1st of Jan., 1874. In Hong Kong and the Straits Settlements there were two garrison batteries of the Royal Artillery, and two battalions of the infantry of the line. In Ceylon there were two garrison batteries of the Royal Artillery, and one battalion of the infantry of the line.

The Audacious, fitting out at Chatham dockyard as flag-ship for the China station, has still a very large number of hands employed upon her, but the work to be done will occupy nearly three months.

Sir Alexander Armstrong, K.C.B., the Director-General of the Medical Department of the Navy, has been re-appointed to the office he now holds for a further period of five years.

Lieut.-General J. M. Percival, C.B., has been appointed Colonel of the 97th Regiment, in succession to the late General G. T. Colomb.

Major-General H. Renny will return to England in June, his period of command in Ceylon then terminating.

Captain D. G. Jones, of the Royal Engineers, has been promoted from the Hong Kong station to the Mauritius.

A YEAR'S GRANTS AND EXPENDITURE FOR THE ARMY IN THE FAR EAST.

An elaborate return has just been published showing the sums granted by Parliament for the army in the year ending the 31st of March, 1873, and the expenditure during that period. We select the items relating to the Far East:—

On Vote 1, for general and regimental pay, &c., there was an arrear claim of £15,235 4s. 11d. from the Indian Government for the cost of troops employed at the Straits Settlements and in China in the years 1871 and 1872. No provision was made for this charge in the estimates for 1872-3, as it was contemplated the troops would be removed before the 1st of April, 1872, which was not the case. The amount was temporarily defrayed from the saving upon the ordinary grants for the army. On Vote 10, for provisions, fuel and light, &c., the grant for colonial allowances was £57,000, but the expenditure was only £47,594 16s. 11d., showing a balance of £9,405 3s. 1d., which is ascribed to the alteration in the distribution and diminution of forces employed in China, Ceylon, and the Straits Settlements. It appears that in consequence of a report from the General commanding, that no reduction had taken place in the charges for rent at Hong Kong, the Treasury consented to grant an additional 50 per cent. to the authorised rates of lodging allowance till the 31st of March, 1874. The sum of £329 6s. 3d. was obtained from the Foreign-office for the Legation Guard in China and Japan; £216 only was estimated in vote 13, for works, buildings, &c. The expenditure for providing additional magazine accommodation in China was, during the year, £992 4s. 5d., and the estimate £1,500, showing a surplus of £507 15s. 7d. The total estimate of the work was £10,000, and the total payments to the 31st of March, 1873, were £9,466 5s. 5d. The expenditure on quarters for four officers with necessary out-buildings at Kowloong was £1,025 3s. 5d., and the estimate £1,250, showing a surplus of £224 14s. 7d. The total estimate of the work was £1,250, and the total payments to the 31st of March, 1873, were £1,025 3s. 5d. The expenditure on smaller works, amounting to less than £1,000 each, in China and Japan, was £1,003 5s. 5d., and the estimate £1,120, showing a surplus of £116 14s. 7d. The expenditure on similar works in barracks was £1,300 6s. 10d., and the estimate £1,081, showing an excess of expenditure of £219 6s. 10d. On the smaller works in Ceylon the expenditure was £267 14s. 7d., and the estimate £534, showing a surplus of £266 5s. 5d. There was no expenditure for works on barracks, for which there had been an estimate of £35. The expenditure for small works in barracks in the Straits Settlements was £156 11s. 3d., and the estimate £35, showing an excess of expenditure of £121 11s. 3d. On the ordinary and current repairs to fortifications and Control buildings in China and Japan the expenditure was £478 18s. 11d., and the estimate £712, showing a surplus of £233 1s. 1d. The expenditure on barracks was £4,948 17s. 3d., and the estimate £5,879, leaving a surplus of £930 2s. 9d. On repairs to the fortifications and Control buildings in Ceylon the expenditure was £297 11s. 4d., and the estimate £336, showing a surplus of £38 8s. 8d. The expenditure on barracks was £4,968 2s., and the estimate £5,592, showing a surplus of £628 18s. The expenditure on repairs to barracks in the Straits Settlements was £1,030 8s. 4d., and the estimate £1,242, showing a surplus of £212 11s. 8d. The following contributions from colonial revenues in aid of military expenditure were made during the year: Ceylon, £141,045 18s. 5d.; Hong Kong, £19,653 1s. 5d.; Straits Settlements, £9,005 9s. 1d. and £72,199; Labuan, £709 15s.

PARLIAMENTARY PAPERS ON CHINA.

(PALL MALL GAZETTE.)

The two papers on China afford food for reflection as to the present and future of that country and its foreign relations. The first gives the correspondence respecting the audience granted to Her Majesty's and the other foreign representatives at Peking by the Emperor of China. It is not long—the whole correspondence being within the compass of eight pages; in curious contrast with the interminable length of the discussions which preceded the ceremony. It was talked of before the late Minister left Peking in 1869, and has ever since been intermittingly on the tapis. For the last four months it has occupied all the representatives of foreign Powers, and in the end it appears like a studied stroke of irony that a Japanese ambassador took precedence of all the representatives of the Great Powers of the West, and had a special audience to himself, while the others were kept waiting in an outer pavilion. They, no doubt, can afford to laugh at such pretensions as the Emperor of China is pleased to put forward and the petty humiliations devised for their representatives, but we confess our inability to understand the tone of gratulation on the achievement which this audience has given rise to in the public press of China and Europe. It pierces through the measured and half-deprecatory language even of the British Minister in the official correspondence before us, although Mr. Wade is much too able and experienced in Eastern diplomacy not to see the insolence and fatuity of the measures taken by the Emperor and his Ministers to reduce to a minimum anything in the shape of concession, while profiting by the opportunity of publishing to his own world that the foreign Ministers had "humbly begged" or "implored" an audience, and studiously avoided giving to the letters of credence any higher place in the text than if they had proceeded from a tributary State. After this, not to receive the foreign representatives in the palace—evidently too great an honour for barbarians—but in a pavilion, and too keep them waiting some two hours, on a plea of important despatches to read, was really to play out the whole programme of Oriental insolence and assumption. It is difficult to understand why the representatives of Russia, England, France, and America should have submitted to such indignities. We cannot help thinking it would have been both wiser and more politic to have asserted more firmly the dignity of the great Powers they represented, and refused to allow them to be compromised by such puerile attempts to lower them in the eyes of the Chinese nation, if not in their own. Instead of remembering, as Mr. Wade urges, "the long standing pretension of the Emperor of China, and the tradition of isolated supremacy on which that pretension was based," it might have better answered the true ends of a national polity to have let the Chinese Court remember how baseless those pretensions had been shown to be in the field on more than one occasion within the last twenty years. Submission to unfounded assumptions of superiority or power is not good diplomacy anywhere in the East, and nowhere less than in China, if we are to judge by all past experience. By the light of such experience, indeed, we cannot understand Mr. Wade's assertion that "the Empire has for the first time in its history broken with the tradition" which denied an audience without the performance of the kotow. We are strangely astray in our history if a British ambassador, in the person of Lord Macartney, did not at the close of last century stand face to face before an Emperor of China when Taoukwang reigned, and if a Russian envoy had not a similar privilege at a still earlier period. Under all the circumstances, past and present, we find it impossible to join in the feeling that the foreign representatives have achieved a triumph of diplomacy in the audience, and we should scarcely think there was much ground for congratulation if some of its surrounding conditions had been less objectionable. As to the slight practical effects to be anticipated, we expressed our opinion when the news of the ceremony first reached Europe, and we do not find anything in this correspondence materially to affect it, notwithstanding that the Emperor was "pleased to bestow refreshment upon the Ministers," while they were kept waiting outside his palace for a couple of hours in the early dawn.

Of the correspondence respecting the Macao Coolie Trade—the other paper—we are tempted to say that if anything could justify the immobility of the Chinese Court, and its airs of superiority over Western States, it would be the history of the Macao coolie trade, and the fact that the Emperor's subjects have been notoriously kidnapped and all his rights trampled upon in spite of international law and remonstrance for more than twenty years, before one of the smallest States in Europe could be induced to take any step for its suppression. And when we remember that the neighbouring British colony of Hong Kong was a persistent accomplice, offering a harbour for the fitting out of slave ships under foreign flags, and otherwise participating in the profits of this infamous traffic, we may well feel humiliated at reading the date of the Colonial ordinance which compelled the departure from Hong Kong waters of four Peruvian ships—the last of the ill-omened fleet, which were even then refitting—and to whose country 1,600 Chinese had been shipped, as Mr. Wade informs Lord Granville in the month of August, 1873. It is enough to make one despair of justice, or honesty, and good faith, whenever a question of interest or profit, however paltry, stands in the way. All Western Powers condemned this traffic as utterly indefensible, and all stood by supinely while the little half-Portuguese islet of Macao under the Portuguese rule was made one vast barracoon, from whence year by year some 18,000 kidnapped Chinese were shipped to slavery in Peru and Manila in foreign ships protected by national flags. And then we wonder that the Chinese do not trust us or love us, and are slow to recognise the superiority of foreign nations and Western civilisation, except in the manufacture of guns and the building of ships for purposes of war! In that they are willing to copy us, in the hope that in the end they may prove as strong as we are, and keep China for the Chinese, rid of all intruders and barbarians.

MR. T. T. FERGUSSON, of Chefoo, has been appointed Belgian Consul at that port.

COFFEE CULTIVATION.

The Journal of the Society of Arts for April contains an interesting paper on Coffee, by Mr. W. P. Branson. The writer in his review of the present condition of the growth of Coffee says:—"Whilst during the last fifty years we have made rapid progress in most branches of science and industry, we cannot but regret that in this late age there should be with us so little attention paid to an article of food which a former great nation freely used and valued centuries ago." After giving a brief history of the cultivation of the coffee plant in Arabia, Abyssinia and elsewhere, the writer proceeds to notice the culture of the plant in Java. He says:—"The culture of coffee in Java is effected by tribute or partially enforced labour. The Dutch Government maintain the old Indian idea of sovereign right to a supreme lordship of the soil. They do not allow freehold possession of land to the people, except where a few foreigners held certain rights before our cession of the island. With these exceptions the Government have a monopoly of the land, and each family holds its farm on the stringent condition of having to plant and maintain in bearing six hundred and fifty trees, of which they must harvest and deliver the produce, about two cwt. only, into the Government warehouse. In such a task the people have naturally more interest in the speed with which they get through their harvesting than in a good result, and much coffee is wasted." Mr. Branson considers that a better feature in Java is the employment of Malays, who prove valuable labourers. Under this compulsory system the production of coffee in Java has reached 1,000,000 bags per annum; but, says the writ so little in accord with the progress of civilisation that under it the highest out-turn has been passed, and the export now is 100,000 bags less yearly than that of ten years ago.

THE Venice Mail, a small newspaper published at Venice in English, gives the following particulars with reference to the new docks to be built at that port:—"An English company has applied to the Syndic for permission to construct a floating dock on Clarke's system, the engineer being Mr. Tolme, constructor of the Hydraulic Dock at Malta. The cost of the undertaking is estimated at about f.3,000,000. The same journal also mentions that the agent of the Cunard line of steamers in Venice is endeavouring to establish an Italian line of ships to Liverpool, with Italian crews and captains, and interests centered in Venice."

NEWS has been received by some of the principal planters in Peru from Macao that only free Chinese emigration will henceforward be allowed from that port. Efforts have been made by the Government with the Portuguese Legation at Lima to arrive at some other solution, the present measure being represented as injurious to Peruvian interests. It was, however, replied that the instructions from the Lisbon Cabinet were couched in unmistakable terms. This collapse of the coolie traffic is attributed to the influence of England.

WE are promised the appearance in London, in the course of a few days, of a Special Anglo-French journal, the Eastern Echo (Echo de l'Orient), devoted to the publication of Eastern intelligence of interest to European readers, and of European news for the information of residents in the East in general, and the Levant in particular. The editor will be Mr. E. St. John Fairman.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, APRIL 15.

The members of the First Chamber have re-assembled, and at their first sitting the President proposed the following resolution:—"The First Chamber expresses its gratitude to the army and the navy, and the commander-in-chief, for the patriotism, courage, and prudence shown during the military operations in Atchin." The vote was carried unanimously, and was forthwith wired to General Van Swieten by the Minister of the Colonial Department. The Chamber will now proceed to deal with the various Bills which have been passed by the Lower House. In the meanwhile the members will examine the Atchin documents which have been laid before them. To-morrow the debate about these papers will be opened in the Second Chamber, and I scarcely need add that everyone is most anxious about the result of this Parliamentary struggle, "the to be or not to be" of the Cabinet, and possibly the Chamber. It is not unlikely that the political situation may be completely changed by this debate. The question is whether the Opposition is quite ready for the coup, and this can only be shown by the results, for the public will hear very few particulars about the discussion, as the documents, in accordance with the desire of Mr. Fransen Van de Putte, are to be kept secret, notwithstanding that one of the members, who is at the same time the editor of a local paper, declares that without hurting the public interest they might be published. Another member assures us, on the other hand, that they contain particulars about diplomatic negotiations, by the publication of which the Governor-General would be greatly compromised. Of course, these are only more or less trustworthy rumours.

It is once more positively asserted that there is a prospect of a marriage between the Prince of Orange and a noble Dutch lady, without, however, one princely drop of blood in her veins. It would be somewhat indiscreet to give her name, which is whispered from ear to ear, the more because I believe the report, which is the topic of the day, to be unfounded. Such a marriage would be most injudicious; certainly it is to be regretted that a Crown prince cannot marry la dame de son Cœur but such a marriage must annul his prerogatives. One report says that the Prince is so love-lorn that he would be content to sacrifice his right to the throne in favour of his younger brother, who in a few months will leave the Leyden Academy to occupy his palace in the Hague.

The documents which were laid before the Members of the Second Chamber respecting the revision of our electoral laws throw but very little light on the real question. The inquiry which was made by the Minister has not given any satisfactory result. The new franchise Bill remains still what it was, a leap in the dark. Mr. Geertsema seems to have been rather over-worked, and some days ago he started for a German watering-place to restore his health; he will return before the end of the week.

The Staats Courant has published long lists of the dead and wounded in the second Atchin expedition. It must be acknowledged that the Minister has taken the greatest care to advise the families of those soldiers who suffered. On the 5th of this month a post-card was forwarded to the families of those who were wounded, and in case of death the family was informed by the Burgomaster.

In a few days another conference will be held at Brussels, in order to deal with the insolvable sugar duty question. The subject of the discussions seems now to be a proposal to levy the duties in the manufactories of refined sugar.

Litterateurs in the Far East will be happy to hear that the third and last part of the translation of Dante's "Comedia Divina," by the late Dr. J. C. Hacke van Mynden, has been published in the same elegant form as the two first parts.

The two flags which belonged to H.M.'s Djambi and Marnix, and which were used in the first expedition against Atchin, have been presented to the India Military Asylum at Bronbeek. The flags are much damaged by the fire of the Atchinese.

I hear that the new steamer Amalia, of the Steamship Company Nederland, will not start before November.

LISBON, APRIL 4.

The Cortes were closed on Thursday last at eleven o'clock. There was but little ceremony, his Majesty being represented by the Ministry. The new Parliament will be opened in January next, unless any urgent matter should necessitate an earlier meeting. The elections take place in November, and the contest promises to be severe in some districts. In addition to the opposition offered by the Liberal party, the Miguelites are likely to cause some trouble in the North.

A letter has been received by a Spaniard residing in Lisbon from an important personage in the Carlist army, in which some of the plans of the Carlists with regard to Portugal are described. It appears from this letter that the plan devised for promoting sedition in various parts of the province of Minho has been abandoned in favour of a scheme for raising money to place the son of Don Miguel on the throne of Portugal should the Carlists be successful. The letter complains of the want of energy on the part of Don Carlos, while the son of Don Miguel is eulogised. The Liberal press treat the efforts of the Miguelite party with contempt. It was rumoured that the Government intended to send the Miguelite leaders out of the country, a measure that would be highly approved by the majority of the people.

Messrs. Antonio d'Aguiar, commissioner of the Portuguese Government to the Exhibition of Wines in London, Antonio Vasconcellos, and Batalha Reis started on Thursday for London, with three hundred boxes of wines.

LONDON: MONDAY, APRIL 20, 1874.

RECALL OF THE JAPANESE STUDENTS.

IN our issue for September 1, 1873, we mentioned that the Japanese students in this country, on the Continent, and in America, were recalled by an Imperial decree, forwarded by the new Minister of Education. At the time some letters appeared in the press, commenting unfavourably upon this sudden resolution, when the greater number of them had scarcely passed through half of the curriculum each was intended to study at the universities, so as to qualify them for posts in the Civil Service, or educational establishments in Japan. Remonstrances were made by the students and their relatives at the injustice of the order of recall, which had the desired effect of its being rescinded, and they were allowed to remain until their studies were completed. Each student on his departure was allowed his travelling expenses, and a certificate was given, authorising him to draw upon the Treasury at Yedo for his maintenance and payment of class fees. These allowances, we understand, averaged about two hundred pounds per annum, exclusive of travelling expenses. These have been duly honoured, but now the Finance Minister of Japan, from motives of economy, has induced the Government to recall the Civil Service students, whose maintenance abroad cost not less than £110,000 per annum. Those, however, who are intended for the army and navy do not come under this order of recall, but they form not much more than one-twentieth of the whole. This time the decree is peremptory, and all must leave for their destination, within two months of the date when they received the order. Hence there will be a complete exodus of these dusky, yet amiable young gentlemen, who have made friends that will miss them,—not a few of whom belong to the fair sex. From one of the most intelligent students we learn there are at present about five hundred and fifty of them at the colleges and other educational institutions in Europe and America. They are classed and distributed in the following manner:—In England and Scotland (there are none in Ireland) the largest number are attending classes to qualify as civil engineers; then come those who study commerce, banking, political economy, and law. Those on the Continent study law and sericulture in France, medicine in Germany, and a few in Russia acquiring a knowledge of diplomacy. In the United States they are chiefly engaged in agriculture, and for the same purpose there are a few in Scotland. Those acquiring a knowledge of the naval profession number fifteen in Britain and four in America, of the army twelve are in France and five in Germany, making thirty-six in all, to remain until they show a certain degree of proficiency before the examiners for the navies and armies of these countries. None have yet passed examinations in either of the services, but several have obtained the degree of Doctor of Medicine in Germany, and Bachelor of Arts in England. From this it will be seen that the countries selected as the base for acquiring the professional knowledge necessary to perfect Japanese institutions through their agency are those most famous for each specialty; such as Britain for its navy, commerce, and finance; France for its army, code of laws, and silk manufactures; Germany for its medical colleges, Russia for its diplomacy, and America for its agriculture. Besides these Government students, there are about 160 gentlemen of different ages, but mostly belonging to noble families, who are learning European languages, and acquiring a general education, at their own expense, or that of their parents. Of these there are stated to be seventy in America, fifty in Britain, and forty on the Continent; making a total of 710 students. If to these we add the Ministers and members of Legations, the Consuls and Consular officers, there have been during the past two or three years not less than 800 Japanese abroad, maintained at the public expense, and spending at least £200,000 per annum.

THE SERVICES OF M. GIQUEL.

WE note with much regret the reported retirement from the Chinese Service of M. GIQUEL. We cannot but think it a matter to be much regretted that he did not remain in the Customs' Service, and devote his great abilities and influence to the developing of a system which, however we regard it, is a power, and must, after all, be the lever which shall move and stir the enormous mass of Chinese immobility, prejudice, and ignorance. Up to the present time no signs of weakness, no indications of a desire to relax or resign his firm and tenacious grasp have escaped Mr. HART at Peking; but it is a curious fact that throughout the Customs' Service there is no man to whom rumour or public opinion assigns the rod of Empire when Mr. HART shall desire to quit the capital of the SON of HEAVEN for perhaps the political turmoil of St. Stephen's, or the life of a country gentleman in the Emerald Isle. That the Service contains able men we cannot doubt; but whom among them is qualified to assume and discharge the onerous and arduous duties which devolve upon its present chief? Rumour has frequently pointed to Mr. J. MCCLEAVY BROWN as the probable successor of Mr. HART, and it is possible that, to those behind the scenes, this gentleman's qualifications may be considered adequate. But to the outside world it seems difficult to say why Mr. BROWN should have been selected as the fittest on whom the purple can fall. He is known to the public as a secretary and supporter of Mr. BURLINGAME'S sham and pinchbeck embassy; as one who, knowing the truth, yet gave his tacit support to a bewildering tissue of misrepresentations and falsehoods, and he appears to have ridden into esteem and publicity on the shoulders of a presumed superior knowledge and mastery of the Chinese language. It may be that he has claims on the Chinese Government, but some other means of satisfying these claims might surely be found than those involving the sacrifice of a service which has singularly favourable opportunities of aiding the development of commercial relations between Europe and China. We make the foregoing remarks, not with any desire to disparage Mr. BROWN, but because we think he has been accepted too readily as a candidate for the prospective vacancy in the Director-Generalship of the Customs. Mr. HART'S successor should be a tried and capable man, with self denial and singleness of purpose, wide and liberal views, and able to command the respect and esteem of the somewhat motley crew he commands. Such qualities we conscientiously believe M. GIQUEL possesses.

THE dispute as to the Suez Canal dues has assumed a somewhat serious phase. A protest having been made by the Governments of Great Britain, Austria, Germany, and Italy, against the postponement of the new tariff, as requested by M. DE LESSEPS, the Turkish Government has informed the KHEDIVE that the postponement cannot take place. Thereupon M. DE LESSEPS has informed the KHEDIVE that he cannot carry on the Canal subject to the conditions of the International Tonnage Commission, and that he shall therefore dismiss the pilots, extinguish the lights, and virtually close the Canal. The KHEDIVE has replied that, in such a case, he would himself provide for the working of the Canal. The French Government has counselled M. DE LESSEPS to accept the decision of the International Commission respecting the tonnage dues.

BORNEO CONSULAR REPORT.

The report by Consul-General Bulwer, Resident at Labuan, on the trade of the port of Brunei for the year 1872, gives the following particulars relative to that place. The trade of this port with foreign countries is almost exclusively conducted with the British settlements of Singapore and Labuan. The port lies about fifteen miles up the river Brunei, the navigation of which is easy. The total value of imports from Singapore during 1872 is returned at £20,723; that of exports to Singapore at £30,299.

The total value of imports from Labuan during the same year is returned at £9,960; that of exports to Labuan at £5,442. The principal articles of import are cloth, shirting, and cotton thread; and the chief articles of export sago and gutta-percha.

Exclusive of specie, the total value of imports from the two British settlements during 1872 is put at £29,640; that of exports to those settlements at £32,825. The chief article of the export trade of Brunei is sago flour, which contributed no less than £18,200 to the total value of exports above shown. The next in importance is india-rubber (under which heading is included gutta-percha), which made a further contribution of £10,445; thus leaving but little over £4,000 to represent the value of all the other articles of export taken together. The character of this trade will also be further understood when it is borne in mind that nearly all the articles of export are articles of what is known as jungle produce. Sago (with some qualification), india-rubba, gutta-percha, bees' wax, edible birds' nests, bezoar stones, camphor, all come under this denomination. These exports are, therefore, the indications of the natural, as distinguished from the cultivated, produce of the country, the test of its spontaneous resources rather than of the industry of the people, though, of course, there is the industry which is engaged in the collection of the produce.

In placing sago under the head of jungle produce, some qualification is undoubtedly necessary, because it is not the raw, but a manufactured sago which is exported. The raw sago is brought down by natives from the interior to Brunei, and is there washed, and undergoes a refining process before being shipped. The labour employed in the washing and manufacturing process is exclusively Chinese, and the three sago manufactories which are to be found in Brunei were established by and belong to Chinese traders. The cultivation, then, is of the simplest character, but, such as it is, it is noticeable as everything is noticeable which marks an industrial tendency amongst a rude people. The industrial occupations of the people of Brunei and the surrounding country were touched upon in my last report. They serve in some measure to supply the wants of the country, but with the exception of the industry before referred to, which is engaged in the collection of jungle produce, and the one last mentioned, which is directed to the extension of the sago palm, they add little or nothing to the export trade; while, on the other hand, two items—rice and cocoa-nut oil—appear among the imports, for which properly there ought to be no place, which ought rather to be on the export side of the returns. The neighbourhood of Brunei presents a soil capable of producing an unlimited growth ofpaddy and the cocoa-nut tree. Both are cultivated to some extent, the former sufficiently perhaps for the wants of the rural population which cultivates it, with a surplus for the consumption of the town of Brunei. But the fact that it is necessary every year to import considerable quantities of rice and cocoa-nut oil suggests a failure in native industry which ought not to exist.

The population of the town of Brunei is estimated at from 20,000 to 50,000 natives and Chinese.

THE CHINESE COMMISSION TO CUBA AND PERU.

The Anti-Slavery Society have addressed the following letter to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs:—

The Committee of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society have learnt with much satisfaction that a Commission has been appointed, by the Imperial Government of China, to proceed to Havannah and Lima, to examine into the treatment of Chinese coolie immigrants in Cuba and Peru, and to report thereon to the Emperor of China. They are advised that a British, an American, and a German gentleman, as well as a Chinese lawyer, belong to the Commission.

The Committee of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society have for a considerable time been informed of the ill-treatment and wrong inflicted in Cuba on Chinese coolies. This information has been confirmed by the official despatches from Her Majesty's Consul-General in Cuba, who, under date of January 16th, 1871, estimated the number of Chinese coolies in Cuba to be between 50,000 and 60,000, whom he describes, "whilst, under bond of labour, to all intents and purposes slaves." Acting Consul-General Crawford, under date of November 3rd, 1871, states that "the condition of obligatory and continuous servitude to which the Chinese immigrants are now subjected is tantamount to slavery;" and he says, "they are treated as slaves."

The Committee are strongly convinced that, so long as slavery is allowed to exist in any form whatever, whether as negro apprenticeship or otherwise, in Cuba, no emigration from India or from China should be permitted. It is with extreme gratification that the Committee see Lord Granville stated in his despatch to Mr. Layard, under date of April 10, 1871, that "Her Majesty's Government could only consider a scheme for the introduction of British immigrants, when slavery is absolutely abolished in the island, and under the protection of a treaty." They are earnestly persuaded the same principle should be carried out with regard to emigration from China or elsewhere.

The Committee are deeply impressed with the extreme importance of the mission of the Commission from the Imperial Government of China, and of the great value of such assistance as shall secure its success.

With this view the Committee of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society would entreat Lord Granville to instruct Her Majesty's Consul-General in Cuba to render such aid to the Commission as shall be consistent with his official position, and as shall facilitate their labours in examining into the real condition of the Chinese coolies in Cuba.

CONDITION OF CHINA COOLIES IN PERU.

A correspondent, under date of 27th Feb., 1874, writes respecting the Chinese coolies in Peru:—

"The political regulations are downright barbarian as to Asiatics and their own Indians. As to the detached haciendas in Peru, the number is near 200, spread over a length, north and south, of above 500 miles, with from 150 to 1,000 and more coolies on each, kept like malefactors, flogged, chained, starved, and even killed at pleasure, without a vestige of control of their masters, or their mostly still more outrageous major-domos or drivers, with copper-wired whip-tongues, that draw blood at the first touch. Some of the masters themselves and their underlings boast of these barbarities.

"As to indemnity, these overgrown planters (haciendeiros) in Peru have not the shadow of a claim to it. They have been guilty of enormous injustice, even in contravention of the constitution of their own land, they knowingly committed in enslaved freeborn people, and treated them diabolically besides. We hope the Chinese Commissioners will call upon the planters to show how many they have taken away from the ships and from Callao, from the beginning, to their haciendas, how many are still alive, what numbers have died, and from what causes. If the truth is stated it will be seen that not a few have died under the whip or cudgel, by the pistol, or in the private dungeon; some even torn by bulldogs. Then let inquiries be instituted to show how many coolies have been turned upon the streets after being crippled, blinded—often by a stroke of the whip—how many have the marks of laceration on their backs, and how many have had to wear for years heavy chains on their ankles and necks. . . . . There are now many of such miserable and bodily-injured coolies—freed from their contracts because absolutely unfit for labour of any kind—begging all over the land.

"All these and many other things should come out before the Commissioners appointed by the Chinese Government, when it will be clear that the poor Chinese immigrants have suffered more than the Africans in the worst days of Negro slavery."

Monetary and Commercial.

Tenders for £400,000 in bills on India were received on the 15th inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were —to Calcutta, £250,000; and to Bombay, £150,000. Tenders on Calcutta at 1s. 10½d. will receive about 3 per cent., above in full; and on Bombay at 1s. 10⅝d., about 83 per cent. The demand for the means of remittance to the East is shown in these figures to be much the same.

At the meeting of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China, on the 15th inst., the directors' report was adopted, a dividend of 5 per cent. per annum was declared, and the retiring directors and auditors were re-elected. A discussion arose in the course of the proceedings on the long usance of China bills, which is reported in another column.

The report of the Directors of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China, to be presented on the 21st inst., is as follows:—

"The Directors now present the audited annual balance-sheet, profit and loss, and reserve fund accounts for the year ending 31st December last. The profit for the year, including £477 3s. 5d., carried forward from previous year, and after deducting charges and losses, amounts to £66,661 11s. 4d., out of which a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum has been paid for the half-year ended 30th of June last. A dividend for the past half-year, at the same rate, is now declared, making for the whole year a dividend of 8 per cent. Of the remainder, £5,000 is appropriated to the reserve fund, and £1,661 11s. 4d. carried forward to the account of the present year.

"The Directors regret to announce the resignation of their valued colleague Sir William Grey, K.C.S.I., on his appointment as Governor of Jamaica. Mr. John Nutt Bullen, of the firm of Messrs. Kettlewell, Bullen and Co., of Calcutta and London, is a candidate for the vacant seat. From his long connection and intimate acquaintance with the trade of the East, the Directors congratulate the shareholders thereon, and recommend him accordingly for election. The Directors retiring in rotation are Mr. J. J. Mackenzie and Mr. C. J. Erskine, who being eligible, offer themselves for re-election, and the Court recommend them accordingly."

At the meeting of the Eastern Extension, Australasia, and China Telegraph Company (Limited), the directors' report, which we have already given, was adopted, and a dividend of 2 per cent., making 6½ per cent. for the year, was declared.

The directors of the Royal Mail Steam-packet Company have decided to recommend to the shareholders at the meeting to be held on the 29th inst. a distribution of £3 15s. per share, including dividend and bonus, for the half-year ended 31st December last, free of income-tax. At the corresponding period of last year a distribution of £5 15s. per share was announced.

At a meeting of the Java Steamship Company at Amsterdam, on the 10th inst., a dividend was declared of 8½ per cent. for the first six months' working.

In reference to the meeting held to report on the liquidation of the Bank of Hindustan, we understand that the return of 10s. per share agreed on will be shortly ready for distribution, and that probably a further sum of 10s. will be available on the realisation of the estates in India.

Drawings to the extent of £100,000 will take place in May on the Japan Nine per Cent. Loan, and we understand that remittances for its payment have been arranged through the Oriental Bank Corporation.

The question of insurance on the coming season's tea is still discussed, but the rates adopted by most of the offices on steamers via Suez Canal, from Hankow, are 70s. and 60s. for mail steamers, from Shanghai and Foochow 60s. and 50s., and from Canton 50s. and 40s.

The Oberon, Captain Burgoyne, has again made a rapid passage. She left Hiogo on 15th January, with 1,400 tons rice and 400 tons sundries, and arrived off the Lizard on the 15th inst., ninety days.

The Manchester Market has exhibited a steadier tone, the better feeling in the Liverpool Market has imparted strength, and the inquiry for the better descriptions of Grey Goods has become more marked. Producers are very firm in holding for full rates. The lower grades still continue difficult to move. For Yarns the demand has been only moderate, but prices remain very steady.

The demand for Bar Silver has, during the past few days, almost entirely ceased. Mexican Dollars have been in good demand, and have been sold at 57¾d. per oz., showing a rise of ¼d. per oz.

THE CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA AND CHINA.

The annual general meeting of the shareholders of this bank was held on the 15th inst., at the London Tavern, Mr. Andrew Cassells in the chair. Mr. MULLENS, the secretary, having read the notice convening the meeting, the report of the directors (which was given in our last issue) was taken as read.

The CHAIRMAN said: It now becomes my duty to move that the report and accounts we have submitted to you be confirmed and adopted. Now, gentlemen, you must have observed that our profits in 1873 fall short of those of the preceding year, while our expenditure has increased. With regard to the diminished profits they are due to the unsuccessful working of our China branches; but for that fact they would have been fully up to those of the preceding year. The increased expenditure is partly to be accounted for by the opening of a new branch at Manila, which, I am glad to say, promises to be an entire success, and also to the very large outlay we have had to incur during the year 1873 on telegrams, in consequence of the very troublesome and perplexing state of business during the twelve months. Now the year 1873 was a most perplexing and harassing year for everyone connected with trade in India and China. I fancy every man of business in this room will bear me out in saying shipments of goods outwards and shipments of goods homewards alike arrived at bad markets. Then, again, as regards our diminished profits I must remind you that our money market here was frequently and greatly disturbed during the year. In October and November last, for instance, the Bank rate of discount rose to 8 and 9 per cent., and what these rates of discount mean for a business like our own, having to deal largely in discount, of course, must be apparent to every gentleman in the room. I may also say that, with regard to our expenditure on telegrams, the facility of communicating with the East, costly though it be, affords the opportunity of keeping the operations of distant agents more under control than was possible in bygone years, and enables us to avoid risks that we used to run. In 1873 we made no bad debts, but the amount we write off is due to depreciation in the value of old assets. We have thought it wiser to write them off boldly, and no longer look at them at all. On the other hand, I am glad to say that our business is everywhere progressing satisfactorily. Our credit is everywhere good, and it ought to be good, gentlemen, for our business is most thoroughly sound. We have not an asset that we can look upon as unsound. We have no skeletons in our cupboards, and the bank is extremely well managed by our excellent manager, Mr. Gwyther. I think if you, gentlemen, will heartily co-operate with us, we shall make steady and good progress. You can help us very much by encouraging your friends and connections to place deposits in our hands. Of the absolute safety of such deposits there cannot be a doubt. There are £1,600,000 at any rate between the depositors and the possibility of loss. I confess I am rather envious when I see the large amounts held on deposit by institutions similar to our own, when I know they are not one iota safer than they would be in our hands, and if you will only help us in that way I think we shall make very good progress indeed. I hope that what I have said will make you feel the same confidence in the future of the bank that I feel, and I am quite sure at any rate with the very anxious care and vigilance that the board and Mr. Gwyther give to the business of the bank it deserves success. With these very few remarks I beg formally to move that the report now presented, together with the balance-sheet and profit and loss account, be approved and adopted. Mr. JOHN JONES seconded the motion.

Mr. MORRISON, in the course of some remarks upon the trade of India and China, gave it as his opinion that the usance of six months was too long, and afforded means for the speculator to enter into improper speculative transactions, and that therefore the usance should be shortened, especially as the usance between Australia and London—a greater distance—was from sixty days' to ninety days' sight.—Mr. CHAPMAN considered that the India and China banks seemed to be simply supplying a few merchants and traders with capital to carry on their business, and he was not satisfied with the small return which the directors offered upon the employment of the capital.

The CHAIRMAN, in reply, said that the bank had got out of the rut and was now sailing in smooth water. The dividend was a fair one, considering all things, and taking the whole time that the bank had been in operation it had made a return of 5 per cent. per annum to the shareholders upon the capital they had embarked. He concurred with Mr. Morrison upon the advisability of shortening the usance wherever possible, and assured him that it was a matter which was never lost sight of by the board.

The report was adopted and the dividend declared. The retiring directors and auditors were re-elected.

Mr. MORRISON moved a resolution as follows: "That it is the opinion of this meeting that the shortening of the usance on bills would be as advantageous to the interests of trade as to those of sound banking." This having been seconded, the CHAIRMAN said it was not a resolution which he could submit, as it did not refer to the business for which the shareholders were called together. Mr. MORRISON thereupon put the motion himself, and only two hands were shown in its favour.

The proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman and his colleagues.

THE EASTERN, AUSTRALASIA, AND CHINA TELEGRAPH COMPANY (LIMITED).

The first ordinary general meeting of this company was held on the 14th inst., Mr. John Pender, M.P., in the chair. Mr. George Lyons (the secretary) read the notice convening the meeting, and the report of the directors was taken as read.

The Chairman said that since the amalgamation the different cables, with some exceptional and minor faults, had worked satisfactorily. The difference between 1872 and 1873 was something like £20,000 in favour of the latter year. The directors were in negotiation with the Australian Government with the view to the reduction of the rate. A proposition had been made to subsidise the company to a certain extent, so as to enable them to work at a lower rate than they were doing at the present moment. There was no doubt at all that with a lower rate they would increase the traffic, and if the Australian Government were prepared to run the risk of any immediate loss from a reduction in the tariff, of course the directors would only be too happy to meet their wishes. He believed that the arrangement was likely to be carried out. The company laboured under certain disadvantages in trading with such distant places as Australia. They had not the business resulting from stock exchange operations, which tended greatly to feed the Atlantic Cable, but they had a steady commercial business, and as people got accustomed to telegraphy of course their traffic would steadily increase. The joint-purse arrangement with the Great Northern Company was working well, and the traffic was being steadily developed. The directors had decided upon carrying over a considerable amount to reserve, and they thought that that was desirable until they got such an amount as would enable them to be more certain in their dividends. One of the lines which they brought into the amalgamated company was the Tasmanian Cable. He was glad to say that that had earned something like 7 per cent. in the year, and the traffic was increasing, so that altogether the prosperity of the line was satisfactory. The progress was not rapid, but it seemed to be very certain. He moved that the report be adopted, and a dividend of 4s. per share be declared, or 2 per cent. per annum, making, with the interim dividend already paid, 6½ per cent., free of income-tax, for the year 1873. The Right Hon. W. N. Massey, M.P., seconded the motion, which was put to the meeting and carried.

Mr. John Ball and Mr. Henry Dever, the retiring auditors, were re-elected. A vote of thanks to the chairman and directors then terminated the proceedings.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

Since the re-opening of the markets after the Easter holidays the depression previously manifest has been prolonged, and the instances of a further reduction in value are numerous. Tea exhibits an improvement. Coffee, after again giving way, making a total reduction of 40s. to 45s. per cwt., closes with more firmness. The uncertainty regarding the Budget has kept the market for Sugar in a state of suspense. Hemp, Pepper, Ginger, Cassia, Cloves, and some other Spices have importantly declined. Rice has shown a more decided depression, and prices are lower. Tin has attracted more demand, and prices have recovered.

TEA.

During the past week there has been a decided improvement in the tone of the market, and a fair amount of business has been done, the trade having bought more freely, whilst there have also been some speculative purchases of fair to good medium black-leaf Congous.

Digitized by Google

Prices have been fully maintained, and, as nearly the whole season's Export has now arrived, a steady market may be expected for some time to come. Congous: Red-leaf kinds; siftings have been without change. Broken-leaf kinds in fair request. Fair to good common have been in moderate demand from 11½d. to 1s. 0½d. per lb. Fair Kaisows have been rather slow of sale from 1s. 1d. to 1s. 2d. per lb.; good from 1s. 3d. to 1s. 7d. have been wanted, and prices show a slight advance. In fine to finest there have been but few sales at 1s. 9d. to 2s. per lb. Pak-lin kinds remain in demand. Black-leaf kinds; common show no change. Fair, from 1s. to 1s. 1d. have been more saleable. Fair to good medium have been sold to some extent from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4½d. per lb. Good to fine remain in moderate demand at previous prices; finest also have been firm. New-make Cantons kinds; common have been sold from 9d. to 11d. per lb., fair from 1s. to 1s. 3d. per lb., good from 1s. 5d. to 1s. 7d., fine at 1s. 11d., being former prices. Oolongs have been very quiet. In Souchongs the few sales made show no material alteration. Flowery Pekoes and Uncoloured Japans have been neglected. Scented Teas: Canton Capers have been only in moderate demand, but prices remain much as before. Foo Chow kinds continue strong. Orange Pekoes; Canton kinds have been dull of sale at previous rates. Foo Chow kinds show no change, but the demand is not active. Green Teas: The supplies continue moderate, but the demand is quiet, and prices for Ping Suey kinds, especially common to medium sorts, show some weakness. Moyune kinds remain firm.

The deliveries for the week amount to 2,187,000 lbs., against 3,266,000 lbs. last year.

SILK.

The market has been extremely quiet, the large business of last month having apparently satisfied the requirements of the trade for the present; prices of Asiatic Silk, however, owing to the firmness of the holders, have as yet experienced no reaction. In China Silk transactions have been on a small scale, but the few parcels that have changed hands have realised full rates. Canton Silk has been in good request, and prices have undergone a further slight advance. Japan Silk has been neglected, very few transactions having taken place, and to effect sales to any extent a decided reduction on present prices would have to be submitted to. Deliveries, 1st to 15th inclusive—China, 1,385 bales: Canton, 298; Japan, 239; total, 1,922 bales.

COFFEE.

The supplies of Plantation Ceylon at auction, although moderate, have been larger than for several weeks past, and with a gradually improving demand, prices have recovered 2s. to 3s. from the lowest point. In Native business has been unimportant. The closing prices of Plantation are:—Triage, 84s. to 95s. 6d.; small, 94s. to 98s.; low middling grey, 100s. to 101s.; middling, 101s. 6d. to 104s. 6d.; good middling to fine middling bright coloury, 105s. to 107s. 6d.; good bold, 108s. to 110s. 6d.; pea-berry, 103s. to 107s. The sales of other East India kinds have included 600 bags Java, ordinary pale greenish, at 83s. to 84s. 6d., and 969 bags Singapore, low black garblings at 29s. 6d. to 32s., good ordinary mixed pale at 76s. 6d. to 78s., good Pari Pari at 79s. to 79s. 6d., good pale Bonthyne sort at 81s. 6d. to 82s., pale Manila sort at 80s. per cwt.

The continuance of large landings and scanty deliveries has increased the stock until it now reaches 15,000 tons, or twice the amount at this time last year. The Dutch Trading Company have announced 74,600 bags Java, &c., for public sale on the 22nd inst.

SUGAR.

The uncertainty regarding the action of the Government in respect to the duties has led to a general desire to suspend operations as far as possible. There has been some inquiry for brown Penang, without leading to business. An improved demand has prevailed for clayed Manila, and an advance of 6d. has been obtained, but business has been checked by the firmness of holders. The only sales of East India have been 17,500 bags clayed Manila, common to fine (duties 2s. and 2s. 5d.) at 19s. 6d. to 21s. 6d., and 150 tons unclayed Zebu at 16s. 9d.

HEMP.—Manila continues very dull, and prices are again easier; privately only about 600 bales have been sold, fair current at £33, good at £36 10s., and at the periodical public sales Manila met offers only at a further decline, and was mostly bought in, a few lots white selling at full rates.

HIDES.—There was but a small attendance of buyers at the sales Thursday; the demand was very limited, and more than half the quantity offered was withdrawn. Light weights must be quoted ½d. per lb. lower on the average, whilst heavy generally maintained about former rates. Singapore Ox and Cow were in limited demand, and sold rather in buyers' favour.

INDIA-RUBBER.—Scarcely anything doing.

ISINGLASS.—No change since the last periodical sales.

JAPAN WAX.—Market quiet; of 600 cases offered in public sale a fair proportion sold at 58s. to 60s. 6d. for good to fine saucer; there are sellers of fine now at 59s. The article is very plentiful, and has a drooping tendency.

MUSK.—The auctions have embraced 10 caddies Tonquin, which sold, middling selected Pods at 35s. to 35s. 6d. per oz; rough, badly and false packed 18s. to 20s.; 16 caddies Yunan, one-third sold at 31s. 6d. to 32s. 6d. for fair; and 27s. skinny and horny; of 12 tins Cabardine, 2 sold at 13s. 6d. to 13s. 9d; and of 17 tins Grain, barely half was placed at 44s. 6d. to 52s. per oz. for fair to good.

Thursday a further offer was made of 581 barrels Ceylon, and one-half found buyers at former prices, fair to good lump at 19s. to 24s., ordinary dull ditto 13s., ordinary to good chips at 10s. to 12s. 6d., common to fair dust 8s. 6d. to 11s.

RHUBARB.—No business done in China during the interval; 80 cases offered in public sale were bought in.

RICE.—A more decided depression has prevailed than for some time past, resulting in a decline of quite 6d. per cwt. from the previous highest point for cargoes of Burmah. MISCELLANEOUS.

Advices from St. Thomas, March 27, state that the Marshal Pelissier, from Singapore to New York, which put in there, Feb. 19, leaky, had been condemned by surveyors, as the expense of repairing her would exceed her value; the cargo had been discharged.

At GIBRALTAR.—April 2, Atalanta (str.), Mangelson, from Yokohama, and sailed, 4, for New York.

CASUALTIES.

Advices from New York, April 1, state that the Black Prince, Inglis, from Shanghai, which arrived there March 31, experienced a hurricane Jan. 31, and whilst lying to shipped a heavy sea, carrying away steering apparatus, compass, binnacle, and lifeboat, and smashing bulwarks on both sides.

The Gutenberg (Hamburg ship), from Probolingo, arrived off St. Agnes, Cornwall, April 14, dismasted.

THE North German Gazette says, it learns from a reliable source that the Board of Admiralty in Madrid has ordered the two German merchant ships, Marie Louise and Gazelle, to be set free, together with their cargoes, which were seized at Sooloo. The authorities at Manila have been ordered to carry out this decision, and it is hoped that the indemnification of the owners for the losses they sustained by the unjustifiable seizure of their vessels will shortly be settled by negotiation.

A FEW days since the Royal Mail Company's steamship Tagus, on arriving in the Southampton docks, ran into the P. and O. Company's steamer Deccan, lying in her loading berth. The Tagus struck the Deccan on the port quarter, carring away her rail, bulwarks, davit, and boat.

THE Pacific Mail Company's new steamer City of Peking sailed from Chester on the 2nd inst. for New York.

Grant Brothers and Co., on the 1st March and 1st September in each year, the principal being repayable at par—namely, £100 per Debenture Bond, on 1st March, 1884.

The River Plate and Brazil Telegraph Company (Companhia Telegraphica Platino-Brazileira) is formed to complete the chain of communication between Europe and South America, by connecting by a Submarine Cable the City of Rio de Janeiro, the capital of Brazil, with the Cities of Montevideo and Buenos Ayres.

For this purpose an exclusive privilege has been granted by the Imperial Government of Brazil for a period of sixty years.

By this concession facilities will be afforded to the important commercial districts of the River Plate and (by the Transandine Telegraph system) to Valparaiso, and the West Coast of South America, not only for intercommunication, but also for communicating by telegraph directly with Europe.

The Submarine Cables, about 1,130 miles in length, have been constructed by the well-known firm of Messrs. Siemens Brothers, and have been despatched to Brazil by the steamers Ambassador and Gomos.

By the latest advices the steamer Ambassador had arrived at Rio de Janeiro, and was laying the first portion of the Cables; the steamer Gomos would, upon her arrival, proceed to lay the remainder, and the intelligence that the whole of the Cables have been completely and successfully laid may now be daily expected.

The specifications of the Cables have been prepared by Sir William Thomson and Professor Fleeming Jenkin, the well-known Electricians and Telegraph Engineers, under whose superintendence they have been constructed.

The Company also owns the land lines erected under the concession granted by the Montevidean Government for that Republic.

An Agreement has been entered into with the Western and Brazilian Telegraph Company (Limited), whose line extends from Para to Rio de Janeiro, to work and maintain, free of charge, all the Cables of this Company, and to pay to this Company for the term of forty years 20 per cent. of the gross receipts of the entire system between Para on the north and Montevideo on the south.

An Agreement has also been made between the Montevidean and Brazilian Telegraph Company—whose cable extends from Montevideo to the Brazilian frontier, and which was laid on 6th September last—by which that Company agrees to hand over its Cable to this Company, receiving for the same 3 per cent. out of the 20 per cent. to be received by this Company from the Western and Brazilian Telegraph Company.

Upon the net receipts coming to this Company from the working of the Cables, and the land lines, the Debenture Bonds now for subscription are secured as a first charge by a deed of mortgage duly executed to Trustees for the Bondholders.

The Western and Brazilian Company have already completed the laying of their lines from Para to Pernambuco, and from Pernambuco to Rio de Janeiro.

The Debentures take precedence over the Share Capital of £400,000.

The total amount required for the interest on the £100,000 Debentures is only £7,000 per annum, and the estimate of receipts, from competent persons resident in Brazil, is from £50,000 to £70,000 per annum, therefore affording an unusually large margin for security.

Scrip Certificates to bearer will be issued against allotment letters and receipts for deposit, and will be exchanged for the Bonds at the Banking-house of Messrs. Grant Brothers and Co., as London Agents for the Company, when all the payments are completed.

Certified Copies of the Concessions, &c., may be inspected at the offices of Messrs. West and King, Solicitors, 66, Cannon-street, E.C., London, where also the Agreements with the Western and Brazilian Telegraph Company and the Montevidean and Brazilian Telegraph Company may be seen.

Applications must be made in the annexed Form, accompanied by the deposit of £5 per Debenture Bond on the number applied for. Should the amount allotted not require the whole sum so paid, the surplus will be applied towards the payment of the amount due on allotment.

In case of default in payment of any instalment, all previous ments will be liable to forfeiture.

In case no allotment is made, the deposit will be returned forthwith without deduction.

Forms of Subscription may be obtained on application.

In addition to the favourable terms above mentioned, Messrs. Grant Brothers and Co. desire to draw special attention to the fact of this Company differing from nearly all other Telegraph Companies, in the fact of its having an exclusive concession or monopoly for a period of sixty years over the enormous traffic of the River Plate and Brazil, secured by the same.

Debentures on Telegraph enterprises are now fully recognised as an eligible security; as an illustration may be mentioned the Six per Cent. Debentures of the Eastern Telegraph Company, which are officially quoted at the London Stock Exchange at 103 105 c.d. per £100 Bond, whilst the Eight per Cent. Preference Shares of the Mediterranean Extension Telegraph are quoted 110 to 120 per cent.

London, 24, Lombard-street, E.C., 16th April, 1874.

FORM OF APPLICATION.

ISSUE of 500 SEVEN PER CENT. DEBENTURE BONDS of £100 each, being the Balance of £100,000 Debentures, of the

RIVER PLATE AND BRAZIL TELEGRAPH COMPANY

(Companhia Telegraphica Platino-Brazileira).

Price of Issue—£90 per £100 Debenture Bond.

To Messrs. Grant Brothers and Co., 24, Lombard-street, E.C., London.

I request that you will allot to me of the above-mentioned Debenture Bonds, on which I enclose £ , being the required deposit of £5 per Bond, and I agree to accept the said Debenture Bonds, or any less number you may allot me, and to make the remaining payments thereon, in accordance with the Prospectus issued by you, dated 16th April, 1874.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

DISEASES OF ADVANCED YEARS.—When man has passed to the borders of old age, the digestion becomes more or less impaired, the nervous system grows feeble, and the physical power shows increasing weakness. Hence arise the congestions of liver, lungs, head, followed by dropsy, asthma, or apoplexy, which too frequently afflict the aged. The liver usually first gets torpid; but its activity may speedily be revived by rubbing Holloway's Ointment thoroughly over the pit of the stomach and right side at least twice a-day, and taking the Pills at the same time. The same treatment cures all other congested organs, by varying the parts rubbed according to the situation of the congestion.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present P. and O. and Pacific mails bring advices from this port to the same date, the 10th March; the French mail from London Jan. 16 arrived out on the 7th March. The Japan Herald supplies the following items of intelligence:—

The rebellion in Saga, which appeared to threaten the existance of the Government, has been suppressed. Owing to the increased facilities given by the telegraph and steamers, the Government were enabled to send down a sufficient number of troops to crush the outbreak ere it assumed very serious proportions. After two or three skirmishes (for they cannot be called anything else) the Government troops entered the castle of Saga on the 1st March, the insurgents taking to flight. That the members of the Government were very much disquieted, even to the last minute, is proved by the fact that the same morning that the news of the taking of Saga reached here, a Japanese squadron, consisting of an ironclad, a gunboat, and several steam transports, conveying troops, the whole under the command of Prince Fushimi no Miya, who had been appointed to the command of the forces in Saga, left here for that place. Whether the prestige which the Government have gained by the suppression of the outbreak will prevent similar attempts elsewhere, remains yet to be proved. But it is a noteworthy fact that the leaders of the movement have not been captured as yet, and the Government are naturally apprehensive that they will foment disaffection in other districts, to which they have made good their escape, especially as the elements of disorder require only a spark to set them ablaze. Rumours of threatened risings in other parts of the Empire are continually being heard, but require authentication before being made current by the press. Much poverty and dissatisfaction exists in the country, which a bad rice harvest or other circumstance beyond the control of the Government would bring into revolutionary activity. In the interests of peace it has been a fortunate circumstance that since the institution of the new Government the rice crops have been abundant, and to this circumstance, perhaps, more than any other, is to be attributed its continuance in power. On the 9th March the Japanese gunboat, the Moshing-Kan, arrived in harbour from Kobe, and Prince Higashi, Fushimi no Miya, General-in-Chief of the army of the South, is said to have been on board. A salute of thirteen guns was fired.

When Soyejima returned from his embassy to China two enterprises were contemplated—one the chastisement of the Formosans; the other, war on Korea. The latter the Government has shrunk from attempting, as being too formidable an enterprise, but it is stated that with the object of finding an outlet for the martial valour of some of their people, who do not like inaction, and who are dangerous unless employed, the Government seriously contemplate (in the event of domestic troubles being allayed, of which there is some probability) fitting out an expedition to Formosa. The possession of artillery and bombs will enable them to shell a few villages of these barbarians, who have got no arms to cope with them. The Japanese can destroy these people's habitations without any risk of reprisals. They will gain a certain amount of éclat, at the expense of a little gunpowder, and a few tons of coals, and have substantially nothing to fear; and the expedition may have the good effect of teaching the Formosans a useful lesson, to be humane towards those whom the accident of shipwreck may hereafter cast upon their shores.

On the 7th February a violent concussion was felt in the villages on the south side of Volcano Bay, sufficient to break in paper windows. Flashes of flame were seen, and the following day a great volume of smoke, in the direction of Taromai mountain, a volcano situated near the south-east coast, about midway between Mororau and Saporo. The flashes of light were seen from Hakodate, but were taken to be lightning. A small steamer, the Karafto Maru (Capron), runs regularly between Mororau on the north side and Mori on the south shore of Volcano Bay, but she has not come over for ten days. Fears are entertained for the Kaitakushi model settlement at Saporo, which is not over twenty miles in a direct line from Taromai volcano. Some shocks of earthquake have been felt since, one on the 14th lasting three minutes, and being unusually severe for Hakodate.

It will be satisfactory to the inhabitants of Kobe and Osaka to learn that the line of railway between these two places, so far as the construction of the line and stations is concerned, will be completed ready for opening by the end of April, though whether its actual opening will be made at that time is entirely at the discretion of the Japanese authorities. Considering the enormous time that has been muddled away in making the line, caused by the incompetency of Japanese contractors and Japanese officials, to say nothing of actual rascality, it is to be hoped that the superior officials will take prompt measures to have the line brought into operation without farther procrastination, so that the public may be enabled to avail themselves of the convenience of the line, and it may commence to earn interest on its cost.

Great amusement as well as indignation has been caused here by the ludicrous tissues of falsehoods and exaggerations which have lately appeared in one of the San Francisco papers, purporting to be letters from a correspondent here. If, as is supposed, they were the work of a gentleman who was lately on a visit here, it is to be hoped that with his return to San Francisco these Baron Munchausen productions will cease.

The election to fill the post of Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce, vacant by the resignation of Mr. J. J. Dare, took place on the 5th March, when Mr. G. K. Dinsdale, lately with the firm of Macpherson and Marshall, was appointed to the position. There were about thirty candidates.

An attempt is being made to build an American Church here, but the members of the various sects do not appear to work harmoniously together in the cause.

A match is arranged to take place before the end of May between the Rifle Associaton of this place and those of Shanghai and Hong Kong.

The Kioto Exhibition has been opened, but is not thus far any improvement on its predecessors, but rather worse.

A Young Men's Literary Society has been formed here.

YOKOHAMA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The annual general meeting of the Yokohama Chamber of Commerce was held on the 5th Feb. ; A. J. Wilkie, Esq., in the chair. There were present Messrs. A. Winstanley, vice-chairman, Brent, Hyde, Sichel, Evers, Johnstone, J. A. Fraser, E. J. Fraser, Dodds, Jaquemot, Barlow, Melhuish, Seticell, Milsom, and Bisset. The report and appendices having been adopted, the Banco Asiatico and the firm of Messrs. Edward Fisher and Co. were declared duly elected members of the Chamber. The election of officers was then proceeded with, Mr. Barlow being elected in the room of Mr. Sichel.

The Chairman then addressed the meeting upon the subject telegrams, some of the members of the Chamber having written to announce that they were not prepared to continue their extra subscriptions to the telegrams. He (the Chairman) said he failed to see how the committees could possibly meet their wishes. A resolution was proposed and carried to the effect that members declining to pay be notified that they were no longer members of the Chamber.

Mr. J. M. Jaquemot addressed the meeting upon the subject of of the recent negotiations with the Kiito Aratame Kaisha. He was of opinion that it was incumbent upon their Chamber to offer the most cordial thanks to the various representatives of foreign Powers for the warmth with which they adopted the cause of their nationalities, and the pressure they had exercised to bring about a decision from the Government adverse to the Guilds. He therefore proposed a resolution to the effect that the thanks of the meeting be tendered to Sir Harry Parkes and to the representatives of other Treaty Powers for their valuable assistance in the recent question of the Kiito Aratame Kaisha. This resolution having been carried, and a vote of thanks to the chairman having been passed, the proceedings terminated.

NAGASAKI.

Our advices extend to the 8th March ; the P. and O mail from London Jan. 9 arrived out on the 28th February. We take the following from the Nagasaki Express ;—

Intelligence has been received here from Saga, stating that the rebellion there had been brought to a termination. But very few details are given beyond that it was very easily suppressed. This news has since been confirmed by the return of all the troops previously sent from here, and by the re-establishment of telegraphic communication as far as Saga. The leading members of the insurgent party have succeeded in making their escape in a small steamer which they managed to capture. Their present whereabouts is causing much anxiety in official circles, and several other steamers have been despatched to various places with the view of endeavouring to find them out. So far the Imperial forces have certainly gained the day, and this ill-judged rebellion in Hizen has been promptly suppressed. But it must not be assumed that the last has been heard of risings in Japan against the Government; too many causes exist for a continuance of the grievances of a large portion of its inhabitants, and until these have been removed a constant danger prevails of more formidable emeutes than even the late ones in Hizen.

It is reported that engagements took place on the 21st Feb. between Saga and Chikuzen, in which the rebels were defeated. The rebels had been expected the previous night at Nagasaki, and sailors from the Bogatyr were placed on guard at the Russian Consulate in Desima, immediately adjoining the city, whence also valuables were said to have been sent on board the Argus and other vessels. On the 21st also the Consular Representatives met and arranged signals upon which assistance would be given from the men-of-war. The residents to the number of seventy then met the Consular Body, and a Volunteer Corps was formed in three divisions, under the captaincy of Messrs. H. Gribble, F. Dittmer, and C. L. Fisher, for service at Oura, Desima, and Sagaramatz, and for patrol duty between 9 P.M. and 6 A.M., which, however, it was deemed unnecessary to continue after the 24th. About thirty of the Chinese residents also kept watch. The P. M. S. Agency was appointed as rendezvous for the ladies and children should they be suddenly called on to embark, and a notice was circulated that the Ringdove would receive specie, jewels, or other treasure. An official note addressed to the Treaty Consuls on the 4th March by Mr. Hiyodo Masayoshi, Sanji of Nagasaki, states that the disturbances having been quelled the guard for the protection of the foreign settement will be discontinued.

The suppression of the insurrection has been effected with so little difficulty that it at once exposes the hollowness of the pretensions of the conspiracy. Like that of Fukuhoka last June, a few misguided men have succeeded in imposing upon the credulity of the rustic population, and have induced them to join in the movement, but their espousal of the cause may be attributed more to the intimidation used to compel them to join than to any other influence ; as they appear from the accounts received to have changed their political opinions immediately on the Government troops appearing at the scene of the disturbances. The outbreak was in fact another one of those so frequently reported from every district in this Empire, where they appear to be a chronic complaint which is periodically breaking out and reviving a feeling of distrust amongst all classes of society.

On the 22nd Feb. a man lately in the employment of the Governor of Nagasaki was discovered in the act of making an attempt to set fire to the Government Office. The delinquent and his brother, the Governor's servant, were both arrested, and the result of enquiries made has been to implicate both individuals as being connected with the plot to set fire to all the Government buildings. The two brothers have been lodged in jail, together with the forty-three conspirators previously announced as having been apprehended ; and the whole of the prisoners are to be sent to Yedo, to be there dealt with for high treason by the higher Government authorities.

NAGASAKI, 28th FEB., 1874.

During the latter half of this month the town of Nagasaki and the foreign settlements at this port have been in an unusually excited state, owing to very exaggerated reports getting into circulation regarding the outbreak of a rebellion in the province of Hizen, and it is much to be regretted that rumours to the effect that Nagasaki has been in danger have been readily accepted by the newspapers in Shanghai as information worthy of credence. Most of the residents here were fully aware that the scene of the recent disturbance has been the town of Saga, situated about eighty to 100 miles distant from Nagasaki, and that the troubles have been almost entirely confined to that place or to the adjacent districts, and few could have been induced to believe that the rebels would have done the least harm to the inhabitants of this place had they have come here. The whole of the fright can be traced to the arrival here of about 100 men from the disturbed districts, and also to a few getting into the villages and towns en route, but the whole number was few in comparison to the Government troops. Nothwithstanding this, they appear to have been the cause of great alarm amongst the townspeople of Nagasaki, who allowed their excitement to get the better of them, and at once communicated their arrival to a few foreigners as the advanced guard of the insurgent army, which was not far off, the army so called meaning only a large number of unorganised men. Such really has been the source from whence the news was received, which was considered to be of sufficient gravity to transmit to Shanghai per telegraph.

From the public such would never have been sent, had they been obliged to pay the tariff rates, is quite certain, as ever since the commencement of the attempted revolution the current rumours had been legion; each one fortunately contradicting the previous one, enabled all to see that extensive manufacturing was being carried on somewhere, and evidently the manager of the Great Northern Telegraph Company at this port has been made the victim, as will be seen by the Shanghai newspapers. I will not trouble you with a list of the rumours transmitted, which have since been proved to have been totally unfounded and consequently incorrect; but I may mention for your guidance that one half are entirely without foundation, and the remainder so exaggerated as to be worthy efforts of some stock-jobbing combination operating for a fall in the Japan Loan.

However excusable it might be for the Great Northern Telegraph Company's agent here to telegraph over for the steamer H. E. Orsted, to come and be in readiness here, in the event of there being positive danger of the telegraph being cut, or the instruments destroyed, there is no excuse for allowing the private arrangements of the company to be made public in Shanghai, together with every rumour, however unfounded it happened to be. Such has been the case, and ere this Reuter no doubt has furnished the world with "startling intelligence" enough to create anxiety in the minds of all who have relations, property or interests at this port. Since the troubles, or rather the rumours of the troubles, commenced no steamer has left here, or I should have written to you and put you in possession of particulars of how matters stood. Things in the town of Nagasaki even as far back as last Sunday had returned to their usual condition, and there was but little indication of the excitement of the previous day.

That there has been a rising is certain, but to what extent it has spread or would have spread is by no means easy to ascertain, as everyone you may question upon the subject has a different version to others, and the result of inquiries is rather to get into a fog than to obtain information. One thing is certain, Saga some time ago contained a large number of the ex-samouri, who were idling about there; too proud to work, but without means to support themselves in the manner they would like to live in, as their pensions from the Government were but small, these men, it is said, were only awaiting for complications to arise and they were ripe for mischief, and it is presumed that the present time was considered to be the one to commence the rising. It is also said that Saga is not the only place in Japan where disaffected people are—they are scattered all over the Empire—and will, if the present Government are not cautious, give much further trouble. The recent troubles have unusual interest to foreigners, since the Japanese have desired to extend their protecting care to us all. They show us the weakness of the Government, which is continually having to employ its troops in putting down the rebellious spirit which is so constantly exhibited and tends so much to stop progress.

We are now well off for men-of-war, which comprise the following vessels: Dwarf and Ringdove, British gunboats; Aleout, Bogayr, and Japanese, Russian; Lackawanna, United States corvette; and a Japanese ironclad, Stonewall.

CHINA.

PEKING AND TIENTSIN.

The Peking Gazette of 5th March says the Emperor and the Princes Tun, Kung, Chun, and Fuh, will, on the 6th, at certain temples mentioned (all lying within the imperial park, and therefore not accessible to foreigners), burn incense and offer up prayers to Heaven for snow. This is the fifth time this winter that his Majesty has publicly prayed for snow to fall. The Emperor, accompanied by the Empresses-Dowager, will visit the Western Imperial Tombs, to offer up prayers to Heaven for the manes of his Majesty's ancestors, on the 24th day of the second moon (our 10th April). It will become accordingly the duty of the Governor General of the province to make the necessary arrangements, and to be present also, as the highest provincial authority, to accompany his Majesty on the journey.

A notice has been issued to the foreign community at Peking and Tientsin, acquainting them that four Tientsin men, under the style of Tung-tih, have opened "a Forwarding Hong" at Tientsin, for forwarding to Peking packages of stores, clothes, books, household articles, and such like things, required by foreigners resident at the metropolis; for hiring carts, ponies for saddle use, and barges for travellers going to the capital; for supplying travellers with stores, bread and meat, table articles, copper cash, &c., &c., including an English-speaking Northern boy to serve on the journey and at Peking, as a personal servant, linguist, and guide. This Hong will supply a want which has hitherto been greatly felt by all travellers visiting the North of China sight-seeing, and likewise by the residents at Tientsin.

Sometime back there was an Edict in the Gazette about restoring the buildings of the Yuen-ming-yuen, so that the place might be rendered habitable for the Empresses-Dowager in the summer. Since then the work has been commenced; and as the Chinese do not require long to erect their one-storied buildings, it is probable that they will be in a habitable condition by the time the hot weather begins, and that their Majesties will reside in Yuen-ming-yuen this next summer!

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 13th March; there had been no later mail arrival from London. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

The elections for the French Municipal Council have resulted as follows:—Number of electors, 206; voting 199; votes recorded, 139; voting papers disallowed, 36; members of Council elected:—French: M M. Voisin 135 votes, Maignan 130, Lemonnier 123, Millot 118. Foreign: Ewald 129, Lang 129, Hitch 126, Hennequin 123. There were, we believe, two or three tickets afloat besides the one carried, Messrs. Baron, David, Teillot, Juvet, Lester, and Yates having been also named. There was therefore a healthy contested election, and we hope the same spirit will enliven the proceedings on the north of the Yang-king-pang when our turn for choosing a Council comes round.

The master of the British barque Lizzie, G. F. Graham, has been charged before Mr. Mowat with contravening the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, sec. 4 par 5, relating to the prevention of disease among the crews of vessels on long voyages. The report of Dr. Johnston, the Consular medical officer, and Mr. Spence, assistant in charge of the shipping department, who visited the ship under instructions from H.B.M.'s Consul, was that four men were found off duty and suffering from dropsy, the result of scorbutic taint and exposure to cold, and that from the same disease one man had died during the voyage from Freemantle, and another in harbour here, a certificate as to the latter case being made by Dr. Burge. No fault was found with the vessel or stores, but it appeared that neglect occurred in serving out lime-juice to the crew, and that the sound and the sick were crowded into the same deck-house. Captain Graham excused himself by saying that he was unaware of the existence of the disease, and that it was difficult to induce the crew of Malays to take lime-juice. His worship warned defendant, but in view of the favourable report sent in did not inflict a penalty.

Among cases disposed of at the Mixed Court has been one in which a large number of gamblers received punishment for indulging that outlawed propensity. At this season of the year gambling in a small way goes on almost universally among Chinese, but it is of an inter-social kind that as little calls for interference from the police as the five-cent loo or quiet rubber for quarter-dollar points which keeps foreigners from premature somnolence after dinner. Occasionally, however, the native seeks the excitement of organised gambling hells—as he probably does that of the opium den, for lack of excitement or amusement of a more wholesome description; and it is to the breaking-up of these places, whenever they can be discovered, that the energies of the police are directed. One evening, a Chinaman meeting Superintendent Penfold informed him that a "hell" was in full though secret operation a short distance off, in the same street. Taking with him the sergeant on the beat, Mr. Penfold proceeded to the house indicated, where he found about forty gamblers, who, engrossed in their game, had neglected the precaution of placing scouts on the look-out for such an interruption. The number of the party rendered it impossible to secure them all at once, and those in the rear, taking advantage of their position, broke through a thin wooden partition, and escaped by jumping a 15-foot wall. About half got away thus, with more success apparently than the rash gambler who, at Hong Kong, the other day, had his back broken by jumping from a window, or another unfortunate who, some time ago, under similar circumstances, in Shanghai, found his downward flight abruptly broken by a gas-lamp, over which he fractured a collar-bone. The captives were produced next day at the Mixed Court, and were sentenced to 100 blows each, while the money found in their possession, amounting to $37—the "bank" had probably been secured by the escaped party—was confiscated for the benefit of the Chinese Hospital. The head-man was in addition sentenced to a month's cangue.

An attempt at suicide by a Chinaman has occurred. As a resident of the Concession was proceeding along the French bund he heard cries of alarm coming from the jetty at the foot of the Rue du Consulat. Upon going to the spot he found three well-dressed Chinamen standing on the jetty, and a fourth struggling in the water at a short distance out. He at once pressed one of the numerous sampans which frequent the jetty into his service, and reaching the man dragged him into the boat, the would-be suicide meanwhile making frantic struggles to escape. He was landed, however, and handed over to his friends on the jetty, who appeared to be of the better class of Chinese. They stated that the man during the Chinese new-year had lost a large sum of money in gambling, and had expressed a determination to make away with himself. It is needless to add that the many sampan men about the spot all displayed the usual indifference of Chinese in regard to saving life.

A Chinaman tried a rather clever dodge the other day to secure for an antagonist the punishment which he found himself unable to inflict in fair fight. It appears that just at dusk one evening a collision occurred on a creek in Honkew between two boats, one being damaged to the extent of three hundred cash. An argument took place between the two owners as to which was in the wrong. Arbitration failed to settle the dispute satisfactorily, and the two agreed to have a fight on the bank of the stream. The conflict commenced, but the owner of the damaged boat finding that virtue, when put to the test, will very quickly bleed at the nose, &c., determined in his own mind to resort to a stratagem whereby he might leave the field—beaten, perforce, but honourably. To do this, instinct led him to the conclusion that the only means was, by leaving the world, if only pro tem. Taking advantage of the current blow, he dropped—dead! The conqueror, aghast at the issue, ran away to Little Hongkew, to seek shelter from the excited mob of his antagonist's friends, who meantime made their way to the Hongkew station to give information to the police. The sergeant on duty went and found the body on the bank of the creek. As it fell, so it lay; the eyes were half closed, the hands clenched; to all appearance it was a corpse, seeming to grow colder and stiffer with each breath of wind. But while examining the body, a slight movement, perhaps an involuntary quiver of the eye-lid or lip, struck the officer as rather peculiar. Bending down over the body, placing one hand lightly on the chest, and applying his ear to the nostril, he listened intently for over a minute, and then the corpse gave a deeply-suppressed but bona fide gasp. Satisfied on this point, the officer quietly bethought him that no harm would be done, while a little amusement might be derived, from sanctioning the sham; and, rising, he sympathetically informed the disconsolate crowd that their relative and friend had breathed his last, and that the body must at once be removed to the station. This was done, and the officer then applied a few simple but effective means of resuscitation with the result that the man returned to life with remarkable alacrity, and quite an earthly yell. Explanations followed, and Johnny said he put his strategy into practice in order that his assailant might receive as severe a penalty as a charge of homicide could bring upon him. On the following day the latter—who, finding that the police were in search of him had immediately given himself up—was brought before the Chinese magistrate on a simple charge, to his astonishment, of assault, and fined $2!

The steamer Tunting has been handed over to her new owners, the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company We understand that after some necessary repairs have been executed she will be despatched to Tientsin with rice, and will remain throughout the season on the Peiho, to act as a light-draught tender to the other vessels of the company. We are informed that the Company shortly expect the arrival of a new steamer, the Hai-Ching, from Foochow, where she was built. She is of 700 tons register, built entirely of teak, from plans designed by M. Giquel, late Superintendent of the arsenal there. Her engines were constructed by Chinese. The Hai-Ching is intended to ply between this and the coast ports, and will be commanded by Captain Skey.

The Rifle-range is open for practice in anticipation of the spring meeting. A meeting of the volunteer officers is to be called this week, to consider the programme of the meeting; it is said that unusual encouragement will be offered to recruits and new men, and that an International Match is likely to form part of the programme, when teams of five each will represent England, Scotland, Ireland, and we hope other nationalties also. A challenge from Hong Kong and Yokohama to a small-bore match has been accepted, and a challenge has been sent to Hong Kong for a similar match with military rifles. The conditions are that each team shall consist of six men, who shall shoot on their own range any time before the end of May; the distances are to be 400, 500, 600, 700, and 800 yards, ten shots at each; and the whole match will be shot twice over, each man registering the best of his two scores at the several ranges. The representatives of Shanghai will be the six men who made the highest averages at last meeting, viz., Messrs. Dunman, Bishop, Cann, Carnie, Glass, and Sim, any vacancies being filled up from the next on the list. We hope the result will be a reversal of the defeat sustained by Shanghai a year or two ago.

An amateur concert has been given in the Lyceum Theatre, on behalf of Mrs. Caine and her family, and went off with every success. The theatre made an admirable concert hall, and was fairly filled; but the unfavourable weather no doubt deterred many who had subscribed from coming to occupy their places. The judiciously varied programme was further enriched by numerous encores, and its performance afforded the highest pleasure. The concert is said to have realised over $1,300. Mrs. Caine writes as follows to the Courier:—

I beg you will kindly insert these few lines in your paper; for although it is, I feel, very painful for me to come forward in any way at this time, yet I cannot leave Shanghai without making the effort to express my heartfelt and sincere acknowledgment of the kind and ready sympathy that has been extended to me and to my children by residents in this and other ports in China. I can only hope to show my true appreciation of the generosity of which we have been the recipients, by the careful use of the means which have been thus providentially provided for us; and with my grateful thanks to my benefactors, I beg to subscribe myself, &c.

A fire has occurred in a bed-room of the Eureka Hotel, Hongkew, but it was promptly extinguished by a few active hands with No. 2 Hongkew engine before the others could arrive, though they were early on the ground.

The American steamer Ping-on, which has been so long in Messrs. Boyd's Dock at Pootung, came out on the 5th, and was towed to Hunt's Wharf to receive her masts and boilers.

We observe that a number of Chinese houses near the Old Dock, Broadway, are being fitted up as bath-houses, to be carried on under foreign supervision.

We are informed that the U.S.S. Lackawanna may shortly be expected to return to Shanghai from Nagasaki.

Three-fourths of the American screw-steamer Shaftesbury have been sold at auction, by Messrs. Lane, Crawford, and Co., for Tls. 25,000.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 19th March; the French mail from London Jan. 30 arrived out on the 12th March, and the following P. and O. mail of Feb. 6 was received on the 17th March. The China Mail supplies the following items of intelligence:—

The threatened withdrawal of the one dollar notes by the Home Government has led to a numerously signed petition being presented to the Governor praying that the notes will be allowed to remain in circulation.

A meeting of the Legislative Council was held, pursuant to notice. Present, H.E. the Governor, the Hon. the Chief Justice, the Hon. the Colonial Secretary, the Hon. the Acting Attorney-General, the Hon. the Acting Colonial Treasurer, and the Hons. P. Ryrie, R. Rowett, J. Whittail and W. H. Alexander. The minutes having been read and confirmed, H.E. the Governor stated that the Council had been called together to consider the report on the Waterworks by the Surveyor-General dated Nov. 1873.

After a lengthened discussion H.E. the Governor put the matter of preliminary expenses in connection with the Waterworks to the Council, when a sum of $5,000 was voted for that purpose.

An Ordinance was then introduced by H.E. to empower the Governor to exercise certain powers under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1873. The objects and reasons were explained by the Acting Attorney-General. They were to secure efficient surveys of vessels, and bore reference to the facts evolved at the enquiry into the recent Wan Loong disaster. Some discussion took place as to the appeal to the Vice Admiralty Court in case of an owner being dissatisfied with the survey, but (the standing rules being suspended) the Ordinance was finally read a first and second time, and passed, being No. 1 of 1874.

The China Mail has the following on the Great Northern Telegraph Company:—"It is somewhat odd that Hong Kong should have been excluded from receiving an item of telegraphic news which possesses at least as much interest for this Colony as for the settlement of Shanghai. We read in a late issue of the Courier a telegram dated London, March 9, to the effect that, "The Great Northern Telegraph Company are preparing a Cable expedition, for the purpose of substituting very heavy cable for the most exposed portions of the existing cable. The expedition leaves London in the middle of April." Why Reuter's agency should not have condescended to telegraph this to us is, like a good many proceedings on the part of that mysterious corporation, something not to be understood. However, there the news is, and being published at the head quarters of the Telegraph Company in China is, we presume, authentic. What does it imply?

As regards the opinions heretofore expressed in this journal it implies a very full acknowledgment that in some points at least they were correct. We long since pointed out that the shore ends of the cables were not heavy enough, and we did this in language which was very far from imputing any wilful fault to the company. Our remarks, however, with others made by our contemporaries, were construed as an "attack" upon the company, and the home direction went so far as to explicitly state that they were uncalled for, and that no such faults as those pointed out existed. In spite of this, however, it has thought fit to follow the principal suggestion put forth. It will therefore be interesting to know what has occurred to render such a change of policy advisable. The company will not surely expend a vast amount of money in effecting what it deems perfectly unnecessary improvements? If on the other hand new lengths of cable are necessary, it stands self convicted of more than evasion in publishing the letter it did.

Nobody supposed that any line laid down for the first time, under unfamiliar conditions, would necessarily be perfect. The mistake made by the predecessors of those now in charge was in endeavouring to conceal occasional interruptions, and so changing the tolerance which all thoughtful members of the various communities would have extended to people endeavouring to do their best under very trying circumstances into a mistrust of their good faith. The fact that the company is now endeavouring to repair defects caused by want of experience will go far to neutralise the prejudices hitherto entertained. The communities at Hong Kong and the ports ask only to have reasonably certain means of telegraphic communication, and are not disposed to unduly find fault. A liberal policy on the part of the company, and above all, a perfectly frank avowal of any mishaps, will go far to maintain good feeling. Nor need the direction show itself too sensitive to anything like criticism. We cannot expect any enterprise which has to meet unforeseen contingencies to be devoid of some errors, and it depends very greatly on the company itself whether they are good-humouredly put up with, or whether they come to be looked upon as the result of a wilful neglect of the teachings of experience.

The following items are taken from the China Mail :—

Lady Kennedy and her daughter left by the Pacific mail steamer on the 16th. We but re-echo a universal feeling in expressing a hope that in ladies whose hospitality has been so amiably exerted since their residence in the Colony, will have a pleasant and prosperous voyage.

The Ichang, arrived on the 10th, is the third of the blue and white funnel side-wheel boats for the Yangtsze ; she has been lying in Singapore the last three months waiting for the N.E. monsoon to break, and left this on the 11th for Shanghai.

The Ferdinand brought the captain and a seaman belonging to the late German barque Chance, which vessel was wrecked on the rocks off the South end of Formosa, about a month since. She was from Australia bound to Hong Kong with a coal cargo.

The P. and O. steamers Mooltan and Delta, lying at the Company's Buoy near the Fort William, parted the buoy's moorings on the 13th and drifted down on the ship Onward of Hong Kong, but fortunately did not do any serious damage. They were both towed to berths by the Company's tug. H.M.S. Teazer arrived on the 14th with the master, officers, and steward, 21 native crew and 21 native passengers, of the late steamer Sun Foo, making a total of 57. All hands have been saved.

The lighting of the coast being one of the most important measures now in progress, we endeavour to record each fresh step in a prominent manner. We now learn that Mr. D. M. Henderson, engineer in chief of the Customs Lighthouse Department, will proceed to Ockseu in a few days to start there a temporary light which will be regularly exhibited till the arrival of the large apparatus from Europe. The light will be a fixed bright one. As soon as lighted, a notice to mariners will be published. We also learn that there are three large buoys now at the Pagoda anchorage which will shortly be placed to mark the entrance to the Min River.

MANILA.

It appears from the following extract from the Manila Comercio that the Spaniards are still carrying on offensive operations in Sooloo waters.—" The corvette Vad Ras, after having performed a cruise to the south of Tawi Tawi, in pursuance of her commission, and in carrying on operations against the pirates of Ubian, Sibuto, Mantauan and other places, arrived at Isabela on the 24th Jan. During the cruise various landings were effected at the places mentioned above by armed forces which were under cover of the cannon of the vessel and her boats, so that, notwithstanding that the duration of any of the landings never was less than six hours, the only losses we have to lament are those of some sailors wounded by bullets and taclobo ; the Moors at the aforesaid places fight stoutly. A shell from the Vad Ras having fallen at Sibuto, a number of Moors went to lay hold of it, upon which it burst, killing nine of them and wounding several more. In all the operations effected, the Moors used as weapons lantacas, and old and modern muskets. After defeating them, we burnt their villages and also destroyed their vessels to the number of 200, most of which were piratical craft of large size. After these operations had been effected, the Vad Ras returned to the port of Bongao, the only part of Tawi Tawi in which she could be kept out of sight of the Moors.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

The Weekly Advertiser gives the following items :—

The visit of the United States war steamer Monocacy has doubtless hastened the return of H.M. the Supreme King from his inland trip on the western frontiers of Siam. H.M. the King, and the young princes and nobles who had accompanied his Majesty, returned to Bangkok during the night of the 16th of February. On the 18th the U.S. Consul and the officers of the Monocacy had an audience with H.M. the Supreme King ; and one with H.M. the Second King during the afternoon of the 19th. On the 22nd the Monocacy was gaily decorated with flags, and a salute was fired of twenty-one guns in honour of the birthday of Washington the good patriot of the United States.

We learn that one of the sons of the United States poet, Henry W. Longfellow, is now visiting Siam ; he came in the Monocacy.

When his Majesty the Supreme King of Siam visited the British Indian Empire the Siamese Government ordered, through its Calcutta friends, new machinery for their Mint. This machinery has reached its destination. The energetic superintendent of the Mint, Phya Krasab, will doubtless soon have it in its place and in good working condition, and will then supply the country with a silver and gold currency more praiseworthy than what is now in circulation.

Thirteen Chinese were baptised by Dr. Dean. Two of the number were from Bangkok, three from Lengkiachu, two from Bangplasoi, and six from Ku-Buang. The latter name is given to a small village and country region about a day distant N.E. from Bangplasoi. Six or seven years ago a Chinese disciple, baptised at Bangplasoi, removed to Ku-Buang, and has since gathered around him a company of shopkeepers and gardeners, who have together kept the Sabbath-day, and in their humble way tried to worship the true God. Six of that number came with their leader to Bangkok, and after passing a satisfactory examination before the Church, were received into Christian fellowship, and enjoyed the ordinances of baptism and the Lord's Supper. They have already made the plan, and in part bought the materials, for a small chapel, all by their own counsels or the promptings of the Holy Spirit, and now ask for no aid in building, but simply request some one to go and preach to them the Gospel.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 26th March ; the P. and O. mail from London Feb. 20 arrived out on the 24th March. The following summary of the news is from the Straits Times :—

The Legislative session was opened on the 21st of March by H.E. Sir Andrew Clarke. It sketches out a promising programme of Government intentions and of public works to be executed, and contrasts favourably with the Gubernatorial utterances to which the public have heretofore been accustomed on similar occasions since the transfer of these settlements to the Colonial Office. The Council has held two meetings ; but as its first business is to revise the Jury Lists, and deal with the Estimates and Supply Bill for the present year there has been no subject of general public interest debated on.

The annual general meeting of the subscribers and friends of the Raffles Institution was held at the Town-hall on the 20th March, H.E. Sir Andrew Clarke occupying the chair. The prospects of this institution are brightening. A certificated mistress is to be procured from England for the girls' school, in the hope of greatly improving this branch of the institution ; and his Excellency, as Chairman, in replying to the vote of thanks, concurred in the liberal views of Sir Stamford Raffles, the founder of the institution, and promised to heartily support any action of the trustees in advancing the school towards the ends for which it was established.

The Dutch are withdrawing the greater part of their forces from Atchin, leaving about 2,000 men, under General Verspyken, in the Kraton, where they will be supplied with sufficient provisions to last them during the rainy season. General Van Swieten will return to Batavia with the main portion of the troops, but will, it is announced, return again in the latter part of this year with a third expedition should the Atchinese still hold out.

The long spell of dry weather has at last apparently ended, as during the past few days we have had several good showers, and there are indications of an agreeable and welcome change. The wells, are, however, still dry, what little rain we have had so far having been insufficient to moisten the parched earth. It is to be hoped, however, that the approaching change of the monsoon will remove all apprehension of a failure in the wells, our present sole dependence for drinking water in the town.

H.M.S. Thalia, Captain Woolcombe, for some time the Senior Naval Officer's ship on this station, left on the 21st for China, and will be followed shortly by the Avon and Midge. The Thalia will be replaced by the Charybdis. The gunboat Growler is still here, and the Swinger arrived on the 24th.

Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council.

I desire at this, the first occasion of meeting you in Council, to thank you for the kindly spirit which has been shown to me since my arrival amongst you ; and to assure you how sincere is my wish to devote myself to the service of these Settlements. You have been called together at an unusual time ; for although the estimates for the current year have been the subject of review and report by a Sub-Committee, your sanction is still needed for them. I purpose, therefore, asking you now to limit your labours to the consideration of the desirability of adopting that report, and to giving your authority for expenditure necessarily incurred last year, but for which no provision had been made. Other measures will also be now laid before you, and advanced a stage, but their discussion may be postponed till the customary period of your meeting for the despatch of business.

The question involving the future of the General Hospital, of the Lunatic Asylum and the Pauper Asylum is engaging the attention of this Government, and will be brought forward when a scheme is thoroughly matured ; although in the meantime you will be asked to make provision for the immediate wants of the sick labouring population of Province Wellesley, where District Hospitals and Dispensaries are peremptorily needed, in order that the relations between the coolies and the employers should no longer depend upon the intermittent action of individuals, but should rather be consistently regulated by the Legislature. An Ordinance designed with this object, to protect the immigrant labourer, and which, whilst not unduly pressing upon, will yet guard the interests of, the Planter, has been framed for submission to you, and will be accompanied by a continuation of the correspondence with the Government of India on the same subject. The following draft Ordinances, forming part of the New Judicial System, viz. :—1. Civil Procedure ; 2. Appeals Bill ; 3. Repeals Bill ; and which have been referred to the Judges and Attorney-General, will, with the report and amendments suggested by this Committee, be brought forward. The Chinese Immigration Ordinance, passed with a suspending clause, has been referred back by the Secretary of State for certain amendments. These, with a report prepared by officers practically acquainted with the working Chinese immigration, and with the probable effects of the provisions of the proposed Ordinance, will be submitted to you.

The state of anarchy and misrule, so long existing in Perak and Salangor, at last culminated in such open acts of piracy and outrage that I was compelled to interfere, for the protection of commerce, and to put a stop to a state of affairs which no civilised Power could permit to exist in its neighbourhood. I trust that the action taken will be attended with a good result. The daily increasing traffic with the territory of our enlightened neighbour the Maharajah of Johore calls at once for an improvement in the arrangement for the passage across the Straits, and a sum has been accordingly introduced into the estimates for the construction of a jetty at Kranjie which will be approachable at all times of tide.

His Excellency Admiral Dupré and suite, accompanied by Mr. Hartung, consul for France, was entertained by his Highness the Maharajah of Johore at the Istana. The Admiral and his party visited the arsenal, saw mills, &c. On arriving and departing a salute of fifteen guns was fired.

The Straits Times in alluding to the departure of Mr. W. H. Read says:—It would be difficult to point to any movement in the past twenty-five years aiming at the increased prosperity of the Straits, and tending toward the amelioration and security of its mixed population, which has not found a prominent supporter and worker in W. H. Read. We are glad to understand that the void his departure makes in our public life is to be a temporary one only, and that he will be among us again before long.

It is proposed to procure a full length portrait of Mr. Read, and to place the same in the Town Hall. The sum of $1,500 had been subscribed for this purpose when the mail left.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—Reports of the suppression of the rebellion had somewhat restored confidence. In Yarns only Nos. 16 to 24 were in any inquiry at a slight improvement; Shirtings were quite nominal at a further reduction; Velvets had been in more demand, and for Woollens there was more inquiry at the low rates ruling. Full supplies of Metals had depressed the market, and transactions had been limited.

HANKOW.—Business was resumed on the 24th February, but had been very much interfered with, and ultimately quite stopped, by the action of the native authorities who had prohibited native banks from issuing orders, hoping thereby to establish Sycee payments. The question was still unsettled, and in the meantime foreign trade was at a standstill, not only as regards settlements, but also clearances, which had for the time ceased.

CANTON.—Lead was again lower, LB $8.30; sales 800 piculs; stock, 2,800 piculs. WB, $8.50; sales, none; stock, none.

SHANGHAI.—Only a limited business had been transacted in Piece Goods during the fortnight, partly owing to a monetary difficulty that had existed among the natives in their system of payment, and partly to the fact that the dealers had been occupied in clearing former purchases to ship by the first steamers to the North. The banking difficulty had been satisfactorily settled, but the Chinese still held off from buying to any extent, affirming for their reason that they wished to hear the results of first shipments before entering into any further large contracts. Quotations, with few exceptions, remained unaltered, and were mostly nominal. Cottons: Grey Shirtings had been quiet, and rates closed slightly weaker. T-Cloths had attracted more attention, and commanded better prices for favourite chops. White Shirtings were rather lower in value. Jeans had been enquired for, but were held for an advance. Fancy Cottons remained dull, a few articles alone being asked for. Woollens: There had been rather more enquiry for some descriptions of Woollens, and sales of Camlets and Lastings showed some slight improvement; a transaction in common Figured Orleans (square pattern) was reported at Tls. 3.1.5. The business, however, in the aggregate had been limited. Metals: The market for most descriptions was unchanged, but Lead, LB, had been sold for arrival at Tls. 6.0.0 per picul.

HONG KONG.—The market had been quiet during the fortnight for both Piece Goods and Yarn, and the business transacted had been of a limited nature, dealers having been unwilling to purchase except to supply their immediate wants.

BATAVIA.—The business done had been extremely small, which was attributed not so much to the absence of demand, but more to the very low offers made by dealers, while importers hesitate to submit to the concession which it would be necessary to make in order to effect sales of any material extent.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead and Co.'s Report says: A moderate business has been transacted in Piece Goods during the past fortnight at rather weaker prices for many descriptions. Grey Shirtings have been saleable at a reduction of 2½ cents on former prices. 6 lbs. T-Cloths have kept in active request; other weights are little wanted. White Shirtings, both fine and medium reeds, continue in fair demand. 40's Grey Yarn has moved off to some extent; other numbers are neglected. Dyed Cottons are a little inquired for. Woollens are in moderate request. Iron is in small supply, and prices are very steady; for some kinds possibly a slight improvement on last rates might be obtained. Yellow Metal during the fortnight has been very dull, and prices, at the close, under the influence of home advices, is decidedly weaker. Copper Sheathing can only be placed to a limited extent at present. Zinc Sheathing is wanted, but the prices offered are not such as will lead to business. The demand for Roll Zinc has ceased for the present. Brasswire moves off slowly at last rates. Pig Lead can only be sold in retail lots, the demand at present prices is so limited. Steel in cases meets with a small inquiry. Exports of Gunpowder to several of the neighbouring ports are forbidden for a time, consequently there is little inquiry. Assorted Paints are quiet. White Lead is wanted. Stockholm Tar still commands extreme prices. In Coals there have been no transactions, and prices of both West Hartley and Cardiff are slightly weaker.

PENANG.—In the early part of the fortnight there had been a good enquiry for some classes of staple goods, but at the close the demand seemed to be satisfied. Prices generally were not quotably altered, but the tendency was rather weaker.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been little doing in the market; prices were nominally unaltered.

SHANGHAI.—Black: One small chop had been settled during the fortnight at Tls. 14 (say 10½d. per lb.). Green: There had been a fair business transacted during the fortnight, considering the advanced season of the year. Prices paid for Moyune, 2,175 ½ chests at Tls. 24½ to 41 per picul; Fychow, 1,008 ½ chests at Tls. 26 to 29; Pingsuey, 1,896 ½ chests at Tls. 30 to 42; Local-packed, 646 ½ chests at Tls. 24 to 28. Settlements, 5,725 ½ chests.—Stock, 4,906 ½ chests.

CANTON.—The only transaction reported during the fortnight had been a small quantity of Congou, say 440 half-chests, at Tls. 15. Stocks were much the same as last given, say: 1,000 boxes Congou, 10,000 boxes Scented Orange Pekoe, 20,000 boxes Scented Caper, 9,000 boxes Gunpowder, 2,000 boxes Young Hyson, and 2,000 boxes Imperial.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been only a moderate business in Hanks, mainly attributable to the difficulty of procuring good selections; for average parcels prices were maintained, and no decline could be quoted; but for common and inferior, lower prices were ruling. Oshus had attracted more attention, and the drop in these sorts had led to transactions at a comparatively more favourable ratio than for Mybash sorts. Arrivals had not equalled settlements, and the stock had been reduced to 1,800 bales.

SHANGHAI.—The lower prices ruling on this market had induced a more current business, and holders having been willing sellers, most of the purchases made show some decline upon the quotations of a fortnight previous. At the close, however, the stock of good Silk being much reduced, there was a slightly firmer feeling, and holders were asking higher rates for the few remaining parcels of chop or desirable Silk. The sales reported include the following chops, viz.:—King John, No. 3, at Tls. 420; Gold Lion, Nos. 3 and 4, at Tls. 360 and 340; and Cat and Bee and Zebra, No. 2, at Tls. 375. The unsold stock was estimated at something less than 2,000 bales. Settlements for the fortnight, Chinas, 1,300 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 1873, 53,000 bales; against 1872-73, 54,250 bales; 1871-72, 47,900 bales. Comparatively unsold Stock on this market on the 12th March, 1874, 2,000 bales; 1873, 600 bales; 1872, 500 bales.

CANTON.—There had been some animation in the market, and settlements had amounted to 178 bales, viz., 68 for the French mail, and 110 bales for the present mails. Re-reels had also been in demand for America, and settlements were reported amounting to 320 boxes, at prices which fully maintained last quoted prices. The following quotations were given for such staple as was procurable:—Tsatlee, No. 2, $410; 3, $380 to 385; 4, $365 to 370.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, APRIL 22.

The First Chamber has adjourned, after having passed the Bills which had been previously approved of by the Second Chamber. In the Lower House there has been a four days' sitting with closed doors to discuss en comité general the papers relating to the Atchin question. Yesterday the Chamber was again opened to the public, and a debate took place upon the well-known interpellation. Mr. Heydenryck declared that it was not quite clear if there was any one to be blamed in this matter, and he asked if the annexation of Atchin was irrevocable, and if a third expedition would be necessary. Mr. Schimmelpenninck van der Oye was of opinion that this matter ought not to be turned into a party weapon against the Cabinet. Messrs. Nierstrasz and Huffmanns disapproved, as they did before, of the policy of the Government and the annexation. The first-named was also of opinion that the Government had not been straightforward when they told the Chamber that annexation was not intended. Mr. Van Houten defended the policy and the measures of the Government; his confidence in the Minister of the Colonial Department is unshaken, and he declared that the whole Liberal party, and even many Conservatives, share his opinion. He—a Radical—urged the Liberals to join together and draw up a programme of united policy, now that the Atchin affair had become a mere question of administration. Mr. Gratama said that he had formerly been opposed to the Sumatra treaty, but now that we have obtained Atchin he has altered his opinion. He demonstrated that the Opposition lacked moral earnestness, and he recommended our Tories to learn behaviour from the English Conservatives, who were loyal in their opposition against the Ashantee war. Mr. Insinger said it was not the duty of the Opposition to propose a vote of want of confidence, but the friends of the Ministry ought to propose a motion of confidence. Mr. Tabius protested vigorously against the annexation. The Minister of the Colonial Department then made a very long speech, and stated that the Government had only resolved upon annexation because it was an absolute necessity. Thereupon the debate was closed. Its result was not in accordance with the general expectation. But since the Conservative Amsterdamsche Courant, the high Tory paper, published an entre-filet that the Opposition would not make their coup now, no one is greatly astonished that the Government have escaped. There is no question but that the Cabinet is now stronger than it has been for some months past.

The arrest of M. Clément Duvernois in Paris has created a good deal of excitement here. Rumours are abroad that he has exercised much influence both at the Hague and in the provinces. It seems that the Queen paid much attention to this gentleman, so that one of the oldest firms of bankers in the Hague, Messrs. Overklift and Co., were induced to accord him their fullest confidence. Shortly afterwards they stopped payment and absconded, as your readers already know. He has, moreover, caused other disasters. Some days ago we were surprised to hear that the Overysselsche Bank (at Zuolle), a financial establishment which was established a few years ago, was en déconfiture. The managers have absconded, and one of them, a certain Mr. Wolff, has been arrested in Paris, and held to bail. Again the Amsterdam Bourse has been surprised by the suspension of one of the very oldest and most respectable banking firms, Messrs. J. H. Schuymer and Zonen. The principal partner has disappeared, and it is said that this failure will cause very heavy losses. This house was not simply a banking firm, but what we call here a Kassier, receiving deposits and paying against cheques. General distrust now prevails, and it is feared that the failures will be followed by others, the more because there is a run up on the banks.

It is with much pleasure that I give a satisfactory record of the operations of the Rotterdam Bank during last year, which was so disastrous to many financial institutions. The shareholders receive a dividend of 5 per cent. upon the paid-up capital, whilst the reserve fund is increased by a sum of f.50,787.35½. The capital of the bank has been increased to f.9,205,250. Besides the usual banking operations this institution has taken part in the following undertakings—the Dutch-American Steamship Company, the Bavarian Beer Brewery of Heineken, the Rotterdam Sugar Refinery, and the bank is, moreover, one of the concessionaires for the construction of railways. The liquidation of the head agency in Java has been completed, all its engagements have been met, so that there is no fear of any more losses. The Blitar timber estate, which still belongs to the bank, will return a profit. The total of the profits has amounted to f.507,873.50½, and that of the transactions during the year to f.330,040,346.18, more than forty-one millions more than in the previous year.

I regret to say that a very bad account is given of the new canal from Amsterdam to the North Sea. A large portion of the works has been destroyed by severe storms, and no workmen are now employed. I do not think, however, that the undertaking will prove a failure, but at present there is much want of capital. With reference to the new waterway from Rotterdam to the North Sea, it has been announced that an East Indiaman, the frigate Maassluis, from Tjilatjap, has passed through. This fact created much satisfaction here, and has revived the hope that we shall at last have a practicable communication with the ocean.

The annual meeting of shareholders of the Steamship Company "Java" will be held on the 9th of May.

ROTTERDAM, APRIL 23.

The result of the Atchin debate has given general satisfaction. The secret debate, which was held in comite general, seems to have reinforced the Cabinet enormously. The declaration of the Minister of the Colonial Department that he was forced by circumstances to annex Atchin, and that he should have preferred to conclude a treaty, was much opposed by Mr. Nierstrasz, who severely criticised our very poor navy, the Minister, the Governor-General, and Colonel Van Dalen, to whom it must be ascribed that the first expedition was a failure. The fact that the Government Commissary repatriated with a pension of f.12,000 a year caused much displeasure, as some members declared, and it was approved of that Colonel Van Dalen was already punished for his mismanagement in military matters.

The Conservative papers are enormously disappointed, and they flatter themselves that again a discussion about Atchin will take place, when the Government will prove more clearly than they did now that an annexing policy was only applied because it was impossible to act in a more liberal way, and that it was never the intention nor the plan to conquer Atchin. I indeed should have wished that Mr. Fransen Van de Putte had contradicted more positively than he did the accusations of Mr. Nierstrasz that to conquer Atchin was the very primitive plan

PRODUCE MARKETS.

COFFEE.—The market is very dull, in expectation of the Trading Company's auction, which will take place on the 22nd, when 74,638 bales will be offered for sale. The valuation is based on 50c. to 50½c. for good ordinary.

RAW SUGAR is firmer, and higher prices were paid for the rather small quantities which were offered, because the holders decline to operate without a further advance.

TEA.—The market is very firm, but the transactions are of no importance.

RICE is very dull.

PEPPER.—A small lot of 269 bales found buyers at high prices.

JAVA TOBACCO.—The parcels of sundry head marks offered in public auction changed hands at rather high prices. There is a good demand for fine qualities, of which the market is not well provided.

TIN has met with a lively demand, and prices have gone up enormously. Many speculative transactions have taken place, and the quotation is now nominally f.5 higher, Banca ruling at f57 to f.57½, Billiton on the spot at f.55½ to f.56.

COCOA-NUT OIL dull. There is no demand; prices, however, remain firm.

INDIGO.—The market remains unaltered, no transactions of importance having taken place.

ARRACK.—A brisk business took place. The transactions included the following lots: 50 casks ex Lichtstraal, 244/1 and 14/2 casks ex Hoek van Holland, 75 casks ex Maria Sarah.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

(17th.) Sir G. JENKINSON asked the First Lord of the Treasury whether any information had reached Her Majesty's Government with reference to the reported telegram from Constantinople, in which it was stated "that several Embassies have received advices from Alexandria that M. Lesseps had informed the Khedive that, being unable to work the Suez Canal under the conditions imposed by the Suez Canal Commission, he would dismiss the pilots, extinguish the lighthouses, and thus virtually close the Canal; and whether Her Majesty's Government had considered this contingency in connection with the establishment of an alternative route to India, as recognised by the Report of the Select Committee on this subject last Session.

Mr. DISRAELI said: There have been of late frequent communications respecting the affairs of the Suez Canal, and it is quite true that among several telegrams which have been received there is one announcing that M. Lesseps had informed the Khedive that, being unable to work the Canal under the conditions imposed by the Commission, he would dismiss the pilots, extinguish the lights, and thus virtually close the Canal. The Porte has instructed the Khedive to insist on the complete fulfilment of those conditions; and, knowing M. Lesseps myself, knowing also that he is a man of sense, I have for my own part very little fear that he will yield to the circumstances of the case.

(24th.) Sir G. JENKINSON asked the First Lord of the Treasury if the Government had received the notices referred to in a letter in The Times and other journals of the previous day, and signed Daniel Lange, and addressed by him on behalf of M. Lesseps to the President of the Board of Trade, and also to the Lords of the Admiralty, in which he informs them that Her Majesty's ships and all other vessels would be stopped, and not allowed to enter the Suez Canal unless they first paid the extra charge demanded by M. Lesseps; and, further, whether he could, without inconvenience to the public service, state what course Her Majesty's Government proposed to take, under these circumstances, for the protection of British interests.

Mr. DISRAELI: It is quite true that the Government have received notices in reference to the Suez Canal. With regard to the second part of the inquiry, I would say that the Government are at this moment in communication with other Powers as to the course to be adopted, and when they have decided upon that course it will be made known to all the parties concerned.

THE COOLIE TRAFFIC.

(22nd.) Mr. KINNAIRD gave notice that he will move for returns of the number and names of the ships employed in conveying coolies from India and China to the West Indies since the 1st of Jan., 1872, to the present date; and of the number of coolies taken in these vessels, the number of deaths which occurred during the passage, and the number of medical officers, qualified and unqualified, in whose medical charge the coolies were placed on leaving the port of embarkation, and how many of these have been entered on the articles of the ship.

THE WOOSUNG BAR.

(24th.) Mr. REID asked the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether any communications had passed between Her Majesty's Minister at Peking and the Chinese Government on the subject of the silting up of the bed of the river at Shanghai, and whether any such communications had been received at the Foreign-office or any despatches on the subject, and whether he had any objection to produce them.

Mr. BOURKE.—The question of the silting up of the Woosung River has been frequently brought to the notice of the Chinese Government by Her Majesty's Minister at Peking. Instructions were sent to Mr. Wade on the subject as lately as the 30th of January last. There will be no objection to produce the despatches on the subject.

Miscellaneous.

PORTUGUESE FINANCE.

A correspondent of the Hour writes from Lisbon as follows upon the subject of Portuguese Finance:—

The equilibrium of the Portuguese Budget, which has long been a desideratum, is now an accomplished fact, and this has been realised not only in consequence of the wise and judicious operations based upon the public credit of the country itself, but also by the progressive increase of the revenue, as evinced by the custom-house receipts, the exportation dues, and other sources from which it is derived. The wise and judicious management of public affairs must undoubtedly be considered in a great measure as a cause of the present improved position of the Portuguese funds, as well as having contributed to the welfare of the country in many other respects. Besides, the fidelity with which the King exercises his constitutional prerogatives has most materially influenced national prosperity. Amongst the measures undertaken by the Portuguese Government to improve the public administration, a notice of which would be most interesting to Englishmen, we must not forget to mention the abolition of the Macao coolie trade, the proposed reform of the sanitary service, and also of quarantine, which will soon be carried out, together with the Bill presented to the Cortes to extend to Great Britain the advantages of the conventional tariff annexed to the Treaty of the 11th March, 1866, between Portugal and France. We may state that the above-mentioned tariff accorded to France, in exchange for certain compensations, privileges which prevented some English products from being able to compete with French ones in the Portuguese market. The Cabinet of Lisbon will thus meet the wishes of the English manufacturers and merchants who have long requested to be treated on the same footing as those who are enjoying the privileges of the most favoured nation.

The Colonial Budget of 1874-75, which is now before us, shows that the income amounts to £432,000, and the expenditure to £406,888, leaving a balance of £25,112. So late as 1871 the colonies were an expense to the country, not being self-supporting. Now this is changed, and even in the above-mentioned expenditure there is included a compensation paid to Portugal for the excess in the cost of the naval stations. This compensation, amounting to about £38,000, will be employed to pay the interest and form a sinking fund for a loan to be employed in building vessels of war, and also to help a navigation company trading between Lisbon and Mozambique. The income of the Colonial Budget in 1857-58 was £176,000, with an expenditure of £216,500, thus leaving a deficit of £40,500. By comparing the figures of this Budget with those of the former, the great progress made during these years is strikingly evident. If the acquisition of more ships of war is indispensable to a good colonial administration, it will be easily understood that the geographical position of Portugal requires an improvement in its marine, so that it may become an important auxiliary to the fortifications on land, if it should ever happen that Portugal was threatened with invasion or exposed to insult.

A SCOTCH BANK FAILURE.—The lessons of a financial panic, terrible as they seem, never last above three or four years; otherwise the fate of a concern on which a report was presented at Glasgow last month, and which is now in its sixteenth year of liquidation, would have been a sufficient warning against the grand evil of bad banking, in which nine out of ten panics have their origin. The Western Bank of Scotland, whose £100 shares, with £50 paid, had stood a short time previously at 88, and whose paid-up capital was £1,500,000, stopped in 1857 with liabilities for £8,000,000, and created universal disaster. Its directors were among the wealthiest and most eminent persons in Scotland, and even after the crash had occurred the infatuation with which their assurances were regarded was such as to cause enthusiastic meetings to be held for the purpose of denouncing all adverse criticism of their conduct—The Times being especially held up to opprobrium. Statesmen, authors of the highest distinction, landowners, and municipal authorities were unanimous in their verdict that whatever might be the difficulty at the moment, it was the Bank Charter Act, and not the Glasgow banking system, that must be in fault. The present report of the liquidators announces that the winding up is virtually concluded, although, as there are still a few small matters to adjust, the accounts cannot absolutely be closed. The general result, therefore, can be stated. In addition to the absorption of the £1,500,000 paid-up capital a sum of £2,052,247 was drawn from the shareholders by two subsequent calls. The first report by the four original liquidators showed that a £25 call would be sufficient to meet the loss on the balance-sheet prepared by them, and six months afterwards came another call of £100. Out of the £3,552,247 of shareholders' money thus contributed the amount returned during the fifteen years of liquidation has been only £875,842, of which £142,817 was obtained by proceedings against the directors. The total loss, therefore, has been £2,676,405, and this was borne among 1,300 shareholders, comprising a large proportion of aged and dependent persons.

ACCIDENTS TO P. AND O. STEAMERS.—The steamer Deccan, which left Southampton on the 16th inst. with the heavy Bombay mails, has been towed back by the Mongolia with her machinery disabled. The accident happened when she had been little more than two days at sea, on her way to Gibraltar. She had on board, besides the mails, forty-four passengers, a full cargo, and £20,000 in bar silver. The passengers and cargo were transferred to the Cathay, which sailed Thursday, and the mails has been forwarded via Brindisi. On the 21st inst. the P. and O. steamer Bangalore came into collision with the Prince Rupert, of St. John's, New Brunswick, the latter being under full sail, and the former coming up Channel at quarter speed, in consequence of a dense fog. The damage sustained by the steamer was the loss of her main-yard, top-gallant yard, bulwarks, two boats, and the rigging on her port side. She stood by the scene of the accident a long time, but could discover no trace of what became of the Prince Rupert after the collision. The Bangalore, which is an extra steamer from Australia, arrived at Southampton on the 22nd inst. with 130 passengers, £1,770, and 2,000 packages of cargo.

CHARGES ON INDIAN TELEGRAMS.—The notice recently issued by the Indian Telegraph Department with respect to charging for compound words has been modified. The Indian Department will now accept as single words all ordinary English words, proper names of persons and places, which are commonly written and recognised as one word. When any bond fide doubt exists as to the proper mode of spelling an ordinary English word, the sender's manner of writing is to regulate the charge. All illegal combinations of words will be charged for according to the number of words employed in the combination, and illegitimate combinations of syllables with words will be treated as cyphers, five letters being counted as one word.

ADVICES have been received at Lloyd's of the loss of two large steamers, one in the American waters and the other off Calcutta. The Mississippi, from Liverpool to New Orleans, has gone ashore on the Flag Rocks, and will probably be a total loss. This steamer belonged to the Mississippi and Dominion Steamship Company, of Liverpool, had a tonnage of 2,159, traded between Liverpool and America, and was built in 1872 by M'Millan, of Dumbarton. The other vessel is the Calcutta, belonging to Mr. Norwood, M.P., which has been run down by the Galatea, a Hamburg steamer. The former sank at her moorings (crew saved), and the latter steamer was uninjured. The Calcutta was rice-laden, her tonnage was 2,100, and she was built in 1871, by Earle, of Hull.

Major-General J. A. Street, C.B., has been appointed to the military command in Ceylon, and will leave England early next month to relieve Major-General Rennie, whose period of service on the Staff will expire on June 13. COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

THE CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, CHINA, AUSTRALIA, &c., V. JUST.

This case raised a question of very great importance to bankers and others in business as to how far credit may continue to be given under a guarantee to traders who are in circumstances that may possibly lead to insolvency. It was an action on a guarantee of bills drawn by a mercantile firm at Singapore to the extent of £5,000. In September, 1872, after the guarantee had been acted upon for some time, the firm was in such circumstances that their solvency was suspected by the bank. They were heavily indebted to the bank, and the bank manager thought insolvency probable. On the 4th of October, 1872, however, the bank discounted a bill drawn by the firm, but on the 9th they stopped payment. The defendant, who had given the guarantee, disputed his liability, on the ground that the bank, knowing the circumstances of the firm, were bound to communicate their knowledge to the guarantor, who might then have withdrawn his guarantee. Mr. Justice Blackburn, however, before whom the case came to be tried at Guildhall, thought there was no defence, unless, at all events, it was proved that the bank knew, or believed, that the firm was about to stop payment, and as the jury found that this was not so, the bank recovered a verdict for the amount of the bill.

Mr. Lanyon (with him Sir J. Karslake) now moved, on the part of the defendant, to set aside the verdict, on the ground that the bank knew that the firm were in such circumstances that insolvency was probable. The Court, however, after a long argument, held otherwise, that there could be no defence under such circumstances. There could be no defence unless the bank had such a knowledge or belief of impending insolvency as would render it improper for them to give any further credit under the guarantee. But this would not be the case unless the bank knew that insolvency was certain and about to occur; for many persons in business were in temporary difficulties which they got over. The verdict, therefore, must be upheld. The Court consisted of Lord Chief Justice Cockburn, and Justices Blackburn and Lush.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

T. AND D. HENRY AND CO.

A petition for liquidation has been filed by the debtors, Messrs. David Henry, John Malcolm, and George Stuart, hemp and sail-cloth merchants, carrying on business at 47, Mark-lane, their liabilities being stated at £47,000 and assets at £40,000. A receiver and manager have been appointed.

This firm had a branch in Hong Kong in 1844-48—Henry, Humphreys, and Co.

E. B. AND A. T. PITCHFORD.

The bankrupts, Messrs. Edward Beaumont Pitchford and Alfred Thomas Pitchford, were lead merchants and manufacturers, carrying on business at the Island Leadworks, Limehouse. They now came up for examination on a balance-sheet which showed the following figures:—Unsecured creditors, £94,756; creditors partially secured, less estimated value of securities, £3,700; liabilities, £30,011; liability on delivery orders accepted by the bankrupts, £6,616; creditors for rent, rates, &c., £779; and liabilities on bills discounted of which it was expected would rank against the estate for dividend, £1,189; with assets consisting of plant, machinery, stock, at the Island Leadworks, book debts, and cash, £19,544. From the separate estates there would appear to be an estimated surplus of £1,000. The bankrupts had been engaged in transactions of considerable magnitude with Messrs. Burrs and Co., whose affairs are also before the Court. They claimed from

Digitized by Google

Burrs and Co. a sum of £40,000, but that firm disputed the alleged debt, and stated they were creditors of the bankrupts for £50,000, thus showing a difference of £90,000 to be accounted for between the two estates. On behalf of the trustee it was said that, pending the adjustment of the accounts, an adjournment was necessary.

The Registrar ordered an adjournment until the 20th of June.

WILLIAM CHAPPELL, JUN.

The bankrupt was described as a silk merchant, of 11½, Union-court, Old Broad-street, and of Coventry, and his accounts showed debts and liabilities of £23,678, of which £4,155 were due to unsecured creditors, with assets consisting of stock in trade, book debts, and other items, £1,689. At the instance of the trustee, the bankrupt had been required to file certain additional accounts in explanation of the transactions in which he had been engaged. This he had done, and no further opposition was offered.

The bankrupt passed his examination.

THE NATIONAL BANK OF INDIA (LIMITED).

The ordinary general meeting of this company was held on the 22nd inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel; Mr. R. O. Campbell in the chair.

Mr. R. O. Sawers (the chief manager) having read the notice convening the meeting, the report of the directors was taken as read. It stated that the net profit, including the amount brought forward from the last half-year, was £19,570 0s. 8d., which the directors recommended should be appropriated as follows: In payment of a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, £13,938 15s.; to be carried to to next account, £5,631 5s. 8d. The half-year had been an unfavourable one for exchange operations, arising chiefly from the high rates for money in London from the middle of October to the end of November, and the great uncertainty which prevailed as to the action of the German Government in the disposal of their large stock of demonetised silver. Although the results of the half-year were not such as the directors could have wished for, they considered that the working of the bank for the year 1873 would not be considered unsatisfactory. The net profit for the year amounted to £57,225 2s. 9d.

The Chairman said the report was a laconic document, but perhaps that was rather a subject of congratulation. They would observe that the report commenced by expressing some sense of disappointment that the results of the half-year's operations were not better than they were, but he was not sure that they had reason to be disappointed. It was quite true that they expected to make a larger amount of profit during the last half-year, but they were all aware that the best laid schemes "gang aft agee," and between the 10th October and the 10th November, the period under review, the rate of discount suddenly rose from 5 to 9 per cent., and of course that very seriously affected all institutions dealing largely in bills of exchange. Taking a review of the whole financial year, they would see that the profits were considerably in excess of 12 per cent. on paid-up capital of the bank, and this had enabled them, after providing for bad and doubtful debts, to place £25,000 to the reserve fund, and if the recommendation of the directors were adopted, to declare a dividend for the present half-year of 6 per cent., as they did for the last half-year, and leave a surplus to carry over of £5,631. They had no locks-up of any kind to interfere with the full and profitable employment of their capital, and the position and influence of the bank in India and China, and the credit they enjoyed everywhere, were such as to leave nothing to be desired. He moved that the report and statement of accounts for the half-year ending 31st December, 1873, now presented, be received and adopted, and that a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum for the half-year be paid, free of income-tax.

Mr. Wingrove seconded the motion, which was put and carried. The retiring directors and auditors were re-elected. A vote of thanks was passed to the chairman and directors, and the meeting broke up.

THE CHARTERED MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LONDON AND CHINA.

The sixteenth annual general meeting of the shareholders was held on the 21st inst., at the offices of the Company; Mr. G. G. Nicol in the chair. The report was taken as read. The Chairman, in moving its adoption, said he was sorry he had not a more agreeable account to give them of their business for the last six months. When the directors met the shareholders six months ago the account given of the business of the bank was a fair one, and the directors had every reason to hope that the last six months would have been as satisfactory as the previous period. The fact was, the bank had been very much baffled by exchanges which had a downward tendency, and therefore the result of their business had been very disappointing. The cause of this state of things arose partly from the disordered state of the money market, in consequence of the famine, and from other causes. The times were very peculiar, and the fluctuations in exchange had required their careful attention. Notwithstanding this, the directors, as far as they could judge, thought that the year's operations promised fairly, and he hoped that when the next meeting came the directors would be able to confirm the prosperity which he had ventured to allude to. As he told them on a former occasion, their inspector had been going round to all the branches, and that gentleman, he might now add, had done his duty in a highly efficient manner. Indeed, the result of his inspection would be to consolidate the work of their branches in such a manner that they would reap substantial benefit from the inspection. The shareholders would find that the amount written off for bad and doubtful debts, when he was in the chair on the last occasion, was £20,000. On the former occasion he, they would recollect, added that the Calcutta loss could not be correctly estimated, and unfortunately the loss had proved more than was at first anticipated. In addition to that the bank had sustained a loss by a fraud in Shanghai amounting to £4,000. The bank had also been compelled to write off a sum on account of a fraud committed by a person connected with the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. (Laughter.) Notwithstanding this, however, the shareholders were offered a dividend of 4 per cent. for the half-year, whilst at the same time carrying forward a small balance to the reserve fund.

The next matter which he wished to mention was the loss of the services of Sir William Grey, who had been appointed Governor-General of Jamaica. A great many candidates had come forward to fill his place, but the board thought that no one could be better fitted to supply the vacancy than Mr. John Nutt Bullen, who from his mercantile standing and connection with the East was eminently adapted for such a position. The only other matter which he would allude to was the Joshua trial. With regard to it he might say that by the present time the directors thought it would have been over. They believed that at the present time the trial was going on, and had no doubt whatever, speaking upon the advice of their solicitor, that the verdict would be for them. The Chairman concluded by moving the adoption of the report, which recommended a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum. The motion, after a short discussion, was carried. The retiring directors, Mr. J. J. Mackenzie and Mr. C. J. Erskine, were then re-elected.

After some further business of a routine character had been transacted the board adjourned, having previously passed the usual vote of thanks to the chairman.

ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION.

The half-yearly general meeting of this bank was held on the 23rd, at the offices, Threadneedle-street; Mr. George Arbuthnot in the chair.

Mr. Charles J. F. Stuart (the chief manager) read the notice convening the meeting, and the report of the directors, which was as follows:—

"The balance-sheet exhibits a net profit for the year 1873 of £180,918 11s. 2d., after defraying current expenses and providing for all bad and doubtful debts. To this amount has to be added £7,529 15s. 2d. brought forward from the last account, making a total of £188,509 6s. 4d. An interim dividend of £90,000 for the first half-year was paid in November last; and the directors now propose to pay a like amount of £90,000 for the subsequent half-year, making a distribution for 1873 of £3 per share, or 12 per cent. per annum; after providing for this payment there will remain a balance of £8,509 6s. 4d. to be carried to the credit of the next year.

"The directors have the painful duty to report since the meeting in April last the deaths of their late chairman and deputy-chairman, Mr. James Blyth and Mr. Binny Key. These events, which severed a long connection, in the case of Mr. Blyth of over twenty years, are deeply regretted by the Court, as they will doubtless be by the shareholders. Mr. Collmann, Mr. Arbuthnot, and Major-General H. Pelham Burn are the directors who retire by rotation. These gentlemen are re-eligible, and the Court recommend them to the proprietors for re-election."

The Chairman said it now became his duty to declare a dividend of £1 10s. This was the eighth year in which they had declared a dividend at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, which, considering the severe competition they had to meet in the East, and in fact everywhere, gave the directors much satisfaction, and they hoped it would be considered satisfactory also by the shareholders. They had gone on since the last meeting in a very uniform way, and there was not much material for remark; but he would say that the affairs of the bank were in a very satisfactory and sound condition, and he thought he might say that the statements which had been received since the closing of the accounts promised satisfactorily for the next year. He believed there had been a feeling of surprise expressed in some quarters that the dividend was of such a uniform character. There was really very little to be said; the accounts spoke for themselves, and the directors thought they were happy in attaining as high a rate as they had done. If they had pursued a less prudent policy they might have gone into ventures of a very promising nature, and which might have led to brilliant results, and sometimes they might have produced larger profits, but a policy of that kind might be very apt in another year to lead them to give a smaller dividend, and the disappointment would be so much the greater in consequences. He might say that the dividend they received was due to the exercise of much zeal and wisdom, and good management on the part of the staff at home and abroad. Having referred in terms of regret to the death of their late chairman, Mr. Blyth, and also to the decease of their colleague, Mr. Binney Key, he moved the adoption of the report. Sir William Baynes seconded the motion.

The Chairman, in reply to questions, stated that the bank suffered from great competition, or no doubt the profits would have been larger. The directors hoped that the effects of the years 1866-7 would be to destroy competition, but it had proved otherwise. With regard to the bank premises, repairs, and everything of that kind, they were not added to the value of the property, but were paid out of revenue, but the bank had been obliged to supply itself with property in various parts of the world, and he was happy to say that the amount at which their properties stood was much less than their real value. Dr. Thom had made a suggestion, which he had no doubt the directors would take into their serious consideration, as to the taking the opinion of counsel to enable them to appoint another auditor in the event of death. He was not prepared to go into details as to the amount of interest they ought to get. Of course they were obliged to keep a great deal of money which they had unemployed on demand. As to the accounts, they had always, from the beginning of the institution, conformed exactly with the charter in making up the accounts. That was the answer given some years ago to the question of a shareholder. With regard to the loss from the failure of Gledstanes, they originally estimated that it would reach £43,000, but they now thought it would be some £7,000 short of that amount.

The motion was then put to the meeting, and carried.

Mr. Collmann, Mr. Arbuthnot, and Major-General H. Pelham Burn, the retiring directors, were re-elected, and the retiring auditor, Mr. Thomas W. L. Mackean, was reappointed. Mr. James Robertson was appointed auditor. A vote of thanks was passed to the chairman and directors, and the proceedings then terminated.

THE MACAO ELECTION.

ANYONE who knew Macao some twenty years since, and is acquainted with the utter impossibility, in a general way, of rousing the people out of their dolce far niente life and the state of apathetic insouciance in which they seem to be perennially sunk, will have been much surprised to hear of the excitement which is reported in the Hong Kong papers to have been produced in the little Portuguese settlement in reference to the election of a deputy to represent its interests in the Lisbon Legislature. A veritable storm in a tea cup. The principal functions of the fortunate candidate for this post would seem to be, according to the Macao correspondent of the Hong Kong Times, to have a free passage home by the English mail-boat, to receive a medal, and draw five dollars a day. The facts of the late excitement at Macao are somewhat as follows:—Dr. MAGALHAENS, whilom editor of the Oriente, who has recently returned from his exile in Timor, was, by the exertions of his friends, elected on the 15th of February, a few days before his return to the colony. This election was declared null and void by the Governor, on the ground that Dr. MAGALHAENS had not received an absolute majority of votes, which is required by law in the election of a deputy, in the first instance. No candidate having obtained this requisite absolute majority, it became necessary, in accordance with Portuguese Parliamentary usage, to hold a second election within a reasonable time, at which a bare majority of votes would carry the day, and it was on this second election that all the excitement arose. Dr. MAGALHAENS, who holds extreme views with regard to the traffic in human flesh and the expulsion of the Sisters of Charity from Macao, was the chosen candidate of the combined fraternity of coolie dealers, who adopted him chiefly on two grounds—first, because he is the declared and bitter enemy of the Governor, Viscount SAN JANUARIO, who has the credit, or, as it would seem at Macao, the odium, of having destroyed the coolie trade; and secondly, because they fondly hoped that, being an energetic and independent man, he would, if sent to Lisbon, somehow contrive to induce the home Government to rescind their orders respecting the abolition of Macao's pet branch of commerce. Dr. MAGALHAENS issued a very gushing proclamation or address to the constituency, some of the professions in which seem to be decidedly inconsistent with his previous public declarations. The opposing candidate was SENOR PINTO BASTO, a well-connected gentleman and Procurador of the Senate, who was supported by the Governor, the official and clerical cliques, and the principal inhabitants of the place—in point of fact, by the respectability of Macao generally. There were also two other candidates, but they were never in the race at all. As the day of election (Sunday, March 1st) drew nigh, Macao was, for the nonce, roused from its wonted state of somnolence, the canvassers for both the leading candidates redoubled their energies, and the Independente, Dr. MAGALHAEN'S organ (whose editor, we hear, is to be presented with a gold pen by the Portuguese residents at Hong Kong for his exertions in this and other kindred matters), was loud in its complaints against the Governor for using his personal and official influence to procure votes for his favourite candidate. The result of the polling, we learn, was 241 votes for PINTO BASTO, and 235 for MAGALHAENS, the Government party thus winning by a narrow majority of six votes, and BASTO has been elected deputy, to the great disappointment and discontent of the coolie-dealers and their friends. His victory was celebrated in the customary manner by a Te Deum in the Cathedral, and in the evening some of the houses were decorated, a band of music perambulated the town, and more Sinico crackers were let off. Rumour says that the Government party gained their victory by the admission of nineteen persons to vote who were not duly qualified, owing to their recent arrival from Portugal, and great indignation was expressed on this score; in fact, we are not sure that an appeal of some kind was not threatened on this ground, and on that of undue influence; but, doubtless, long ere this Macao has gone to sleep again to dream over its fancied woes in general, its ruined coolie trade, and empty barracoons, which, in the interests of humanity, it is hoped will never be again tenanted.

M. BOUSQUET AT NIKKO.

M. GEORGE BOUSQUET, writing from Yedo on Feb. 2nd, contributes a long and interesting paper to the last number of the Revue des Deux Mondes, under the title of "L'Hiver au Japon." In this he narrates the particulars of a trip, which—availing himself of the leisure afforded by the New Year's holidays customary in the East—he made last winter to Nikko, a place where "les efforts de l'art unis aux merveilles de la nature out fait aux grand hommes des tombeaux dignes d'abriter leur dépouilles." M. Bousquet commences by remarking that the Japanese have a saying that he who has not seen Nikko cannot say Nekko (merveilleux), and that he resolved to make this excursion in order to test the truth of this proverb, and to study "les mœurs hivernales" of the Far East. Eschewing the direct road, he chose in preference a much longer route, which traverses a country very little known to foreigners. He started on the 24th of December last, in very cold weather, and seems to have had a pleasant journey, finding the people well-disposed to Europeans. He devotes about half his article to the details of his daily experiences and observations on the way, and one paragraph calls for rather special notice. He came one day to a small cemetery, remarkable for its retired position, and made more remarkable still by the fact of the earth having been recently stirred up for a considerable distance. "Have they begun already," asks M. BOUSQUET, "to carry out a recent decree of the Government? It should be known that about a third of the Buddhists, composing the sect of Monto, one which is widely spread in Japan, burn their dead in accordance with a rite, which there has been a talk of introducing into Europe. . . . . But the Supreme Council has decreed that henceforward the dead shall be interred by all sects without cremation, and so these good people are nowadays obliged to dig graves without knowing the depth or the shape they ought to give them." Having reached his destination, M. BOUSQUET found the village of Nikko en fête, on the 1st of January—a proof that even in such a remote and secluded spot in the mountains the European calendar has been practically accepted. M. Bousquet was evidently much impressed by the sight of the funeral monuments, for which, besides its beautiful scenery, Nikko is celebrated and held in such high esteem by the Japanese. He considers that the mausoleums there are superior both in point of magnificence and of preservation to all the other temples of Japan, and he observes that there is nothing that can be compared to them even at Kioto, in spite of the richness of that holy city. Besides the temple of Gongen-sama (Iyéyasu), M. BOUSQUET says that there are several others built on the sides of the mountain, the principal ones being the tombs of the two "taicouns" who succeeded HIEYAS (i.e. Iyéyasu). We were under the impression that, besides IYEYASU, only his grandson, IYEMITSU, of all the Shoguns of the Tokugawa dynasty, was buried at Nikko, and that his son, HIDETADA, was buried at Zôjôji. We would here observe that it is a pity that M. BOUSQUET should repeat the old error of styling the Shogun the "Taicoun."

SIR DANIEL LANGE, the representative of the Suez Canal Company in London, has addressed the President of the Board of Trade and the Lords of the Admiralty by order of the President of the Company. In his letter to the President of the Board of Trade he says that vessels will in future have to take the old route round the Cape, or discharge their ships' cargoes at Alexandria, unless they pay the fixed passage dues of the Company. The Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty are informed that Her MAJESTY'S ships will henceforth have to pay the passage dues before entering the Suez Canal at Port Said or Suez. Mr. DISRAELI has stated in Parliament that the Government are at this moment in communication with other Powers as to the course to be adopted, and that when they arrive at a decision it will be made known to all the parties concerned. [It is announced this morning that M. LESSEPS has withdrawn his opposition].

THE project of organising a monthly line from Trieste to Japan has not yet been accomplished, but every aid is being given by the Austrian Government to carry out the project. The Austrian corvette Friedrich, under the command of Captain Chevalier OESTERRISCHER, leaves Trieste in a few days for China and Japan, where she will be stationed for three years. Chevalier DE SHAEFFER, the Consul-General in London, whose appointment to China and Japan we lately noticed, will leave shortly for his post. Mr. HENRY VON SIEBOLD, who has been appointed Attaché to the Austrian Mission in Japan, proceeds by this mail. The Japanese Commission, to which he was attached during the Exhibition, have expressed their acknowledgments of his services, and he has been rewarded by the Emperor by "the Cross of Merit."

IT is announced from Paris that the Governor of Saigon signed a treaty with the Anamite Ambassadors on the 4th ult., settling the Tonquin question in favour of France. Substantial guarantees, it is stated, are given by the treaty for the protection of French political and commercial interests, and the Protectorate question is determined in the manner demanded by the French Government.

DURING a debate in the German Parliament Herr VON DELBRUCK, in answer to a question relative to the Coolie traffic in China, stated that a mercantile house was carrying on the traffic in Hong Kong, which was, however, under English jurisdiction, and altogether out of reach of the German Government. German Consuls had, however, the strictest injunctions to watch over the Coolie trade.

OUR Nagasaki correspondent's letter in another column, it will be observed, fully confirms the opinion we expressed at the time, that the telegrams sent in regard to the outbreak in Hizen grossly exaggerated the position, and it seems now very clear that it was intended to influence the Japan loans in London.

WE are glad to see from a reply to a question put by Mr. REID in the House of Commons that our Government have the matter of the Woosung Bar under their consideration, and appear to realise the great inconvenience experienced by our merchant vessel.

SENOR MALAMPO has been appointed Captain-General of the Philippine Islands.

Literature.

The History of Japan; from the Earliest Period to the Present Time. Vol. I. to the year 1864; by F. O. ADAMS, formerly Her Majesty's Charge d'Affaires and Secretary of Legation at Yedo. London: Henry S. King and Co. 1874.

The first instalment of Mr. Adams' long-promised work on Japan has at length appeared. The volume before us professes to bring the history of the country down to the year 1864, "from the earliest period," but to prevent disappointment, it may be well to state that, including the introductory chapter, only 100 pages are devoted to a brief résumé of Japanese history previous to 1853. This defect is to be regretted, but it was probably unavoidable, for the information contained in Japanese works on the subject is only just beginning to be available to foreigners, and even now the number of persons acquainted with the language, in which these books are written, is exceedingly limited, and they belong, for the most part, to a class which has but little leisure for the prosecution of studies extraneous to its own especial pursuits. Every year, however, is slowly, but surely, adding to our knowledge of the ancient records of this curious and—until very recently—isolated portion of the human race, and, doubtless, in the course of a few years, Mr. Adams's work will, as he hopes, be of assistance to future writers who may address themselves to the same subject, "when our knowledge of Japan shall have become more extensive;" at any rate, it will save them a vast amount of trouble and laborious research with regard to the annals of the last twenty years, into the details of which Mr. Adams seems inclined to enter with almost too great a minuteness. We could easily have spared many of the official despatches and other documents, which he gives in extenso, when, to our thinking, a careful précis of their contents from a practised hand like his would have answered the purpose equally well. The quotations which Mr. Adams gives "from the native accounts of the origin of the world, i.e., of great Japan, and the seven generations of celestial spirits," are curious. "Chaos," we are told, "in the form of an egg, was agitated in waves like a troubled sea. Still it contained the germs of all things; the pure and transparent rose up and formed the heaven, whilst everything heavy and opaque fell downwards, was coagulated, and produced the earth." On the subject of the invention of the art of love, our author gives a somewhat different Japanese tradition to that furnished by Mr. Mitford in his Tales of Old Japan; both, we may remark, are sufficiently odd. It is asserted by the Japanese that the present Emperor is descended in an unbroken line from the Sun Goddess, and this fable with regard to his divine descent is preserved in the language in which the present occupant of the throne speaks of himself in Imperial decrees, e.g.—"We, by the grace of Heaven, having succeeded to the throne, occupied by one line for 10,000 years." On this point Mr. Adams very rightly observes "that such a line has not been difficult to preserve in a country where the principle of adoption exists on the widest basis, and where the son of a concubine can legitimately succeed to his father's inheritance"; the practice of adoption, be it noted, is common all over the East, and is especially justified in Japan by "the necessity of keeping up the ancestral sacrifices." We are given the choice of two derivations for the term Mikado (Emperor), viz., from mi, honourable, and kado, gate, or from mika, great, and to (becoming do in composition), a root meaning "place." The former has hitherto been the received explanation, but scholars appear to think that the latter "harmonises better with Japanese ideas."

With the somewhat limited materials at his disposal, we can well imagine that our author must have been much puzzled how to deal satisfactorily with the earlier history of Japan, for "up to the beginning of the seventeenth century it is mostly taken up with the narration of intestine broils and civil wars," during which the supreme power gradually slipped out of the hands of the Emperor, and was wielded by "the minister of the Shogun;" but the "Son of Heaven" was, "however, still the fountain of honour;" a complicated state of things similar to that which was the cause of much confusion some twenty years ago. Although, without doubt, its elements existed previously, the title of sei-i tai-shogun (barbarian-subjugating great general), was first conferred by the Emperor on the famous Yoritomo in the year 1192. Notwithstanding the great power to which this person attained, "he did not attempt to depose the Emperor, or to assume his Majesty's title, but he administered the empire as it seemed good to him, in the name and with the authority of the Fainéant at Kioto, whose sanction, never refused, clothed his acts with legality. Thus the relations of prince and vassal between the Son of Heaven and the Shogun were considered to be kept perfect;"—a condition of things which has only been altered within the past few years.

After alluding briefly to their reigns (and touching on the persecutions of the Christians and the expulsion of foreigners), Mr. Adams gives a very interesting account of Nikkô, the burial-place of the great Iyéyasŭ, the founder of the Tokugawa dynasty, and of Iyémitsŭ, his illustrious grandson. In March, 1872, in company with Mr. Satow, to whom he is indebted for the information in this chapter, our author made an excursion to this lovely spot, which is about eighty miles distant from Yedo, and which has, as yet, been visited by very few foreigners. We extract the description which he gives of the tomb of the celebrated Iyéyasŭ, whose name is much honoured in Japanese annals. "The tomb is of bronze, and has exactly the same shape as those in the same material of the later Shôguns at Shiba in Yedo. There is, too, a similar simplicity at the resting-place, a striking contrast to the gorgeousness of the ornamentation and colouring in the courts, through which we have passed. The approach by the moss-grown gallery, and the silence and desolation of the spot are well calculated to impress the stranger, and we lingered long before the simple urn. In front of it stands a low stone table, decorated with an immense bronze stork, bearing a brass candle in its mouth, an incense burner of the same material, and a vase with artificial lotus flowers and leaves in brass. The whole is surrounded by a stone wall, surmounted with a balustrade, and pierced in front for an iron gate. Before this sit two stone amdinu on guard."

After some remarks on the Daimios' revenue, the land-tax, and the different classes of land, Mr. Adams enters upon the more modern branch of his subject, which he introduces by a lengthy extract from an able article in Die Gegenwart (a Berlin paper), exhibiting in a forcible manner the contrast between the present and the old state of things in Japan.

We must now add a few words to show what led up to the great changes of recent years. When foreigners appeared on the scene, in 1853, everything was ready for a revolution and a change of dynasty, and the inability of the Shôgun to cope with the difficulties attendant upon foreign intercourse served to hasten the final break up of his power. "It is essential," says Mr. Adams, "for the reader to understand that from the moment those treaties [with foreigners] came into force the fall of the Shôgunate became a mere question of time, and that nothing could have saved it. As far as the establishment of commercial and friendly relations with Europe and the United States was concerned, the sooner it was abolished the better. It was not the supreme power, and yet in its dealings with other powers and their representatives it pretended to be so. Hence, as will be seen, perpetual subterfuges and a daily resort to small tricks for the purpose of keeping up the delusion, and of preventing foreigners from becoming aware of the important fact (which, however, could not long be concealed) that he, to whom the treaties and the diplomatic agents had accorded the title of 'Majesty,' had no right to be so styled, and was not the Emperor of Japan."

The volume contains a map of Japan, a plan of Kioto, and also a plan of the Emperor's palace at Kioto, the nine gates, palaces of the Kugés, &c.; and we should add that the plans of Kioto are from woodblocks cut in Yedo and sent home by Mr. Satow, Japanese Secretary of H.B.M.'s Legation, who has given valuable aid in the compilation of this volume. We heartily recommend Mr. Adams' most able and instructive work to the attention of all who take an interest in Japan.

The Jade Chaplet; A Collection of Songs, Ballads, &c. (from the Chinese), by G. C. STENT, M.N.C.B.R.A.S. London: Trübner and Co. 1874.

We have much pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to this volume of songs and ballads, translated from the Chinese, by Mr. G. C. Stent, of the Imperial Maritime Customs. Many of the songs here translated, Mr. Stent tells us, are not even in Chinese print; but having been attracted by hearing them in the streets, he made the singers go to his house, and got their ballads taken down verbatim. Being desirous, too, of showing the difference of the poetic subjects and styles of the Chinese, Mr. Stent has given us specimens of various degrees of merit as regards language, thought and feeling, some of which, indeed, were hardly worth the trouble of translating. Mr. Stent has been known for some time as a painstaking and industrious translator from the Chinese, and he has done good service in this instance by enabling English readers unacquainted with the Chinese language to gain some little insight into the character of the songs of this curious portion of the human family. We cannot but regret, however, that his powers as a versifier are not of a higher order, and that he has now and then been betrayed into the use of slang terms, which had much better have been left alone. The explanatory foot notes which Mr. Stent gives will be found very useful, as without them many Chinese expressions, &c., would have been almost unintelligible to the majority of his readers. The Jade Chaplet contains only twenty-four "beads," so we need hardly point to any of the songs, &c., as worthy of special attention, as they can all be read in a very short space of time. If his book succeeds (as we hope it may), Mr. Stent says he shall congratulate himself on having had a front place among the pioneers who have opened up the lighter and more amusing literature of China, and we trust that he may be induced to continue his efforts in the same and similar directions.

At the meeting of the National Bank of India a dividend was declared at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum. The net profit for the year amounts to £57,225 2s. 9d., and, after providing for the dividend, there remained £5,631 5s. 8d., which was carried forward to next account.

At the meeting of the Oriental Bank Corporation the report was adopted, and a dividend for the past half-year was declared, making a distribution for the year of £3 per share, or 12 per cent. per annum. Mr. Campbell, of Dennistoun, Cross, and Co., and Mr. Collmann, of Frederick Huth and Co., have been appointed directors of the bank.

The report of the directors of the Singapore Gas Company (Limited), to be presented to the shareholders at the ordinary general meeting on the 28th inst., is as follows:—

The directors have the satisfaction of reporting continued progress in the lighting of Singapore, for particulars of which they refer to the report annexed, from their engineer and manager. The directors going out of office by rotation are:—Messrs. Henry Palfrey Stephenson, John Nicol, Alexander Erskine Stephenson; and these gentlemen, being eligible for re-election, offer themselves for the support of the shareholders. The present auditors, Messrs. William Thomas Morrison and Alfred Williams, retire from office, according to the articles, and, being eligible for re-election, offer themselves to the shareholders for that purpose. The balance-sheet to 31st December, 1873, and appended to this report, shows the financial position of the company. The directors have written off for depreciation of works and plant, and off the expenses of first establishment, as per balance-sheet, at the rate of one per cent. per annum. The profit for the half-year after writing off these sums, amounts to £1,768 12s. 2d., which, together with £38 5s. 10d., the unappropriated profit of the preceding half-year, makes the available balance £1,806 18s.; out of this sum the directors recommend the declaration of a dividend at the rate of 7½ per cent. per annum on the preference capital, and 7 per cent. on the amounts paid up on the original capital, less income-tax; the balance of £62 4s. 2d. to be carried forward to the profit of the succeeding half-year. The dividend to be payable on May 20th.

The report of the engineer and manager says:—Notwithstanding the increase in the price of coal, labour, and in fact everything connected with the production of gas, which I feel assured is well known to those connected with its manufacture in England, it will be satisfactory for the directors to see that we have been enabled to maintain the profits and to show an increase over last half-year by nearly £70 on this side, which would have been augmented had it not been for the unfavourable rates of exchange for remittances. The progress made in the consumption of gas has been satisfactory, showing an increase over last half-year in the rental of $996.84, including illuminations. During a portion of last half-year coke was all sold at good prices. As regards the question of coals, the arrangement upon the whole for the present year is satisfactory. The Adelaide and the Hope, mentioned in my last report, safely arrived, and in addition, the George Shotten, which was chartered in Australia, at 30s. per ton freight; our present stock of coal will take us well through the year; another ship has been taken up at an easier rate, being 5s. per ton less for freight; this vessel may be expected about April, so that for the present year we have no anxieties as to our stock of coals. The price of coals in Australia remains the same, 14s. per ton, f.o.b. All the buildings, plant, &c., have had their annual examination, repairs have been executed where necessary. Gasholders and all the iron work have been tarred, and the general apparatus is in good condition for produce and supply. All is still working satisfactorily in the purifying department, and the illuminating power has been maintained without the use of Cannel coal.

The report of the directors of the Union Steamship Company (Limited) states that although the gross earnings of the ships for freight and passage money were larger than during any corresponding period since the formation of the company, there was nevertheless a deficiency of receipts compared with expenditure (after making the usual allowance for depreciation, &c.) according to the estimated accounts and approximate balance-sheet. The directors are consequently unable on this occasion to recommend the payment of the usual interim dividend.

The report of the Submarine Cables Trust has been issued for the past year. The available balance amounted to £31,601 4s. 11d., and of this sum £21,564 has been applied to the payment of the coupons due last October and the present month, and the remainder carried to the redemption fund. Certificates to the value of £8,800 have been purchased, making, with previous operations, a total number of 650 certificates cancelled. The original capital of the trust has by this means been reduced from £420,000 to £355,000, and the value of the reversionary coupons proportionately increased.

Messrs. J. S. Morgan and Co. invite applications for an issue of $3,000,000 in Seven per Cent. Bonds of $1,000 (or £200 sterling) each, of the Alleghany Valley Railroad Company at the price of 87½ per cent., or £175 per bond, redeemable in the year 1910.

The following joint-stock undertakings have been introduced :—

The South Carolina Rice Plantations Trust (Limited), capital £500,000, in shares of £10, half to be first subscribed, for the purpose of rehabilitating and beneficially developing in South Carolina large freehold rice plantations and naval store timber tracts of richness and fertility thrown out of cultivation during the Confederate War, and the value of which, before that time, with clean rice at one half its present price, was, it is stated, £30 to £60 per acre. The area comprises 36,666 acres, and the price to be paid is £190,000 in cash, and £250,000 in deferred shares.

The Saratov Water Works Company (Limited), capital £180,000, in 9,000 shares, of which 6,000 are now offered for subscription. The company is established to supply water works to the town of Saratov in Southern Russia, under a concession granted by the Municipality for forty years, accompanied by a guarantee of the minimum revenue equal to nearly £10,000 per annum.

The Bilson and Crump Meadow Collieries Company is announced, with a capital of £100,000, in shares of £10 each, of which 2,500 are taken by the vendors as part purchase money. The object is to purchase and work certain collieries in the Forest of Dean. The vendors guarantee minimum dividends of 10 per cent. per annum for five years.

The shares of the several undertakings which come under the head of "Tea Companies" in the Official List have nearly all been steadily improving in price for some time past, and the returns in the shape of dividends have been in keeping with the enhanced values. Of the nine companies quoted, three—viz., the British Indian, the Eastern Assam, and the Upper Assam—are quoted at a heavy discount; two—viz., the Darjeeling and the Lebong—at about "par;" and the remainder at prices varying from 90 to upwards of 100 per cent. premium. All these shares, with the exception of those of the Assam Company, and the second issue of the Jorehaut Company, are fully paid, and we think that the three companies which are now quoted at a discount offer a fair margin for improvement in market value. The British-Indian Company, it is expected, will declare a dividend at the coming meeting, to be held about the end of July. The shares were quoted on the 17th inst. at 6⅛ to 7½, with "business done" at 7⅛ and 7¼, and this with £20 paid. The following table shows the movements which have taken place in quotations since the end of last year :—

	Share.	Paid up.	Dec. 31, 1873.	Apr. 17, 1874.

The increased vigilance on the part of the Government officials here, with a view to prevent the importation of spurious teas, will prove of material benefit to bona fide producers.

The Board of Trade Returns show that an extensive decline in our exports to the United States during the past three months, compared with the corresponding period of 1873, has occurred. Only in the case of tin, tin plates, and iron, cast and wrought, has there been an increase.

We understand that the cable-repairing ship Agnes left Singapore on the 19th, to repair the fracture reported about fifty miles from Hong Kong, and in all probability it will be in order on or before the 30th.

Mr. Henry William Peek, M.P., upon whom a baronetcy has just been conferred, is head of the Mincing-lane firm of Peek Brothers and Co., established fifty-four years ago, which has long occupied a leading position in the tea trade.

A rumour has been current that the Messageries steamer Indus, from London to Marseilles, with cargo for transhipment for India and China, had been lost, and sixty guineas has been paid on her. Advices of her safe arrival were, however, subsequently received.

The late speculations in coffee have caused some irregular transactions, and we hear of the special dealer for Messrs. Fred. Huth and Co. in that department having exceeded his instructions and being dismissed.

Messrs. R. Whitworth and Company, worsted spinners and manufacturers, of Halifax, have suspended payment, and a petition in bankruptcy has been filed in the Halifax County Court. The main body of creditors are at Bradford. The liabilities are estimated at nearly £200,000, one-half of which will fall upon Bradford woolstaplers—on several rather heavily. Three more failures have since been announced from Bradford. They are—Messrs. John Smith and Co., worsted spinners, with liabilities amounting to £26,000; Mr. James Harrison, jun., woolstapler, liabilities £13,000; and Mr. James Marshall, woolstapler, liabilities £12,000.

The failure is announced of Mr. J. Bayne, merchant and commission agent, of Manchester. The liabilities are estimated at about £160,000, but the estate will probably ultimately realise 20s. in the pound. The failure is said to be caused by a very heavy lock-up of capital, and the suspension may be only temporary. Mr. Bayne was largely engaged in the India and China trade.

Two failures in the iron trade are reported. A petition for liquidation by arrangement has been filed on behalf of Messrs. John Colbourn and Sons, ironmasters, of Tipton, whose liabilities amount to upwards of £30,000. Messrs. Harper and Co., ironworkers and factors, of Willenhall, have stopped with liabilities representing £14,000.

Messrs. Cruickshank and Ring, ship and insurance brokers and underwriters, of London and Liverpool, have filed a petition for liquidation, Mr. J. Waddell, accountant, being appointed receiver. The liabilities to rank are estimated at £18,000, and the assets are not yet ascertained.

It is announced that Captain Davies, managing director of the Exchange Telegraph Company, and Mr. J. L. Shuter have joined the board of the Electric Power Company (Limited).

The bullion by the P. and O. steamer Cathay, from Southampton Thursday, was, in gold, to Galle, £1,510; in silver, to Shanghai, £318,815; to Hong Kong, £54,063; to Singapore, £50,500; to Galle, £26,800. Total in gold, £1,510; in silver, £450,178.

The announcement of the Council Drafts on India to be tendered for on the 6th prox. will be £200,000, instead of £400,000 as expected, and the probability of a still further reduction has caused a somewhat sudden rise in the price of Bar Silver, 59½d. per oz. standard is the closing price. Mexican Dollars have been sold at the last price, 57¾d. per oz., and the market is now bare of this description of coin.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Capel and Co.'s Circular says :—Our market during the past week has been rather less active, the speculative purchases alluded to in our last having ceased, whilst the trade have been occupied with the payment of duties since the Budget. A fair amount of business has, however, been done, prices showing no material alteration. The duty payments from the 17th to 21st inst. inclusive have been very large, amounting to 5,258,605 lbs., making a total since 1st January of 28,768,072 lbs., against 29,485,227 lbs. for the same period last year. The public sales have comprised 8,533 packages, nearly the whole of which were printed and sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week amount to 6,711,067 lbs., comprising 5,330,923 lbs. for home consumption, 640,098 for export, and 740,046 lbs. sent coastwise.

Congous.—Red-leaf kinds : Siftings have sold at about former prices. Broken-leaf kinds remain steady. Fair to good common have been only in limited demand at previous prices. Fair Kaisows, from 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3d., show no change, being still rather dull of sale. Good, from 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d., have been in request. A few sales of fine have been made from 1s. 8d. to 1s. 11d., and finest about 2s. 1d. per lb. Pak Lin kinds have been wanted. Black-leaf kinds : Common has been sold at 11d. to 11½d. per lb. Fair, from 1s. to 1s. 1d., have been wanted. Fair to medium have been saleable from 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 4½d. per lb. Good medium to fine remain in moderate demand, finest showing no change. New-make Canton kinds have been saleable at last week's prices, good qualities being most in request. In Oolongs the few sales made show no alteration. Souchongs remain dull of sale, as also Flowery Pekoes and Uncoloured Japans. Scented Teas.—Canton Capers show no change, but the demand has been inactive at previous rates. Foo Chow kinds remain firm. Orange Pekoes : Canton kinds have been rather more saleable, especially the finer kinds of long-leaf. In Foochow kinds there has been a moderate business, without change in prices. Green Teas.—Moyune kinds have been in fair demand at fully previous prices. Ping Sueys sell somewhat irregularly, but without material change in prices.

SILK.

The market is very quiet, and there has been hardly anything doing this week, buyers holding back pending news of the progress of the European crops ; prices are unchanged. Deliveries are fairly good, but not equal to last month, being, from 1st to 22nd inst., 2,021 China, 514 Canton, 363 Japan, 172 Bengal ; total, 3,070 bales.

COFFEE.—Early in the week an improved demand was shown for Plantation Ceylon, and coloury kinds realised an advance of 1s. per cwt. upon our quotations for last mail. On the 22nd inst. the Dutch Trading Company's sale of 74,700 bags Java was held, and went off with spirit, at 3 to 4 cents above the valuations, good ordinary selling at 53½c. to 54c. The parcels offered in this market in consequence went off with active competition at a further advance of 1s. to 2s. per cwt., Plantation Ceylon being sold, triage, 86s. 6d. to 94s. 6d. ; small, 98s. to 93s. 6d. ; low middling to middling, 101s. 6d. to 105s. 6d. ; peaberry, 103s. to 104s. Next day a large supply brought to auction attracted more attention, and an active competition prevailed at a further advance of 2s. 6d. to 3s. for Plantation Ceylon, which sold, triage at 84s. to 98s., small grey to coloury at 99s. 6d. to 104s., fine ordinary pale grey at 100s. to 103s., low middling at 103s. 6d. to 105s. 6d., middling at 106s. to 109s., good middling to fine middling coloury at 109s. 6d. to 111s., good bold 112s. to 113s., pea-berry 106s. to 111s. 6d.

EBONY.—A small lot of Ceylon has been quitted at £15 12s. 6d. per ton.

RICE.—Business during the week has been very small, but prices are for the most part without alteration. In auction 1,923 bags Bengal partly sold at 11s. 9d. for Ballam, and 2,866 bags Rangoon, damaged, at 8s. to 10s. 3d., but many parcels offered have been bought in, viz., 2,800 bags Bengal, at 12s. 6d. to 15s. ; and 13,000 bags, Japan, sound, at 11s. 3d. to 13s. 6d. ; the damaged of the latter, 2,000 bags, sold at 9s. 6d. to 10s. privately. Private sales are reported of 8,000 bags Rangoon on the spot at 10s. 3d. cash ; 900 tons Japan, at 11s. 3d. ; 400 tons Saigon, at 9s. 9d. ; a cargo of 1,000 tons Rangoon afloat, at 11s. 3d. open charter, and a cargo of new Rangoon at 10s. 9d. open charter.

SUGAR.—The market has not been greatly influenced by the announcement that the existing duties will be repealed. Prices in the public sales have been often 6d. higher, but the bulk of the business has been in West Indian kinds. In public sale 5,500 bags Penang were all bought in at 18s. to 18s. 6d., 14,600 bags unclayed Manila were all bought in, but 9,000 bags afterwards sold ; sun-dried, 20s. 6d. to 21s. 6d. ; 2,500 bags China were bought in at 17s. TIN.—Straits is scarce, and has advanced £5 to £6 per ton, being quoted £98 to £100. Banca closes at £100 to £101, Billiton at £95 per ton.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

A firmer tone has prevailed, and greater strength has been imparted by increased sales, and the continued activity and hardening prices in the Liverpool market. Buyers of the better class of Shirtings are unable to make progress, except at some advance on last week's prices. At the close there is a strong market, at full quotations. Producers of both Yarns and Goods very firm, and declining offers made at prices at which business was effected last week.

NOTICES TO MARINERS.

Philippine Islands—South-West Coast.—Sunken danger near Tanalutan Island.—The Spanish Government has given notice of the existence of a sunken danger, on which the gun-boat Samar obtained soundings when to the eastward of Tanalutan island, near the south-west end of Mindanao. This danger (Samar rock) is a bank of rock and sand about half-a-mile in extent, with only 14 feet on the central part, and general depths varying from 6½ to 9 fathoms. From Samar rock the hill of Tanalutan island bears W. by S. ½ S., and Sibago island South (easterly). These bearings place the danger in lat. 7 deg., long. 122 deg. 24 min. E. Another bank is reported 4 miles to the eastward of Samar rock, but its position was not ascertained.

Illana Bay.—Pinatayan Bank.—The commander of the gun-boat Marireles has ascertained the position of the Pinayatan bank, to the north of Bongo island in Illana bay, and which has a depth of from 11 to 22 feet on it. This bank consists of two reefs, parallel to each other, extending 4 cables in a S.S.E. and N.N.W. direction, and is a cable broad. From the eastern part of the bank the north point of Bongo island bears S. ½ W., and Point Matimuz of Tetian E. by S. ¼ S., which places it in lat. 7 deg. 28 min. N., long. 124 deg. 2 min. E.

Manila Bay. Harbour light, entrance of Pasig River.—The Spanish Government has given notice that from the 1st Jan., 1874, a fixed green light would be exhibited from an iron stand, painted dark red, on the battery of the southern mole at the entrance of Pasig River, Manila Bay. The light is elevated 16 feet above high water, and should be seen from off the entrance of the river, between the bearings of N.W. and S.E., at a distance of one mile. It bears south from the red light on the north mole. Position—Lat. 14 deg. 36 mins. 20 secs. N., long. 120 deg. 57 mins. 20 secs. E.

IN consequence of the strikes in the shipbuilding yards the P. and O. Company's new steamers Teheran and Kashgar will not be round to London for some three weeks.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—HEALTH LOST AND FOUND

—After safely struggling through the winter, multitudes will fall victims to the throat and chest complaints common in the spring. If the first symptoms receive attention and judicious treatment, not only will future danger be averted, but old ailments will give way, and better health will be attained than was enjoyed before the illness. No treatment for safety and certainty of success may be so confidently relied upon as that discovered by Professor Holloway, whose Pills and Ointment always restore the sufferer. While the Pills are taken in moderate doses, the Ointment should be well rubbed upon the skin, near the part affected, as actively as salt is forced into meat.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

The correspondent of the North China Herald writes:—

I forgot to mention in my last letter that the Corean Envoy had arrived at Peking, accompanied by a number of his countrymen. At present, not including the shipwrecked men, there are about one hundred Coreans at the capital. Four days ago I met six of these on the South Bridge (Nan-yu-keaou), and entered into conversation with them. Amongst many other things, I asked them if their Envoy had yet seen the Chinese Emperor; and the reply was "yes, at the Kin-lau-teen, on the morning of the first day of the year, but only at a long distance, with the high officers of the Empire and some Mongolian officers." The Kin-lau-teen is, it is necessary to say, the reception hall of the Emperor at the palace. From this it would appear, then, that the audience of the Corean Envoy and the Mongolian Princes did not take place in the building known as the Taze-kwang-ko, where the Ministers of Great Britain, France, Russia, America, and the Netherlands were admitted to their audience. The Corean Envoy took forty-five days to make the journey from the capital of Corea to the capital of China; and I am informed, but whether it is correct or not I cannot affirm, that his residence in Peking, according to some old regulation, is limited to forty days. It appears that in three months' time another Envoy from Corea will reach here. One of the S. S. N. Co.'s steamers would easily convey the Corean Envoys and their suites from Corea to Tientsin in three days, and as the land journey from Tientsin to Peking can be performed in carts in two days, the whole distance could then be effected in five days, making a saving in time alone of forty days—to say nothing of the hardships over the rough roads of Leaoutung and Manchuria.

By the Haining we learn that the Peiho is entirely free from ice, and that there is now as much water in the river as when she made her last trip on the 6th December. Upon arriving in Tientsin on the 8th the Haining was welcomed by the Chinese with demonstrations of crackers, &c., the reception usually accorded to the first steamer of the season. Tientsin was found to be in a state of utter quietude, there being not the slightest indications of anything like a disturbed state of feeling. The Viceroy's soldiers were located in the city, but the place was never in better order. Two gunboats were in port, one British and the other Russian, and the Fusing, Chihli, Taku, and Appin were already in the river when the Haining commenced her return voyage.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 20th March; the P. and O. mail from London Jan. 23 arrived out on the 13th March, and the following French mail of Jan. 30 was received on the 18th March. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

It is said that the Chinese authorities meditate sending, at no distant date, an experimental squadron of two or more of their new fleet on a voyage to Europe. This praiseworthy project is reported to have the warm support of the Viceroy of the Two Kiang, and we trust nothing will occur to check its being put in execution. It will be a startling novelty for the West to find that China, so long absorbent of European gunboat strength, is actually sending forth some of her own.

It is gratifying to know that the Chinese Government has received very favourably a proposal that it should co-operate in the Universal Exposition of Products and Manufactures which is to be opened at Philadelphia in 1876, as one of the grand features of the centennial celebration of the independence of the United States. The proposal was made through Dr. Williams, United States Charge d'Affairs, and responded to, we believe, by Prince Kung, as Chief of the Chinese Foreign-office. Orders are to be issued to the northern and southern superintendents of trade and other provincial authorities, to have the design of the Exposition made known by proclamations addressed to the mercantile, manufacturing and producing classes, and inviting them to prepare exhibits to be forwarded under Government auspices. A special Commission is promised, to attend the Exhibition and superintend the Chinese department, to be selected from the Customs' staff by the Inspector-General. We hope the Government will also see fit to send a few mandarins of good standing as members of this Commission.

The appointment of Secretary to the Municipal Council has been given to Mr. Souper, the Assistant Secretary.

The annual meeting of the Shanghai Rowing Club was held at the Club on the 18th, Mr. R. W. Little in the chair. The report of the Committee and Treasurer's statement were passed; the latter showing a credit balance of Tls. 757.05, which was considered most satisfactory. Messrs. Little, Haslewood, Glass, Muller and Fuller were elected the new Committee, and Mr. Little Captain of the Club. A resolution was passed that ladies introduced by members should be considered honorary members of the Club.

The Rev. Pere David, whose travels in Kiang and return to Kiukiang with much impaired health, but with valuable scientific spoils, we recently noticed, arrived in Shanghai a few days ago. Dr. Shearer, of Kiukiang, who will be passing through Shanghai for Europe early in April, has, we understand, agreed to read a paper and to exhibit a large collection of specimens of the geology and botany of the Leusan and Poyang districts before the Royal Asiatic Society. Let us hope that Pere David will, on the same occasion, enrich the society by some specimens of his store of observations accumulated in the same province.

The annual general meeting of the shareholders in the Shanghai Steam Navigation Company was held at the offices of the Agents, Messrs. Russell and Co., on the 16th of March. Present, F. B. Forbes, Esq., President, in the chair; J. Dent, Esq., and F. D. Hitch, Esq., Directors; and Messrs. Rowley Miller, E. McLoughlin, M. Young, W. W. Lovett, J. F. Goodfellow, E. Seligmann, N. B. Hinckley, A. G. White, C. A. L. Dunn, F. D. Barnes, S. Daly, G. A. Butler, F. A. Groom, G. Wheeler, W. S. Maclean, H. T. Wade, A. T. Carmichael, W. Mitchell, G. Withers, H. Cordier, Choping, Koofongtsung, &c., representing 17,404 shares.

The President, in moving the adoption of the report, said that the main feature in the accounts was the fact that the Insurance and Deprecation Fund was Tls. 372,000 less than it was last year. Although the report contrasted unfavourably with those of the preceding seven years the directors were glad to say the future prospects were in every way encouraging.

The amount of net gain on the running accounts of the steamers and godowns is Taels 106,379.11. After paying the usual dividend of twelve per cent. and returns to contributors, there remained at debit of profit and loss account a balance of 132,225.56. This had been carried to debit of insurance and depreciation fund, which was also debited with Taels 200,000, for the net loss on the steamers Kiangloong, Moyune and Chnsan. A further sum of Taels 40,061.81 had been written off for loss on sale of the Manchu and in reduction of capital cost of other steamers, leaving the balance at credit of Insurance and Depreciation Fund at Taels 701,613.86.

The competition on the Yangtsze had been terminated by a friendly agreement with the China Navigation Company (Limited), which ensured the harmonious and profitable working of the river trade. The earnings on the company's other lines promised to equal the average of former years, and as reductions had been made in important items of expenditure, the shareholders confidently expected that their investment would continue to yield a satisfactory return.

The report was then adopted, and votes of thanks to the president and directors passed.

A correspondent at Ningpo writes:—We have had a charming theatrical performance here, which was given at the residence of H.M. Consul. The piece played was Betsy Baker; Mr. Alabaster's drawing-room made an admirable little theatre, and the performers went through their parts with a verve and ability that would have done credit to professionals, "Betsy" was played by a lady of whom I can only say that she acted perfectly; and though the part of "Mrs. Mouser" did not afford so much scope for acting, every point makable out of it was made, and Marmadake's ecstasy for his Stasy dear was shared by the audience. The male parts were equally well supported, and the prompter's voice was not heard, nor—greater proof of the smooth way in which the piece went—did the company fall foul of him after. After the Moral Allegory! we had a reading from Orpheus C. Kerr, by a young American in the Customs, who astonished everyone by the admirable way in which he did it; and then supper, followed by a carpet dance, graced by no less than nine ladies.

We notice that Mr. G. F. Seward, U.S. Consul-General, arrived on the 13th by the Thales, from a tour of inspection in the South.

Among the passengers by the Haining is the Hon. T. G. Grosvenor, Second Secretary at the British Legation, Peking, who has been transferred to Berlin.

The Irish residents of Shanghai celebrated Saint Patrick's-day by a dinner at the Club, under the presidency of Mr. J. I. Miller; Mr. R. H. Boyce taking the vice-chair, and Dr. Jamieson and Mr. Kingsmill the croupier's seats. About 40 sat down. Songs were numerous, and speeches good, and a thoroughly enjoyable evening was spent.

Advertisements confirm the rumour which has been current for some days, that the S.S.N. and C.N. Companies had agreed to raise the rates of freight on the Yangtze, and to run steamer for steamer. It is formally announced that the rates of freight will in future be Tls. 5 per ton for measurement cargo, and Tls. 4 for tea. The steamers of each Company will leave either end (Hankow and Shanghai) on alternate days.

Mr. F. W. Mitchell, H.M. Postmaster-General at Hong Kong, has succeeded in obtaining from Her Majesty's Office of Works the position occupied by the Old Gaol, in Peking-road, as a site for the British Post-office, and the building of new offices will be immediately commenced. We are glad that after many successions of changes the British Post-office will at last be located in a permanent building of its own, and in a site sufficiently near the centre of the Settlement.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 26th March; the French mail from London Feb. 13 arrived out on the day this mail left. The Daily Press supplies the following items of intelligence:—

It is proposed to establish an International Lifeboat Institution for the Coast of China. It will be under the control of the Consuls, Naval Officers, and Chambers of Commerce at the various ports, and the patronage of Prince Kung will be solicited should he be found willing to support the scheme. Some carefully prepared rules of and regulations for the guidance of the institution have been prepared, and it is intended that an exact copy of them shall be respectfully offered to his Imperial Highness Kung-ching-wang, to the Imperial Commissioner Superintendent of Foreign Trade, to the Tsung-li Yamên, and to the Governors-General and Governors of the Coast Provinces, and their high protection solicited in behalf of this charitable institution, equally beneficial to the Chinese as to all foreign nations.

The correspondent of the Daily Press, writing from Macao, reports further excitement in that settlement, following the elections. The late Commandant, Colonel Barbosa, left with his wife in the steamer White Cloud, to take passage for Lisbon in the French packet on the 26th of March. At the steamer's wharf there were many of his friends, both military and civil, to wish good bye to the old Colonel and his wife. Every one present was leaving the wharf, when a treacherous assault was committed on the person of Mr. Jozé da Silva, the editor of the Independente, by Mr. Moraes de Carvalho, aide-de-camp of the Governor S. Januario. The Governor S. Januario is going to take legal proceedings against Dr. Magalhães for abusive language he used in the letter which he wrote, and which was published on the 11th March. A "Conselho de Investigacäo" will be held to inquire into the case.

The report of the Chinese Insurance Company is as follows:—The net premia, after deducting returns and reinsurances, amount to $243,705.77; and adding thereto the balances of exchange and interest accounts, and transfer fees, the total net receipts of the company for the year aggregate $266,023.54.

The interest upon the capital, $36,000, and $55,963.39 upon adjusted claims having been paid, and after carrying forward to next year's account $8,000, the amount of premia on risks accepted prior to 31st December but not yet terminated, and the sum of $31,721.50 to suspense account to meet all claims pending upon known casualties, and providing for the working expenses of the office, agents' commissions, &c., and writing off one-third of the amount at debit of preliminary expenses, there remains a net profit of $90,000 available for appropriation.

In accordance with the articles of association two-thirds of such profit will be distributed as a bonus to contributors, the return on the premia being upwards of twenty-three per cent. The remainder will be placed to the credit of the reserve fund, which will then stand at $51,000. The directors with much regret announce that vacancies have occurred in the board of direction caused by the death of Mr. J. McDouall, and by the departure from the colony of Mr. O. Hoffman Burrows. Under clause 83 of the articles of association, Mr. S. E. Burrows and Mr. C. Morland Kerr have been elected by the board to fill these vacancies, subject to the confirmation of the shareholders. Mr

A. McIver and Mr. H. Nicaise, who have audited the accounts, being eligible, offer themselves for re-election.

The British steamship Vasco-de-Gama left San Francisco on 21st February, at 3 P.M.; arrived at Yokohama on March 15th, at 5 A.M., and left again on the 17th, at 3 .P.M., and arrived in Hong Kong at 3 P.M. on the 24th. Had strong head winds and high sea from Yokohama, previous to which had very fine weather.

Several Chinese servants at the Lusitano Club had a narrow escape of being killed or injured yesterday by the fall of about thirty feet of cornice plaster work, of over a foot thick, from the upper wooden verandah facing Elgin-terrace into a yard beneath, where the servants' quarters and a billiard room open out. Fortunately no person got injured, and the debris in falling only broke a bucket.

A dinner was given by a party of Portuguese friends at the Lusitano Club on the night of the 23rd, in honour of Mr. J. A. Barretto, Sen., one of the founders of the club, and late clerk in the employ of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co., in view of his retirement from Hong Kong. Mr. J. A. Barretto, Sen., departed yesterday to Macao, where he becomes connected with the firm of Messrs. A. A. de Mello and Co. About twenty-four Portuguese gentlemen and others, friends of Mr. J. A. Barretto, Sen., together with his three sons, met on the wharf, and gave him a hearty good bye.

The Hon. C. May, in his report on the Fire Brigade for January and February, states that "it is deserving of remark that for three months and a half during the cold season there has been no outbreak of fire in the city of Victoria." We suppose this shows the efficiency of the Fire Brigade, just as the absence of criminals shows the efficiency of the Police Force.

The report of the Postmaster-General shows that the dulness of trade, which has characterised the past year, has affected the postal revenue, which was only $181,279.22, against $193,240.78, the previous year, thus showing a falling off of $11,961.56 for the year 1873. The average number of days occupied by the mail steamers between this and home was about the same last year as the year previous.

The report of the Canton Medical Missionary Society for 1873 has been issued. The operations of the society have been going on satisfactorily, and are on the whole encouraging. The Rev. Mr. Faber, speaking of the Fumun Dispensary, says: "The Chinese commonly have more or less a sense of gratitude, and I myself do not feel discouraged at all. In seeking the welfare of the Chinese for their souls as well as for the bodies, we may be sure of gaining gradually some influence upon them; and such influence will stimulate their nobler faculties to better moral and religious exertions. All patients want to be treated with patience, and where the moral sense of man is out of order, even divine patience is necessary. To relieve suffering men from their pain, as much as is in our power, is, after all, a great recompense in itself.

PHILIPPINES.

MANILA.

On the 12th, 13th, and 14th March the annual races came off at Manila, and proved a great success. Thirty Philippine and four Chinese horses entered the lists. Twelve prizes were carried off by the former, of which one gained two prizes, and the others one each. As to their Chinese rivals, one named Cui Bono won five prizes, and another gained one prize for being second in a race. The Diario of the 17th March thus expresses its opinion regarding these foreigners:—"Of the four Chinese horses which made their appearance, only one drew special attention by its powers of endurance; the others of this origin which run did not exhibit superiority over those of this country. The one referred to is a handsome specimen of the renowned Tartar breed of horses, famous from remote times for their powers of endurance, although not for their form. These horses, we are informed, are not entire, because it is believed that the Tartar horse, which remains so, is untamable or nearly so. Perhaps, should the transport of sires of this race present difficulties, it would be preferable to import mares to improve the races of this country, to which those of Tartary and Mongolia bear some affinity."

The following is from the Diario of the 11th March:—"During the night of Sunday last two shocks of earthquake of short duration were, it is said, felt at Cavite." On the 3rd and 4th March a severe hurricane raged in the island of Leite, in the Philippines, causing great damage to houses, trees, growing crops, and coasting vessels. Persons on board vessels at sea could perceive pieces of zinc roofing on land torn off by the wind, and carried to a great distance; every gust of wind unroofed large numbers of nipa houses. Three persons are said to have been injured by the fall of houses or trees.

There is an authorised official notification from the Corregidor or chief magistrate, to the effect that people are required to paint or whitewash the fronts of their tenements, which, from neglect of the regulations, present a foul or unsightly appearance. A delay until the 28th March is allowed by the regulation, to admit of its being carried into effect; after which period defaulters will immediately have to pay the regulated fine.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 3rd April; The French mail from London Feb. 27 arrived out on the 1st April. The following summary of news and comments are from the Straits Times:—

Considering the strong opposition manifested against the Preservation of the Peace Ordinance as it repeatedly came before the Legislative Council for renewal from year to year, it is somewhat surprising that this law, with the extraordinary powers it confers, has now been actually in force in Singapore for the past year and a quarter, during all which time the town has been under "proclamation," without awakening comment. We believe its operation has been prolonged at the request of the Inspector-General of Police, to afford him greater facilities in the prevention or suppression of disturbances. We are not prepared to oppose the view he takes, but it is evident that if he be correct, and it is impossible to govern our Chinese and native population in their ordinary every-day life without maintaining the suspension of the Habeas Corpus and the exercise of despotic power by the Government, then our penal laws and our machinery for preserving the peace are wofully deficient, and both urgently need amendment. It will, perhaps, be remembered that this journal rather favoured the Ordinance in question, as necessary in cases of emergency; but it was never contemplated that it should be made use of except in emergencies, and on this understanding it was placed permanently on the statute book of the Colony. We are under no apprehension of any abuse of power by the Executive, but nevertheless it is not comforting to reflect that we have no legal safeguard against oppression. As, however, in the existing state of our law, it has been deemed advisable to indefinitely continue the operation of this extraordinary measure to keep Singapore in order, we would urge upon Government the necessity of amending our ordinary law so as to enable them to deal with any emergency likely to arise, without depriving the subject of his rights or his liberties, or magnifying venal offences into serious crimes against the public peace.

The Government Gazette of the 28th, and an Extraordinary of the 31st March, notify the following appointments:—The Hon. T. Braddell, Attorney-General, to be Acting Colonial Secretary during Mr. Birch's absence; Mr. E. A. Irving, Assistant Colonial Secretary, to be Acting Auditor-General; Mr. E. H. Watts, Collector of Land Revenue at Malacca, to be Acting Assistant Colonial Secretary; and Mr. E. E. Isemonger, Assistant Treasurer at Malacca, to be Acting Collector of Land Revenue in addition to his own duties. These changes to take effect from 31st March.

Mr. W. Read, Netherlands Consul-General, having left for Europe, Mr. Sebastian Joseph Maier, Vice-Consul, has taken charge of the Consulate at Singapore. Mr. H. Paddy having resigned, the Governor has provisionally recognised Mr. Percy Padday as Netherlands Vice-Consul at Penang.

An order of the Governor in Council directs that the Table of Fees formerly levied in the Courts of Requests continue in force until the coming into operation of the Courts Ordinance, 1873. The Courts Amendment Ordinance, passed on the 28th March, restores the jurisdiction of the Courts of Requests to $50 in Malacca and Province Wellesley, but limits them to $10 in Singapore and Penang, as prescribed by the original Ordinance.

At a meeting of the Singapore Exchange, it was resolved to observe Good Friday, the 3rd, Saturday the 4th, and Monday the 6th inst., as general holidays.

The Colonial steamer Pluto has left for Penang. She took down the Hon. J. W. W. Birch, Colonial Secretary, who goes on a visit to Perak.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

CHEFOO.—Messrs. Cornabe and Co.'s Circular says:—Since the issue of our circular of the 3rd Feb. the business in Cotton Goods has been but trifling, owing to the intervention of the Chinese New Year holidays; the few transactions that have taken place have been restricted to 8¼lbs. Grey Shirtings, which are still quoted at Tls.1.90 to Tls.94 per piece. We look for more activity in the course of a fortnight, when the Gulf ports will be free from ice, and business thoroughly resumed. In Woollens and Metals we have no sales to record, and rates are purely nominal.

SHANGHAI, HONG KONG.—Business at these ports had been very quiet, and had called for no special remark.

MANILA.—There had been but little improvement in the general tone of the market for Plain Staples, although some few descriptions were in rather better enquiry, and the telegraphic advices of a weaker market in Manchester had rather tended to make holders more willing to quit their stocks before cheaper goods could come into competition. Coloured goods of suitable descriptions, more especially Prints were readily taken up on arrival, at fairly remunerative rates.

SAIGON.—The market remained in much the same unsatisfactory condition as last advised and in some instances even a further concession in price had been submitted to.

THE HAGUE, APRIL 28.—The Government has received a despatch from Atchin, dated the 25th inst., announcing that the main body of the Dutch army would return on the following day to Java. Colonel Pel has been appointed commandant of the forces which remain in Atchin. Three war-ships have been sent to various points to settle political matters.

PENANG, APRIL 28.—The Penang Gazette publishes advices from Atchin, announcing that on the 11th inst. bodies of Atchinese, numbering altogether 8,000 men, attacked all the Dutch positions unsuccessfully. On the 16th the Atchinese attacked the Kraton, and were repulsed after an engagement lasting eight hours, in which all the Dutch troops took part. The latter lost six killed, including two officers, and sixty wounded. Fresh attacks from the Atchinese were daily expected. The greater part of the Dutch expedition was to leave on the 28th April, only 2,500 troops remaining in Atchin.

LANDOWNERS IN SCOTLAND.

Some curious and interesting statistics relating to the principal landowners to the north of the Tweed may be gathered from a Parliamentary return, which has just been printed by Messrs. Murray and Gibb for Her Majesty's Stationery Office at Edinburgh. It shows the name and address of every owner of an acre and upwards in extent, with the estimated acreage and the annual value of the lands and "heritages" of individual owners, and also the number (but without names and addresses) of individuals who own land less than an acre, and both lists are arranged under the respective counties. The return obviously may be consulted with interest both as to the extent of the largest properties and also as to the rentals of the chief landowners. Taking the Peerage alone and regarding its members as to their territorial acres only, the Ducal family of Sutherland stands first; the Duke and Duchess owning no less than 1,326,000 acres in the counties of Sutherland and Ross-shire; next stand the Earl of Breadalbane and the trustees of the late Marquis of Breadalbane, with 438,000 acres in Argyleshire and Perthshire; next the Duke of Buccleuch, with nearly 431,000 acres in Selkirkshire, Dumfriesshire, Peeblesshire, Kirkcudbrightshire, Roxburghshire, Lanarkshire, and Midlothian; the Earl of Fife and the trustees of the late Lord Fife, with 258,000 acres in Aberdeenshire, Banffshire, Elgin, and Forfarshire; next the Earl of Seafield, with 256,000 acres in Elgin and Inverness-shire; then follow the Duke of Athole, with 195,000 acres in Perthshire; the Duke of Argyll, with 174,000 acres in Argyleshire and Dumbartonshire; the Duke of Hamilton, with 151,000 in Lanarkshire, Linlithgowshire, and the Isle of Arran. Sir James Matheson, too, holds upwards of 400,000 acres, mostly in the North-Western Islands, however, where the land is not so valuable, owing to the difficulty of access by railroad, &c. The order of these magnates, however, viewed as to the actual rental of their estates, differs considerably from the above rough approach to the order of their territorial precedence. The rental of the Duke of Buccleuch, for instance, stands at the head of all, at £182,000; next follows that of the Earl of Fife, £76,000; next that of the Duke of Sutherland, £67,000; next those of Lord Breadalbane and Lord Dalhousie, each £58,000; next that of the Duke of Argyll £50,000; next the Marquis of Bute, £44,000; next the Duke of Athole, £40,000; then the Earl of Seafield, £37,000; and so forth. Then, again, taking the several Scottish counties in succession, the largest land owner in Aberdeenshire appears to be the Earl of Fife, with 139,000 acres, though in rental the Earl of Aberdeen stands above him with £40,000; in Argyleshire the name of Lord Breadalbane stands first in point of acreage, that family holding no less than 194,000 acres, though the Duke of Argyll, with a rental of £45,000, in that county, stands above the Earl; in Ayrshire the Marquis of Ailsa stands first both in land and in wealth, owning no less than 76,000 acres, with a rental of nearly £36,000; in Banffshire the Duke of Richmond, in right of his mother, who was a Gordon, holds the largest property, nearly 160,000 acres, though his rental is less than that of Lord Fife, whose name stands at all but £36,000; in Berwickshire the Earl of Haddington, with a rental of £15,000, stands at the top, though his lands fall short of the 18,000 acres owned by the Marquis of Tweeddale; again, in the joint county of Bute and Arran, the Duke of Hamilton holds the largest actual estate, 102,000 acres, though his rental of £18,000 is surpassed by Lord Bute with his £19,000. In Caithness-shire the Duke of Portland, with 81,000 acres, figures as the largest landowner, though the largest rent-roll is that of Sir George Dunbar, £11,000; in Clackmannanshire the Earl of Kellie stands first with 6,000 acres, and also with his rental of over £9,000, though Lord Zetland comes very near to him; in Cromartyshire the first name both in land and in wealth is that of Colonel George Ross, his acres being 7,000 and his income £4,000; in Dumbartonshire the name of Sir James Colquhoun stands at the head of the landowners, with 67,000 acres and nearly £13,000 rental; in Dumfriesshire the Duke of Buccleuch heads the list of territorial magnates with 253,000 acres and £94,000 rental; the same noble Duke has the largest rental, £28,000, in Midlothian, though the Earl of Rosebery owns a larger amount of acres in that county—namely, 15,000. In Elgin the name of the Earl of Fife stands first in both respects, with 40,000 acres and £18,000 rental; in Fifeshire the first name in each table is that of the Balfours of Balbirnie, whose acres are over 10,000 and whose rental is £15,000; in Forfarshire Lord Dalhousie heads the list, with 136,000 acres and a rental of £55,000; in Haddingtonshire Mr. Balfour, of Whittinghame, appears as the largest landowner, with upwards of 10,000 acres, though his rental is far less than that of the Earl of Wemyss, which is given at £22,000; in Inverness-shire there are very many estates nearly as large as that of Lord Lovat, who stands at the top of both columns, however, with 161,000 acres, and £28,000 rental. In Kincardineshire the acres of Sir Thomas Gladstone, 45,000 in number, stand first, though in point of rental he is surpassed by the Earl of Kintore, with nearly £17,000. In Kinross-shire the largest estate is that of the Right Hon. W. P. Adam, M.P., nearly 2,900 acres; but the highest rental is that of Sir G. G. Montgomery, a little over £3,000. In Kirkcudbrightshire the largest property is that of the Earl of Galloway, nearly 56,000 acres, though its rental does not come up to that of Mr. Constable-Maxwell, of Terregles, £12,000. In Lanarkshire, the acreage of the Duke of Hamilton stands at upwards of 47,000 acres, with an income, including minerals, of £95,000; the Earl of Hopetoun tops the two-fold list in Linlithgowshire, with lands of nearly 12,000 acres, and an income of upwards of £20,000, as does Lord Cawder in Nairnshire, with 46,000 acres, and a rental of nearly £8,000. In Orkney, the largest landowner is Mr. Heddle, of Melsetter, who is entered for 50,000 acres, but his rental is small by the side of that of Mr. Balfour, of Balfour, upwards of £7,000. In Peebles, the first place is claimed by Lord Wemyss, whose acreage exceeds 41,000, and his rental is upwards of £14,000. In Perthshire, the Duke of Athol stands first, his acreage being no less than 194,000, and his rental £40,000; Lord Breadalbane coming very near to him with 193,000 acres. In Renfrewshire, the largest estate is that of Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, nearly 25,000 acres, but the highest rental is that of Mr. Spiers, of Elderslie, nearly £15,000. In Ross-shire, the name of Sir James Matheson stands first in right of his 406,000 acres, but his rental falls short of that belonging to Mr. Matheson, of Ardross, £20,000; in Roxburghshire, the largest number of acres, 104,000, belonging to the Duke of Buccleuch, whose rental, however, within this county, falls considerably short of that of the Duke of Roxburghe, nearly £44,000; in Selkirkshire, however, the Duke of Buccleuch stands facile princeps in both lists, with 60,000 acres and nearly £20,000 rental; in Stirlingshire, the Duke of Montrose heads the list, with nearly 69,000 acres, and a rental of over £15,000; in Sutherlandshire, the Duke of Sutherland is quite unapproached by any rival, his acres being upwards of a million, and his rent within the county upwards of £56,000; in Wigtonshire the first name in both lists is that of the Earl of Stair, who holds upwards of 82,000 acres, with a rental of £43,000; in Zetland or Shetland, the largest property in point of acres appears to belong to the "Trustees of the Busta Estate," 29,000 acres—more than double that of Zetland—and its rental, £2,700, stands highest in that far distant island. As a proof of the strength of clans in different localities, especially in the Highlands, we may add that various members of the noble house of Forbes, to the number of nearly 20, hold in Aberdeenshire about 85,000 acres, with a rental of upwards of £30,000; and that the Campbells of Argyleshire, including all their several branches, appear to hold no less than 769,000 acres, with a rental of some £74,000, besides 78,000 acres more in Inverness-shire, and 46,000 more in Nairnshire; and possibly other outlying property in other counties.

THE tenders for the performance of the mail service in the Dutch East Indies connecting with Singapore has been again offered for competition, and the tender of the present contractors, the Netherlands India Steam Navigation Company, has been accepted at some reduction on the existing subsidy. The period of renewal is, we understand, ten years. The new contract has not yet been drawn up, but the changes on the last will be very slight.

MR. H. G. KENNEDY read a paper before the Society of Arts, on the 1st inst., on the subject of the "Ruins of Cambodia, and the Antiquities of Indo-China." Having traced the several points of resemblance and dissemblance in language and customs between the Cambodians, the Siamese, and other contiguous nations, and given a brief outline of the facts which are known of their political and social history, Mr. Kennedy proceeded to the more immediate subject of the paper, a description of the ruins of Cambodia, chiefly drawn from personal observation. His remarks were supplemented by the production of photographs of ruined temples and other buildings, and copies of inscriptions found upon the walls, which latter Mr. Kennedy, although modestly disclaiming any pretensions to profound scholarship, appears to have translated with much ability. Mr. Hyde Clarke presided over the meeting, and led off a brief discussion upon the paper, in which several gentlemen, with an evident knowledge of and interest in the subject, took part.

Naval and Military.

A work of national importance was consummated last week in the completion of the stupendous steam hammer erected at the Royal Gun Factories, Woolwich. At the first trial it worked with the most perfect ease, and the big steam cranes on either side, each of which will lift from 80 to 100 tons, swung round with the greatest freedom. Although it has been described as a 30-ton hammer, the weight of the falling portion is really within a few pounds of 40 tons, and the force of the falling weight is accelerated many times by the use of steam to drive it down from the top. Herr Krupp, the German gunmaker, has a hammer which is reckoned at 40 tons, but it is calculated that the one in Woolwich Arsenal is at least four times as powerful, Krupp's hammer having no other force than its own dead weight. It is estimated that the use of "top steam" is equal to allowing the hammer to fall of its own weight from a height of 80 feet. It has been allowed a striking fall of 15 feet 3 inches, and nobody has yet determined what is the actual force of the blow which it will strike. The hammer is 45 feet in height, and covers with its supports a base of about 120 feet square. Above the ground it weighs 500 tons, and the iron in the foundations below weighs 665 tons. It has cost altogether about £50,000.

A report by Captain Glover, R.N., on the conduct of the officers and men belonging to his expedition, has just been laid before Parliament. He thanks them for their cheerfulness and perseverance on the toilsome march from the Volta to the Prah, and through subsequent privations until the force fell in with the rear guard of the main body. The march was over a precipitous and densely wooded country, covered by almost impenetrable jungle and trees of the largest size. Progress was constantly impeded by bog, and morass, by trees, and by streams, the mountain-paths being merely water-courses, with large granite boulders from which torrents caused by tropical rains had washed the soil. After mentioning the officers who specially distinguished themselves, Captain Glover refers to the conduct of his native allies. "The King of Eastern Akim," he says, "one or two chiefs, and perhaps some hundreds of his men, are the exception to what I am about to report, viz., that the Eastern Akims are the most abject cowards it is possible to conceive. They would neither scout, patrol, reconnoitre, carry, nor fight." The sole exceptions to the prevailing cowardice of the eastern tribes of the Protectorate were two companies of native Christians, "who proved themselves the only reliable men of the large force lately assembled on the Volta."

The first four of the 81-ton guns, which are to form the armament of the future ironclad Inflexible, will be proceeded with as soon as the experimental one has been completed and proved. The total length of the new gun, including the plug screwed in at the breech end, will be 27ft., and the length of bore 24ft. In the first instance the calibre will be 14in., but ample provision is made in the thickness of the steel tube to increase that figure 16in. if deemed desirable. The rifling has not yet been decided on, but will be a matter for consideration as the gun approaches completion. Neither the weight of projectile nor the quantity of powder to be contained in the cartridge for the 81-ton gun has been positively fixed, but the first will probably range between 1,000 lb. and 1,200 lb., while the second may be estimated at about one-sixth of that amount.

Owing to the difficulties and dangers of navigation among the islands in the South Pacific, the following steam schooners have been added to the fleet on the Australian station as tenders to the Pearl, the flagship on that station, for special service :—The Alacrity, Lieut.-Commanding F. W. Saunders; the Beagle, Lieut.-Commanding F. S. Rendell; the Conflict, Lieut.-Commanding A. R. Mansell; the Renard, Lieut.-Commanding T. Suckling; and the Sandfly, Lieut.-Commanding W. H. Nowell. They are constructed of a light draught of water to allow of their cruising in and out among the 200 islands in the South Pacific which form a large portion of the Australian command.

Surgeon-General T. G. Balfour, M.D., will shortly assume charge at Gibraltar, which is in future to be placed under a Surgeon-General. Dr. Balfour will be relieved as Principal Medical Officer at Netley, by Surgeon-General J. Fraser, M.D., C.B., from Aldershot; Deputy Surgeon-General C. A. Gordon, M.D., C.B., proceeds from Dover to Aldershot; and Deputy Surgeon-General Sir A. D. Home, K.C.B., recently promoted for his services on the West Coast of Africa, will be Dr. Gordon's successor at Dover.

The Warrior, armoured iron frigate, is being prepared at Portsmouth for commission as a flagship. It is understood that she will be the flagship of the Commander-in-Chief of a squadron of six ironclads that are to take the place of the Agincourt, Northumberland, and other ships, now under Rear-Admiral Hornby's command, as the Channel Squadron in the autumn of the present year. The Black Prince, sister vessel to the Warrior, will carry the flag of the officer second in command of the squadron.

The members of the United Service Club, Pall Mall, have invited Major-General Sir Garnet Wolseley, Sir Archibald Alison, Captain Sir John Edmund Commerell, Colonel Festing, Captain Grubbe, Commander Glover, Captain Luxmore, and other leading officers of the Ashantee expedition, to a banquet at the Club on the 5th inst., on which occasion the chair will be taken by the Duke of Cambridge.

A commencement has been made at Chatham Dockyard in breaking up the Thunder, 14, armour-plated floating battery, she having been condemned as unfit for further service. The Thunder is one of the batteries constructed during the Crimean war, and for many years she has been used at Chatham as a floating workshop.

The command of the Northern Division of the Bombay army has become disposable—Major-General Sir E. L. Russell, K.C.S.I., being about to be promoted to the rank of lieutenant-general. Sir Edward was appointed to a Bombay division December 30, 1870.

A large apparatus for washing tents, blankets, and other necessaries by machinery is being fitted up at the western end of the Royal Dockyard at Woolwich for the use of the military.

A naval pension for lieutenants of £50 a year, vacant by the death of Commander William Wright, has been awarded to Commander W. Scrymgour.

It is reported that the brevet rank of Captain is likely to be introduced to compensate old subalterns for the increasing slowness of promotion.

The Imperial German screw corvette Nymph, Captain Von Blanc, from the East Indies, last from Fayal, has arrived at Plymouth, en route for Kiel.

Lieutenant W. Tylden, of the Royal Artillery, has been posted to the 2nd Brigade, serving in Ceylon.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, APRIL 28.

Ever since the resolution was passed prohibiting the circulation of Austrian florins, half and quarter florins, great uncertainty has prevailed as to whether the prohibition extended to the Austrian thaler, and a great many people, both tradesmen, money-changers, and even banks, refused to take them. The wording of the new currency law is doubtful and may be read both ways, and as it has reference to an object of considerable importance, for fifty millions of them have been coined, by far the greater part—if not all—circulating in Germany, it was found needful to take measures to allay the general feeling of alarm and uncertainty, by declaring them to be a legal tender, the same as the other dollars minted by the German Government, till the introduction of the new currency, when they will all be exchanged for gold and put out of circulation. A short Bill to that effect has therefore been brought in by ministers and passed nem. con. by the German Parliament.

In the same sitting (April 18), on the second reading of the supplementary credits for the expenses of the Empire in 1874, Herr Mosle, the member for Bremen, objected to the item of 18,000 thalers for the purchase of two plots of land on the Island of Koo-lung-su for the Consulate about to be removed from Foochow to Amoy, and moved as an amendment to add the words "as well as for the erection of the needful buildings." At the first reading of the Bill the Ministerial-Director, Von Philipsborn, had stated that it was now impossible to purchase the two plots of land with buildings on them, as originally intended, but they must be content with one single unbuilt-on plot and erect on it the buildings suitable for the offices of the Consulate and the residence of the Consul. Herr Mosle therefore recommended his amendment to the consideration of the House. The building which was to be erected with the 18,000 thalers would effect a corresponding saving in rent, and pay an interest equal to ten per cent. on the investment. When one considers that the German Empire can obtain capital at four per cent. interest, the cost of the building would be paid off and amortised in twelve years. Herr Mosle then took the opportunity of bringing before the notice of the House a circumstance of much importance for German shipowners that is also in close connection with the Consulate at Amoy and Foochow. There exists in China a passenger conveyance for workmen, who move from one place to another in search of employment. They are native Chinese who quit their homes for three or four months at a time to seek work in other ports. They come on board the German vessels as ordinary steerage passengers, feed themselves, and leave the ship in about a week, when the voyage is concluded, which cannot be a long one, as it is performed at the period of the monsoons. The German Government recognises and protects this conveyance of passengers, which is all very proper and satisfactory; but it appears great complaints are made—more especially by the owners of the Bremen ship E. von Beaulieu, Captain Schneider—that the Consul at Amoy interprets his instructions in a manner detrimental to the interests of German shipowners. This innocent conveyance of regular passengers appears to be mistaken for the pernicious coolie trade. It is quite in order, and does the Germans great credit for their feelings of humanity, that the coolie trade is regarded with horror and suspicion; but it is directed to America, whilst this is simply a conveyance of Chinese passengers from one port in Eastern Asia to another exclusively. If the Government issues regulations for the guidance of the Consuls, they ought to be made known to the shipowners; otherwise they are induced to send out their vessels to the Far East, where they find regulations in force which prohibit them from doing just what they are sent out to do. It is therefore highly desirable that the regulations issued to the Consuls abroad should be communicated to the shipowners at home, and be so framed as to admit the greatest latitude for free and unshackled liberty of movement.

Vice-Chancellor von Delbruck accepted the alteration proposed, and explained that the regulation complained of did not emanate from the Home Government, but was made by the Consul in execution of the power invested in him for carrying out the provisions of a law promulgated by the Chinese Government. It can only be in the interests of the German Empire to allow such facilities in the conveyance of passengers as do not interfere with the cause of humanity.

In reply to a question put by Herr von Hoverbeck, President Delbruck explained that the alteration in the sum originally asked for was caused by one of the two plots of land having been sold in the meantime, and that therefore it was deemed expedient to purchase an unbuilt-on plot and erect on it the buildings required for the consulate. As this plot was vacant land, it would, of course, be purchased much cheaper, and it might be assumed as certain that the total expense would not exceed the estimate.

Herr Kapp wished for information whether the Imperial Government had any official knowledge of German subjects and merchants carrying on a coolie trade between Macao and Callao under the Peruvian flag, and of German captains conveying coolies from the East of Asia to Peru, and if so, what steps the Chancellor had taken to put down this pernicious traffic.

Vice-Chancellor Delbruck stated in reply that such a case had certainly been related in a newspaper correspondence. It was there maintained that a German mercantile firm at Hong Kong had taken part in shipping coolies, and that very dreadful things had happened in consequence. The affair became first known by the contents of a Blue-book recently laid before Parliament by the British Government. But after examining into the facts of the case, we can only say that if there was anything illegal in the transaction purported to have taken place, it was done at Hong Kong, which is under British jurisdiction, so that a prosecution of the parties compromised could only be undertaken by the British authorities, and if they elect to take it up we have promised our full concurrence and assistance. But after hearing the opinion of their law officers, they have decided not to open criminal proceedings or go further into the case, with which decision any action on our part is cut off. The Minister then proceeded to give the history of the coolie trade from China, and the particulars of the regulations inforce issued by the representatives of the different flags, but, of course, only binding on their own nationals. This will serve to explain the reason for German Consuls making such strict regulations as to elicit complaints from the Bremen shipowners. With this episode the debate was closed, and the grant was passed without a division.

The compromise entered into between the Government and the Parliament with respect to the peace establishment of the army by allowing the number of men required by the Minister for War, and granting the needful sums for their support in a state of efficiency, though only for a limited period (till the end of 1881), has given general satisfaction, except in the ranks of the Ultramontanes and the social democrats, whose number happily is comparatively small, though still large enough to require being closely watched and kept under the thumb. It is considered that with a standing army of 401,000 men, so superbly organised, armed, clothed, officered, mounted, drilled, and disciplined, as the German forces are, where all are inspired with the most enthusiastic patriotism, and each man knows what he has to do in a case of emergency, it is generally felt that Germany can sleep in perfect security, and may with confidence sing the refrain of the celebrated "Wacht am Rhein," which stirred up the German mind to the highest pitch of enthusiasm when the late war broke out—

Lieb' Vaterland, kannst ruhig sein,
Denn treu und fest steht die Wacht am Rhein.

Dr. Johannes Roesing, a native of Bremen, who, though quite a young man, may be called the Nestor of the German Consuls—being, I believe, the senior in that branch of the service—retires from his post of Consul-General in New York, where a great banquet was given in his honour by the Germans there on his departure from the United States. It is said that Prince Bismark requires his assistance for some time in the Foreign-office at Berlin, after which he will be nominated to the first diplomatic appointment that becomes vacant in the Far East. His successor has not yet officially been announced, but it is generally understood—and not been contradicted—that the post is offered to Dr. Klauhold, a native of this city, who was formerly in the diplomatic service of the deposed Elector of Hesse, then chief editor of the Bremen Handelsblatt, subsequently Vice-President of the Hamburg Bürgerschaft, and now managing director of the Hamburg and Bremen Fire Insurance Company in this city.

COMMERCIAL.

The Tea market is firm, and holders of Congou sorts are difficult to deal with, as they generally demand higher prices than have been hitherto paid; but all descriptions are inactive, the only sales by importers being 238 packages of Souchong, and 137 ditto of Pekoe. There is no alteration in the value of Rice, and the demand is slack. Cassia Lignea is out of favour, and considerably lower, it being offered at 66 marks to 67 marks, without attracting buyers. Flores also lower, and quoted at 112 marks to 113 marks. But the most serious fall is in Pepper, which continues without interruption its downward tendency. Singapore is offered at 58 marks to 59 marks, Penang at 52 marks to 53 marks, and White at 95 marks. Star Annis is also lower, the market being unexpectedly flooded by a large parcel from New York.

ROTTERDAM, APRIL 29.

It was my intention to have given you a translation of the principal speeches which were made during the last Atchin debate, but on perusing the official Byblad I find that it is not worth the trouble. The public sitting was only a sham-fight, after a four days' battle with closed doors. The curiosity of the public is not in the least satisfied, and dealing in such a manner with the interests of the nation has created general discontent. It was asserted that some official documents were laid before the members, about which no public debate could take place, but these papers would scarcely require four days' discussion en comite general. Various rumours are current about this secret debate; it is said that Mr. Stieltjes made a vigorous attack on the administration of our army and navy, that Mr. Van de Putte delivered a brilliant oration, that Mr. Kuyper made a fiasco of his maiden-speech, &c. Of course, these are merely on dits; but what we positively know is that some Members belonging to the malcontents were quite satisfied with the explanations which were given by the Minister. Mr. Van Houten was converted to a positive defender of the Government, and Mr. Gratama showed himself a warm champion of the Ministry, and declared that the country was fortunate in being governed by a Cabinet which holds the reins with so firm a hand. It was only Mr. Nierstrasz who disapproved of what had been done, but even he declined to propose a vote of want of confidence, "because there was already so much mischief done that the little which still remained to muddle could easily be left to the Minister of the Colonial Department.' Notwithstanding this sharp remark, not one member of the majority—there is once more a Liberal majority in the Chamber, since Mr. Schepel was elected for the district of Appingadam—rose to propose a vote of confidence, which ought to have been done, because it was clearly proved that the Cabinet had not made such a mess of the Atchin affair as was supposed. It cannot be denied that events have not taken the course which was desired, and even those who unreservedly support Mr. Van de Putte agree that there is something wanting in our relation with Atchin; but it is quite wrong to ascribe this to mismanagement, and to apply the dangerous rule post hoc ergo propter hoc. Most certainly it was unfortunate when we involved ourselves in a war with Atchin; but we must now say z, because we have said a, as the old Dutch proverb purports. Of course it will still cost us many lives, and a good deal of money and trouble, but we cannot make any concession to the poor "annexed" Atchinese without sacrificing our authority.

The Chamber, since the Atchin debate, has dealt with matters of secondary interest for your readers in the Far East, if I except the fact that the well-known conclusion of the Commission appointed to examine the protest of Mr. Winckel—who was forced to leave Java because he wrote some articles which did not please the Governor-General—has been approved of. You will remember that the minority of the Commission disapproved of the expulsion as being illegal, but the majority of the Chamber agreed with the majority of their Commission. To-morrow the Bill of Mr. Van Houten, to limit the hours of work for children in the manufactories, will be laid before the members. I should be very much surprised if this measure is carried. There is a good deal of opposition, even amongst the Liberals, and the principal objection is, What will poor parents do with their children if it is forbidden to send them to the manufactories, in order to earn a small pittance!

Now that we are approaching the 12th of May, the national festival of the twenty-fifth anniversary of our King's accession to the throne, a sort of Orange-fever has attacked the country. Amsterdam will spend some hundreds of thousands of guilders upon the receptions of his Majesty, who will be visited there by the Russian Czar, on his way to England; and all the other towns and villages will organise fêtes to commemorate the day.

The suspension of the Arerysselsche Bank and of Messrs. J. H. Schuymer and Zoon at Amsterdam was followed by the failure of the Kassier Wolff at Zwolle. Of course this has increased the general distrust and has checked business at the Bourse, where a lull continues to prevail. I am glad to state that the Steamship Company Nederland will be able to declare a dividend of 5½ per cent. for the year 1873. According to official statistics the following merchandise of home manufacture was forwarded last year from Holland to our East India Colonies:—159,600 ps. madapollams, 84,500 ps. drills (bleached and unbleached), 76,000 ps. calicos, 70,500 ps. shirtings (bleached and unbleached), 6,502 ps. bleached cambrics, 4,900 ps. cotton for shirts, 8,783 ps. cotton for napkins, 4,035 ps. blankets, 1,260 ps. satteens, and 30,960 kilograms of mule twist.

Some days ago the Handelsblad announced that the several nuances of the Liberal party would be united again, and the day before yesterday the Amsterdam election-clubs Grondwet and Burgerplicht surprised the public with a programme as the bases for the union in spe. I should be much astonished if the project prove successful.

Rumours are circulating in the Hague that the Prince of Orange is to be married to Princess Thyra Amelia Carolina Charlotte Anna, daughter of the King of Denmark, who was born on the 29th of September, 1853. I cannot assure you that this report is true, but it has made the round of the papers without contradiction.

A young lady, Miss Jacobs, of Sappemeer, has passed with the greatest success the examination for a medical degree. This is the first lady in our country who has achieved the distinction.

Mr. Nierstrasz, the mouthpiece of the Opposition, is about to resign his post in the navy. He was on the eve of being promoted, and would have been obliged to seek re-election to his parliamentary seat. This is probably the true reason for his resignation.

There continues to be great difficulty in providing for the East India army the necessary staff of medical officers. The Ministry has offered in vain a premium of £500, but our medical men seem to shirk th service.

THE TRADE OF SARAWAK.

COMMERCE at Sarawak, according to the published returns during the past year, show a falling off. When we seek an explanation, we discover that at Singapore during April and May numerous failures occurred, and this caused a great stagnation generally in the Sarawak Bazaar, besides restricting business at the various trade stations round about the coast. Hence Gutta-percha declined considerably in price, and the exports of antimony fell below the customary value. Quicksilver forms an exception, and shows a more favourable return. For this commodity high prices were commonly the rule. Sago also largely increased. One important cause of decline was that the settlement was visited, in common with many other neighbouring ports, by a severe outbreak of cholera, which almost entirely stopped the out station trade during the last months of the fine season. The dreaded pestilence spread along the coast, the natives in a panic ceased to work jungle produce, and often took refuge by whole villages in the interior. When we look into the tables themselves for information, we are first of all struck by the fact that the country does not grow enough rice for its own consumption. Foreign cloth is imported annually to the value of $200,000, and foreign-grown rice to the amount of $176,000; sundries make up a total of $116,000, and after these comes opium, to the annual value of $36,000. On the export side sago flour—as we might anticipate—easily tops the list. The probability is that the abundance and cheapness of sago has caused the culture of rice to be neglected, and hence, as the Chinese and mining population keeps increasing, we find the quantity of rice imported for their consumption steadily on the increase, until, as we see, it has now become—with one exception—the most important of the commodities supplied from abroad. In spite of this commercial stagnation the balance of trade is "to the good" in Sarawak; for out of totals of, in each case, less than $1,000,000, exports exceed imports by more than $80,000. The item for opium ($36,000) is a large one, and this is to be regretted when we consider the character of the native population. There appears to be some sale for dried fish in the settlement, and salt to the yearly value of $8,000 is imported along the coasts, but in those districts salt is always scarce and dear. On the export side of the account the figures are, quicksilver to the total value of $86,000, gutta-percha $114,000, india-rubber $113,000, while the antimonies (oxide and sulphate together) nearly touch $100,000. There is a little gold, for $6,000 worth was exported last year. It is true that this is a small amount, but where we know even a little to exist we might perhaps find more if we extended the search. There are also diamonds, and $50,000 worth of these priceless gems were sold and exported in 1873, but we never yet heard of a really good Sarawak diamond,—possibly we might pick one up at Ceylon if we inquired for it, for there seems to be no stone so rare as not to be on sale among the petticoat boys in Point de Galle.

There has been a falling off in the Revenue. In Sarawak this diminution is explained to be due to the fact that the Government steamer Royalist has been under repairs for three months, and has therefore earned no freights, besides incurring heavy dock expenses; but after all this would not account for much, and the adoption of a new form for making up accounts may account for the apparent decrease. The prospects for the coming season we are glad to say have a brighter look. Sago, the chief export, promises to do as well as last year; in fact, the population in the sago districts is an increasing one, and hence the sago culture is extending simultaneously with a rise in its price. Rattans and canes are being much sought after, and are likely to form an active branch of trade. In lilian timber there is every probability that a good business will be done, while the development of the coalfields of Silantik and Sadong is causing increased activity. The season, in fact, in every direction wears a cheerful look, and we shall therefore hope for better statements from Sarawak next March.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

UP to the present time the Dutch have not advanced more than three miles into the interior of the Atchinese territory; and though the people in the Campongs are, or profess to be, friendly enough, those beyond control are as determined and reckless in their opposition as ever. The Atchin chiefs would like nothing so much as to draw their opponents into the jungle, where activity in bush-fighting would give the natives an advantage which they would know well how to turn to the best account. But the Dutch are at least cautious, if they have no other high military qualities to boast, and they have wisely determined for the present to rest satisfied with the possession of the Kraton, which till lately was supposed to be the great stronghold, whose capture would terminate the war. The fact is that the rainy season is rapidly approaching, and during the wet monsoon the low marshy ground between the Kraton and the Coast is almost constantly under water. Such a site must therefore of necessity be unhealthy while the marshes are flooded, so that it is probably wise on the part of General VAN SWIETEN to send the major portion of his troops back to Batavia, reserving only a garrison of 2,000 men, who will be able to hold out in their newly-entrenched position, with the aid of their artillery and breechloaders, against any attack which the Atchinese will be likely to attempt. These attacks will be frequent, and what with sickness and the casualties of war, we expect that the garrison left in charge of VAN SWIETEN'S three miles of conquest will have a somewhat heavy bill of mortality to show when the close of the year comes round. As to the Atchinese, it is evidently the hope of Dutch officials that they will shortly be so worn out, so exhausted, and reduced to such straits by the want of gunpowder and the scarcity of rice, that before the rains have ceased they will tender an absolute submission. No one can predict with any certainty how soon, or in what manner, this unhappy struggle will terminate; but, so far as our information goes, we see no indications that the Malays entertain the thought of giving in. Disease is still committing terrible ravages among the Netherlands troops. For example, in February a shipload of sick and wounded reached Batavia; they had started from Atchin nearly 300 strong, and of these sixty-two had been thrown overboard during a nine days' voyage.

In Holland itself recently we observe that, both within the House of Legislature, and also outside it, there has been a vast amount of discussion on the Atchin question. The Cabinet hitherto has managed successfully to defend itself against the attacks of hostile critics, but the Parliamentary storm has by no means spent its fury, and those who deprecate the policy of annexation are loudly crying out against what now appears to be not merely the determination arrived at by the Dutch Ministers, but considering the difficulty into which the Atchinese by their unyielding spirit and deaf resistance have placed their antagonists, the only course, consistent with national honour and reputation, that it is open to the Netherlands to pursue. There seems, we say, to be no alternative.

IN our Advertising columns will be found an intimation that a testimonial is to be presented to Mr. W. H. READ, of Singapore, in proof of the high estimation in which he is held by present and former residents in the Straits, and to commemorate the important services that he has rendered to the colony. Mr. READ'S advocacy of whatever cause he espoused has been always most able and vigorous, and he has gained from opponents no less than from allies; the name of a philanthropic public spirited merchant, whose motto was emphatically pro bono publico.

THE Straits of Malacca, after serving as a theme for numerous political squibs during the late elections, is in some danger of having the joke carried too far in the House of Commons. Sir GEORGE BALFOUR asked the question why the cost of light ships in the Straits, were not aided upon the same footing as those in the West Indies. This was too much for the House, and laughter prevailed on all sides. Even the solemn face of the PREMIER was seen to smirk and smile. Of course the PRESIDENT of the BOARD of TRADE had no difficulty in avoiding an answer.

WE are glad to know that the various sections of the Oriental Congress to be held in London next September have now their respective Presidents as follows:—MAX MULLER, Sir HENRY RAWLINSON, Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK, GRANT DUFF, Professor OWEN, and Dr. BIRCH. Persons desirous of becoming members can apply to Professor DOUGLAS, Honorary Secretary.

WE understand that the negotiations between the Submarine Telegraph Company, and the Australian Governments, in reference to the subsidy to be paid in order to effect a reduction in the present high tariff of £9 per twenty words is nearly concluded, and that the rate will probably be reduced to £5.

IT has been officially announced that M. DE LESSEPS has accepted the decision of the Porte, in reference to the Suez Canal tonnage dues fixed by the International Commission. The difficulty which had arisen in this matter is now, therefore, at an end.

THE Canadian Parliament have made several alterations in the Customs' Tariff, by virtue of which duties of four cents upon Green, and of three cents upon Black Teas are imposed. The duties upon Sugars remain as before.

THE Chevalier DE SCHAEFFER, lately appointed Austrian Minister to China, Japan, and Siam, has been entertained at a banquet at the Freemasons' Tavern. It is probable that he will leave for his post in September.

OUR INTERESTS IN CHINA.

(To the Editor of the London and China Express.)

SIR,—The advent of the new Government to power affords a suitable opportunity for those interested in China to press the wants of their countrymen there upon the notice of Lord Derby. The late Government persistently gave a deaf ear to all the representations made to them urging the real opening of China, and the redress of those grievances under which foreigners labour in that country, in defiance of treaty rights. The unlawful acts of the Chinese were even defended, although in contravention of a treaty solemnly made with us, and in the obtaining of which we had spent much blood and treasure. With such a Minister at Peking as Mr. Wade, who thinks more of Chinese etiquette than the wants and wishes of his countrymen, little is to be expected. The atmosphere of Peking seems to engender imbecility. When a British Minister can write home saying that he feels flattered because one of the foreign board leaving Peking has apologised for not calling upon him to take leave, he must be in a state of fatuity.*

There are four points which ought to be brought to the notice of the Government, and they can only be redressed by negotiation between the two Governments. It is useless for an English Minister or Envoy to attempt negotiation with the Chinese unless he is backed by a respectable naval force. This is well illustrated by the effect produced by two Japanese men-of-war last year off the Peiho, which really brought about the solution of the Audience question. The appearance of a naval force would be quite sufficient, without any actual resort to hostilities. The mistake all our diplomatists made in dealing with the Chinese uthorities was in treating with them as if with an European Government.

The four points which require redress are as follows, viz.:—

Firstly, the abolition of licensed guilds controlling trade.

Secondly, the conservancy of the ports open to trade, and the dredging of rivers such as Woosung.

Thirdly, the opening of coal mines paying a Royalty to the Government or local Viceroy.

Fourthly, the opening of inland waters to steam, and the commencement of railways on land.

Firstly, with regard to the guilds. They are in my opinion as exclusive and as injurious to trade as the old hong merchants in the time of the East India Company. As at present carried on, there is no open trade at the ports. The ports are open to trade, it is true, but only on terms dictated by the guilds, and being licensed by the mandarins their power is unlimited. Why did the treaties made by Lord Elgin prohibit any such interference with trade if it was not intended to put a stop to it? and why, I ask, if we made that treaty, do we not compel the Chinese to observe it? Why and for what do we have a Foreign Secretary of State at home or diplomatic agents abroad, if not to enforce our treaties and watch ever our interests.

Secondly, the conservancy of the ports. The Chinese, under our treaties, levy tonnage dues upon our shipping to the extent of 3s. per ton, amounting in the aggregate to £200,000 a-year, on condition that they should light the coast and conserve the ports open to trade. After thirty-two years of open ports, there is not a steam dredger in China, and the rivers are rapidly silting up. This is particularly noticeable in the case of the Shanghai river, where the bar at Woosung is such an impediment to navigation that large vessels are detained sometimes for a whole month before they can cross the bar, yet no effort is made to remove the obstruction; but the tonnage dues are coolly pocketed, and no notice taken of the remonstrances continually made. One or two light-houses a year are put up after pressure has been brought to bear, but nothing more is done.

Thirdly, the opening of coal mines. At the present time, when coal is such a necessity for steam traffic, it seems strange that coal mines should be lying idle in China while coal has to be brought there at a heavy cost from England and Australia. From the researches of Baron Richtofen in China, it appears that there are enormous deposits of coal in that country; and near Chinkiang and Nanking excellent coal is available; but the Chinese have no pumping apparatus beyond a chain pump, so they are unable to work the mines. The Chinese have no prejudice against working the mines, but the real opposers are the mandarins, who always fear that foreigners should get a footing in the country. The only way to overcome this is for our Government to interfere, and I have no doubt that an arrangement could be effected whereby the mines could be opened on paying a Royalty to the Viceroy of the province. The supply of coal is now so important that our Government ought to move in the matter.

The fourth question is the opening of the inland waters to steam, and the introduction of railways and telegraphs. After a residence in China of nearly thirty years, my feeling is that the English Government is a greater hindrance to the opening of China than the Chinese Government. Steamers are prohibited from navigating the inland waters, but who prevents them from going there? Not the Chinese, certainly. They have not the power. The English authorities are the persons who cause the prohibition. They would be the first to seize the vessels and hand them over to the Chinese for condemnation. Remove the English authorities, and I would undertake to navigate any of the inland waters by steam without molestation from the Chinese. On the contrary, the Chinese themselves are becoming owners of steamers and using them on the rivers. This clause was an absurd one to introduce into the treaty. But witness the stringency on one side and the laxity on the other. The Chinese merchants and others avail themselves largely of the telegraph and steam communication, so it is idle to say they have any prejudice against them. A beginning should be made, and if once the Chinese saw a railway at work in their own country the mandarins would be forced to give way. If we are to wait till the Chinese concede anything we might wait till we are grey-headed. The Telegraph Company have laid their cable to Shanghai, and the Chinese are glad to make use of it every day. Even the mandarins themselves are not above using it when they can profit by it.

In conclusion, I would urge on the present Government that they would earn the lasting gratitude of the English residents in China, and even of the Chinese themselves, by taking up those questions.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

SHANGHAI.

THE INSURRECTION IN JAPAN

(POST.)

The inevitable chorus of dissentients might have been accompanied with no inconveniences more serious than clamour if one of the most extensive and also most urgent reforms of the new Administration had not aroused the hostility of a class of banditti whose training and habits disposed them to stake life with indifference on the chance of pay or plunder. Under the system which the accession of Iwakura had abolished, perhaps the greatest curse of the body politic was the enormous multitude of armed retainers that the Daimios, or feudal chieftains, maintained in their service. These men—the so-called Samurais—hardly numbered less than half a million throughout the empire, and from the habits of private warfare in vogue in the absence of a really strong and centralised executive were always prepared to turn their swords against one another or against their peaceful fellow citizens. The late Taicoun had taken the first step towards their suppression by forming and organising a large army on the European fashion, and it is possible that the discovery by the Samurais of the design, before it could be fully accomplished, had no small share in the success of the Taicoun's rival. However that may be, the supremacy of the Mikado saw the completion of he plan of abolition. The feudal militia was dissolved by decree, while at the same time, to prevent dangerous opposition, a trifling annual pension was allotted to the disbanded retainers. So far success attended the effort of the Government, and could the pensions have been continued the Samurais might have grumbled but would hardly have rebelled. A couple of years ago, however, the Government, straitened by innumerable demands upon its resources, as well as by a fiscal administration not quite up to the European level as yet, ventured on a scheme for getting rid of the continuous burden of annual pensions to four or five hundred thousand men. Every ex-retainer was offered a sum equal to his pension for four years on condition of resigning all ulterior claims. As should have been expected, an ignorant and dissolute banditti accepted the offer, spent the four years' money in a single year, and for months previous to the late outbreak have been reduced to a desperate state of misery and ferocity combined. The hope of a war with Korea for a while calmed their fury by holding out the chance of a legitimate employment for their swords, but the maintenance of foreign peace has left them no alternative but civil insurrection. Whole provinces witnessed the spread of the revolt, and though the Government claims the victory hitherto, the conflict is acknowledged to be severe, while the continual demand of the imperial lieutenants for reinforcements has shown the situation to be serious. According to latest accounts the Government prospects are improving, but until impartial European intelligence shall have fully confirmed the official despatches it will be impossible to be free from uneasiness over the possible developments of such a struggle in a land where life is so lightly valued, and where so many causes of disaffection—whether well or ill founded matters little—are in operation over so wide a sphere.

A YEAR'S GRANTS AND EXPENDITURE FOR THE NAVY IN CHINA.

A return has just been published, showing the grants and expenditure for the navy in the year ending March, 1873, and the surpluses or deficits in connection therewith. We select the items relating to the China station :—

The grants for colonial pay and field allowances to Marines, San Juan and Japan, was £9,540, and the expenditure £7,240 4s. 4d., showing a surplus of £2,999 15s. 8d.; but the final account of expenditure for the Marine Department at San Juan had not been closed. The grant for contingencies in naval yards abroad was £1,199, and the expenditure £972 17s. 8d., showing a surplus of £226 2s. 4d., caused by the expendure for postage and other contingencies at Hong Kong, Malta, and Halifax, having been less than the average of previous years. The grant for salaries and allowances for medical establishments abroad was £10,300, and the expenditure £11,143 0s. 11d., showing a deficit of £843 0s. 11d., which was caused by the dispensers at Malta, Jamaica, the Cape, Ascension, and Hong Kong being placed on salary, and by exchanges of medical officers. The grant for rents, rates, taxes, and water in medical establishments abroad was £425, and the expenditure £550 19s. 3d., showing a deficit of £125 19s. 3d., caused principally by the provision for rents falling due to the Japanese Government for lands, &c., retained for naval purposes at Yokohama, being insufficient. The grant for contingencies in medical establishments abroad was £582, and the expenditure £561 15s. The surplus of £20 5s. was caused by the contingent expenses at Hong Kong being less than provided for. On the grant for new works, &c., at Singapore, there was a deficit of £129, owing to repairs authorised in former years not having been brought to account till this year. There was a surplus of £489 for the grant for foundations at Hong Kong for machinery, the work being incomplete; there were, however, deficits of £108 on the tube store at Hong Kong, of £232 for repairs and maintenance at Hong Kong, and of £164 for repairs and maintenance at Yokohama, owing to the casualties having been greater than expected; but surpluses of £321 for the purchase of new machinery for Hong Kong, of £220 for machinery made in the yard, and £408 2s. 6d. for repairs to plant and machinery. The purchase of the Merchant Seamen's Hospital at Wanchai, Hong Kong, was under discussion during the year. Owing to the defective condition of the hospital-ship Melville, the Admiralty were informed that, should the existing arrangement be continued, it would be necessary to send out another vessel from England to replace the Melville. The trustees of the Merchant Seamen's Hospital offered their building for sale to the Admiralty. The following details with reference to the building were given :—The hospital, which is reported to be substantially built and in good condition, nearly new, constructed on a plan embracing most of the modern improvements, will contain seventy-five beds for officers and seamen. It has also a surgeon's residence, offices, &c.; is situated on an eminence of considerable elevation completely isolated. The site is cool and healthy, and has the great advantage of being within easy distance of the anchorage set apart for the squadron. The price asked was $40,000 in full for the entire establishment as it stands; a portion of it is subject to a nominal rent of £1 per annum in perpetuity, and the remainder to an annual ground-rent of $222, payable to the Colonial Government. The senior naval officer, however, reports that it is thought the Colonial Government would waive their claim to the annual ground-rent should the building be purchased by the Admiralty. In view of the costliness of the existing arrangement, including boats and crews now in attendance on the ship, and the better accommodation and improved sanitary condition of a hospital building on shore over that of a stationary ship, and the Admiralty having ascertained by telegram that, if purchased at once, $35,000 would be accepted, the Admiralty requested the Lords of the Treasury to give their sanction to the acceptance of this offer, $35,000 (£7,437 10s.), the expense to be met out of the surplus expected upon the aggregate of the Navy Estimates for the current year. The Treasury replied that if the Admiralty were satisfied of the reasonableness of the proposed terms they would approve the purchase. The hospital was accordingly bought on these terms. Among the "urgent and unforeseen works" unprovided for in the Estimates for the year was the erection of a bamboo coal-shed at Shanghai, £20. The grant for compensation for damage done by Her Majesty's ships was £4,000, and the expenditure £8,853 5s. 11d., showing a deficit of £4,853 5s. 11d., caused by the payment of compensation to the owners of a Chinese junk for damage done by H.M.S. Ocean. The grant for intercolonial conveyance of troops and mess was £11,400, and the expenditure £8,555 11s. 3d., showing a surplus of £2,844 8s. 9d., principally caused by the payment in 1871-72 for local services in China, which, when the estimate was framed it was not expected would come in course of payment till 1872-73. The sum of £4 15s. 7d., due on the cash account of the paymaster of H.M.S. Avon, was found to be irrecoverable. On the 30th of September, 1873, the date on which the annual account was closed, there was a balance of £8,313 8s. on the debtor side to Mr. J. Lamont for balance of amounts advanced on the 11th of Feb., 1864, and 20th of March, 1866, to assist him in the construction of a dock at Aberdeen, Hong Kong; there were balances of £5,041 4s. 5d. on the same side for advances out of naval grants on account of stores transferred by the military authorities in Japan to the marine battalion there; £12,804 17s. 4d. for outstanding balances on claims by the naval department between the years 1857 and 1865, after writing off to the debit of the accounts of the "Secretary of State for India (China War advances)" the expenditure incurred for that war; £1,458 6s. 8d. for amount advanced by the commissariat in China to the clerk in charge of the Berenice, Indian navy, and repaid by the victualling storekeeper at Hong Kong; £50,934 1s. 7d. for outstanding balance due to the naval department for expenses incurred and advances made to paymasters of ships of the Indian navy in the China War from 1859 to 1864; £1 16s. 2d., value of naval clothing and stores supplied at Hong Kong to the Italian Government in 1870; and £393 14s. 5d. on the creditor side, for repayment on account of the pay and other expenses of officers of Her Majesty's Navy employed as instructors in the Japanese Navy.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

HENDRICKS V. THE AUSTRALASIAN INSURANCE COMPANY.

This was an action to recover £503, the amount of a particular average loss on sugar, the cargo of the ship Perpetua. The facts were stated in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court. The voyage insured was from Java or Sumatra to Holland, and the policy was effected to recover only the risks excepted by the clause warranted free from particular average unless the vessel be stranded, sunk, or burnt. To pay all claims and losses on Dutch terms, and according to statement made up by official dispacheur in Holland. The Perpetua sailed from Java in January, 1870, and about midnight on the 11th of that month took the ground at Oosthook, near the mouth of the river, under circumstances that would amount to a stranding according to English law but not according to Dutch. The Dutch dispacheur drew up an average statement showing a loss of £503 under the policy sued on. There was another policy, but it was not known to the defendants whether it was English or Dutch.

Lord Coleridge said the policy was to be construed as if it stood alone, although as a matter of fact it was known to the Court that there was another policy subsisting. It was effected to cover the risk of a particular average loss where the ship was neither stranded, sunk, nor burnt, and as, according to English law, the ship had been stranded the plaintiff would not be entitled to recover under it were it not for the words following, "to pay all losses and claims on Dutch terms and according to Dutch statement," which meant that a claim was to arise under it unless such an accident happened as, by the law of Holland, would constitute a stranding. This was the reasonable construction of the policy, and the plaintiffs were entitled to recover. The case was also concluded by the authority of previous cases. The other Judges (Brett and Denman) concurred.

BANQUET TO THE CHEVALIER DE SCHAEFFER.

The Chevalier de Schaeffer, the late Austrian Consul in London, but now Austrian Minister in China and Japan, has been entertained at a farewell dinner at the Freemasons'-hall. Count Beust, the Austrian Ambassador, was present, and Baron Henry de Worms acted as chairman.

The Chairman proposed, as the toast of the evening, "The Health of the Chevalier de Schaeffer," dwelling on the kindly and considerate manner in which, during eighteen years, he had discharged the duties of Consul. The Chairman added that the Chevalier was beloved by all who knew him, and especially by the poorer members of his fellow-countrymen, to whom he had in England often had occasion to hold out a helping hand. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm, and the Chevalier acknowledged the compliment in an appropriate speech, which he concluded by proposing, as a toast, "the Health of the Japanese Ministers," one of whom afterwards, speaking in very fair English, on behalf of his colleague present and himself, expressed the pleasure they felt at the kindly manner in which the Empire of Japan was being regarded by the nations of the West, calculated as it was, he said, to result in time in advantages common to them all. The Chairman next gave as a toast "the Health of his Excellency Count Beust, the Austrian Ambassador," with many complimentary expressions drawn from a cursory review of the modern history of Austria and Hungary. The toast was received enthusiastically. The Count von Beust responded to the compliment in English. He said: I thoroughly join in every word which fell from the Chairman in honour of our friend Schaeffer. As long as I had the pleasure of seeing him near me, I had always opportunities of judging of his talents and of the able manner in which he discharged his official duties. My best wishes go with him. A prominent position is in store for him. Like the Colossus of Rhodes he has to have one foot in China and the other in Japan, and his arm must reach Siam. This is a most exalted, but at the same time a very difficult position. But we know our friend will maintain his balance and not forget his friends. He will fidd that no Siamese Twins can be more closely connected than our hearts with his; he will find in the Celestial Empire no better terrestrials than his London friends, and, whatever may be in Japan the progress of liberality towards strangers, which we already highly appreciate, we will not forget that there is but one kind of genuine hospitality—that is, the true-hearted old English, in honour of which I always feel that I ought to empty my glass.

AT the Levee which was held by the Prince of Wales on behalf of the Queen on the 1st inst., the presentations included—The Rev. J. S. Burdon, Bishop of Victoria, Kong Kong, by the Archbishop of Canterbury; Major-General Sir Harry Ord, the late Governor of the Straits Settlements, by Lord Carnarvon, the Colonial Secretary; Rajah Brooke, of Sarawak, by the Earl of Derby, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs; Rear-Admiral Sherard Osborn, by the First Lord of the Admiralty; and Lieutenant St. John Ord, by Sir Harry Ord.

MR. JAMES GAY, of Thurning Hall, Norfolk, formerly Second Commissioner for the Affairs of the Kandian Provinces, in the Island of Ceylon, died on the 20th ult., at the advanced age of ninety years. The deceased gentleman was a justice of the peace and deputy-lieutenant for the county of Norfolk, and also a magistrate for the Isle of Ely. In 1856 he served as High Sheriff for the counties of Cambridge and Huntingdonshire.

THE BLOCKADE OF ATCHIN.—The Secretary for Foreign Affairs has been informed by Her Majesty's Minister at the Hague that it has been officially intimated to him by the Netherlands Government that the blockade of the West coast of Atchin, from Tolmon to, and including, Waylah, has been raised, except as regards the import of arms and ammunition, which is still prohibited.

COLONEL EVELYN WOOD, one of the most distinguished of the Ashantee officers, and a nephew of Lord Hatherley, is about to be called to the Bar.

THE Rev. G. Ensor, missionary from Japan, preached two sermons in Salisbury Cathedral on Sunday, the 26th ult., in aid of the Church Missionary Society.

MR. H. J. TARRANT, barrister at Madras, has been appointed Crown Prosecutor.

Monetary and Commercial.

The tenders for the Indian Four per Cent. Loan of £5,000,000 were received at the Bank of England yesterday, the total amount applied for being £15,138,960. Tenders at £101 8s. will receive about 11 per cent.; above in full. The highest tender was £102 2s. 6d., and the lowest £82.

Tenders are invited by the Agent-General for South Australia for £180,000 in 4 per cent. South Australian Government Bonds, maturing (£80,000) in 1899, and (£100,000) in 1894. The minimum price fixed is £90 for each £100 bond, and the interest is payable in London half-yearly from 1st January last.

Another issue of American Railway Bonds is announced. Messrs. Baring Brothers and Co. offer for subscription £800,000 First Mortgage Six per Cent. Bonds of the New York and Canada Railroad Company, the interest and principal of which are guaranteed by the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company. The price of issue is 92½ per cent., and the principal is to be repaid in thirty years. The New York and Canada Railroad, now in process of construction, will be 135 miles in length, connecting the southern end of Lake Champlain with the Grand Trunk Railway near Rouses Point.

At the meeting of the Singapore Gas Company on the 28th ult. the directors' report was adopted, and dividends were declared of 7½ per cent. on the preference capital, and of 7 per cent. on the original capital.

The directors of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company have issued their report and statement of accounts for the year 1873. It states that in consequence of the extension of the company's operations, and the rise in coals, there is an increase in the "working account" of no less than £85,319 0s. 6d. The result of the operations for the year is that the "surplus" on the "working account" is less by £52,231 1s. 5d. than the preceding twelve months. The company's fleet having been free from any serious mishap the "insurance account" shows a credit balance of £231,079 12s. 8d. The directors recommend, as previously announced, a distribution of £3 15s. per share for the half-year ending the 31st December last—viz., £2 10s. a share from the profit and loss account, and a bonus of £1 5s. from the balance at the credit of the insurance account. At the meeting on the 29th ult. the report and accounts were adopted.

Further failures are reported from Bradford. Petitions have been filed by Messrs. F. Shields and Co., stuff merchants, and by Messrs. A. M'Kerrow and Co., in the same trade; but the liabilities are believed not to be very large. A petition has also been filed in the case of Mr. Topham, of New Leeds, whose liabilities it is thought will be rather heavy. It is understood that the liabilities of Messrs. Whitworth and Co., who suspended payment last week, amount to about £280,000. There is much distrust in the district, and several more firms are known to be in difficulties. The failure has been productive of considerable inconvenience and distress in other ways, the firm being the depositaries of a Penny Bank and other similar institutions.

At a meeting of the creditors of Mr. John Baynes, commission agent and merchant, Manchester, the liabilities were estimated at £160,000. A committee of inspection was appointed, and a favourable liquidation is anticipated.

A new monthly periodical is published, entitled The Journal of Industry. It is a Record "of Manufactures, Inventions, and the applied Arts and Sciences." The May number contains some capital illustrations of the interior and exterior of Pullman's Cars.

The Manchester Market closed last week with a quieter tone, but this week more animation has prevailed, with considerable firmness on the part of producers, who have been enabled to enter into engagements extending over a considerable period forward. The market at the close shows a strong appearance, and a good inquiry exists for both goods and yarns of the better descriptions. Producers hold firmly for the full quotations of last week, and refuse to entertain any lower offers.

Bar Silver has receded in value, no fresh orders being on hand, In the absence of transactions we quote the price 58¾d. to 59d. Mexican Dollars, by the West India packet (about £170,000), have been disposed of for shipment to China at 58⅛d. per oz., showing an advance of ⅜d. since the last transactions.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

A favourable reaction from the previous general depression has taken place in several leading Articles of Import, and prices have recovered, and although many articles have continued in a weak and fluctuating state, the total amount of business has been upon a larger scale than for some time past.

TEA.

Messrs. Arthur Capel and Co.'s Circular says :—Our market has been quiet during the past week ; the orders from the country have been on a limited scale, causing the Trade here to buy but sparingly, whilst the export demand still continues light. Business has consequently been of a moderate character, but in the absence of fresh arrivals prices show no material alteration. The Duty payments for the past week have continued large, making the total deliveries for home consumption from 1st January to date 31,724,898 lbs., against 31,659,873 lbs. for the same period last year. In Public Sales on the 28th ult. 6,961 packages were offered, of which 6,662 packages were sold without reserve. On the 30th, 2,309 packages Congou and Green Tea, and 2,450 boxes Scented Caper were sold without reserve.

Congous.—Red-leaf kinds : Siftings sell slowly at about previous prices. Broken-leaf kinds remain firm at full rates. Fair to good common have sold ¼d. to ½d. per lb. lower. Fair Kaisow kinds sell with difficulty at previous prices. Good remain in demand at last week's prices. Some parcels of fine have been sold from 1s. 7d. to 1s. 9d., finest from 1s. 10d. to 2s. 2d., but the demand is not active. Pak Lin kinds show no change. Black-leaf kinds : Common to good common remain as before. Fair kinds have been steady. Fair to good medium have been less in request, but prices have been fairly maintained. In fine to finest the few sales made have been at previous prices. New-make Canton kinds : The demand has been fairly good for grades from 1s. to 1s. 3d. per lb. ; a small parcel, season 1874-75, has been sold at about 2s. per lb. In Oolongs we hear of no transactions of importance. Souchongs have been difficult of sale at previous prices. In Flowery Pekoes and Uncoloured Japans there has been nothing to report.

Scented Teas.—Canton Capers : The glazed kinds have sold at about previous prices for fair to good quality, the olive-leaf kinds about 1d. per lb. lower ; some common, of old import, sold at public sale from 6½d. to 9d. per lb. Foochow kinds have sold rather lower. Orange Pekoes : Canton kinds have sold rather lower at public auction. Foochow kinds : The common to fair have sold ¼d. per lb. lower ; good to fine have been inquired for, the supplies being scarce.

Green Teas.—The demand continues fairly good, and prices for Moyune kinds have been fully maintained. Pingsueys, except the finer grades, have sold rather lower.

SILK.

Business has again been almost at a standstill, the continued fine weather and the favourable prospects of a good European crop having had the effect of completely checking operations. Prices, although easier, have not as yet undergone any material change. All descriptions of Silk have shared in the general inactivity. Deliveries 1st to 29th ult. inclusive:—China, 2,709 bales, Canton, 657 bales, Japan, 464 bales. Total 3,830 bales.

COFFEE.

The movements in this article have been remarkable, for a rapid advance in the earlier part of the fortnight induced importers to bring forward supplies that have been accumulating for some time past, causing an unfavourable reaction, the greater part of the advance being lost. The supplies of Plantation Ceylon brought to auction have been very large, and after a total advance of 6s. to 7s. per cwt. the market closes flatly, and prices have receded 4s. to 5s., still leaving prices 1s. to 2s. higher than a fortnight ago. Dearer rates have been obtained for Native, viz., 84s. to 86s. for good ordinary to fine ordinary, but at the close business could only be effected at an important reduction. The closing prices of Plantation are, triage and ordinary 80s. to 95s., small grey to coloury at 96s. to 101s., low middling grey 100s. to 102s. 6d., middling greyish to coloury 103s. to 105s. 9d., good middling to good bold coloury at 106s. to 110s., pea-berry 104s. to 108s. In other East Indian kinds the only sale effected has been of 270 bags Java, low good ordinary at 83s., real good ordinary pale greenish at 85s. 6d.

SUGAR.

The market has exhibited increased firmness, owing to liberal purchases ; and prices have had an upward tendency, until during the last few days, when the demand has been less active, and a quieter tone has prevailed. The demand has been chiefly directed towards medium to good refining qualities, which show an advance of 1s. per cwt. ; good brown kinds are 6d. to 1s. higher, whilst low ditto have continued in a comparatively neglected condition, and prices are without change. Manila : Unclayed has attracted little attention, but firmer rates are obtainable ; although the demand for clayed is moderate sales have been made at 6d. advance. The transactions have been :—1,400 bags unclayed Taal at 17s., 25,000 bags sundried Ilo Ilo, fair brown, at 19s. 6d. ; good brown to fine yellow at 20s. 6d. to 21s. 6d. Penang : Brown qualities, of which the supply almost entirely consists, continue dull of sale, and prices are without change. In auction 5,479 mats date sort (duty 2s.) met no offers, and were all bought in at 18s. to 18s. 6d. Privately only small sales of date sort have been made at 16s. 6d. China: 200 tons low brown have been sold at 15s. 6d. Java : No business done.

COIR GOODS.—The public sales have presented unprecendentedly heavy supplies, consisting of 7,730 bales, 160 tons yarn, 979 bales fibres, and 95 tons rope. Holders showed a disposition to meet the market, and although the sales commenced flatly and some irregularity prevailed throughout, the bulk of the yarn found buyers ; common qualities at about 20s. to 30s. below previous rates, but medium sold steadily, and good and fine qualities sold with active competition at dearer rates. Fibre was sold at a slight reduction.

CUTCH has maintained the advance of 6d. per cwt. reported last week, at which about 1,500 boxes have been disposed of in private sale. In auction the prices realised have been 22s. to 22s. 6d., the bulk of the sales being at 22s. 3d. per cwt.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

AND OINTMENT.—HEALTH AT ALL TIMES.—The journey from infancy to age is beset with dangers from accidents or diseases, nearly all of which may be remedied by the use of the excellent medicaments discovered and manufactured by Professor Holloway. The Pills cast out the countless impurities which are constantly gaining admission into the stomach and circulation. The Ointment cools and soothes inflammatory tendencies, disperses diseases of the skin, and heals ulcerations, irrespective alike of their depth or duration. Both Pills and Ointment are carefully-prepared vegetable extracts, uncontaminated by any mineral matters, whereby the thousand evils which were engrafted on the constitution by mercury or antimony are altogether avoided, and secondary nesses are unknown after Holloway's treatment.

Summary of News from the Far East.

YOKOHAMA.

The present P. and O. mail brings advices from this port to the 24th March; and by the Pacific mail we have three days later news, viz., to the 27th March; the P. and O. mail from London Jan. 23 arrived out on the 15th March. The Japan Herald supplies the following items of intelligence:—

One of the most destructive fires we have lately had occasion to chronicle in Yokohama has occurred, in the very heart of the settlement. The fates appeared to be against us, and it really seemed at one time as though the settlement would be given up altogether to the fiery demon. First of all, there was no water. But more than that, and chiefly, what must have struck the willing and indefatigable band of salvage volunteers—was the utter absence of anything like system or management in the arrangements for staying the destruction going on. The alarm bell was sounded at the Fire Brigade Co.'s Compound shortly after eight o'clock, and such was the rapidity of the conflagration—unless indeed the destruction had been going for some time unobserved—that the flames had broken through the roof of Mr. Thiemer's store, where the general belief is that the fire originated. It was evident that little or nothing could be done to stay the utter destruction to which, to all appearance, the whole block seemed doomed, in the absence of the engines, and the doubtful dependency to be placed on the water. Soon after a company of French Marines arrived, and were detailed for duty, in saving and protecting property. And the volunteers went to work cheerfully, quickly effecting an entrance into the premises as yet untouched of the Herald office, and Messrs. Driscoll and Co.'s premises; the result being that a large amount of valuable property was rescued and deposited in safety in adjacent lots. Meanwhile the engines had arrived, but were comparatively helpless, from the distance from, and scarcity of water; the supply being procured from the Bund, and the tide being very low. By the time they were enabled to obtain an adequate supply the fire had gained such a mastery that it was evident the whole block was doomed to destruction, and it seemed imminent that the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, the store of Mrs. Searle, and indeed the whole of that side of the street would be doomed to destruction. Considerable apprehension was felt by many, owing to a rumour that a large quantity of live shells and cartridges had been stored in one of the burning godowns. No explosion, however, occurred, and it is to be presumed that if the supposition were really correct they must have been removed. Thanks to the indefatigable exertions of those present, fighting as they were against fate, the mastery was gained of the flames and the fragments of the burning mass were permitted to sullenly burn themselves out. Hardly, however, had the wearied workers had time to think of resting awhile, when the cry was raised that fire had again broken out. This time it was found to be comparatively remote from the scene of the origin of the devastation. The "German Hotel," situate on Lot 128, and well-known in former times as a thriving place of business, was found to have caught, and in the absence of water, it was quickly seen that the result could be no other than total destruction; if indeed it did not extend beyond that, and include in its scope the adjacent buildings. And such was ultimately the case; the premises of Mr. Clarke, of the Yokohama Bakery, a large two-storied residence adjoining, and other minor buildings near by being finally engulphed with most of their contents in the common ruin.

The following is a statement of the damage sustained :—

J. Thompson and Co.—Total loss ; insured for $10,000, China Fire Insurance Co. Berrick Bros.—Covered in Phœnix Office. G. Thiemer —Insured in Lancashire Insurance Co., $8,000. Mrs. Lockyer—Total loss ; uninsured. Japan Herald—Portion of plant, books, &c., saved, also printing-machine ; insured for $8,000 in Imperial Office. J. Driscoll and Co.—Heavy loss ; insured for $15,000 in Lancashire and $10,000 Sun Insurance Companies. J. North and Co.—Total loss ; insured for $4,000 in Northern and $5,000 Sun Insurance Companies. E. Schwartz and Co.—Damage by water and fire ; insured in Hamburg and Bremen Insurance Co. Victor Orny—Slight damage by fire and water ; covered by insurance. Catholic Mission—Premises only slightly damaged. Miss Gargan—Virtually a total loss through fire and water ; no insurance. A. Fabre and Co—Godown and contents destroyed ; insured for $15,000 in Imperial Insurance. E. C. Kirby—Total loss ; insured for $21,000 in Phœnix Insurance Company ; loss not covered. German Hotel—Buildings, $4,000, owned by the German Hotel Company, and contents owned by J. C. Plummer and Co., $4,000 ; total loss ; no insurance, except on piano. Variety Theatre—Total loss (with the exception of a few dresses and properties estimated at $2,800). R. Clarke, Yokohama Bakery—Buildings and contents, including plant and stock, 3,000 lb. biscuit, and large quantity of flour just purchased, a portion of the latter saved ; the buildings insured in Hamburg and Bremen Insurance Company for $10,000 ; loss on stock estimated at $4,000. Miss M. Campbell—Building total loss, owned by R. Clarke, uninsured ; furniture valued at $9,000, nearly total loss, uninsured. The Phœnix Insurance Company's loss is estimated at $35,000 ; this is approximate, as we are refused particulars by the agents. The Sun loses $25,000, allowing for salvage ; the China, $10,000 ; the Lancashire, $23,000 ; the Imperial, $23,000, less salvage (probable); the Hamburg and Bremen, $11,000 ; the Northern, $4,000.

Another fire has occurred at O-ta, in some native houses immediately under the cliffs, and adjacent to the native barracks. Owing to the inflammable nature of the materials and the delay in procuring water it soon assumed serious proportions, and at one time threatened to destroy the whole of the surrounding quarter, the houses being very thickly clustered together and the streets extremely narrow. There was a large number of police and coolies available for the working of the hand engines, which were of really little service in extinguishing the flames, necessarily very fierce. Everyone worked with a will, however, several Europeans lending a hand in the work of demolition, and the wielders of the hooks and axes ultimately succeeded in arresting the destruction. About fifty buildings was destroyed, but a good deal of the contents was saved. The barracks on the opposite side of the road were untouched. The ground was kept by a detachment of native troops, the streets being covered with salvage. We were unable to ascertain the cause of the fire.

The insurrection in Saga is extinguished, and the troops are on their return ; but the principal leaders of the movement have not yet been captured. The insurgents appear to have been miserably provided with arms, &c., being almost entirely destitute of firearms, and were therefore easily vanquished by the Government forces, although at one time grave apprehensions were entertained of the movement spreading to the neighbouring kens.

On the 18th March the Mikado, accompanied by the Empress, made a visit of inspection to the Lighthouse Department works at this port. He remained in Yokohama that night, and on the following morning visited the Gasworks, and afterwards returned to Tokio.

The news of a most appalling calamity has reached Yokohama. The M.M.S.S. Nil, whilst on her voyage from Hong Kong to this port, has been totally lost, at the entrance of the Gulf, some seventy miles from here, on the night of the 20th March, owing to her machinery breaking down during a violent gale, and of 146 persons on board as yet only four are known to be saved. The details are as yet wanting.

The U.S.S. Idaho, lately used as a storeship at this port, has been sold at auction for $15,000.

The Japan Mail contains the following items of news :—

The late disturbances in the provinces of Hizen and Tosa have completey subsided, and the country is quiet. It would be impossible, however, to ignore the existence of a somewhat uneasy feeling in regard to the future, though it may possess less foundation than is supposed by many.

It was publicly reported some little time back that the Mikado had given his sanction to the establishment of a Deliberative Assembly, the necessity for which has been strongly urged of late by several officials formerly in high positions. The report, however, is premature, or, at least, no official announcement of the fact has yet been made.

A note has been addressed to the Japanese Government by M. von Weckherlin, Minister for Holland, pointing out the many inconveniences which attend the present condition of telegraphic communication with this country, and urging upon the Minister for Foreign Affairs the adoption of the Telegraphic Convention of Rome.

The Pacific Mail Company's steamer Colorado arrived at San Francisco on the 27th ult., with advices from Yokohama to the 7th April. The following summary of news has been telegraphed to the New York press :—

The reports concerning the expedition to Formosa are not without foundation. Envoys from Lin-Kin, who visited Yedo in 1872, besought the protection of Japan against the misdeeds of the Formosa tribe, which had a number of shipwrecked sailors from Lin-Kin. That kingdom having been formally annexed to Japan, protection was promised and negotiations were entered into with China for the purpose of ascertaining what authority, if any, that nation claimed over the marauding tribe. China disavowed all responsibility, and the Japanese made preparations to send a force to take possession of part of the island and keep the inhabitants in proper subjection. Various circumstances have delayed the execution of this project ; but everything is now in readiness, and a small fleet will immediately sail for the scene of the outrages. No hostile action is intended unless it should prove absolutely necessary, in which case the Japanese are fully prepared. The foreign assistants in the expedition are all Americans. Lieutenant Cassell, United States Navy, late commanding the Ashuelot, and Lieutenant Wasson, United States Army, until recently engaged in the Yezo Colonisation Department, are the naval and military advisers. Over the political and general details General Legendre, formerly United States Consul at Amoy, exercises supervision. The plan will occupy a long time in carrying out, and the Japanese do not expect to firmly establish themselves before the end of this year. It is believed by many that Formosa was an ancient dependency of Japan, and that in assuming control of a part of the Eastern coast this Empire is only resuming a share of what was formerly its own. The first detachment of the expedition will start on the 9th or 10th April. The Commander-in-Chief will be Saigo Kitenosuke, a younger brother of the distinguished Satsuma statesman.

Some comment has been excited among the Japanese officials by the circumstance that in the publication, by the Yokohama newspapers, of the Mikado's reply to the memorable New Year's address of the foreign representatives, a significant expression toward the close has been altered or suppressed. It was to the effect that Japan would accept such intercourse as was consistent with her dignity as an independent nation, and was intended to mark the disapprobation of the Government in regard to the importunities of the address.

Statements have appeared declaring that the Emperor of Russia has declined to arbitrate between Japan and Peru in the case of the Maria Luz but despatches from the Japanese Legation in St. Petersburg positively announce that he has consented.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 27th March ; the P. and O. mail from London Feb. 6 arrived out on the 24th March. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

A meeting of well-wishers to the project for establishing a Reading-room for the Chinese was held in the Asiatic Society's Rooms on the 24th March. Owing to the inclemency of the weather the attendance was rather small, though still sufficiently numerous and influential to admit of the initiatory steps being taken. Mr. R. I. Fearon was called to the chair ; and H.M. Consul, Mr. Medhurst, having explained and supported the project in a very telling opening address, a discussion ensued as to the advisability of admitting or excluding religious books from the proposed library. It was ultimately agreed to leave this for the fuller consideration of the Committee, to be reported on at a subsequent meeting of subscribers. The following resolutions were then passed :—

1. That the scheme of a Reading-room for the Chinese, on the basis proposed by Mr. Medhurst, has the cordial approval of this meeting, and that a Committee be appointed to endeavour to collect subscriptions and to carry out the scheme as far as the funds obtained will allow.

2. That the Committee consist of ;—Foreign Members : W. H. Medhurst, F. B. Forbes, A. Wylie and J. Fryer—Chinese members : Tong King-sing ; with power to add to their number.

The annual meeting of the Yacht Club has been held. There were seventeen members present, Vice-Commodore Roberts in the chair. Minutes of last meeting having been read and confirmed, the accounts as printed were passed. These show a reserve balance of Tls. 1,100 ; and after providing $1,084 for prizes at regattas (including cost of Challenge Cup, $507), $403.66 for general expenses, and $235.69 for mooring tackle and club-room furniture, leaves a balance on working account of $331.02. The election of new officers resulted as follows:—A. J. Little, Commodore ; G. B. Hill, Vice-Commodore ; John Wilson, Treasurer ; W. Hewett, Secretary ; Messrs. Coryell and Eastlack, Auditors ; J. G. Dillon, Prize-bearer, and Messrs. Blethen, Viguier, Croad, Roberts, Tucker, and Ashley, Committee.

A performance has been given at the Lyceum Theatre by a Chinese troupe. A considerable number of people were attracted, but the fees were too high to ensure a full house. The programme was more than ample, so that many of the audience were satisfied with their experiences when they had seen and heard a couple of the pieces. Judging from the appreciation occasionally shown by the Chinese portion of the audience, we may say that the actors did their parts well; we can at any rate aver that the dresses were gorgeous. The orchestral department was not disagreeable when it was not deafening, and the acrobats were really worth seeing.

Although "the weather" is a topic so done to death in ordinary conversation that the journalist usually refrains from touching on it, its course recently has been exceptional enough to merit some special remark. A fortnight ago we had a heavy thunderstorm, and now we have had a heavy fall of snow. For the fourth time in succession we have been afflicted with a wet Sunday, and such a number of rainy days besides during those four weeks, as can scarcely find a parallel in the memory of the oldest resident. Just as we thought the northern monsoon had expended itself, and the rigours of winter were giving way, the wind again set in a cold and rainy quarter, and banks of clouds formed, which began to disburden themselves in a downpour of very cold water indeed. The rain has since been falling as persistently as ever, with a cold raw north-easter blowing. The heavy weather on the 19th March obliged the P. M. steamer Costa Rica to put back to Nagasaki for twenty-four hours, and the P. and O. steamer Delta, with the English mail, had to anchor twenty-three hours and took five days coming up from Hong Kong.

The non-arrival of the steamer Manchu, which left Nagasaki on the 14th March, for Shanghai, is causing uneasiness. The Manchu, as is generally known, has been running between this and Nagasaki in the coal trade, and her previous good passages have led to the surmise that the undue length of this one is the result of some untoward accident. It is hoped, however, if her machinery broke down in the encounter with the severe weather which has prevailed on the coast lately, that though unable to bear up for her port under canvass, she might succeed in making a southern port, Amoy most probably. The Manchu was commanded by Captain Lowell, and her owner, Mr. Spedding, was also on board.

The strong northerly wind on the 20th March brought up an unusually high tide. A raft of Foochow poles measuring about 30ft. by 12ft. was carried across the piles of the Soochow bridge, and all efforts to free it failed, till the tide slackened in the afternoon. The force of the tide was shown by the fact that the bridge perceptibly vibrated under the pressure of the water against the obstruction.

A general parade of the Volunteers is called for the 28th March, "to engage the Naval Brigade;" but it is more than likely that the weather will stop it. The Miholoongs have placed themselves under the mild yoke of a voluntary discipline, which, once resolved on, they have adhered to energetically; and the result is that the wavering have been established, the useless weeded from the ranks, and the company practically doubled in effective strength. They have secured the use of a godown from Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co. for squad drill, which will encourage new men to join; and a similar facility for initiating recruits is being sought for on behalf of No. 2 company.

On the 25th March, as the Chinese frigate No. 5 (which had just returned from a trial cruise) was passing up the river to proceed to the Kau-tsang-meau anchorage, she narrowly escaped collision with the Cadmus. It being ebb tide, the frigate tried to pass the Cadmus on the port side, but not having way enough on to answer her helm, her jib-boom passed over the taffrail of the Cadmus. The engines were reversed in time to avoid actual collision, but in backing the flag line of the Cadmus was broken, letting the ensign fall to the deck. The flag was immediately hoisted to the mizen gaff, but the Chinese, taking this for a salute, dipped their ensign, affording some amusement to those who noticed the mistake. The frigate shortly afterwards passed up the river.

We understand that the British barque Lancefield, just arrived from England, and known by many of the old residents of Shanghai as the once famous opium steamer of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co., is, after flying the flag of several nationalities, destined to become a store hulk, to be stationed at one of the Yangtsze ports.

On the 18th March the particulars of a daring case of robbery of goods, amounting in value to about Tls. 3,200, were brought out at the Mixed Court. In December last the compradore's cabin on board the Yangtsze, then loading at Hunt's wharf, was entered, and a box of musk, value Tls. 2,650, another box containing silk to the value of Tls. 250, a box of clothes belonging to the compradore, and $300 in money, were stolen. The police learned that the thief, Wung-a-tai, had left for Hong Kong in the Thales, taking with him the greater part of the stolen property. The facts of the robbery, with a description of the man, were at once telegraphed to the Hong Kong police, who boarded the Thales directly she arrived, and arrested the runaway. Wung-a-tai has been convicted of the robbery, and sentenced to be beaten as long as he could bear the bamboo (!), and to undergo three months' cangue—punishments, however, which were to be considered merely preliminary. Sentence upon two accomplices was reserved.

Of eighteen griffins offered for sale at the Horse Bazaar, fourteen were sold, at prices ranging from Tls. 270, 190, 185, 180, 165, 160, 150, &c., down through several 100's to Tls. 60, which was the lowest figure.

The Masonic Ball held last month has proved a financial success, to the extent of some $500, which the committee have handed over to trustees to form the nucleus of a Masonic Charity Fund.

Mr. Annecke is on his way to Shanghai, in order to reassume his duties as German Consul for this port.

Our Peking Correspondent announces the arrival of Mr. Butzow, the new Russian Minister, and the probable occurrence therefore of another "audience.'

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 2nd April; the P. and O. mail from London Feb. 20 arrived out on the 31st March. The China Mail supplies the following items of intelligence:—

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company has, very wisely, determined to meet the competition to which we recently alluded by an abatement in the rates of passage money. The fare to Yokohama is lowered to $75 for the single, and $120 for the return passage. San Francisco can be reached for $250 by cabin, and for $100 by steerage passengers; while a still greater reduction is seen in the offer to carry passengers to New York, via Panama, for $350 and $125 respectively. We observe that tickets by the overland railway will be issued at the same rates as before, but there can be little doubt that those who control it will not long remain blind to the business they are throwing away, by thus diverting the trade which would otherwise pass through their hands to the Panama route. It is not, however, merely in the way of passenger fares that the company shows an intention of keeping up with the necessities of the times. We learn from New York that ample provision is to be made for carrying the increased freight to be looked for in the tea season. The China and another steamer (the Granada, we believe) are both to be put on the line as extra tea steamers as soon as their services become necessary. They will be destined for San Francisco and Panama (via the former port) respectively, in order to accommodate shippers of through cargo by either route. More than this, any extra tonnage required in the early tea season will be supplied by the company, and the rates fixed are extremely moderate—4c. per lb. to New York via Panama, and 2c. per lb. to San Francisco. Under such circumstances the company ought to secure a very handsome share of the traffic, and there is very little doubt that it will do so.

We understand that at a meeting of the stockholders in the Hong Kong, Singapore and Borneo Trading Company it was resolved to wind up the concern. As the trade which the company was formed to work was highly remunerative when carried on by private individuals, we think sufficient time has not been allowed for the development of its extensive resources, by the employment of a joint-stock capital, to impart confidence in the future prosperity of this company.

We understand that a matter of much interest to all shareholders in Marine Insurance Companies is now in process of arrangement. It has been proposed to reduce the brokerage of 33 per cent. allowed during the last few months to its normal rate of 10 per cent.; and there is very little doubt that the measure will be carried into effect. This will tend to the benefit of both insurers and companies, and as we are informed meets the approval (oddly enough) even of Chinese insurers. The Insurance Companies have, we think, in this shown reasonable prudence.

The Memorial regarding the retention in circulation of one dollar notes will lie at the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank a few days more for any further signatures. Ten hundred and fifty-seven, foreign and native, are already affixed, so that the exceptions must be few.

Mr. J. B. Steere, an American naturalist who is travelling in the East to collect specimens for the Museum of Natural Science at Michigan University, has just returned to Hong Kong from a trip through Formosa. He spent six months in the interior of that place, travelling through the whole length of the island, and spending nearly the whole time among the wild tribes of the aborigines. He succeeded in gathering with their aid a very interesting collection of natural objects, among which a collection of thirty-five different species of serpents forms a prominent feature. He also obtained a number of ancient manuscripts which are being photographed by an amateur at Amoy. His investigations into the language of the aborigines resulted in a vocabulary of five different dialects of 200 words each, and prove conclusively that the language spoken by these aborigines is essentially Malayan, and stands in nearest relation to the dialects spoken in the Philippines.

The Messageries Maritimes steamer Nil is reported as having been lost on or about the 25th March on the coast of the province of Idsu. Sad to say, this fine steamer has perished with nearly all hands on board. The following is a translation of a telegram received by the principal agent at Hong Kong on the 28th March:—"Yokohama, via Nagasaki, 29th March, 3.55 P.M.

Returned this morning with Consul. Nil sunk between two rocks in twenty fathoms water, at about one cable's length from shore. Appears impossible to save anything. Four men saved; one passenger (Mouraoux), two sailors, and the baker. Yesterday noon three bodies only recovered, one passenger, two Chinese. Orders given by Japanese authorities to take care of everything coming from the wreck, and to advise at once Yokohama. An official remains on the spot. Inquiry begins to-morrow." The crew, servants, &c., on board numbered ninety-three, and there were eight passengers, so that eighty-nine lives were lost. The names of the passengers were, Mde. Avril, M. Bateman, M. Lawrence, M. Liccioni, M. Muraoux, Mr. Josida, M. Leiseberg, M. Pallier. The officers were, M. Alfred Samat, captain; M. Aristide Fouesnel, second captain; M. Raymond de Leil, lieutenant; M. Marius Bronzon, lieutenant; M. Stephan Delacroix, doctor; M. Jouglas, chief engineer; M. Maire, senior second engineer; M. Jules Michel, second engineer; M. J. B. Moustier, assistant engineer.

A rather funny story comes to us from Macao. It appears that the captains of the seven coolie ships now lying there determined to celebrate the last day of the trade in a way that would express their contempt of the tyrannical measures which had put a stop to their occupation. They accordingly hoisted their flags half-mast, and fired minute-guns throughout the day, not exactly to the gratification of the authorities. We do not know for certain, but presume that there are port regulations prohibiting cannon being fired except when in distress by merchant vessels. At all events the unlucky skippers have all been fined a hundred dollars apiece, which they stoutly refuse to pay.

A cricket match between the Hong Kong Cricket Club and an Army and Navy team came off on the 27th and 28th March, and ended in the defeat of the latter by one innings and several runs to spare.

An Annamese of official appearance is at present to be seen about Hong Kong. We believe he is charged with official despatches to the Government, and has been accorded an interview by Sir Arthur Kennedy.

An assault case is pending at Macao between Mr. Silva, editor of the Independente, and Captain Moraes de Carvalho, Aide-de-Camp to the Governor. It is stated that the latter struck the former with his whip, and that Mr. Silva in turn retaliated.

The certificate of the captain of the Sunfoo has been suspended for three months. The master, officers and crew of the Sunfoo left Hong Kong for Singapore in the Company's steamer Jeddah on the 28th March.

Among the passengers by the last French mail was the Hon. T. G. Grosvenor, Assistant Secretary at the British Legation, Peking, who has been transferred to Berlin.

The British steamer Yangtsze (Captain A. Corner), of Siemssen and Co.'s line has made the passage from Shanghai in seventy-six hours, probably the fastest for some time past.

We learn that Mr. J. McLeavy Brown has been appointed Deputy Commissioner of Customs at Canton. We are glad to see so able an officer appointed to the post.

It is stated on good authority that the Viceroy of Canton has sanctioned the erection of a land telegraph between that city and Hong Kong.

Captain Heriot, of the Wan Loong, has been sentenced to three months' imprisonment for manslaughter.

JAVA.

BATAVIA.

No telegrams from General Van Swieten appear in the latest received Batavia journals, which come down to the 28th March, but they contain a continuation of the General's diary, detailing operations from the 16th to the 22nd, during which period the construction of the works on the site of the Kraton was vigorously proceeded with. On the 17th, two men-of-war were despatched to visit the States on the N.E. and W. coasts of Atchin, for the purpose of distributing proclamations, and causing the sovereignty of the Netherlands to be acknowledged. As to a successor to the deceased Sultan, the General says under date the 20th March:—"A new Sultan has not yet been chosen; some [Atchinese] argue that now that the Kraton has been taken, there is no need of a Sultan. Several headmen are noticed in the diary as having offered their submission to the Dutch; several villages have remained neutral, and two had paid $500 each to Tuku Nauta, a head man who strove to continue the war, in order to be excused from having to take part in the contest.

In a summary of Atchin news which appears in the Straits Times of the 7th April it was stated that on the 14th March six half battalions of infantry, together with some sappers and artillery, were to leave the bivouac to capture some forts at Ketapan Dua. The following particulars of this expedition, which was undertaken to relieve friendly Atchinese from pressure exercised by their hostile countrymen, are drawn from a correspondent's letter in the Batavia Handelsblad of the 5th April:—"On the morning of the 15th March the troops came in sight of the enemy's position, from which a heavy fire was opened upon them. An outlying campong was stormed with slight loss." What followed is thus described by the correspondent:—

A harder task, that of capturing Ketapan Dua Betul, was still awaiting us. Shells were repeatedly pitched amongst the enemy, but their fire could not be silenced. It now became apparent that we were then in front of the fortifications; a reconnoitring party brought word that Ketapan Dua could not be marched round, owing to the marshy nature of the country, and that in front of it was a stream—the Kurung Daru probably—which would have to be forded under the well kept-up fire of the enemy, in case of an attack in front. In the meantime the fire of the enemy had increased in violence, and the column commander, who did not wish to expose our troops longer to it on the exposed sawah field, decided upon a bold attack in front. The artillery prefaced the attack by a heavy fire. The infantry advanced, crossed the Kurung Daru under the heavy fire of the enemy, formed into columns, and suddenly, with banners flying, drums beating, and bugles sounding, attacked, under deafening hurrahs, the outlying portion of the campong, at three different points. Having reached the outer portion of the campong, we came upon earthern fortifications, which were covered on the top with thorny bamboos and other obstructions. Soon openings were cut in various places and we could see the enemy, who bravely held their ground and discharged their musket points blank, so to speak. It was not until several of them had fallen, and the remainder, who continued to offer resistance, had perceived that their retreat would be cut off by our soldiers, who were forcing their way in from all sides, that the enemy took to flight in confusion, leaving behind about a hundred dead, including several chiefs, according to the guides. One of them was Panglima Polim Muda, a kinsman of the notorious Panglima Polim, headman of the XXII., Mukims.

In the official journal appears the following regarding the submission of several Atchinese States:—"H.N.M.'s steamer Metalen Kruis, Kip, which had been despatched by the Civil Government Commissioner and Military Commanding Officer of the second expedition on a mission to the Atchinese dependencies on the west coast of Sumatra, for the distribution of the proclamations addressed to these States, and also to cause Netherlands sovereignty to be acknowledged, arrived at Singkel on the 17th March, according to a telegram from her commander received that day by the Marine Department. At Analabu, Pulu Kayu, Susu, Laboa n Hadji, and Muki, the mission was successful, but from Terbangan no answer had yet been received. No communication had been effected with the remaining States."

A committee of gentlemen has been formed at Batavia for the purpose of giving a festive reception to the troops about to return from Atchin to that place, and, also, for the purpose of affording relief to the sick and wounded returning from the seat of war.

The Dyak rising at Sintang, in Borneo, is almost put down. Several Dyaks have submitted, and troops are in pursuit of the ringleader of the insurgents. The Assistant-Resident of Sintang has died of his wounds.

A quantity of Japanese tea from the British ship Tamerlane, sold by auction at Batavia on the 23rd March, brought rates of from 12f. to 18f. per chest.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 9th April; The P. and O. mail from London March 6 arrived out on the 6th April. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

The Legislative Council has terminated its labours for the present, after a week's sitting, during which it revised the Jury Lists for Singapore and Penang, and passed the Supply Bill for the current year. At its last meeting it was resolved to vote some $80,000 on the Supplementary Supply Bill for the present year, to be expended principally on needed public works, chief among which are the erection of two proposed new lighthouses, and improving the harbour lights at the three Settlements. This large addition to the already large contemplated expenditure this year is, however, justified by an unexpected surplus of nearly $100,000 on last year's transactions, and by the great utility of the public works to be undertaken. The actual business of the session has not yet commenced, and will, we presume, be postponed for a time, to enable the Government to mature the measures intended to be brought forward. The Council adjourned on the 28th March, and on the 29th the Hon. J. W. W. Birch, Colonial Secretary, left in the Pluto for Laroot, intending to be absent about a month, the duties of his office being performed in the meantime by the Attorney-General. Mr. E. A. Irving, Assistant Colonial Secretary, is acting as Auditor-General, and Mr. E. H. Watts performs the duties of Mr. Irving's office.

The Atchin war has for the present come to a standstill. Some 3,000 troops are to remain encamped in the Kraton, which they have fortified so as to enable them to hold out against the Atchinese in the event of an attack during the absence of the rest of the forces. A notification from the Netherlands Consul appears in the last Government Gazette notifying the public that the Rajah of Gighen (where the last expedition landed) has given in his adherence to the Dutch Government, and that the blockade of that chief's territory has therefore been raised. It is intended to send a third expedition in October next, should peace not be concluded in the meantime.

The proprietors of the Penang Gazette have recently been the defendants in a suit for libel, arising out of the publication of a petition against the public vaccinator in Province Wellesley, containing a paragraph which Dr. Veitch, then deputy-superintendent of vaccination in Province Wellesley, considered as reflecting upon his own reputation, and he accordingly instituted proceedings for damages laid at $10,000. The Court ruled that it was a case for substantial damages, and awarded $1,000.

Sir William Hackett, Judge of Penang, goes home on leave shortly, and the next session there will be opened by the Chief Justice, Sir Thomas Sidgreaves. The criminal session here opens on the 10th April, but there are no cases of importance, and it will probably be of short duration.

Inspector Richards has during the past week been making inquiries into a case of stabbing and alleged murder committed at Pulo Dammar. A Chinaman came to the Passir Panjang station, and reported that he had on the previous day, with another Chinaman, gone to Pulo Dammar for pine-apples, but when leaving the island four Bugis had attacked them, murdered his companion, stabbed him with a spear, and forcibly taken the boat and its contents. He escaped to the shore and took refuge with some Chinamen he knew, who brought him across to the Passir Panjang station. The wounded man was sent to hospital, and Inspector Richards proceeded to the place he had pointed out to search for the body of his companion, but without avail. Mr. Richards then went to Pulo Dammar, and from information there obtained suspicion fell upon four Bugis, who it was found had fled. Their houses were searched, in one of which was found a spear, stained apparently with blood. Mr. Richards remained over night on the island, and next day continued his search, arresting only one of the suspected parties, but bringing back with him members of the family of some of the others. The man arrested was unhesitatingly identified by the Chinaman as the man who had stabbed him with a spear. Mr. Richards subsequently went on to Johore, and was provided by the Maharajah with a steam launch and officers to assist in searching for the men on another island, but the search was fruitless. There are, however, hopes that more of the suspected murderers will be apprehended.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The better feeling noticed in our last report had been maintained, and a fair general business had been done. In Cotton Yarn large transactions had taken place in Nos. 16 to 24, leaving the market very bare of stock, and establishing higher prices; whilst their comparative cheapness had induced a fair business in Nos. 28 to 32, prices for the better qualities of which also showed an advance. Grey Shirtings, chiefly 7 lb., had been sold to a fair extent at the low rates previously established; and other Cotton goods, excepting Velvets and Sateens, had been in more request. A fair speculative business had been done in Mousselines-de-Laine, and quotations had slightly advanced, but at the close the demand had subsided. Plain Orleans and best qualities of Italian Cloth had been in good request. The market for Metals continued depressed.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—Since the commencement of the month of March a little more activity had manifested itself for some articles, though on the whole prices cannot be said to have improved materially. The termination of the troubles in the South it was hoped would restore confidence and re-awaken trade.

SHANGHAI.—The market for all descriptions of Piece Goods had been very quiet, and though the receipt of better accounts from the North communicated a temporary firmness, later news of an unsatisfactory nature had again weakened the market. The weather, too, had been much against business, and the Bank Order difficulty, to which allusion has already been made, and which has apparently affected Hankow to a greater extent than was the case at this port, had doubtless much to do with the stagnation. Prices must be considered as nominal.

FOOCHOW.—Sales had been:—Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., 500 pieces at $2.27 per piece; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., 500 pieces at $1.70 per piece.

HONG KONG.—Great dulness had continued in the market. Importers continued willing sellers, but the Chinese would only buy from hand to mouth. Advices from the north and outports were by no means encouraging, and with full supplies on the way the prospects of improvement were very remote.

CANTON.—Lead had seriously declined in value, the business doing was a hand to mouth one, and natives were offering very low prices. Soft brands were quoted $8 to $8.20, W.B. $8.25 to $8.35. Quicksilver was still in demand and $196 was being offered, but no sales are reported at that figure.

BATAVIA.—The market for Piece Goods had continued quiet, with a tendency however to more activity, which it was hoped would develope further after the harvest. The demand so far had been confined principally to some descriptions of Dutch staples, of which the supplies of first class makes were comparatively light; Prints had also attracted some attention but only for fresh importations of suitable styles. Quotations were generally without any improvement.

SINGAPORE.—The demand of the native traders during the fortnight had been small and there was no inclination on the part of dealers to extend their purchases beyond their immediate wants. Business had consequently been very limited and prices were unaltered.

PENANG.—In the early part of the fortnight the market had continued quiet, but during the last week there had been a spurt in the demand for several staples, consequent upon the raising of the blockade of one of the ports of Atchin, the Rajah of which had accepted Dutch protection. Stocks of Grey Staples were very small, and prices, although not quotably altered, were firmer.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Messrs. Hudson, Malcolm, and Co.'s Report says:—Our Tea market presents few features to comment on, only two or three firms are actively operating, and stocks are of very unattractive description. Settlements since last report amount to some 3,500 piculs, the bulk being low medium and good medium grades, with some quantity of common classes, at from $9 to $20 per picul. Arrivals are coming in very slowly, and stocks in Yokohama do not exceed 500 piculs of all descriptions. At this period of the season from the mixed and deteriorated quality of parcels on offer, it is very difficult to furnish quotations without the risk of seriously misleading our constituents; we therefore leave our prices blank, until the opening of the new season, which may now be looked for in about six weeks, when we shall resume our regular market quotations. The P.M.S.S. Alaska took for San Francisco 295,089 lbs. and for the Eastern States 251,573 lbs., raising our export for the season from Yokohama to a total of 11,456,263 lbs., this amount being rather in excess of our total export for season 1872-1873. The China has a full cargo of 900 tons, or about 450,000 lbs. for various destinations. We are unable to report anything decisive respecting the probable result of the coming season's crop, but the weather continues favourable for its development.

CANTON.—Deacon and Co.'s Report says:—A few settlements of old Tea have been made, caused, no doubt, by the better feeling existing in London. The price paid for Congou is an extreme one, considering it is made of very poor Chunchow leaf, and packed here. New District Congou has been shipped in small quantities, but as it has all been under contract we are unable to give details at present. There have been no musters shown on the market up to the present time. Chinese report that the first crop will be less by one half than that of last year, but we think it is premature on their part to judge. We may summarise sales with prices as follows:—Country Congou, 430 half-chests, at Tls. 14½; Scented Caper, 4,700 boxes, at Tls. 15½ to 19; Canton Greens, Young Hyson, 100 half-chests and 300 boxes, at Tls. 15.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Better news having arrived from home, there had been some anxiety to operate and a larger business had been done. Thi demand, combined with a gradually decreasing stock, had caused prices to advance, and the market closed very firm. Oshus and Taysaam sorts had fully shared the improvement. In consequence of the very scanty arrivals, stock had been very much reduced, and there were hardly over 500 bales of Hanks on offer (the quality of which was decidedly inferior), with about the same quantity of Oshu and other sorts.

SHANGHAI.—Business was resumed directly after the departure of the last P. and O. mail, and for some days a fair enquiry was kept up, during which about 700 bales found buyers at somewhat higher prices, including 50 bales of Red Peacocks at Tls. 355; but previous to the close of the French mail, the advance in Exchange, and firmness on the part of holders, checked purchases, consequently for some days the settlements were only limited, until a reduction in prices, equivalent to the advance in the rates for sterling, stimulated business, and sales were made of Red Peacocks at Tls. 345, and common Taatlees at Tls. 275. Settlements for the fortnight, Chinas, 1,000 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 1873, 54,000 bales; against 1872-73, 55,100 bales; 1871-72, 48,700 bales. Comparative unsold stock on this market on the 26th March, 1874, 1,200 bales; 1873, 600 bales; 1872, 300 bales.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

RIOT IN THE FRENCH SETTLEMENT AT SHANGHAI.

SHANGHAI, MAY 3.—A serious riot occurred to-day in the French settlement. A Chinese mob stoned the foreigners and sacked and burnt several houses. The police fired upon the rioters and shot several of them. The Chinese Volunteers have been called out, and sailors have been landed from the European war vessels. Tranquillity is now restored, but an uneasy feeling still prevails. The Chinese population are supposed to have been excited by the French making a road interfering with the Ningpo graves. The rioters did not interfere with the English settlement.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

(4th.) In answer to Sir G. BALFOUR, Mr. J. LOWTHER (Under Secretary for the Colonies) said: The Government are awaiting further information before arriving at any decision with respect to Sir A. Clarke's proposals for the appointment of a British Resident in Perak, and pending their confirmation by this Government his arrangements are altogether provisional. As soon as the correspondence is sufficiently complete it will be laid before Parliament. If there should be any deficiency in the Straits Settlements of officers speaking Malay or Chinese, the sources indicated by the hon. member—officers of the Indian Army who had been stationed in the Straits Settlements and officers of the China Consular Service—can be resorted to. The present system, however, of nomination and competitive examination, by which cadets are appointed in this country whose confirmation as permanent officers of the Colonial Government depends upon their passing a subsequent examination in a native language, has up to this time proved sufficient for the purpose.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

(4th.) Mr. KINNAIRD asked the First Lord of the Treasury whether, regard being had to the continued hostilities carried on by the Government of the Netherlands against the Sultan of Atchin, any, and if so what, steps had been taken to carry out the obligations contracted by England towards Atchin under the Treaty of 1819.

Mr. DISRAELI: The question refers to many complicated transactions. I need only say at present, with reference to the Treaty of 1819 with the Sultan of Atchin, and the various complicated transactions which originated and followed that Treaty, we are of opinion that under the first Article of the Treaty of 1871 between Her Majesty and the King of the Netherlands, it would be morally impossible for us to interfere in that country under existing circumstances.

WE notice the appointment of Mr. A. B. MITFORD, for some time attached to the Legation at Yedo, as Secretary to the Board of Works and Public Buildings. It is a matter of regret that his valuable services and acquaintance with the Japanese language should be lost to the Diplomatic Service, and we believe the miserable policy pursued by the last Government is answerable for this.

WE understand that the nomination of Major-General RAINES has not been confirmed, and that Major-General Hon. F. COLBORNE, C.B., is likely to succeed to the Hong Kong command. The appointment of a successor to Admiral SHADWELL is not yet decided on.

MR. PHILLIP CURRIE has been appointed superintendent of the China department at the Foreign-office, vice WOODFORD

The fourth number of Vol. II. of the China Review is to hand, and well maintains the standard of scholarship and literary merit which its predecessors have established. It contains, among other articles, some interesting notes on hereditary genius, by Mr. C. Gardner, a sketch of a little known Chinese sale, by Mr. H. Kopsch, and a valuable paper (anonymous) on the administration of Chinese law, and a discursive but interesting account of Christian Missions in Canton, from the pen of Mr. G. C. Bowra. The notes and queries are also of interest, and of a comprehensive character.

The Oriental for April gives a second chapter on Central Asian Railways, and also furnishes a second instalment of Famine Lessons. In a paper entitled "Some of the Leisure Moments of the Chinese" the reader is given a few specimens of the songs and humorous stories of the Celestials, which certainly lead to the impression that the Chinaman has a keen sense of humour, although of a dreamy kind. The writer, in speaking of the Chinese stage, says:—"Possibly if the Lord Chamberlain were able to appreciate the wit of the Chinese stage he would be more tardy in putting an embargo on some of the pieces which occasionally appear in an English theatre," although this license is in the writer's opinion counterbalanced by the fact that on the Chinese stage the sight of a woman in almost nature's dress is an impossibility. The songs which are given are written in such a merry strain that one cannot but feel that melancholy, who marks so broadly many of our own poets, seems to have overlooked the Chinese altogether. The stories are quaint and well worth reading.

The Geographical Magazine opens with a chapter on Livingstone, and amongst many papers of interest the one on the Fiji Islands is well worthy of attention.

Macmillan has a paper on Fielding, while Dr. Hillier continues his journal on Mendelssohn. The Irish story, "Castle Daly," gets interesting, and the other reading is good.

A supplementary estimate to the Navy Estimates for the year ending March 31, 1875, has been issued. The total increase does not exceed £150,000. Of this amount £55,000 is added to the dockyard vote and £95,000 for ships building by contract. The items are:—For wages of workmen to be employed on advancing ships in process of building, &c., and on construction of new boilers, £47,000; for repairing a ship as depot ship at Hong Kong, £5,000; for repairing a tug at Chatham, £3,000; for building two new vessels of the Shannon class, £50,000; and for part payment for lengthening the Orontes, troop-ship, and compounding the engines, £55,000.

An anonymous benefactor has given £2,400 to the Royal School for Daughters of Officers of the Army, for the purpose of providing scholarships, which are to have the name of the "Squire Scholarships," in memory of the late Lieut.-Colonel Squire, of the Royal Engineers, who distinguished himself in the Peninsular War, and succumbed from fatigue after the siege of Badajos.

Mr. Adderley W. Chimmo, Paymaster, R.N. (1856), late Naval and Victualling Storekeeper at Jamaica Yard, has been appointed to H.M.S. Hector, as additional Paymaster for Coastguard service on shore, an appointment well earned by previous long service on the China and other foreign stations.

It is proposed by his brother officers to give a dinner to Captain Glover on the 27th inst., at Willis's Rooms, under the presidency of Vice-Admiral Sir Hastings Yelverton, K.C.B. All the officers at present in England who served with Captain Glover in the expedition will be invited.

Capt. A. L. Walker, 99th Foot, late Brigade Major at Hong Kong, has been appointed Deputy Assistant-Adjutant-General of the Northern District. He served with the 99th Regiment throughout the campaign of 1860 in China, and received the medal with clasp.

The Austrian corvette Archduke Frederic, Captain T. v. Oesterreicher, was to leave on the 10th inst., via Suez Canal, for China and Japan, where she is to be stationed for the next two years.

It is proposed that a testimonial on vellum be presented to the Hon. Charles Hanbury Tracey, M.P., as a slight acknowledgment of valuable service rendered by him in connection with the Retirement Scheme of 1873 for the Executive ranks of the Navy.

THE China Trans-Pacific Steamship Company's steamer Vancouver arrived at Hong Kong from London on the 8th inst., "all well," and sails for San Francisco on the 16th inst.

AT the meeting of the Royal National Life Boat Institution, held on the 7th, a donation of £25 was presented, the result of a collection made at Foochow.

The P. and O. steamer Candia has arrived at Portsmouth with stores and a small number of naval and military officers from Cape Coast Castle.

MR. PLOW, late of Singapore, was lost in the Siberia on his way out to take the post of Chief Magistrate of Lagos.

BRITISH INTERESTS IN CHINA.

IN our last issue we published a letter from a correspondent setting forth the wants of British merchants in China, and this letter appears to us to be, in the main, a very sensible one, and worthy of attentive consideration. The writer thinks the present a favourable opportunity for urging upon Mr. DISRAELI'S Government the wants and interests of our fellow-countrymen in the Far East, which, in his opinion, did not meet with due and proper attention at the hands of the late Administration, for, as a rule, they turned a deaf ear to all representations on this subject. Our correspondent classes the wants of British merchants in China under four distinct heads, viz., first, the abolition of licensed guilds which control trade unfairly; second, the conservancy of the treaty ports and the dredging of such rivers as require it; third, the opening of coal mines on payment of a royalty; and, fourthly, the opening of the inland waters to steamers, and the commencement of railways on land.

As to his first demand, ça va sans dire, for the condition of things which he describes is utterly inconsistent with both the letter and the spirit of existing treaties, and this grievance calls for speedy and prompt redress. The second ground of complaint also seems to us to be a very serious one indeed, while the remedy is easy of application, and we entirely fail to perceive in what way the present unsatisfactory state of things can possibly be defended. The Chinese Customs authorities, by virtue of treaty provisions, levy tonnage dues upon our shipping which amount to a very considerable sum every year, and in return they are undoubtedly bound "to light the coast and conserve the ports open to trade;" but, practically, they do nothing of the kind, beyond erecting a lighthouse now and again after severe pressure has been put upon them.

Although the present Customs' system has now been in operation for many years, and ought by this time to be in thorough working order, the authorities seem never to have taken the trouble to procure the necessary appliances for dredging the rivers and ports in an effectual manner, and this neglect on their part is particularly noticeable in the Shanghai river, where the bar at Woosung has become a most serious obstacle to navigation. We are glad to see that Mr. REID has brought this matter to the notice of the House of Commons, and we trust that Her MAJESTY'S Minister at Peking may in consequence receive further and more positive instructions to insist upon the Chinese Government putting the river into a proper state without any further delay. Considering the very large amount of money which has been collected in tonnage dues upon foreign shipping—a portion of which certainly ought to have been expanded in remedying this evil of which our correspondent complains,—the present state of the approaches to a vast commercial centre like Shanghai shows lamentable mismanagement somewhere; and for this mismanagement the Inspector-General of Customs must be held responsible, though, of course, it is possible that Mr. HART has simply obeyed the orders of his superiors in allowing matters to come to this disgraceful pass. In this latter case there is all the more reason for the active intervention of our Minister at Peking, and his action in the matter ought to be so prompt and decisive as to admit of no procrastination, or refusal to comply with such a just and reasonable demand. We should very much like to see a debtor and creditor statement of the Tonnage Dues Fund for the past ten or a dozen years, and to know what minutely fractional portion of the vast sums collected has been expended in a legitimate manner, and to what purposes the enormous balance has been appropriated. Such a document would, we conceive, be a remarkably interesting one, and would probably throw considerable light on matters which are now wrapped in the profoundest mystery and obscurity.

The question of the opening of coal mines is a most important one, and one which should be brought to a satisfactory solution. The introduction of railways and telegraphs, and the opening of the inland waters to steamers are likewise most desirable reforms, and we shall hail with joy the day when we can see a reasonable prospect of their being carried out; but in the meantime we doubt if they are worth a war, into which we should most certainly be driven if we adopted the course of action which our correspondent recommends. The trading part of the population of China, with which we come into contact, is favourably disposed towards our inventions for aiding commerce, and developing the hidden resources of the country, and though Fêng-Shui and official obstructiveness are powerful opponents and obstacles to progress, they cannot last for ever.

INCOMPETENCY OF THE CONSULAR SERVICE.

THE morale of the Consular Service in China has again forced itself unpleasantly upon our notice, and we cannot refrain from expressing our opinion that it is high time some steps were taken to purify it, and improve its condition. The history of the corps during the past ten or fifteen years is, on the whole, eminently unsatisfactory, and it clearly requires weeding in all its grades. To put the matter concisely, the besetting sins of the Service appear to have been idleness and incompetence; misapprobation and mismanagement of public funds; debt, the result of extravagance or speculation; and last, though not least, what may be euphemistically called "free living." This list of shortcomings will, doubtless, appear a serious one, but any resident in China of a few years' standing will know that it is not even exhaustive. Some men, from idleness or incompetence, have very conclusively shown themselves unfit to hold responsible posts. One Consul used jocularly to remark that his rule of life was to spend two years in China and two years in Europe alternately; how far he carried his principles into action we cannot precisely say, but we have been credibly informed that during his last biennial period in China he did his best to damage his port, and was absent from it for nearly eleven months; that the officer on whose shoulders his duties fell could get no remuneration for performing the same, and that when this Consul was at his post, he was very frequently inaccessible to British subjects, who had a right to his counsels. At other ports the residents are driven to the belief that H. M.'s Consul has to all intents and purposes ceased to exist, for they keep aloof from the consulate and its business, except on very extraordinary occasions.

To turn in another direction;—we need hardly remind our readers that in recent years Her MAJESTY'S Government has found itself compelled to institute more than one criminal prosecution against Consular officers, and that the public funds have been notoriously mismanaged at more than one Consulate. With regard to debt (though it is hardly necessary to make any remark on that head), it is a matter of current belief that gentlemen who have been in China double the number of years that are sufficient to entitle them to home leave, are unable to come to England on account of their creditors; but the last of the items in our schedule is the one to which the most serious attention of the authorities should first be directed, and it is idle for them to urge that they do not take cognisance of the private morals of Her MAJESTY'S servants. We assert that a man cannot be a good and efficient public servant, if he be living in a state of almost open immorality and self-indulgence. In recent years matters have sometimes got to such a pitch that men have been compelled to go on leave, whether they like it or not, and so outrageous has been their behaviour that they have been refused passages by commanders of vessels. With regard to the class of misbehaviour to which we are now alluding, we maintain that the authorities at Peking are not free from blame, inasmuch as they have stationed at isolated and lonely places men who were notoriously of unsteady habits.

It is our opinion that the study of Chinese at Peking is answerable for many of the lachès of the junior members of the Consular Service, and it is to be emphatically condemned. What can we expect if a body of mere boys, fresh from school, is collected at a place like the Chinese capital, with no real occupation, for we cannot allow that the study of Chinese is sufficient for that purpose. The natural result must be habits of idleness and self-indulgence, which are further fostered by the absurd manner in which the Service is now overmanned. Again, we consider that it is very undesirable to expose the younger and comparatively untried members of the corps to the temptations of even a temporary residence in Shanghai, except under the almost impossible conditions of a rigid control and supervision. Advices from that port repeatedly report the defalcation and absconding of clerks or managers in consequence of horse racing or some similar description of gambling. In point of fact, we are almost forced to the conclusion that the Duke of SOMERSET very nearly hit the mark when he termed Shanghai a "sink of iniquity." We do trust, however, that some portion of the community will feel it their duty to take steps to stop such scandalous living. In conclusion, if one refers to the whole Consular corps in China, the number of imbeciles far exceeds that of useful and efficient men, and those in the latter category are getting fewer and fewer, as the really efficient officers, disgusted with the state of the Service no less than the parsmony of its administration, are ready, at the slightest inducement, to retire, and seek some more congenial and more lucrative occupation. Under all the circumstances of the case, we trust that the present Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs will consider the lamentable condition of the Service of sufficient importance to give it his serious attention, and effect a reform and reconstitution.

AMONG the passengers by the last mail to Hong Kong we observe the name of Mr. JAMES RUSSELL, police magistrate in the Colony, who returns to duty after two years' leave of absence. Mr. RUSSELL'S leave appears to have been well spent, for we see that his name occurs in the Dublin University list of honours of this year as having been admitted to the honour of an LL.B. degree, and as having carried off the University gold medal. He has also been called to the bar at Lincoln's Inn, with a special dispensation of four terms.

WE understand that Mr. JOHN WALSHAM, whose appointment as Secretary of Legation at Peking we noticed some months since, has been allowed to resign this post and the diplomatic service, and it is probable that Mr. HUGH FRASER, who was attached to the Legation at Peking in 1867, will have the appointment conferred on him.

HER MAJESTY the QUEEN has been graciously pleased to accept a copy of the "Illustrations of China and its People," and to confer a mark of her appreciation of its merits by presenting the author, Mr. J. THOMSON, with a handsome gold medal.

MR. CONSUL-GENERAL KNOX arrived by last mail from Bangkok, on leave of absence. Mr. W. H. NEWMAN has assumed charge of the Consulate during his absence.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

(FROM OUR DUTCH CORRESPONDENT.)

The Liberal paper Het Vaderland publishes a private letter from an officer of the second Atchin expedition. It is dated from Pinajong, March 15th. After having stated that 600 men are employed in making the Kraton ready for a garrison of 2,000 to 2,500 soldiers, and that at other points arrangements are being made for permanent occupation, the correspondent says :—

When this is done the rainy season will certainly have set in, and the greatest part of the expedition will leave. As you will have seen from the telegrams, there is no better feeling displayed amongst the tribes, and we are in the same position as we were a month ago. The Rajah's of Pedir and Meruska are in the neighbourhood of the Kraton, and the people do not offer the least sign of yielding. On the contrary, the arrogance of the enemy is increasing. Behind Pinajong we can see bentings near Lemboe, from whence every day small corps of soldiers emerge and fire on us from a distance. At the same time people are continually arriving from Longbatta and Lampo Idjoe (Kampongs), which are once more occupied by the enemy, and which are enormously reinforced. When I add that Ketapan, Doea, Lantermin, and Pejaroem have been re-taken by the Atchinese, it will be clear to you that we, properly speaking, are closely surrounded by the enemy in a half circle. It is a strange situation that the expedition, so strong and so well-equipped, continues so inactive. It will please the foe, because they know that when some months have elapsed, and the rainy season has set in, we cannot do them any harm ; but it does not please us at all, and I shall be surprised if it pleases people at home. There is but one opinion about the management of the expedition, and this is anything but favourable. I don't speak of the endless rests after every fight, but nobody comprehends why the enemy was not pursued and totally dispersed when they evacuated the Kraton ; why the General did not prevent them, while under the fire from our guns, reinforcing and reorganising themselves, and why we remain here with idle hands. Certainly the Atchinese do not comprehend it, because they are the most military people of the whole Archipelago, and it certainly proves that but very little knowledge of mankind is possessed by those among whom the conviction prevails that such a people can be appeased by fine proclamations, and that they will give way while still able to defend their independence. Some suggest that General Van Swieten dislikes to expose the troops to new losses by letting them fight again. But in point of fact the troops of the expedition have been, by bivouacking such a long time, more debilitated than they would have been by fighting. Notwithstanding the reinforcements which have arrived, the battalions are decreased by one-half of their original strength by sickness, and that which could have been done a month ago with little trouble will now cost much labour and loss to effect.

It is quite certain that we shall have to fight again, for we are now in the midst of a people who will expel us, if we do not expel them. Moreover, we are obliged to protect the Rajah of Meraksa Toekoe Nek, who, if we do not protect him, will soon rejoin the Atchinese. The enemy every day shows his teeth, and has no intention to surrender, so that I do not think that the future is very brilliant. It is said that the General is discouraged because his prospects have not been realised, and that he cannot at present act on the offensive. I do not know what to believe, but if General Van Swieten does not recommence operations before May, then that which would have cost in March but little bloodshed, will cost treble. The neighbourhood of the Kraton must be cleared, and the Rajahs of Pedir, Panglima Polim, and Iman Longbatta must be brought to reason by force of arms. They have no deficiency of arms and provisions.

Atchin is a large country ; the ground is fertile, the population numerous ; there is always opportunity to import from Penang and Singapore opium, salt, rice and arms. Thus the war can be continued for years. I think that our General would have been more successful if he had followed the example set by Pelissier in Algiers, Michiels on the West Coast of Sumatra, and Verspyck at Bandjermassing. On the 18th of last month some men-of-war were sent east and west with proclamations, in order to induce a number of Rajahs to subject themselves to our patriarchal authority, but up to this moment the result has not been favourable. Except Edi, only a very small Power, Djolo, has taken any notice of the proclamation. The chief of Simpang Olim asked, as Indian diplomates generally do, a delay of six months, and in the meanwhile he is arming himself. Those of Perlah and Merban act in the same way, but they think that they can be ready with an answer in three months. No replies are yet forthcoming from the West Coast. Thus the future is very dark.

The Arnhemsche Courant, another Liberal paper, publishes the following extracts from a private letter :—

. . . . I share the general opinion of discontent. In the beginning we had a battle every one or two weeks. On the 14th of December the foe was utterly defeated and discouraged ; but we did not profit by this fact, but gave him the necessary time to recover. On the 25th, when ten days had been lost, reconnoitring was ordered, which resulted in a two days' fight, and which caused two hundred men to be put hors de combat, without our gaining any advantage. On the 29th more reconnoitring took place, followed by a rest till the 6th of January. The enemy made a good use of his rest, as we afterwards experienced. When Missigit was taken we rested again till the 12th of January, on which date we captured a couple of fortresses on the west side of the Kraton. On the 29th more reconnoitring followed, which ended so badly that we prefer to hold our tongue about it. From the 29th of January till the 12th of February there was more rest. On the last-named day and the three following days the Kampongs Bital and Katapa Doewa were taken, but this success had no practical result, as they were immediately evacuated. Since then no fights have taken place ; not because there are no enemies, for more than 4,000 Atchinese are in the vicinity of Langoegoen and Lemboe, a short distance from our camp, and on the south of the Kraton there is a mass of enemies in the Kampongs.

These letters are of course not reproduced by the papers which belong to the supporters of Messrs. Fransen Van de Putte and Van Swieten. I therefore translate them for the benefit of your readers in Java, because it is quite certain that the Dutch mail paper will refrain from their publication.

CHURCH MISSIONARY WORK IN JAPAN.

Speaking at a meeting at Salisbury in aid of the Church Missionary Society, last week, the Rev. G. Ensor, formerly a missionary in Japan, gave an account of the society's work there. After referring to the presence in England of a large number of Japanese youths, who have come to this country for the special purpose of learning the arts and sciences, and to the importance of endeavouring to spiritualise the increasing spirit of enterprise and independence which characterises the more intelligent natives of Japan, he proceeded to describe the mineral and other resources of the country. He then spoke of the introduction of the Roman Catholic religion into it, and the severe measures which the Japanese Government employed towards many Japanese who had become converts to the Romish faith—the Government being determined to exterminate it and all its adherents from the country in consequence of the discovery of a Jesuitical conspiracy. The Japanese Government had ever since been suspicious of missionaries, and, in support of his statement that this feeling of hostility was due to the conduct of the Jesuits in that country, he read a letter which he had recently received from a Japanese gentleman of high rank, who had just returned to his own country from London, in which he stated that Japan was not yet free from the prejudices which had been created by the misconduct of the Jesuits, and expressed the hope that those prejudices would soon pass away and the country be left free and open to the operations of Protestant missionaries. The writer of that letter, the rev. gentleman said, had been baptised in the English Church, and he believed he would stand by the missionaries and help them to preach that Gospel in his own country which he had learned to love in England. Such was the hostility of the Japanese Government that 300 pieces of silver were placed upon the head of any person who recognised Christianity; and that was the feeling of the ruling powers when he arrived in the country as a missionary. To build a church or school, therefore, was out of the question, and to preach to the people under the trees was equally impossible. The only course left to him, consequently, was to receive any visitors who might choose to come to him in his own house. Seeing that that was the only course left open to him, he did not expect to be able to do much missionary work; but he soon had occasion to wonder at the large number of visitors who after dark came stealthily to visit him. Many anxious inquirers came to him asking to be taught, and to them he gave Bibles and tracts, for which his visitors were prepared to give any price. Among his visitors were even members of the Japanese priesthood, who were so eager to obtain Bibles that they would give gold for them. The work, therefore, went on, and the interest deepened. Though his visitors knew that their coming to his house laid them open to the perils which the Government knew only too well how to impose, and though they felt that in every visit they paid him they carried their lives in their hands, still they continued to come regularly, sometimes in couples, to hold prayer meetings together. He then went on to describe the seizure of a village of native Roman Catholics by order of the Government, and expressed his regret that now-a-days he scarce dared say a word even in Protestant England against the Roman Catholic faith without giving offence to some of his hearers, when the Rev. E. N. Thwaites, amid loud applause, said he need have no fear in that meeting, as they were all hearty Protestants. The Rev. G. Ensor next gave a number of interesting anecdotes relating to several converts who became Protestants under his influence, and to the extraordinary zeal which several of them displayed in imparting to their countrymen the knowledge which they had themselves obtained through him. He also produced several letters which he had received from some of the most ardent and faithful, and concluded by urging his hearers to give a hearty support to such a glorious work.

THE MALAY PENINSULA.

A letter appears in The Times of the 5th inst. from a correspondent at Pulo Pangkor, in which the affairs on the Malay Peninsula are dealt with. The writer gives an account of the quarrel between the See-Kuans and the Go-Kuans, and of the interference of the British Government, resulting in promises of better behaviour on the part of the Malays for the future. "Thus," says the writer, speaking of the conference with the Malay Chiefs and the Governor, "ended the conference of Pulo Pangkor, by which in a few days had been settled questions which for years past have been a thorn in the sides of diplomatists. By the tact and diplomacy of the Governor a sanguinary conflict has been ended. The piratical boats have been surrendered, a pledge entered into for the future good behaviour of the Chinese, territory which has formed the subject of endless arguments and claims ever since 1826 has at length been handed over to the British Government, and hopes of the future welfare of the Malay Government have really some foundation now that the native rulers are to be assisted by British officers residing at their Courts."

THE ANTIQUITIES OF SIAM AND CAMBOJA.

On the 1st inst. Mr. H. G. Kennedy read a paper before the Indian Section of the Society of Arts on the subject of the Antiquities of Siam and Camboja, with some notice of the condition of those countries at the present day. The following is the substance of Mr. Kennedy's remarks:—

I am deeply conscious of the insufficiency of my acquaintance with the subject which I have undertaken to bring forward, and I must therefore begin by claiming the indulgence of my auditors for one who can command but a little brief leisure to devote to Oriental inquiries, and who, during five years spent in Indo-China, had practically none of the needful books at command. Having, however, been honoured with a request from this Society to give them the benefit of such knowledge as I possess respecting two countries with which Englishmen are but little acquainted, I thought it right to comply with the suggestion. The past history of Indo-China, or rather of Camboja—for it is round that kingdom that the chief interest centres—though capable, as I believe, of considerable elucidation, yet requires for its investigation the co-operative efforts of scholars who may chance to reside in various Eastern countries, as well as of the learned who make Oriental antiquities their special study at home. This will become more apparent when I enter into detail. The hope of awakening others of greater ability and scholarship than I can pretend to possess to the study of the remarkable yet mysterious ruins of Camboja, and of inducing further research into the notices of that great kingdom contained in the annals of China, and, it may well be, of other neighbouring nations, is the principal reason which has led me to present myself before you to-night. A further motive is because I think it much to be regretted that the results of Dr. Bastian's travels in Indo-China, which are contained in several very elaborate volumes, have been left untranslated—sealed books to those who, like myself, are so unfortunate as to be unfamiliar with German. Dr. Thorel, one of the members of the recent French Scientific Expedition into Indo-China, remarks, in his notice of the anthropology of the Indo-Chinese races, that the Cambojans, the Laotians, the Siamese, and probably the Birmans, "possess a genuine civilisation . . . . uniformly based on the Chinese civilisation." This conclusion I venture to think is open to considerable question. The Laotians and the Siamese are well known to be branches of the same stock. As to the Cambojans, though they speak a different tongue, yet they now-a-days wear their hair and attire themselves precisely as the Siamese do, and follow, to all appearance, manners and usages exactly the same. Now with respect to the Siamese, their language is indeed tonic (a point of slight importance if we discover tones to be a fashion imitated from China and of modern growth), and monosyllabic, belonging therefore to the Mongolian family; and continual inter-marriage for several centuries with Chinese immigrants has had a most marked effect on the facial configuration of the race. But there are several points on which more information is yet needed, which should lead us to pause before making up our minds that the civilisation of Laos and Siam is a civilisation introduced from China. The Siamese are simply the most powerful tribe among the Laos; and we know that, advancing from Northern Laos, from what are commonly called the Shan States, they gradually pushed southwards till they founded Ayuthia in A.D. 1350. "This date is an ascertained fact," to quote the words of the late King; but even he, though he made special search, was unable to carry the origin of his nation to an earlier epoch. As to the organisation and the usages of the Siamese State, all I have time to do on the present occasion is to touch upon some prominent peculiarities, and I shall ask those familiar with the Chinese to tell me whether the practices I refer to have their counterparts in the Celestial Empire. In the first place, we find two kings in Siam—the major king and the subordinate king The second king seems to take no very active part in the administration of the State. The fact is, he is the king-elect—the rex designatus; and thus a war of succession—so common in Eastern countries—is avoided. This I believe to be the origin of the institution. When in Camboja I asked the sovereign of that country whether there was or ought to be a second king there, and he told me that if his people asked to have one appointed, it would be contrary to usage not to assent to their demands. Now, I am not aware—I rather ask scholars to tell me—whether this institution of a major king and a subordinate king has existed also in ancient Indian monarchies. In ancient Camboja there is reason to believe that the second king was one of their institutions, and that the term Yuvaraja was applied to him. Thus one of their legends gives an account of their national origin, and says that "Long ago one of their kings, a great and wise monarch, having unanimous complaints made by his people against his own son, who was Obbaraj," that is, second king, &c. And so late as 1809 the chronicles tell us that two younger sons of a deceased Cambojan ruler, their eldest brother being then on the throne, received from the King of Siam, their Suzerain, the titles of Obbojureach and Obbarach. I take these last particulars from M. Garnier's book, but I arrived at my own conclusions on the subject independently of him. The rites and solemnities which take place at a Siamese State festival, whether it be a coronation, a purification, a hair-cutting, or what not, are in nearly every case Brahminical. There is a temple of Brahmin priests at Bangkok, and the institution is maintained by the State in order that these Brahmins may direct and superintend the ceremonials. It is somewhat startling to find a ceremonial enacted at the present day which is nothing more than the ancient Abisheka rite, as ordained by the Brahmins in writings possessing an antiquity which I do not pretend to determine. As the King in Siam was crowned yesterday, so very probably were Indian sovereigns consecrated 3,000 years ago. The Abisheka coronation rites, in a form more or less complete, would appear to be adopted, not by the Kings of Siam only, but by the tributary princes in the Laos States. When we consider the hardly-disguised policy which the French are pursuing in Indo-China—how they seek to detach the Laos States and Siamese Camboja from the jurisdiction of Bangkok, and to bring them into their own control—it is hard to understand why the Siamese authorities were so shortsighted as to concede a royal title, and therefore increased independence, to one of their tributaries, who has been hitherto very strictly submissive to their rule.

What we already know concerning the early history of the Lao-Siamese race I have already briefly described. It remains for us to inquire whether the original source whence these Shan tribes spread southwards can be traced to some still earlier point, before their own records took shape and their social consolidation began. Mr. Cooper, in his "Mishmee Hills," has lately given us some account of these Khamtees, a race inhabiting in part the upper waters of the Brahmaputra, just on the borders of our own frontier stations; but their stronghold is the Irrawaddy, in the extreme north of Birma. The description of their dress corresponds exactly with that of the Siamese, but they seem to wear their hair tied up in a knot, and in this respect they differ from the modern inhabitants of Siam. Other curious particulars of Khamtee customs are related in Mr. Cooper's book; and it certainly seems to me as if we had in this wild tribe—one of those dwelling on the border land between Birma and Thibet—a branch of the Lao-Siamese race, which, if not actually the original stock, will at any rate show us what manner of men the Shan tribes were before they founded cities and established for themselves independent states. The Khamtees must have split from the main body of the Laos at a very recent period indeed, otherwise the languages would not have been so closely similar; but the Khamtees are savages and Buddhists, hence the Laos must very lately —possibly long subsequent to their conversion to Buddhism—have been savages too. Now we have seen that these Laos or Siamese did not get so far south as Ayuthia till 1350, whereas the Fou-nan—which Wade and others have taken to be Siam—is a civilised Indo-Chinese nation described or referred to by the Chinese historians many centuries before the year A.D. 1300. These considerations make it clear that Fou-nan, at any rate, cannot be Siam. With respect to Camboja it is, of course, a very simple matter to determine both the actual limits of the modern kingdom, and the precise provinces which have at various periods during the last 300 years fallen wholly under Siamese rule; but to settle with any approach to accuracy the area over which the ancient Kambojan Empire once dominated is a much more difficult task. The Cambojas are frequently mentioned in ancient Indian literature; for example, in the Ramayana, the Mahabarata, and the Puranas they are spoken of along with the Sakas, the Yavans, the Pahlavas, and other barbarian or outcast tribes. I do not, of course, pretend to identify the Indo-Chinese kingdom with the country referred to by the Indian poets; on the contrary, I incline to the belief that the name is merely a title assumed or borrowed by the Cambojan rulers at some remote period in their history, from a fondness for the adoption of grand Indian terms and forms of speech. Among the Chinese historians in early times the Cambojan Empire was styled Founan, a term which we are informed occurs for the last time in the annals of the Thang dynasty, and for the first time about 1109 B.C., in a fragment from the Chinese chronicles, the original of which has not yet been discovered. The Annamese refer to the country Pho-nam, apparently an identical title, but afterwards they apply the term Chan-tap. This same name occurs in the annals of the Chinese Emperor Lung, King (1565-71). The King of Siam made war against Chan-tap, dethroned its king, and appropriated his territory. There can be no doubt that Camboja is meant, though there is a discrepancy of about ten years between the Chinese and Siamese dates. It would be, perhaps, unsafe, with our present scanty knowledge, to conclude that Chan-lap of the Annamese, and Tchin-la of the Chinese are the same term, but there is at any rate considerable similarity in the names.

These particulars may seem somewhat tediously minute, but I have given them on the chance that the information may be of use in enabling others resident in China, Ceylon, or elsewhere, to identify allusion to Camboja, and perhaps bring further historical notices of that country to light. As to the ruins themselves, there are upwards of twenty distinct groups, which have already been examined by Europeans with more or less care. The principal remains are the ruins of the great temple, known as Ongur or Nakhon Wat, and the ruins of the ancient capital, three miles further to the north; but there are other relics of great importance, some within a radiance of fifty miles from the ancient capital, some more distant at Korat, in Laos, or in the southern provinces of Camboja. These are not temples merely, and simple pagodas, but vast banked-up causeways running high and dry above the autumn inundations, and doubtless uniting city to city in times long gone by. There are huge square reservoirs, faced with brick or stone, and constructed for the use of a population that must plainly have been a dense one. These reservoirs are found not merely in the temples and the cities, but at frequent intervals alongside what were anciently the main highways. The rivers were crossed with handsomely balustraded bridges, built on archways and constructed on stone, and the whole character of the ruins, from the grandeur, from the extended area on which they occur, as well as from the number and variety, bears silent, but unmistakable witness to the existence of a very great, powerful, and populous empire, which has passed from history, and left, so far as is yet known, not one single written chronicle of its own behind. Whether any masonic marks are to be found on the columns or other sculptures I do not know. Such marks are discovered, I believe, by the explorers in Palestine, but in Camboja nobody yet seems to have inquired into this point. The quarries from which the stones for Ongur Wat and the other temples around it were procured, lie about 30 miles from the ancient capital, at the foot of a low range of jungle-clad hills; and there, not only may the marks of the masons' chisels, and the touch of many a vanished hand still be discovered, but blocks half severed from the parent rock are to be seen too, just as they were left when the labourers were suddenly interrupted long centuries ago. There are a good many groups of these Cambojan ruins, which, though known to exist in localities much more accessible than those to which I have just referred, have, unfortunately, not yet been examined by Europeans. For example, two days north of Preakan, in Camboja proper, are some remains styled Caker; near Phimai, in the province of Korat, are some stone temples, which have been photographed by a Siamese artist; and again at Souven, in Laos, remains are to be found which the natives allege to be of great importance. I stumbled upon some myself on the lonely bank of an unfrequented river, but the jungle was so dense, and my time so short, that I cannot at all tell whether they were of great extent or the reverse. Further careful exploration is much to be desired, more particularly as inscriptions frequently turn up, and these, if collected and examined, might throw a flood of light on the history of the race. From the very incomplete examination which I made of the ancient capital, and of the ruins in its vicinity, I gathered the general impression that though, as years rolled on, the destruction of these antiquities is being swiftly and surely accomplished, it was not the hand of time that dealt the first and fatal blow. I rather seemed to see the traces of some sudden and complete overthrow, of the capture of the city by an invading army, and of the subsequent ravages of an unsparing conqueror and his host. In one temple, for example, which I visited, the stone-vaulted doorways had been bricked half-way up, as though for purposes of hasty defence, and everywhere, though there are no marks of cannon shot, yet we find idols with arms and noses knocked off, and cornices which apparently have been mutilated by the hands of men, or split perhaps by the heat of the flames when the bamboo huts clustered round them were set on fire. Now let me say a word or two as to the inscriptions which are to be found among them. There are, at any rate, three styles of writing adopted. I do not say that the languages differ; I suspect they will be found to be in all cases identical; but the characters though fundamentally the same, yet manifestly differ in their configuration, and belong, as I presume, therefore to different epochs. I have not accomplished a complete solution of the inscriptions. The Frenchmen hitherto have been equally unsuccessful, and I may add that others who have submitted some of the inscriptions to men of learning among the Cambojans and the Siamese have obtained renderings which always differ the one from the other.

Enough has, I believe, been said to show that Tchin-la is indeed Camboja, and Tchin-la can on other evidence be proved to have been also Fou-nan. Who, then, were these temple builders? Were they in their generations the green and vigorous foliage of the same Cambojan tree, which we still see, with its sap almost dried up, shorn of its most glorious branches, shivered by the thunderbolts of war, and resting now on the props of Siamese protection, now kept from falling by the iron bands with which France has girdled it around? Or were they men of some wholly different race, whose name and lineage have been utterly blotted out? Much may be done to settle this question when the inscriptions shall have been fully deciphered. It seems difficult to conceive that men naturally so indolent and easy-going as the modern Cambojans—and the Siamese are no better—could ever have made these gigantic, solid causeways, these stone bridges, enfaced tanks, and megalithic temples. But then if it was some other—now extinct—race who made these works, how comes it that they, with their superior energy, were swept away by the Laos and Siamese, timid tribes who really have no fight in them at all? This is a question which I feel quite unable to answer. Time and trouble are needed to clear up the mysteries which hang around this strange Cambojan people. Bastian has accomplished much, but his researches are not accessible to the body of English readers. The French, too, are doing something to further the investigation, but in England, unfortunately, no serious effort seems yet to have been made to enlarge our acquaintance with Indo-China, and it is to this object I wish to invite the attention, both of those who seek an interesting field for travel and of those who make Asiatic researches their special study, either in the East or at home.

MR. WILLIAM HALES FRANKLYN, Her Majesty's Chief Civil Commissioner in the Seychelles Islands, died on the 3rd ult., in his fifty-eighth year. Mr. Franklyn began life in the mercantile marine, in which he held an extra certificate of competency as commander. He was in business in Hong Kong from 1846 to 1850. He commanded the steam transport Tonning, the leading ship in the first division of transports in the expeditionary force landed in the Crimea in September 1855. During the war with Russia he was honourably mentioned by Lord Clyde and other distinguished officers, and received a vote of thanks and a silver salver from the North of Europe Steam Navigation Company for his exertions in saving life during the hurricane at Balaklava in November 1855. In 1860 he was appointed a magistrate and Government agent at Nainaimo, in Vancouver's Island; and in 1868 he was nominated Civil Commissioner in the Seychelles.

He is to return in five or six months.

BEFORE submitting to the decisions of the International Commission, M. de Lesseps requested the Italian Government to propose to the other Powers the neutralisation and purchase of the Suez Canal. This the Cabinet declined, declaring that it would act in concert with England and the other Powers in accepting the decision of the Commission.

The general meeting of the Deutsche Bank was held at Berlin on the 4th inst., when the directors' report showed a favourable balance of 973,839 thalers, which had enabled them to declare a dividend of 4 per cent., appropriating 369,822 thalers to the reserve fund, and carrying forward 4,017 thalers. ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rehden's Circular says :—Since the declaration of the Budget transactions have been of an unimportant character, leading to the inference that dealers throughout the country held larger stocks than was generally expected. The market, despite the limited and retail nature of the business, has ruled firm, though we are not likely to see an improved demand until definite news is received as to the doings in the New Season's Teas. A few small parcels of New Taysham district leaf have come to hand, and sold at 1s. 10d. to 2s. per lb. The Continental trade has been confined to occasional small purchases of fine Congou ; to New York and Canada demand has ceased, owing to a duty being reimposed. Deliveries do not compare favourably, being—

Black.—Red leaf : Siftings at 5½d. to 6d. have been in some request, leafy kinds at 9d. to 11d. are scarce; flavoury kinds at 11½d. to 1s., and Sayune kinds at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 2d. have sold at slightly easier rates. Kaisow kinds and medium Kaisow at 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 6d. are scarce ; fine and finest Kaisow at 1s. 9d. to 2s. 2d. in limited demand. Paklin : No sales from first hands. Tayshan : Good common to fair is saleable at 11d. to 1s., medium kinds at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4d. ; New Season's have sold at 1s. 10d. to 2s., being extreme prices, owing to the small quantity so far to hand ; the incoming French mail steamer brings further supplies. Black leaf : Imports are smaller than for some years past of common Shantam Congou. That classed under the head of "Good common to fair" is worth 11½d to 1s. 1d. per lb. ; good to medium at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 5d. is comparatively scarce, though apparently ample to meet current small requirements. In good medium to finest at 1s. 6d. to 2s. 2d. business is of quite a retail character. Souchong: A few sales at easy rates. Oolong : But little passing. Scented Teas : Canton Orange Pekoe is now seldom asked for, and it is evident Foochow made has taken its place. Caper : A general desire on the part of importers to be making sales has led to some extensive transactions at an average decline of 1d. to 2d. per lb. (olive colour at 1s. 5d. to 1s. 7d. showing the greatest fall). Quotations close as follows :—8d. to 10d. for clean common to fair, 11d. to 1s. 1d. for good to medium, glazed kinds ; 1s. 4d. to 1s. 7d. for good medium, olive coloured strong scented ; the few fine and finest (glazed) are not saleable at the asking prices. Foochow Scented Orange Pekoe : Few parcels in first hands. Green : The market for Ping Suey kinds does not improve, though prices rule low. For this class to again command a regular sale quality must be preferable to that sent from China the past two or three seasons ; that this class of Tea can be manufactured of superior quality, and to suit the requirements, there is no doubt. Moyune of true quality commands high figures, No. 1 Gunpowder realising 4s., No. 1 Young Hyson 3s., and No. 1 Imperial 2s. 6d. per lb. Japan Tea : Imports of good quality at reasonable prices would meet with a ready sale.

SILK.

Messrs. Durant and Co.'s Circular reports a very dragging business in Silk. The fine weather has failed to give any such stimulus to trade as to counter-balance the hopes naturally induced as to successful crops. The deliveries have been only very moderate, so we are without further material reduction of stocks. Holders generally are rather anxious to be moving, but manufacturers confine their purchases to the smallest possible quantities, so we have no new quotations of moment, but prices are weak.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw and Co.'s Circular says :—The past month has been a very dull one, business having gradually become more and more restricted, and within the last week or so having been on the smallest possible scale, simply to supply present wants. This is, no doubt, mainly owing to the general indisposition to buy at this season of the year while the uncertainty respecting the result of the European crops exists. At present nothing definite with regard to the crops is known, and it is probable that our market will remain in its present quiet state until some correct judgment can be formed of the general out-turn. Meantime, importers hold back and decline to accept lower prices, so that there is no quotable change in the value of any of the Asiatic Silks.

COFFEE has again declined. The auctions have gone off very flatly, and generally at 2s. to 3s. per cwt. lower, except for fine home-trade sorts, which have maintained their value. Plantation Ceylon has sold ; bold, 104s. to 106s. ; good middling, 102s. 6d. to 103s. ; middling greyish, 99s. 6d. to 101s. ; small and low middling, 97s.

CUTCH and GAMBIER have been quiet, but steady until yesterday, when 50 tons Gambier sold at 3d. per cwt. decline, at 24s. 9d. ex warehouse ; also 200 tons just arrived at 24s. 9d. ex ship.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The market is quiet ; Ceylon meets a moderate demand, and £35 continues to be paid, while Cochin of fine quality in small quantities commands £39 per ton. In auction, 237 casks 16 pipes Cochin partly sold at 37s. 6d. to 38s. ; and 76 pipes Ceylon sold at 35s.

HEMP is without change.

RICE.—Rather easier rates have been accepted for Necranzie and Rangoon to arrive.

DEUTSCHE BANK, BERLIN.

ANALYSIS OF THE DIRECTORS' REPORT,

Presented to the SHAREHOLDERS at the FOURTH ORDINARY GENERAL MEETING in Berlin, on the 4th May, 1874.

The net profits for the year 1873, amounting to Th. 973,839.27.9, represent 6½ per cent. on the Capital, and have been appropriated as follows :—

Th.	369,822	8	6 to Special Reserve Fund.
	600,000	0	0 to Yearly Dividend of 4 per cent. to Shareholders.
	4,017	19	3 carried forward to New Account.
Th.	973,839	27	9

The past year has generally been, from a business point of view, exceptionally unpropitious, both in Germany and in the East, and the earnings of the Bank have suffered accordingly.

The increase of the capital, from ten to fifteen million thalers, coincided with the commencement of the German crisis, the premonitory symptoms of which began to manifest themselves in the month of May, 1873, and induced the Directors, as a matter of prudence, to follow, throughout the whole year, a most reserved policy in all their dealings, keeping, at the same time, the Bank's resources well in hand, and in a readily available form ; this accounts for the proportionately large amount of bills of exchange figuring in the balance-sheet.

In consequence of these self-imposed, but necessary, and in the end wholesome, restrictions, the net profits, which had amounted in 1872 to 9 3-5 per cent., receded, in 1873, to 6½ per cent. on the increased capital.

Other adverse causes were exercising their influence at the same time.

In the East the course of exchange was unsettled and depressed, owing partly to exaggerated fears of eventually impending arrivals of German Government silver on a large scale. The working capital of the Bank's Eastern Branches, as compared with the previous year, was thus diminished in value, and returns had to be effected at disadvantageous rates.

The export and import trade in China and Japan, in general, continued in a most unsatisfactory state, and, taken on the whole, was unprofitable. Losses on silk, manufactured goods, &c., caused failures amongst Eastern firms, by some of which the Bank was affected, inasmuch as the proceeds of goods hypothecated to it as collateral security for document bills and loans, and which had to be realised in drooping markets, were insufficient to cover the amounts advanced.

In Germany, the extraordinary impetus which had been given to financial, industrial, and commercial joint-stock ventures during the so-called "founding period of 1871-72," was followed, in 1873, by an universal and but too natural reaction. Speculation, having overgrown itself, collapsed, and had to pay the penalty of its excesses. The Stock and Share Markets became stagnant, securities and investments of every kind, even the best, were affected by an unprecedented depression, and the crisis culminated in numerous financial disasters, the wide-spread and manifold consequences of which, the Bank, in spite of all precautionary measures, did not altogether succeed in avoiding. This refers to the failure of a banking establishment in Vienna, and to some similar events of minor importance which occurred amongst country bankers and stockbrokers.

Under these circumstances the Directors deem it advisable to declare a yearly dividend of four per cent. only, which on 75,000 shares of Th. 200 each will absorb Th. 600,000, and to retain the surplus profits as a special reserve as follows :—

Th.	259,822	8	6 for bad and doubtful debts, and
	110,000	0	0 for depreciation of securities.
Th.	369,822	8	6

The remaining balance of profit and loss, amounting to Th. 4,017.19.3, will be carried forward to new account.

All losses, differences, and contingencies being thus provided for, the position of the Bank remains perfectly normal and all that can be desired. The paid-up capital stands intact at Th. 15,000,000 (£2,250,000), and the ordinary and special reserve funds, amounting

as per balance-sheet, to ...	Th.	326,329	4 4
are, by the above appropriation of		369,822	8 6
raised to	Th.	696,151	12 10

With the before mentioned exceptions, attributable to a crisis and panics of no common magnitude, the operations of the Bank have been successful. The Bremen branch continues to do exceedingly well ; very fair results have been obtained from Paris, New York, &c., and the general business is steadily on the increase, as shown by the figures below.

With a view to the furtherance of the Bank's original programme, which aims at the progressive development of the commerce of Germany with foreign countries, the Directors have made an arrangement with the Deutsch Belgische La Plata Bank, by which they acquire an interest in the business and management of the said institution.

A declaration, important in its bearings for the London Agency, was exchanged, on the 27th March last, between the British and German Governments, by which it is agreed that Joint-Stock Companies constituted, and authorised in conformity with the laws in force in either of the two countries, may freely exercise in the dominions of the other all their rights, including that of appearing before tribunals, whether for the purpose of bringing an action or for defending themselves, in conformity, however, with the laws and customs in force in the said countries.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS.—HEALTH LOST AND FOUND!—After safely struggling through the winter, multitudes will fall victims to the throat and chest complaints so common in the spring. If the first symptoms receive attention and judicious treatment, not only will future danger be averted, but old ailments will give way, and better health will be attained than was enjoyed before the illness. No treatment for safety and certainty of success may be so confidently relied upon as that discovered by Professor Holloway, whose Pills and Ointment always restore the sufferer. While the Pills are taken in moderate doses, the Ointment should be well rubbed upon the skin, near the part affected, as actively as salt is forced into meat.

Summary of News from the Far East.

YOKOHAMA.

The present French mail brings advices from this port to the 31st March; and by the Pacific mail we have seven days' later news, viz., to the 7th April; the P. and O. mail from London Feb. 6 arrived out on the 27th March, and the following French mail of Feb. 13 was received on the 5th April. The Japan Herald supplies the following items of intelligence:—

We stated in a former issue that it was the intention of the Government, as soon as domestic troubles were allayed, to fit out an expedition to Formosa, to chastise the barbarous tribes of that island for their outrages upon shipwrecked Japanese cast upon their inhospitable shores. A declaration of war is to be forthwith published, and an expedition fitted out with all despatch. The Chinese Government, however, are not likely to permit the Japanese to exercise any territorial rights on the island.

We published in our last the news of the loss of the Messageries Maritimes steamer Nil, and although a fortnight has since elapsed, but little further intelligence has been made public. No official report or statement has yet been furnished, nor has any list of the passengers and crew appeared. Everything seems to have been done in the most languid and approved red-tape method. The French gunboat Bourayne, which was sent down to the wreck, did not leave here until eighteen hours after the news of the calamity was known; and since her return with the four survivors an investigation has been held at the French Consulate, but as it was private, the public are still without information other than the press itself has furnished. A funeral service for the victims of the calamity was celebrated at the Catholic Church on the 31st March, which was very numerously attended.

The Bourayne brings a report that the wreck lies in about forty metres depth of water, in Yoshida Bay, about 200 yards length from the shore, and some four or five miles from Iro-o-saki lighthouse. The spot is called Midzu Ishi. The tops of the main and fore masts are still visible. The ship struck at about half-past eleven o'clock on the night of the 20th-21st March, before sighting the light on Rock Island, for which, it is said, she was making. At the time of the accident the sea was heavy, and the weather thick and misty, the rain preventing those on board from seeing either the light on Rock Island or that on Iro-o-saki. It is supposed also that the strong currents prevalent in these parts, the directions and strength of which are but imperfectly known, have not a little contributed to the catastrophe. Only four persons, as surmised, have been saved, consisting of M. Muraour (a passenger), the baker and two sailors. As well as can be ascertained, there were on board some ninety-two persons altogether, consisting of the crew of sixty Europeans, and twenty-five Chinamen, seven passengers, and the postal agent. During the day of the 20th the land had been seen but very indistinctly, and the night was excessively dark, accompanied with fog and rain. Those on board were trying to make out the lights above indicated, known to be at no great distance, when, at about half-past eleven, the ship touched the ground slightly. This, it appears, roused most of the passengers, who immediately came up on the deck. She was at once turned astern. As fate would have it, one of the pistons broke. Sail was next got up, but whilst trying to weather a point she again struck, this time heavily, on some outlying rocks, about a quarter of an hour after first touching the bottom. She was immediately anchored to prevent her drifting ashore, whilst the boats were being got out. These, however, it appears, with the exception of one, had been rigged in-board, on account of heavy weather. What was the precise interval between the ship's striking and her consequent sinking is difficult to ascertain, but it is said to have been about ten minutes, and therefore the crew were unable to get out the above-mentioned boats, lashed in-board, ere she sank. This may account for the extraordinary loss of life we have unfortunately to record. Others, on the contrary, attribute the excessive loss of life so near the shore to the fact that the coast there is bordered with upright as well as hidden rocks, against which those who jumped from the vessel (which all momentarily expected to sink), were dashed to pieces, or so seriously injured that they must have soon sunk in their efforts to gain the shore. However this may be, two of the sailors, as the vessel was going down, cut the falls of the only boat at liberty hanging outside, jumped into her, and pushed off. M. Meraour had on deck laid hold of a life-preserver, but sank with the vessel. On regaining the surface he laid hold of two pieces of the wreck lying near him, and made as well as he could for the shore, when he was happily picked up by the men in the boat. They all rowed about the locality until about seven o'clock the next morning, but could see no one else. The baker, the fourth one saved, after jumping overboard, like many others before him, fortunately managed to reach the land in a spot where it was possible to clamber up the rocks. On the 21st March two bodies were washed ashore—one that of M. Luccioni, with his forehead cut open, and a second one that of a Chinaman, with the top of his head gone, evidently through being dashed against the rocks. On the 27th March another body, that of a Chinaman, was also recovered. It is to be noted that the Japanese in the neighbourhood of the wreck treated the survivors well; considerable praise is also due to Mr. Johnson, the pilot, for his disinterested conduct in supplying them with many creature comforts not possessed by the natives.

As soon as the news of the loss of the Nil reached Tokio, Iwasaki Yataro, the manager of the Mitsubeshi Company, immediately took measures to send assistance, and early on the 26th March the s.s. Shoey-Leen left for the scene of the disaster, to render any possible help. Conduct such as this deserves every praise, both on account of its being unsought for as well as being disinterested. The act of Iwasaki Yataro shows such an amount of good feeling and sympathy for those concerned, that we have much pleasure in bringing it to the notice of the public. Captain Leet, of H.M.S. Thistle, also offered the service of that vessel as soon as the news reached him; but the French Minister deemed it unnecessary to avail himself of Captain Leet's offer, as the Bourayne was in port. We can scarcely understand why the Bourayne did not leave on the 25th, instead of the 26th; it seems to us that more alacrity might have been shown. After such a catastrophe any assistance to be of service could not have been rendered too soon. Owing, it is said, to the dangerous nature of the coast, and the exposed and troubled sea prevailing as a rule in the neighbourhood, the probability of saving the cargo of the Nil, or portions of it, are extremely problematical.

From the official investigation into the loss of the steamer, as yet unpublished, it appears that on first touching the ground the captain gave orders to reverse the engines, which was at once done. On endeavouring to resume further progress along the coast, however, one of the pistons broke. Every effort was made below to remedy the defect by orders from the captain himself, who was and had been on deck prior to and at the time of touching. In the meantime sail was got up, with a view of assisting the vessel in its crippled state, but owing to the rough sea, and the violence of the wind at the time, she gradually drifted on to the coast, notwithstanding all that could be done to prevent it, lodging finally between two forked rocks. It was considered to be folly to take to the boats, owing to the violence of the tempest, and the rocks about. The captain and passengers felt so secure in this position that no one wished for the moment to quit the vessel, and anchor was cast, in the hope that she would gradually settle down on a sandbank, or some such bottom, so near were they to the coast. The hopes of the unfortunates were soon rudely shaken. The raging wind and sea dislodged the vessel from her presumed secure position, shaking her violently from side to side, and dashing her against the two jutting rocks, knocking in the starboard side. Shifting from her original position, she at last went down slowly, bow first, many of the passengers, as in the case of the baker, so firm was the belief in the shallowness of the water thereabouts, remaining on the receding deck until their feet were under water.

The following are the names of the passengers who were on board the ill-fated steamer:—M. Leiseberg, M. Bovenschen, natives of Germany; Mme. Avril, native of France; Mr. Lawrence, native of England; M. Liccioni, M. Muraour (saved), natives of France; Mr. Yoshida, native of Japan. (All the foregoing embarked at Marseilles.) M. O. Pallier, native of France, embarked at Saigon.

We notice the arrival by the P. M. S. S. Japan of some very fine thoroughbred cattle, which have been imported by Messrs. J. H. Hall and Co., with the view of improving the breed of cattle in this country.

The following items of news are taken from the Japan Mail:—

The Japanese Government have decided on sending an expedition to Formosa in consequence of the outrages committed upon the crew of a junk from Meiacosima in the year 1871, and with a view of preventing similar occurrences in future. The plan to be adopted consists of the occupation of the Southern Point of the Island, which will enable the garrison to command the territory of the aboriginal tribes, over which the Chinese Government disclaim all jurisdiction. When Soyejima, the late Japanese Foreign Minister, was at Peking the intentions of the Japanese Government were fully laid before the Chinese Cabinet, and it is believed that no objection was offered to the course now about to be pursued. We cannot allay our own fears that this joint occupation of the Island will lead to future jealousies and misunderstandings.

Attention has been drawn very prominently to the grave misrépresentations made in some of the American journals, and particularly in the San Francisco Bulletin, of the attitude of the Foreign Representatives vis-à-vis of this Government. The charges of imperious and dictatorial demands disappear before the documents we have published elsewhere in this issue. It were much to be wished that the suspicions and the jealousy characteristic of the present attitude of the Government would also disappear.

Much discussion has lately taken place among Japanese officials and nobles respecting the establishment of a deliberative assembly, and announcements have from time to time been made that the Mikado had given his assent to such an institution. The last phase which rumour has assumed is that a house of the nobles is to be called, and that the formation of a more popular assembly is deferred for some future time. We believe these reports to be without further foundation than that the institution of such assemblies in the future is probable.

In view of the late destructive fires the agents of the fire insurance companies have held a meeting, resulting in the formation of a committee to inquire into the causes, so far as they may be known, and the circumstances, so far as they can be ascertained, attending the late fire, and all future similar occurrences. It cannot be doubted that the step is a necessary and prudent one, and it may be hoped that it will result in reducing the number of these disasters in the future.

The Nagasaki papers report an unquiet state of affairs in the south, and more or less actual collision between parties of insurgents and the Imperial troops. The actual truth regarding this seems little known to foreigners, but the Government at Yedo certainly is perfectly easy in regard to the entire suppression of the late rebellion.

A revival of trade to some extent took place about the middle of last month, but stagnation has set in again, and great complaints are made of it.

By this mail we have to note the departure of Capt. George E. Lane, for some years the head agent of the Pacific Mail Company. Capt. Lane has earned by his urbanity the regard of all. We can only say that he leaves here with the best wishes of everybody. Indefatigable in his duties, he was an agent whom the Company will find it hard to replace, except at a disadvantage. Courteous and kind to all around him, foremost in every good work, irrespective of nationality, we hope that he may find it possible to return, and resume his old duties amongst us, since the Company, we understand, have declined to accept his resignation.

Yeto Shimpei, the leader of the late insurrection in Saga, has not yet, despite the strenuous exertions of the Government, been captured.

Friday, the 4th April, being Good Friday, was kept as a holiday, and the day being also one of the fêtes of Jimmu Tenno, grand Japanese festivities likewise took place.

It is rumoured that the Government are about to establish a Parliament, consisting of both an Upper and a Lower House.

A meeting has been held to arrange for our annual regatta.

At the first general meeting of the Yokohama Literary Society Mr. W. W. Cargill read a paper on "The Rise and Progress of the System of Banking carried on in the East."

Having stated that, with one exception, none of the existing English Exchange Banks had their origin in Europe, but that the system had been commenced in British India, he proceeded to describe the rise and development of the great Eastern trade in India, the Straits, and China. At Bombay, where the want of such a system was most felt, the incorporation in 1840 of the first public bank having given little practical relief to the mercantile community, the Bank of Western India was established two years later, which was subsequently merged into the Oriental Bank, and became the foundation of the whole Eastern Exchange Bank system as it now exists. The serious difficulties to be encountered, the jealousy and hostility to be overcome, and the legal disabilities to be put up with, were next noticed; and the precautionary measures adopted to meet these difficulties were described. The paper showed that the great commercial crisis of 1847 had enhanced the credit of the Oriental Bank, and given it a solidity it never afterwards lost. For it had been able at that critical period to supply its customers freely with sight drafts on England, and to make heavy shipments of bullion to London, which had arrived there at the height of the panic and attracted public notice in the city. The effects of the collapse of the Union Bank of Calcutta in 1848 upon the Oriental Bank and its numerous branches, and the despondency and uneasiness of its proprietors until the grant of a royal charter limiting their liability and containing adequate powers of conducting their business were graphically detailed. In conclusion, Mr. Cargill remarked that now no other part of the British dominions and no other portions of British trade enjoy more banking facilities than those in the East, and that the Oriental Bank was the first institution to create general exchange business. Its history was therefore truly the history of the system of general banking and exchange in the East, and its unrivalled success, followed by others on the same model, had provided that aid to commerce which we now see in living operation.

HIOGO-OSAKA.

Advices extend to the 2nd April; the P. and O. mail from London Feb. 6 arrived out on the 30th March. The following is taken from the Hiogo News:—

We have had a narrow escape from what would have been one of the most serious fires which have happened in Kobe for some time. About twenty-five minutes past twelve on the night of the 21st March the mellow notes of the Japanese bell at the Municipal Buildings, preceding by a few seconds the sharper clang of the small fire bell in the Public Park, roused the population. The scene of the disaster was found to be on the west side of the Ujikawa, and the fire had got hold of a large quantity of timber which was stored upon an irregular quadrangular piece of ground which is bounded on the north by the railway, on the west by a creek, on the south by the sea, and on the east by Mitsui's Bank, some godowns and an eating house which communicated with the Bank premises. The Kobe Fire Brigade engine and the Japanese Shand and Mason were immediately at work, and more water was poured in on the south and west by two small engines from the Railway depot. The heat was intense, one of the leading hosemen by the godown having his leather helmet melted on his head, and the spectacle presented was that of a lake of fire, giving off dense clouds of smoke and steam on the east and south-east, indicative of where the untiring engines were pouring forth their steady streams. About two o'clock work and water began to get the upper hand, and foot by foot the water travelled westwards, till dawn next morning showed little but sodden heaps of charcoal. What the loss would have been had the flames fastened upon the threatened godowns, the Bank itself, the eating house, the ship building yard of Messrs. Strome and Co. and the houses on Benten-no-hama we cannot estimate, but we may say at a rough guess the timber which has been destroyed did not represent less than $5,000, and we believe it was altogether uninsured. The services of the Foreign Brigades have been courteously acknowledged by Enoye Masaru, who was present.

The laying down of the first line of rails on the Kobe and Osaka section of the Imperial Railways having been reported completed, an engine and some carriages were run through as an experiment from end to end without the occurrence of any hitch. How much longer it may be before the arrangements for conducting traffic will be completed we cannot say, but we believe the state of the permanent way throughout was found most satisfactory.

The stewards of the Race Club have published their programme for the forthcoming spring meeting, to be held on the 27th, 28th, and 29th April. Seventeen races in all have been provided, five of which are for China ponies, six for Japanese ponies, and six for China and Japan ponies. The majority of the latter will probably fall to the Celestials, as it has been found as a rule that Japan ponies cannot successfully compete against Chinese on the Kobe Course. With fine weather there is every prospect that we shall have three days' excellent sport.

The Kobe Amateur Dramatic Corps have given their third performance of the season at the Gymnasium Theatre. The one-act comedietta, Jack in a Box, and R. Reece's burlesque, The Very Last Days of Pompeii, were the pieces selected.

NAGASAKI.

An account of some of the details connected with the military operations at Saga has been given by a native eye-witness, who was present at that time in the battle-field. It appears in a recent issue of the Nagasaki Shimbun, and the following is an abridgment of the particulars. The dates in many instances appear to be wanting, and the account is somewhat disconnected:—

On the 22nd of February the Imperial troops, commanded by Takenouchi and three officers, received orders to retake and guard the Treasury-office of head encampment at Tajiro, and were despatched from the Kencho to perform this service. When they reached the foot of the hill at Asahiyama they found it had been strongly fortified by the rebels, but it had been already retaken by the Imperial troops, as also were Uruino Todoroki, Murata, and Nakabara. The rebels had retreated from this locality, and the head encampment was removed to Nakabara. As the four officials in the Treasury who belonged to the 4th and 10th regiments still remained in Tajiro, they were sent to muster some fifty or sixty soldiers to garrison it, and to bring to that place some stores and arms. They returned that night to the Treasury-office, together with the goods, which were removed to the head encampment. A little before 1 o'clock A.M. on the 23rd February a party of Saga men made a sortie and attacked our camp, approaching near to the outside of the town, where they fired a volley. The guards of the encampment engaged them, but finding themselves unable to resist the invaders, retired some distance. In the meantime the trumpets were sounded, and on this signal being given the Imperialists pursued the attacking party, and fired many guns, and at once laid themselves down upon the ground, but they finally drove the latter from the place. The Imperialists, without pursuing any further, retired to the camp; and a vigilant guard was kept to prevent further attempts from being made. During these affairs two soldiers were wounded, but several trophies were captured, consisting of swords and guns. About 7 A.M. the rebel army encamped at Senoshita, in the Chickugo province, and after firing a few shots they marched across the river to Yemi. On their way they set fire to the villages of Mametsu, Akashi, &c. While taking refreshment here the Saga men, who were concealed in the bush, suddenly opened fire upon us. The Imperial troops maintained their ground boldly, exposed as they were, and the fighting was hard, and many of the latter fell down wounded or killed by the shots from the guns of the then invisible enemy. Towards 6 P.M. both parties retired, the Imperialists to Senoshita. A company of Saga Volunteers, under the name of Mayeyama, who marched from Sumiyosi, Chickugo, and had joined the Imperialists, were engaged in this battle, and the majority were wounded during the fighting. This contingent had nearly eighty officers and men either killed or wounded; the latter were carried into the hospital.

At daybreak on the 24th two regiments of Imperial troops with two guns marched some distance in search of the insurgents. On coming up with them a battle soon commenced, but after fighting for a few hours the rebels retreated and set fire to Hiyamizucho. They were pursued by the Imperial troops until reaching a narrow passage cut through the mountain. The retreating forces then made another stand, and offered a strong resistance which checked for a time the advance of the commander of the reserve corps. At 5 o'clock P.M., Okubo, Minister for Home Affairs, arrived, and this gave encouragement to the Imperialists. The commander, Kodama, leading two regiments which had been sent there as reinforcements, drove them back. As the rebels retreated they set fire to Yadeno and then crossed over to the opposite side of the river of the same name, where they again made another stand, but they finally retreated, firing the farmers' houses in Kanzaki as they left. The Imperial troops then shelled that place, and this caused the fire to spread rapidly in four directions. After the sun had set all the Imperial troops retired to Kokeno; one regiment, however, remained quartered in the temple, which had escaped destruction during the conflagration. During this last battle Kodama was killed.

On the night of the 10th March the rebel chiefs Shima Danyemoro, Soyeshima Kensuke, Sigematsu Motoyemon, Murata Yuzo and seven other persons were arrested at Kagosima. Yeto, who also conceals himself there, has not yet been captured. Those captured have since been sent to Saga. Information received from the districts recently disturbed states that quietude prevails in them, and that the people have returned to their usual avocations.

We hear that Fushiminomiya, the relation of the Mikado who left Tokio a short time since, has been instructed to institute enquiries into the grievances existing in the provinces he visits in the course of his journey in the southern districts. He has already visited Osaka, Hiogo, Fukuhoka, Saga and Higo, and he is expected to arrive here shortly from the latter place.

We hear that the Judicial Court here has recently been constantly employed in investigating numerous complaints that have been lodged by the Consuls and the residents regarding the thieving propensities of the coolie class. Trials are going on daily, and the decisions given have generally been of such a nature as to relieve the public of the presence of the delinquents, who are sentenced to imprisonment for various terms with hard labour.

A disturbance amongst the crew of the American whaling barque James Allen has occurred, which necessitated the master of that vessel making an application to the United States Consul, who communicated with the commanding officer of the United States corvette Lackawanna for assistance. A portion of the crew have been secured and are in irons, while those who have managed to break their fetters have since been doubly ironed. We understand the offence they are charged with is refusal of duty, and that the men attempt to justify their conduct on the ground that the master refused to allow them to have a run on shore previous to resuming their voyage.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 3rd April; the French mail from London Feb. 13 arrived out on the 1st April. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

The minutes of the last meeting of Treaty Consuls, though showing that several matters of public importance have engaged the attention of that body, do not form a record of faits accompli. A representation to the Governor of Kiangsoo, regarding the Woosung Bar, which the Consular body offer to supplement by details at a personal interview, is promptly and diplomatically acknowledged by his Excellency,—whose reply, however, while it admits anything and everything, grants nothing, but makes his action contingent on that of the authorities at the capital—and, in fact, "Pekings" (synonymous with "pigeon-holes") the application generally. The Chamber of Commerce are rash enough to hope that the Ministers may possibly be urging the matter on the attention of the Government! Rumour echoes the hope; but nothing is known outside the capital.—A committee on the proposed Lifeboat Institution has been appointed; and Messrs. Medhurst and Seward report the action taken by them to procure the recognition of the American trade and Japanese dollars—with what result the minutes do not, however, inform us.—An attempt is to be made to do away with the system of New Year presents, which, from simple and graceful courtesy, appears to have developed in China into meaningless and troublesome ceremonial.

The annual meeting of the Union Steam Navigation Company has been held. The report and accounts showed a debit balance on working account of Tls. 53,567.53, which also forms the deficit in assets against a capital liability of Tls. 309,911.81. The Chairman, Mr. Francis, gave a full explanation of the circumstances under which this result was arrived at, and moved that the report and accounts be passed. Mr. A. Dent proposed an amendment that the meeting be adjourned a fortnight, to enable shareholders to consult the detailed accounts laid on the table; but on a show of hands this was lost by five, or 920 shares to 702, and the original proposition carried by the same numbers. Mr. Talbot Olyphant's election to the board of directors, in room of Mr. A. A. Hayes, jun., was confirmed, and Mr. Francis was re-elected. The auditors, Messrs. P. Maclean and R. F. Eastlack, were also re-elected. At an extraordinary general meeting, held immediately afterwards, it was resolved that the company be dissolved and its affairs wound up by the board; and a further resolution adjourned the meeting till 1st June, when the shareholders will be asked to confirm this action.

The absence of any news concerning the steamer Manchu, although nearly three weeks have now elapsed since she left Nagasaki, leads to her safety being despaired of. The United States naval authorities despatched the Lackawanna on the 26th March to cruise in quest of her; but a telegram has been received from Nagasaki, saying that she had returned without finding any traces of the missing vessel, after a thorough search. Apprehensions of the worst are rather confirmed, too, by the arrival of recent steamers from Amoy without hearing of or meeting with a trace of her.

The election of Municipal Councillors for the ensuing year is fixed for the 14th and 15th April, and nominations are to be sent in to the Council Room not later than the 6th. We are glad to hear that there is a prospect of more life in the proceedings than has lately been the case. It is rumoured that sufficient gentlemen have allowed themselves to be put in nomination to ensure a contested election.

An important commercial case has been decided at the Mixed Court, before the Chinese Magistrate, Chen, and Mr. Stronach, British Assessor. The plaintiffs, Messrs. Butterfield and Swire, had sold about 16,000 pieces of 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings to Fêng-kee, the defendant, but in consequence of the broker leaving Shanghai, the transaction was not formally concluded by the signing of a contract. Defendant, however, went to plaintiffs, and said he did not want so many as 16,000 pieces, but agreed to take 11,400 at Tls.1.9.2 per piece. For this number he took out transit passes; and these documents, containing a description of the marks on the bales, and being in Fêng-kee's hands, plaintiffs were effectually prevented from selling the goods to anyone else. The market had since fallen six candareens. Defendant admitted that he had the transit passes in his possession now, but stated that he was only an employé, that the transaction was not on account of the Fêng-kee hong, but for himself personally, and that he had no money to meet the loss. He offered a compromise of two cands. per piece. It was stated that defendant had been known as Fêngkee for the last eighteen months, and that no one else is known in Shanghai by the same name. They refused to accept the compromise offered. The Court decreed that the defendant was liable for the amount claimed, and gave him three days to settle the case or take delivery, failing which he would be imprisoned till he did so.

A case of rather a sensational character has come before the Mixed Court, the charge being that of suspected "body" traffic. It appeared that the two defendant Chinamen went to the P. M. S. Co.'s office a day or two before the sailing of the Costa Rica, and purchased tickets for the passage of twenty-three women and girls for San Francisco, at a cost of $1,035. This fact becoming known to the Chinese authorities, and the circumstances under which they were about to sail seeming suspicious, application was made at the U. S. Consulate-General—(where the appearance of so many females to be asked, for official certification, whether they were voluntary emigrants had already attracted attention)—to prohibit their taking their passage until the matter had been enquired into. The application was granted, and the two Chinamen were subsequently apprehended. One of the two, who represented himself as a godown keeper in the employ of the P. and O. Company, stated to the Court that he became acquainted with the other man at Ningpo; that on meeting him a few days ago in Shanghai the other asked where he could obtain passage tickets to San Francisco, and that he merely accompanied him to the office to show him the way, knowing nothing further of the matter. The other defendant said he was the proprietor of a salt-fish shop at San Francisco, from which place he arrived about three months ago after having been resident some eight or ten years. Wishing to return, he had taken tickets for his wife, his daughter-in-law, a woman who understood the curing of salt fish, a servant, and two women to get the fish from the market, thus making up a personal retinue of seven females; while the other fifteen women merely asked him to obtain their passage tickets, he knowing nothing more about them. These statements not being deemed sufficiently satisfactory, the case was adjourned till the afternoon for the presence of the women. The explanation of the greater number of them was that it had been their intention to go to San Francisco to husbands and brothers, and that they had asked one of the accused to obtain tickets for them—thus bearing out to a certain extent the previous statement. The matter is still under investigation.

In the matter of good roads the recent wet weather has found the Settlement wretchedly deficient. The newly laid portion of the Bund has been about the only place where the pedestrian could find comfortable rest for the sole of his foot from the deluge of dirt; for not a few of the roads in the foreign, and many in the Chinese quarters, were quagmires, appalling to foot passengers, and sometimes even to the drivers in carriages. An effort has been made here and there to remedy this by a hasty application of metal, but though we are glad to see so much being done, we think the municipal authorities would have conferred a greater immediate benefit by sending out a number of coolies with mud-scrapers, if such things exist in the municipal economy.

The continuance of the rain, and the flooded state of the country in consequence, caused a postponement of the general parade called for the 28th of March. We understand, however, that arrangements are in progress which promise that Shanghai will have an Easter Monday sham fight between the Blue Jackets and Volunteers. We hope the weather will not again interfere with the proposed plans.

The Amateur Dramatic Company announce their third performance for the Season, to take place on the 8th April. The drama of "The Bells" is to form the attraction; and as it is being closely rehearsed, and will bring forward prominently again some of our best actors, we may look for something good. The Amateurs of H.M.S. Cadmus have given a performance at the Lyceum for the benefit of the Hospital, and the German Amateurs have given a performance at the Club Concordia with the greatest success.

The annual meeting of members of the cricket club has been held, Mr. Groom in the chair. The Chairman explained at some length the position of the club, and the causes which led to there being a debit balance. The repairs and extension of the pavilion, and the failure of the voluntary subscription suggested at last meeting in producing the amount anticipated from it, were the chief causes of this. The new Committee elected were Messrs. Groom (President), Hearn, Anderson, Tate, St. Croix, and Caldbeck. A resolution was passed to raise the entrance fee from Tls. 5 to Tls. 10—the original rate. Some desultory discussion arose about various matters.

At a meeting of the Mih-ho-loong Rifle Company, thirty members present, new rules were passed, and it was resolved to appoint a sub-lieutenant, to be elected by ballot, as well as to make some minor changes in the staff of the company. The motto of "shoulder to shoulder" was adopted, and it appeared to be resolved that the energy with which the organisation was kept up should prove the fitness of the selection. Mr. Groom was awarded a special vote of thanks for the active interest he had taken in revivifying the company.

Dr. Macgowan has addressed a crowded meeting at the Temperance Hall, when he gave a lucid and at times facetious exposition of the Darwinian theory of the origin of the human race; entering at some length into the arguments of naturalists and philosophers of note, both for and against the transmutation principles. At the close of the lecture it was announced that Mr. Stent would shortly deliver a lecture there on Chinese theatricals.

The Peking Gazette of the 15th March contains the first notice of the resumption of relations with Burmah, since the subjection of Yunnan. In the first place, a Burmese official comes to offer to the Governor of Yunnan some treasure which the Mahomedan chief had deposited across the frontier; and in the second, an Envoy from the King of Burmah congratulates the Emperor on the success of his arms, and begs instructions regarding the sending of tribute! The first mission would seem more remarkably honest, if we were not told that the Imperialists threatened to go and fetch the money if it were not surrendered. Touching the second, we remember an edict, published some years ago, about Siam wishing to send tribute! and a letter which the Regent of Siam caused to be written to this journal, repudiating any such idea. We suspect the overtures from Burmah are really very like those from Siam—to open up and regulate commercial intercourse.

The Herald's Peking correspondent writes as follows:—

The Emperor's journey to the Imperial tombs is a momentous affair, especially as roads have to be made. We are having very agreeable weather, but not a flake of snow, despite all the prayers of his Majesty. There is a rumour that Mr. Wade will go south in the Spring, to go up the Yangtsze, and people hint at Ichang, but all is mystery. I wonder sometimes for what reason diplomatists think they are here. Common sense suggests, to look after the interests of their nationals; but from the careful way in which these are excluded from all information, it can hardly be so. There have been some changes in the college staff. Mr. McKean, formerly in H.M.'s Consular Service, who for the last year has been Professor of English at the Peking College (in succession to Mr. M. O'Brien) has like his predecessor been admitted into the Customs Service, and is succeeded at the college by an American gentleman, Mr. J. P. Cowles.

Instead of improving, the Piece Goods market has become worse. The principal imports have been freely offered, but buyers have held off, and although once or twice a tendency towards business has been manifested by the trade, it has not amounted to anything. The inducements placed before the dealers have been considered insufficient. Whenever they have found sellers ready to meet them at their own rates, they have invariably withdrawn or demanded another and yet another candareen; moreover, they have been afraid to enter into any transactions of importance. Prices have not yet seen their lowest—so they aver—and a declining market here means loss to them. From Hankow, a rather better enquiry for Cotton Goods is reported, and, but for the dulness ruling at Shanghai, advices state that dealers would have more confidence in going into stock. The demand is described as "by no means active for the season of the year," and yet late steamers up-river have taken considerable supplies hence. At Chefoo a sort of panic has prevailed. C. P. H. Peacock chop 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, which were recently sold there at Tls. 1.88 to 1.90 per piece, have dropped to Tls. 1.80, and sales at that were almost impracticable; and this, with a total export from hence since the opening of the season, of not more than 60,000 pieces.

The Shanghai Courier gives the following items of news:—

By the steamer Taku, which left on the 1st April, for the North, the Spanish Minister, M. Pereira, and his secretary, M. de Otin, returned to Peking.

At the Mixed Court a coolie, who has been in the employ of a foreign firm for about two years, has been brought up, charged with purloining the key of a safe. It appears that having obtained possession of it, he set to work to get a brass one made, so that he might eventually get a duplicate in iron. It seems he was rather an old hand at this class of business, as he had previously obtained the duplicate of a key for the Compradore's room, by which means he managed to carry off a number of horse-rugs, umbrellas, &c. His career has been for the present checked by Chen sentencing him to two hundred blows, and three months' cangue.

A meeting has been held at the rooms of the Asiatic Society for the purpose of considering the desirability of establishing a Museum in Shanghai. The project received the unanimous approval of those present, and a committee, consisting of Messrs. Michie, Groom, Fitzgerald, and Pryer, was elected for the purpose of having an interview with the Council of the Asiatic Society's Branch. This interview took place, and the Council, having the matter explained to them, determined to support the scheme financially and otherwise and authorised the committee to take steps at once. Since then, we believe, the services of a man who thoroughly understands the preserving and setting up of skins have been secured; arrangements have been made for taking a room in the Asiatic Society's building, and the committee are now quite ready to receive any specimens that anybody will send them.

M. Giquel, ex-director of the Foochow Arsenal, is at present here. We understand that in a few days he will leave for Ningpo, whence he will return to Shanghai across country, via Shaoshing and Hangchow, revisiting the scenes of his experiences against the Taepings, when connected with the Franco-Chinese contingent. Thereafter, it is understood, he will pay his first visit to Peking, prior to returning to Europe. The report on the "Results of the Foochow Arsenal," addressed by M. Giquel to H. E. Shen, the Imperial Commissioner of the Arsenal, has, we learn, been submitted to the consideration of a High Commission appointed by the 'Emperor, consisting of Tso Tsung-tang, the orginator of the Arsenal, now Governor-General of Shensi, and Kansuh, Li Hung-chang, Governor General of Chihli, Li, Governor-General of Fohkien and Chekiang, and Shen, the Arsenal Commissioner—who will shortly report, whether and how, and how far, the recommendations of M. Giquel as to the future of the Arsenal and its pupils ought to be carried out.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 9th April; no later mail from London had arrived out. The Daily Press supplies the following items of intelligence:—

The annual meeting of the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce was held at the City Hall on the 7th April. There were present:—The Hon. P. Ryrie (chairman), Messrs. Jensen, Karberg, R. Scott, Walker, H. Nelson, S. D. Sassoon, Greig, Kahn, G. Heard, and Deacon.

The Chairman said that the business of the meeting was to receive the half-yearly report and accounts. They had already had the report some time before them, and his only regret was that there was so little in it. At the same time the half-year had not been quite barren. The committee had had a very satisfactory interview with Admiral Jenkins, and an equally satisfactory communication from Admiral Shadwell, with regard to the survey of the coast, and he thought that there was nothing further to be done in the matter, but to await the arrival of the ships which were expected at the fall of the year, and to ascertain whether the American Government would also do anything in the matter. He himself thought they might count upon Admiral Jenkins. With regard to the question of telegraphic communication, he was not aware that anything had been done to improve the communication, but one thing was worthy of note, and that was that of late there had been fewer breaks. Passing to the subject of the native cruisers, he said he did not think they could say much on this point at the present time, as it would be better to wait until the report of the Commission lately appointed to inquire into it had been published. He was not at liberty at present to mention anything with regard to it, and would only say that when the Chamber had the report before them they would have ample grounds for drawing up the proposed memorial to the Secretary of State. As soon as particulars were obtained no time should be lost in drawing up that document. There was no doubt that the matter was becoming more serious to the trade of the port every day, through the unwarrantable proceedings of these people. A number of letters had been written, and the replies were not satisfactory. He did not think that any person in China could mend the matter in any way. The Government seemed to have left Hong Kong to the mercy of the Hoppo, who appeared to be a most objectionable person. Coming from Macao the other day the speaker had entered into conversation with a Chinaman long known to him, who stated that he had been seized by these scoundrels, taken to Canton, and kept in durance vile, and made to pay Tls. 40,000 before they released him. This man was well-known in China generally, and had been known to the Chairman himself for over twenty years. There was only one way to speak to the Chinese about this, and that was to use the only language they understood and tell them they must behave themselves properly or they would be punished. There was no doubt that they were at present carrying things a great deal too far. With respect to the question of currency, he stated that the matter had now been referred to the Government at home, and the Chamber would have to wait and see what steps would be taken. Referring to a proposed alteration in one of the rules of the Chamber, he pointed out that it was only considered necessary to have one general meeting a year instead of two. The next point was the one dollar note question. A proposition would be brought forward, which he believed, from remarks made by the members of the Chamber, would receive their support.

The report having been adopted, the Chairman moved the following resolution:—"That this Chamber has heard with considerable regret that the Governor has received intimation of a desire on the part of the Home authorities that the one dollar Bank notes now in circulation in the colony should be withdrawn, especially as experience has shown their peculiar adaptability to the wants of the local trade, and while they fully endorse the views expressed in the memorial recently forwarded from the community, the members would further express the hope that such representations may be made as may lead to this medium of circulation being retained." The resolution was adopted. Messrs. Walker and Nelson were then elected members of the committee in the room of Messrs. Kaye and Leeman resigned, and the proceedings terminated with the customary vote of thanks to the chairman.

A report upon the health of the colony has been issued by Dr. Ayres. From this it appears that the mortality in the colony has been much less than the average for ten years past. This Dr. Ayres attributes to the increased heavy rainfall, and the circumstance is of importance, as there is reason to believe that the larger rainfall of late years is attributable to the increased vegetation, and may, therefore, be permanently looked for. On the other hand, an increase in typhus fever is noted, which is attributed to the dirty habits of the native population, and is considered to point to the necessity for improvement in the draining of the colony. Upon this point the colonial surgeon speaks with some emphasis. He says that he has made it a subject of special report, and that an improved condition of the houses of the lower classes would cause a considerable diminution of this class of cases. He considers that the disease is increasing in the severity of its form, and that unless some steps be taken the plague may become endemic in the colony, and possibly end in a severe epidemic. The report upon the civil hospital is very unfavourable as regards the accommodation there, and it is to be hoped that some steps will soon be taken for the erection of a more suitable building. A point of considerable interest in respect to the ordinary means of preserving health is suggested by remarks which Dr. Ayres makes in reference to the Sikh policemen. He states that the larger portion of them who were sent to the hospital suffered from diarrhœa, brought on by their being in the habit of wearing their native clothing when off duty, and thus being subject to catching cold easily. On the whole, the report of the Colonial-Surgeon is encouraging, and does not give ground to apprehend any serious falling off in the healthiness of the colony, except with regard to such diseases as are likely to be engendered by defective drainage and other causes which are within our own control.

We have received a copy of the report of the Diocesan School for the past year. There are at present vacancies in the home for six boys, and about the same number of girls. The treasurer's report shows that the expenses of the home for the coming year are estimated at $4,500. Of this sum it is expected that about one-half will be received in the way of fees from the parents and guardians. About $2,250 must, therefore, be raised by voluntary contributions if the home is to be continued on its present satisfactory footing, and for this sum the committee confidently appeal to the well-known liberality of the residents in Hong Kong, which we feel confident will not be withheld.

We hear that information has been received to the effect that the Master of the Calcutta Mint has offered, should the Govern-

The committee of the Tungwha Hospital have waited upon the Governor to beg him to mitigate the sentence of death passed recently on the four Chinese prisoners, who were found guilty of murder, but were recommended to mercy by the jury.

The building of the lighthouse at Cape d'Aguilar is fast progressing; the keeper's house is very nearly finished. The long-talked of lighthouse on Green Island will soon be a reality, as the foundation-stone is about to be laid.

The steamer Yesso after undergoing extensive repairs has made a satisfactory trial trip. The steamer Kwangtung has been sent over to the Kowloon Dock to be cleaned and painted; and the steamer Ningpo will be docked, for the purpose of having a new propeller fitted.

The Government Gazette notes that Mr. C. F. A. Sangster has been appointed clerk of Court, vice Mr. H. J. Holmes, resigned, and that the ordinance for the oral examination ofp risoners will take effect from the 7th April.

We note the arrival of Chiarinis' Royal Italian Circus, which has no less that twenty-five star performers and thirty trained horses and ponies.

SINGAPORE.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 17th April. The French mail from London March 13 arrived out on the 14th April. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

The Colonial steamer Pluto returned to this port on the 15th April from Perak, whither she had been with the Hon. J. W. W. Birch, Colonial Secretary. On the downward passage the Pluto, in company with H.M.S. Avon, called in at Klang, and took down with them Tunkoo dia Oodin and Mr. J. G. Davidson. Returning, the Pluto brought the Tunkoo and Mr. Davidson as far as the Qualla Klang.

We are requested to call attention to the Chinese class in the Raffles Institution, now conducted by Mr. Pickering, the Chinese interpreter. The trustees are throwing this class open to lads not attending the school during the day, indeed, they are anxious that Mr. Pickering's pupils should mainly consist of young men who have finished their ordinary schooling. For most boys it would be too much to do the work of the English classes, and at the same time study the Chinese languages to any advantage, but for young men in offices it is believed that this class may be found to be useful, and not to present insurmountable difficulties. In itself the Chinese language is not attractive; certainly it cannot be acquired without laborious study. But the extreme desirability of imparting a knowledge of Chinese to men who would remain outside of Chinese control has been long seen; and it is in the public interest that an effort to accomplish this should be successful. Every one is conscious of the need of trustworthy men competent to act as Chinese interpreters in our Courts. It is often extremely hard to reach the truth in those criminal cases in which Chinamen are involved; and in order that justice may be administered, it is important that we should have interpreters who would not be governed by Chinese secret societies and other malign influences. It might also be found by-and-bye that a knowledge of Chinese would be of value in mercantile offices. To attract scholars to Mr. Pickering, the Raffles trustees not only hold out the prospect of the good appointments which a knowledge of Chinese would certainly open up in various directions, but they promise also immediate rewards in the shape of valuable scholarships. If the class is attended by a respectable number, three scholarships ($120, $96, and $72 respectively) will be offered at the close of the year to the competition of the pupils. Altogether the scheme seems to deserve success, and we trust that at the end of 1874 the trustees will be able to report that the class has been well attended, and that the boys have made excellent progress.

A terrible double murder and murderous assault has been committed in the Campong Krabow district. A Bengallee serang named Moobarrak, living in Albert-street, had some trouble with his wife, a native of Malacca, who had, we understand, prosecuted him in the police-court for ill-treatment. He rushed upon her with a knife or razor, and cut her throat, inflicting a mortal injury, and then turning upon another woman in the house, drew the knife directly across her face, making a gash from ear to ear, and then ran out into the street. The alarm was raised, and several persons ran to check his progress, whom the murderer assailed with his knife as they obstructed his way. One of these, a convict, received such injuries that he died shortly after reaching hospital. No less than five persons in all were more or less injured by the assassin, who ended by cutting his own throat, without, however, inflicting a dangerous wound, and was shortly afterwards arrested, and sent to hospital. An inquest is being held to-day on the bodies of the two victims. The others will, we are glad to hear, probably recover.

A Malay woodcutter named Ah Wang, residing in Changhie, while engaged in cutting wood in the jungle at Johore, was attacked by a tiger, and meta horrible death. The body was afterwards found by his comrades, with both arms and one leg eaten off. It was carried to their boat and taken over to Changhie, where, after inspection by H. M.'s coroner, it was ordered to be buried.

A Cricket Match, which promises every probability of being well contested, will be played on the Garrison Cricket Ground on the 18th April, between the Singapore and Garrison Cricket Clubs.

On the 17th April the Bishop of the diocese intends to consecrate the chapel at the cemetery which the Municipal Commissioners have lately provided for the due solemnisation of burials.

THE WOOSUNG BAR.

The correspondence upon the subject of the Woosung Bar has been published. It opens with a letter from Mr. Harper, secretary of the Salvage Association, London, to Mr. Hammond, in which the state of the Bar is pointed out. Then follows a letter from Mr. Morris, of Shanghai, and others to Mr. Dick, Commissioner of Customs, complaining of the state of the Bar, which is duly acknowledged by Mr. Dick. Mr. Hammond then addresses Mr. Harper, informing that gentleman that his communication will be referred to Her Majesty's Minister at Peking, and the letter from Lord Granville to Mr. Wade follows. Mr. Hill, of the General Post-office then writes to Mr. Hammond, enclosing a letter from Mr. Bethune, of the P. and O. Company, referring to the interruption caused to the mail service, both of which communications are forwarded to Mr. Wade. Mr. Wade replies to Lord Granville, informing him that Mr. Hart had been authorised by the Yamen to expend a considerable sum upon a dredging apparatus. Mr. Wade also informs Vice-Consul Alabaster, of this. Viscount Enfield then forwards to Mr. Harper and Mr. Hill the extract of Mr. Wade's reply to Lord Granville. Mr. Tilley, of the Post-office, then addresses Mr. Hammond on behalf of the P. and O. Company, enclosing another letter from Mr. Bethune, in which attention is called to two accidents to steamers on the Bar. This letter is sent to Mr. Wade, and he replies, stating that he hopes to put Lord Granville in more complete information upon the subject before long. A second letter from Mr. Wade follows, in which two memorandas, one from Admiral Shadwell and the other from Captain Arthur, are enclosed. Of these communications upon the subject of the cost and means of dredging the Bar Mr. Tilley is duly informed. Mr. Wade then addresses Lord Granville, saying that as there is some delay in the dredging operations he should suggest that each of the Consuls communicate with their respective Legations upon the subject. Mr. Tilley then writes to Mr. Hammond, enclosing another letter from Mr. Bethune, in which it is suggested that the Chinese Government should be addressed upon the subject of the Bar, and the result of these letters is a further communication to Mr. Wade.

The following telegrams close the correspondence:—

(Mr. WADE to the Earl of DERBY.)

Peking, March 26, 1874.

With reference to my despatch of the 10th November, respecting the Woosung Bar, Yamên has replied to identic note of Legations that further inquiry was necessary. Legations thereupon wrote a second identic note to the Yamên, and I have this day written a third time.

(Mr. WADE to the Earl of DERBY.)

Peking, April 3, 1874.

In reply to your Lordship's despatch of January 30, regarding the Woosung Bar, the matter has been pressed upon the Chinese Government for the last two years. I was given to understand that the necessary outlay was about to be sanctioned. Since 13th of February, besides verbal communications, I have written three despatches to the Prince, and this day inform him of your instructions now received.

TEA ADULTERATION.—We omitted to notice, while dealing with this question some time since, the petition presented to the Governor of Macao by the principal merchants of that place, protesting against the adulteration of tea by Chinese merchants. In this document it was stated that the discovery had been made that Chinese merchants having tea manufactories of their own at St. Lazar and elsewhere, had been in the habit of using a mixture of iron filings, black sand, lime cactus, willow leaves, &c. These trifles, although ostensibly intended for the benefit of the Chinese trade alone, were really exported, and his Excellency the Governor was asked to adopt adequate measures for the abolition of the evil. The Governor, upon receipt of this petition, took measures for the apprehension of all tea substances met with in the manufactories, and had them sent to the officer of health for analysis. The result was that there were no proofs to justify legal proceedings against the tea merchants. His Excellency, therefore, ordered his Secretary to say, in reply to the petitioners, that the substances found were not pernicious to health, but some of them were well recommended (it does not say by whom) for animal economy. The reply concludes by pointing out the fact that should manufacturers adulterate the marks of well-known firms the offended parties have the privilege of bringing a criminal action; while, as if to some extent in palliation of adulteration generally, reference was made to the adulteration of champagne in France and the "doctoring" of beer in England.

IT was lately stated that "pigeon" or pidjin English played so important a part in the intercourse between Europeans and Asiatics as to suggest the possibility that this curious jargon, produced by the combined efforts of Englishmen who know a little Chinese and of Chinamen who know a little English, may do duty as the universal language. English with the "pigeon" element left out would, however, be more convenient, and such a consummation seems to be anticipated by Mr. Bayard Taylor, who, writing to the New York Tribune from Alexandria, notices the astonishing spread of the English language within the last twenty years. "French, which until the last few years was indispensable, has been," he writes, "slowly fading into the background, and is already less available than English for Italy and all the Orient."

THE ship Moorsfort, 1,100 tons, from Shields for Bombay with coal for the P. and O. Company's service, was burned at sea on the 16th ult. When discovered to be on fire every effort was made by the captain and crew to save her, but finding that there was no prospect of getting at the seat of the danger preparations were made for the worst. The hatches were eventually blown off, and a tremendous explosion, followed by another, having occurred, the vessel became a mass of flames. The boats were launched, and remained by the burning craft until the next day, when the Dutch barque Krimpen, took the crew on board and landed them at the Cape of Good Hope.

THE Messageries Maritimes Company's steamer Sindh, with the present inward mail, arrived at Marseilles on the 15th inst. at 8 A.M. She brought 142 passengers and a general cargo, including 687 bales of silk, 8,379 packages of tea, and 16 bales of sundries, for London, which part of her cargo has been forwarded to its destination per company's steamer Ganges, due in London on or about the 26th inst.

SIR GEORGE CAMPBELL, late Lieut.-Governor of Bengal, has arrived from Calcutta, to take his seat in the Council of the Secretary of State for India, having been appointed to succeed Sir Louis Malet, C.B., appointed Under-Secretary of State in the room of the late Mr. Herman Merivale.

AT the meeting of the Royal National Life Boat Institution, held on the 7th, a donation of £25 was presented, the result of a collection made at Foochow.

IN the House of Lords on the 15th inst. the "Straits Settlements Courts Regulation Bill" was read a second time.

LONDON: MONDAY, MAY 18, 1874.

THE FRENCH TREATY WITH TONGQUIN.

THE French Government would seem to have come to a settlement with the ruler of Tongquin, which will have the effect of opening up that jealous little kingdom to foreign commercial enterprise at last. There seems now to be left but one State only along the whole coast line of Eastern Asia which still closes its gates, and refuses treay relations with the West. We allude of course to Korea, which the United States made a show of chastising some short time back, but which was no doubt left by the Americans more obstinately hostile than before, because they were at any rate able to pretend that they had successfully beaten the foreign intruder from their shores. As to Tongquin, the text of the Treaty actually signed has not yet been made public, but the main points agreed to are that three ports shall be thrown open to trade; that Europeans shall be allowed to reside and make purchases at these three points of Tongquinese territory, protected by a French Consul and a garrison of 100 men. Those to whom permits have been granted by the French Consul are to be allowed to travel without restraint in the interior of the kingdom, and produce may be brought down through the country overland from China. The Catholic religion and worship may be established everywhere without molestation. The Annamite Government is to pay to Spain an indemnity of 1,000,000 piastres. France presents the KING with five steamboats of 500-horse power each, 100 cannon, and 1,000 muskets. The KING, in case his subjects rebel, is forbidden to apply to any other country than France for aid. If the foregoing brief outline really comprises all the leading provisions of this new treaty, and we have good reason to believe that it does, we scarcely think that many will be disposed to find fault with the course which France has pursued. She would have shown greater liberality had she secured for Protestants the same advantages as for Catholics, but after all, we doubt whether the officials at the Court of Tongquin will know much about the points which separate the Christian Churches, or be disposed to cast out the American missionary and cherish the Catholic priest. The recognition of the latter secures toleration, at least, for the former. It may not be generally known that this is the second treaty which France has concluded with Cochin-China. So far back as 1787 the French entered into an offensive and defensive alliance with the Emperor of ANNAM, and an embassy was despatched from Cochin-China to Versailles. It was then agreed that France should send a fleet and army to restore the EMPEROR—at that time it seems an exile—to his throne, receiving in return a considerable territorial cession, and many commercial privileges. But the Revolution broke out, the restorer of deposed monarchs was himself deposed, and so the negotiation came to an end. However, in 1817 LOUIS XVIII. sent a message to Cochin-China, claiming that the Treaty of 1787 should be fulfilled, and received, as might be anticipated, a scornful refusal.

When we pause to consider what results may be expected from this second, and less pretentious, Convention, it is natural for us first to inquire whether it is likely in any way to conflict with the interests of British commerce. We think that its influence will be rather the reverse; we have had hitherto no market for English goods in Tongquin, but we can now send our commodities thither without let or hindrance. All we have to do is to persuade the Tongquinese to buy them, a much less easy task. If there is any carrying trade to be done along these coasts still we have nothing to fear from France, for have we not seen the Saigon Chamber of Commerce admitting a few months back that the French carrying trade in Eastern waters had dwindled to zero, and passed entirely into other hands?

Very little is as yet known as to the real condition of the Tongquinese. It may, and very probably will, turn out that the trade of the country has been for years past in the hands of Chinamen, and if that is not the case already it is almost certain to become so within the lapse of a very few years. The Chinese merchant in dealing with native races of a language akin to his own will run a very close match even with a Scotchman; and as to the French, with their quick temper, their hauteur, and their inability to resist the climate, the Chinamen will beat them out of the field. Parsees from India will, doubtless, hurry to this new commercial centre with their gold cloths and Bombay chowls; that is if they are not to be found established at Hué already, which very possibly may be the case. But as to the mass of the population—we call it "mass," though we have really no means of guessing the number of inhabitants—we cannot yet be certain whether they will become ready purchasers of European goods. There is nothing in the Treaty—so far as our information extends—as to exportation of rice, and it remains to be seen what are the capacities of the country for doing an export trade in that commodity. Gold and silver we know they have in abundance, and probably other valuable mineral resources lie hidden in the mountains of the interior. But no permission has been obtained to open mines, and even were this otherwise capitalists would hardly risk a venture among the fastnesses of a still unreconciled and turbulent race. We say turbulent, because it is clear that there has been fighting in the country up to a very recent date, and it seems that it was while interfering in some local disturbances that FRANCOIS GARNIER met his untimely and violent end.

After all, it is not the hope of establishing an important local trade that has taken the French to Tongquin. What they really anticipate is that they will be able to make the Songkoi river a channel of communication with the Western Provinces of China. We doubt the success of the undertaking. The Songkoi may turn out broad and deep, without rocks or rapids, and in every way favourable to navigation, but if there is to be an important overland trade with the Celestial Empire, it must come down the Irawaddy or the Salween, and not down the Songkoi. France has done all that foresight requires to ensure the success of her scheme; she has made a treaty with the King of BIRMA, by which freedom to trade and travel in Birmese dominions for French subjects has been secured, and now she has established an outpost at the mouth of the Songkoi. But can she divert trade from its natural channel? Moulmein and Rangoon are really much nearer to Europe and India than Hong Kong or Shanghai, and goods sent to Birma from Yunan and Khwy-Tchou have far less distance to be conveyed. But no particular end is subserved by laying down the merchandise at the mouth of the Songkoi, as far from Europe, or nearly so, as the Chinese ports, where there are no resident British capitalists to buy up the commodities for shipment—a place, in fact, which leads nowhere; whereas Birma contains in itself two great trading centres, and directly fronts the dense masses of the populous provinces of India. On the whole, then, we think we have little to hope and less to fear from the advance of the tricolour along the banks of the Songkoi.

THE RESIDENT AT PERAK.

MR. LOWTHER announced in the House on Monday that Government had not yet come to any decision respecting Sir A. CLARKE'S plan for appointing a Resident in Perak; but he went on to say that if it were adopted, and suitable officers who spoke Malay or Chinese were not to be found in the Straits Service, the deficiency would be supplied from officers of the Indian army who had been stationed in the Straits, or from the Chinese Consular Service. As well might Mr. LOWTHER look for adepts in Greek and Russian, among our officers who were once quartered in Corfu or who served in the Crimea, as look for a Malay or Chinese scholar among the Madras officers who were sent from their sleepy hollow to what they justly deemed the "foreign" station of the Straits. The Consular Service may supply speakers of Chinese, but this would be an unimportant qualification in a Resident sent to teach the Malays how to govern their country; for a Malay rajah knows as much of Chinese as he does of Italian; and the majority of the Chinese who flock to the Straits and the Peninsula soon pick up the Malay language from the inhabitants. Besides, the Chinese of one province is unintelligible to the people of another. The Cantonese, for instance, does not understand a word of the Amoy or Fohkien dialect. In the Straits two or three Chinese dialects are spoken, and it is not unusual to see two Celestials conversing in Malay, because their mother tongues are Greek to each other. The Straits Service has, no doubt, excellent officers, with all the requisite linguistic and other qualifications, though it may be doubted whether they are to be found among the pliant heroes whom Sir H. ORD delighted to reward for their useful aid and connivance in the building and whitewashing of the great monument of his fame—Government House. Certainly the want of self-respect, which the late Governor liked so much in subordinates, is not exactly the quality which is best calculated to command the respect of the natives. It is to be hoped, at all events, that Sir A. CLARKE will restore the Indian practice on the subject of presents, and that we shall hear no more of Baksheesh in the Straits. It would be bad enough to make a Residency, what acting appointments used to be, the reward of complaisant neglect of duty; but it would be worse to send to the Malays a teacher who might only unteach them the "vain error" of supposing that British officers scorned to take a present of their krises, or slabs of tin and gold teapots.

THE BARON VON OVERBECK'S section of the Chinese department at the Vienna Exhibition has been awarded the following prizes:—Three medals of progress (highest class), fifteen medals of merit, twelve diplomas of honourable mention, three large medals for excellence in taste and designs, three medals for "mitarbeiter," altogether thirty-six prizes, which will be forwarded to the recipients as soon as they are ready, which will be some time in July next. The President of the French Republic has conferred upon Baron VON OVERBECK the distinction of the Legion of Honour, accompanied by a very flattering letter from the Duc DECAZES, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, signifying that the distinction is conferred for important services rendered to the commercial interests of France.

SIR ANDREW CLARKE is pushing his vigorous policy in the Straits, and reducing to order the native States whose disorganisation has been for so many years a disgrace to our Government. The chiefs have already learnt to appreciate the firm and straightforward character of the new Governor; they are willing to submit their differences to his decision; they already ask for his advice and assistance. At the same time, having given timely warning, he has shown that he knows when and how to strike the decisive blow.

Now that the Treaty of Perak has been concluded by Governor CLARKE it is to be hoped that his Excellency will endeavour to bring about a better state of things in Pahang. That country has been miserably misruled, and the trade with Singapore is crippled, owing to the insecurity of life and property. Sir HARRY ORD visited Pahang some time since, with a view to arranging matters, but was unsuccessful.

BY reference to another part of our paper it will be seen that the fortnightly service of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, which for a time was discontinued, is resumed. It will be found that the San Francisco and Panama route has been amalgamated with that of China and Japan, and that a considerable reduction in the fares has been established.

WE regret to hear that the Chinese Commission—which includes Mr. MACPHERSON, Mr. RUBERY, and Mr. HUBER, besides the chief—to inquire into the condition of the coolies at Cuba, has met with much delay, owing to the disturbed state of the country.

OUR Hamburg correspondent announces that the appointment of German Minister at Peking has been bestowed on Herr von BRANDT, now at Yedo, and Herr FOCKE has been appointed Consul at Hiogo.

THE arbitration of the Maria Luz case will not be decided until the return of the Emperor of RUSSIA to St. Petersburg.

THE "Harbour of Colombo Loan Bill" has passed through Committee in the House of Commons.

La Sériciculture, le Commerce des Soies et des Graines et l'Industrie de la Soie au Japon. Par ERNEST DE BAVIER. Lyon: H. Georg. Milan: Dumolard Frères. Londres: Bailliere Tindall, and Co. 1874.

Acting on the invitation of a committee of the Vienna Exhibition of last year, M. de Bavier has published this volume, treating of Silk, the most important of Japanese products, and his avowed intention is, not to furnish essentially new data about the Japanese silkworm, but to lay before his readers a complete summary of all that has to do with silk in Japan, and to give some idea of the influence exercised by the arrival of foreigners upon this branch of industry.

As indicated by its title, M. de Bavier's work is divided into three main portions. In the first, after giving some of the traditions current respecting the origin of "La Sericiculture," and telling us that there are two kinds of silkworms in Japan, the Bombyx Mori and the Bombyx Yamamai, our author proceeds to consider at some length the actual state of the industry in Japan. Nipon, he says, is the only one of the Japanese islands that produces silk, and he divides it into three zones (northern, central, and southern), according to the situation of the provinces and the quality of their productions. Of these zones we find that the central one comprehends by far the most important districts, and furnishes in silk sixty-five per cent. and in silkworms' eggs seventy per cent. of the entire produce of Japan. We ought, perhaps, to mention here that M. de Bavier in the list which he gives of the silk-producing districts has purposely followed the old division of the country into nine districts and eighty-five provinces, instead of that which came into vogue in 1871. Coming to the breeding and rearing of silkworms, our author discusses the subject of mulberry trees and their cultivation, and he tells us that they are propagated in three ways, the commonest method, however, being by means of marcottes, or sprigs, which are planted at the end of June; ten months afterwards the plants thus obtained are transplanted to a place specially prepared, and a year after this transplantation the leaves begin to be used for feeding silkworms. There are no large establishments for rearing silkworms, except at two places, and there they are few in number, and only established since the commencement of the trade in eggs; and throughout the whole of Japan "la sericiculture" is looked upon as a purely domestic industry. This portion of M. de Bavier's book, in which he treats of the systèmes d'éducation of the silkworm, will, no doubt, be found to possess much interest for those who desire to go minutely into the matter, but our space will not admit of our entering into details on this point. The diseases to which silkworms are subject have never been studied to any extent in Japan, and have commonly been set down by the natives to meteorological influences. The diseases with which the Japanese are acquainted seem to be some seven in number, and of late years a disease called Koshari has proved very destructive, but the most important of all the diseases is the Oudshi; in this case it is a small insect, which is capable of producing fearful ravages in several ways. To this last-named disease Mr. F. O. Adams, formerly Secretary of H.M.'s Legation at Yedo, paid some attention, and our author quotes at some length from his remarks on the subject. In the second part of his work M. de Bavier first speaks of les siéges du commerce et l'achat des soies, and points out that the silk trade is concentrated at Yokohama, for in spite of the more advantageous situation of Osaka and Hiogo, with regard to the producing districts of the southern zone, the amount of silk which goes there is hardly worth mentioning. If, however, the efforts of the Japanese to improve their silks should extend to the south, Osaka and Hiogo may, he thinks, at some future time become an important silk market. Silk is brought from the interior on horses, each carrying four Japanese bales, weighing in all 300 lbs. The season commences in July and lasts all the year, the busiest months being from September to January. M. de Bavier next treats of the kinds of silks produced in the three zones, and after touching on the subject of the development of the two main branches of the silk-trade, and illustrating his remarks by statistics, he devotes a chapter to the deterioration of Japanese silks—a matter generally acknowledged and deplored. Our author approves of the action of the Japanese Government in limiting the production of silkworms' eggs for exportation, for he considers that an excessive supply of the article, which might be induced by speculation, would be dangerous to the true interests of the silk trade of Japan. After some observations on the efforts which are being made to remedy the deterioration of Japanese silks, and on the influence of the Government and the corporations (or guilds) on trade, M. de Bavier passes to the third portion of his work, L'Industrie de la Soie. In this he treats of the manufacture of native silk-stuffs, and the machinery in use for spinning and weaving. In the north, he tells us, he saw apparatus employed which was even of a more primitive nature than that here described, and he was often astonished at the magnificent stuffs produced by such primitive means, and which could only have been produced by the taste, diligence, and perseverance of the workman, who, speaking of him as a class, is undoubtedly very skilful. The concluding chapter of Part III. is devoted to the subject of Japanese silks and silk-stuffs at the Vienna Exhibition. In taking leave of M. de Bavier's valuable and instructive work, we must not omit to mention that the volume contains, besides an appendix on the Bombyx Yamamai, a well-executed map of the silk districts of Japan by Lieutenant Scheft, and seven tables and plates relating in various ways to the silk trade and the machinery employed therein.

Le Tonkin et les Relations Commerciales.

In the last number of the Revue des Deux Mondes there appears an article under the above title, which is of considerable interest and importance. In view of recent events in Tonquin, it is somewhat surprising to find the writer asserting at the outset that it was not "dans un dessein avoué d'agrandissement extérieur" that the force commanded by the unfortunate Lieut. Garnier left Saigon for Hannoi in October last, and that this expedition "sollicitée par le gouvernement Annamite lui-même, avait pour objet de mettre fin aux complications qui résultaient de la présence trop prolongée dans ces parages d'un de nos honorables compatriotes, M. Dupuis, et d'établir simplement les bases d'un traité de commerce motivé par la découverte de nouvelles voies navigables." After some prefatory remarks on this subject the writer divides his article into two sections, in the former describing M. Dupuis' passage from Hong Kong to the Chinese province of Yunnan, by way of Song-koi, or Red River, and its affluents, and also the operations of the French war steamer Bourayne in Tonquinese waters at the end of last and beginning of this year; and in the latter giving some details respecting Tonquin and its resources. It will probably be remembered that in October 1872 M. Dupuis (whose name will be familiar to those of our readers who are acquainted with Hankow and Hanyang) left Hong Kong with a cargo of munitions of war for the Chinese troops in Yunnan, whose commander, Ma, was then engaged in quelling the Mahometan rebellion in that remote portion of the Celestial Empire. After meeting with some not unnatural opposition on the part of the Tonquinese authorities, M. Dupuis eventually arrived at his destination, and delivered his chassepots, revolvers, &c., in safety. At this point our writer takes the opportunity of making a few observations respecting the Mahometan troubles in China, and we note that he is of opinion that they will never definitively cease until the followers of the prophet are annihilated or else become masters of the country. M. Dupuis' mission in Yunnan being ended, the Chinese General gave him an escort of 150 braves to see him safely through Tonquin, and with them and one of the steamers (after sending his companion back to Hong Kong in the other), he took up his abode at Hannoi, "afin d'y ouvrir un comptoir et de poser les premières bases du traité de navigation, dont nous avons déjà parlé." With such a very unusual diplomatic agent at work, we are not much surprised that complications arose, which necessitated the presence of French troops; the immediate consequence has been the signature of a commercial treaty, and possibly before very long Tonquin will, unless other Powers interfere, become a dependency of the Saigon Government. If the Song-koi or Red River be opened to commerce, the writer in the Revue des Deux Mondes is of opinion that all our efforts to find and develop a caravan route between the North-East provinces of India and South-Western China will be idle and useless, for no route will be able to enter into competition with that which M. Dupuis has recently explored and proved to be reasonably practicable.

The second portion of this paper gives some valuable information respecting Tonquin and its resources. Tonquin, as we know, forms part of the Empire of Annam, and lies to the south of the Chinese province of Yunnan; its capital is commonly known as Hannoi or Kécho, and contains about 100,000 inhabitants; the Song-koi is the chief river, and, unfortunately, like many great rivers, it has a formidable and dangerous bar at its mouth, but it is, nevertheless, of considerable size, and of fair average depth. One peculiarity of the climate is that in the daytime there is a light breeze from the sea, which renders the heat bearable, and there is in consequence little fear of sunstroke, if foreigners are careful never, even for a moment, to expose their heads uncovered to the rays of the sun. As to diseases, fevers and dysentery are troublesome, but not so frequent as at Saigon. As in other tropical countries, there are really but two seasons, the rainy and the dry, the former commencing in May and ending in August; typhoons and hurricanes are common in October and November, and are particularly destructive, but, on the other hand, earthquakes are of rare occurrence. Rich gold and silver mines exist in the west, and tin, zinc, and copper are found in the north. Rice, of which there are two crops in the year, in July and November, is the chief product of Tonquin, and since the outbreak of the famine in India, its export has been rigorously prohibited; in other respects, too, the country is well off as regards the productions of the vegetable kingdom. Wild animals abound in all directions, including tigers, elephants, rhinoceroses, buffalos, wild boars, and a great variety of monkeys, the latter being peculiarly destructive to the rice, sugar-cane, and fruits. The horses are very small, like those of Singapore and Batavia, and are not used for agricultural purposes or as beasts of burden. Fishing is everywhere carried on to an enormous extent, and the spoils of the sea and rivers are a chief article of food with the Tonquinese. The population is of the pure Mongol type, but their noses project rather more than those of the Chinese. The women, in their youth, would be tolerably good-looking but for their habits of blackening their teeth, reddening their lips, and chewing betel-nut! The character of the people is said to be gentle and kindly, and the most common proverb among them, we are told, is "Nature is generous, and we ought to imitate her."

The annual return of the income and expenditure of the British Museum for the past financial year has just been issued. This is accompanied by a statement of the progress made with the various collections, and of the objects added to them during last year. In the Department of Printed Books we find that the following are among the additions:—A collection of Indo-Portuguese works, printed at Goa. A considerable purchase of Chinese classical and historical works, made at the sale of the library of the late M. Pauthier. In the Department of Oriental Manuscripts the following are the most notable acquisitions:—A poetical account of the Chinese conquest of Nepaul in A.D. 1790, written by the Emperor of China; a folio volume enclosed in curiously carved wooden covers, from the Summer Palace, near Peking; the entire text is embroidered in red silk on blue ground, it is said by the ladies of the Imperial family. A collection of legends relating to the incarnation of Buddha, transcribed from a number of palm-leaf manuscripts in Burmah, in the Pali language and Burmese character; a thick quarto. A Pali grammar and two Buddhistic works, viz., "Vessantāra Jātaka" and "Mahā-vessantara Jātaka," in the Pali language and Cambodgian character, written on palm leaves, with miniatures; enclosed in lacquered boards, inlaid with mother-of-pearl. "Phra-Maha-Wak," a work on the laws which govern the Buddhist priesthood, in twenty-one parts, on palm leaves; Pali, in the Burmese character; presented by L. B. Bowring, Esq. A history of the Mikados, in Japanese; thirteen volumes, enclosed in a box of lacquered wood; this work, it is said, was written for private use, and has never been printed.

Monetary and Commercial.

At the meeting of the National Provincial Bank of England a dividend was declared of 4 per cent., with a bonus of 9 per cent., making the division for the past year at the rate of 25 per cent. per annum. The sum of £50,000 was added to reserve (thus raised to £600,000). In consequence of the continued increase of business a pro rata issue of 28,125 new shares of £20, at £10 premium, was agreed to. The distribution for the previous year was 23 per cent.

At the annual meeting of the Colonial Trusts Corporation a dividend was declared for the first six months of 6 per cent., with a bonus of 2 per cent., making, with 4 per cent. already paid, 12 per cent. for the year; £1,250 was placed to reserve, and £260 carried over.

The directors of the Land Mortgage Bank of India recommend a dividend of 2 per cent for the year 1873, to add £6,000 to the reserve fund, and carry forward £897 to the new account. They have resolved to raise the issue price of their thirty years' Five per Cent. Debentures to 93.

The Directors of the London Chartered Bank of Australia have decided on declaring at the annual meeting on the 2nd proximo a dividend at the usual rate of 8 per cent., with a bonus of 1 per cent.

An extraordinary meeting of the Shanghai and Assam Tea Company (Limited) will be held on the 19th inst., to consider and determine upon the advisability of winding up the company voluntarily, and to appoint a liquidator if a winding-up be resolved upon.

A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Whitworth and Co., cotton and worsted spinners, whose failure was lately announced, has been held at Bradford. The statement of affairs showed liabilities amounting to £190,318, and assets to £85,522. It was resolved to wind up the estate under liquidation. At a meeting of creditors of Mr. John Baynes, merchant, Manchester, it was decided to accept the composition previously offered of 12s. 6d. in the pound in four instalments, the last guaranteed, with a further 2s. 6d. providing the estate should warrant such payment. The creditors of Messrs. Hall and Co., of Manchester, have accepted 8s. 6d. in the pound, guaranteed in two months. The estate of Mr. James Harrison, jun., wool-stapler, Bradford, is to be wound up in liquidation. The liabilities are £12,500, the assets £4,500.

The suspension is reported of Mr. James Couban, cotton-spinner, trading as James Couban and Co., Burnley, with liabilities estimated at about £25,000, and of Messrs. Bell and Greenhough, woolstaplers, Bradford, with liabilities of about £6,000.

The difficulties of an old established firm engaged in the Eastern and China trade has been spoken of, but there is every probability that the matter will be arranged, and the liabilities are small.

The market for Bar Silver has become weaker in price, and transactions have been completed at 58¾d. per oz. Mexican Dollars remain without alteration.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade returns for April have been issued. The value of the Imports of foreign and colonial produce for the month amounts to £31,660,624, as against £31,242,237 in the corresponding month of 1873, and £28,587,602 in 1872, an increase of 1¼ per cent. and 10¾ per cent. respectively. In the four months ending April the imports amounted to £123,960,721 in the present year, against £116,109,540 in 1873, and £115,682,882 in 1872. The increase is principally in living animals, bacon, coffee, wheat and other grain, spirits, sugar, and other articles of consumption. There is a considerable decrease in cotton and raw silk, but silk manufactures and wood and timber have largely increased. The value of the Exports of British and Irish produce for April amounted to £19,432,270, against £21,343,026 in the corresponding period of 1873, and £21,033,516 in 1872, showing a falling off, compared with April, 1873, of 9 per cent., and compared with 1872, about 6½ per cent. Of iron and steel, the decrease in the shipments has amounted to 81,862 tons, or 27½ per cent., while the value has fallen only 23½ per cent. In textile fabrics, cotton manufactures figure for a diminution of nearly 11 per cent.; linen manufactures, 12½ per cent.; woollen and worsted manufactures, over 10½ per cent.; while silk manufactures have increased nearly 9 per cent. The only articles of importance which exhibit an augmentation in their value totals are:—Apparel, 15¾ per cent.; arms and ammunition, 52½ per cent.; beer and ale, 13½ per cent.; telegraphic wire, from £15,872 to £139,223; and woollen and worsted yarn, 10¾ per cent. The chief falling off has been in earthenware, 23 per cent.; glass, 22½ per cent.; hardware, 15½ per cent.; machinery, 1½ per cent.; and silk yarn, 20½ per cent. The total value of the exportations for the four months ended the 30th of April has been £77,234,354, against £83,719,392 in the corresponding period in 1873, a reduction of 7¾ per cent.

The following is an extract from these Returns of the figures which refer to our Export trade with China and the Far East:—

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

A general want of animation has been the chief characteristic of the markets, and, in the absence of speculative inquiry, the demand for almost all the leading articles is more or less restricted, and with large supplies prices have frequently declined. At the close, however, a more cheerful tone prevails, Sugar, Coffee, and Pepper being in more demand.

TEA.

The market shows no improvement in tone, the amount of business continues very limited even for the time of the year, the orders from the country being on a small scale, whilst the export demand shows no symptoms of increase. Owing to the absence of fresh supplies, however, there is but little alteration to notice in the prices, but at the public sales rather lower rates have occasionally been established. The public sales have comprised 11,705, of which 11,885 packages were printed without reserve. The deliveries for the week as compared with last year are as follows:—

Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings have sold a shade lower at public auction. Broken-leaf kinds with any quality have been in request at fully previous prices. Fair to good common have sold slowly at about former rates. Fair Kaisows show no alteration, but the demand is dull. Good to fine Kaisows have sold rather lower. In finest but little has been done. Pak-Lin kinds remain firm at full prices. Black-leaf kinds: Common to fair medium kinds show no alteration. Good medium to fine meet with a moderate demand at about former prices. In finest a few sales have been made at the decline last quoted. New make Canton kinds: Common to fair show no change; new season's find only a slow sale from 1s. 6d. to 1s. 9d. per lb. Oolongs: The few sales made at public auction have been at about previous rates. In Souchongs sales continue difficult at last week's prices. In Flowery Pekoes and uncoloured Japans there have been no sales. Scented Teas.—Canton Capers, of old import, have sold at public sales at low prices for common grades. The glazed kinds of fair quality show no improvement; the olive-leaf kinds also remain much as before. Foochow kinds are still scarce. Canton Orange Pekoes: The better kinds of long-leaf have sold at rather better prices. Foochow kinds: Common to fair kinds have sold at ½d. per lb. lower; good to fine are still enquired for at full prices. Green Teas.—Good to fine Moyune kinds find a ready sale at full rates ; common to medium Ping Suey kinds have sold at public sale at low prices ; in many cases the colour has been undesirable.

SILK.

The Market continues in an unsatisfactory state, and although there has been more disposition to do business during the last few days, the offers made have been so low that importers as a rule have declined to entertain them. In China Silk transactions have been on the smallest scale, and prices of most descriptions may be quoted 6d. lower. Canton Silk has been in less demand, and prices are weaker. In Japan Silk there has lately been some business at a reduction of fully 1s. per lb. Deliveries, 1st to 13th inst. inclusive :—China, 1,042 bales ; Canton, 265 bales ; Japan, 295 bales ; total, 1,602 bales.

HAMBURG, MAY 12.

We learn by a letter from Paris that the treaty between France and the Kingdom of Annam was signed at Saigon on the 21st March ; the following are the most important stipulations :—Three ports are to be opened for trade, one of which is Hannoi, in the province of Tonquin. In these ports Europeans are to enjoy the right of establishing themselves and holding real property. They are to be placed under the protection of the French Consul, supported by a garrison of one hundred French troops. All Europeans may travel in any part of the interior, providing they are furnished with passports bearing the visa of the French Consul. China produce may be sent in transit through the province of Tonquin. The Catholic religion may be freely exercised in all parts of the kingdom. The Anamite Government is to pay to Spain a million of dollars as compensation. France is to furnish the King of Annam with five steamers of 500-horse power each, 100 cannons, and 1,500 muskets. In case of a revolt of his subjects in the interior of the country the King of Anam is bound not to apply for assistance and protection to any other country than France. This latter stipulation is of special importance, as it implies a de facto protectorate. The letter adds that the treaty was signed with a display of ceremony on both sides, and the new ally of France was greeted with a Royal salute of twenty-one gunsfrom the ships of war in the harbour, which somewhat startled the inhabitants.

In the fourth number of the Preussische Jahrbucher, just published, a periodical of considerable weight and authority, the well-known contributor who writes under the name of "Asiaticus" gives an account of the present relations between Germany and the Far East, in which he makes some forcible remarks on the dispute with Spain, and the illegal capture of the two German trading vessels, Gazelle and Marie Louise, on the plea of their carrying contraband of war, and breaking a blockade that was not effective, had never been officially notified, and, in fact, only existed on paper. He states that among the crews of the captured vessels were some British subjects, and the appearance of a single gunboat that was sent from Hong Kong to Manila to demand their release caused them to be immediately given up, whilst the remonstrances of Germany were of no avail, because not backed by a naval force. He therefore strongly recommends the establishment of a naval station in the Far East, with a permanent squadron of three or four ships of war and a few gunboats, for the protection of the German trade. With regard to the alleged contraband of war, the writer adds that every European store at Hong Kong, Foochow, and other places, has a collection of fire-arms of every description for sale, that muskets and guns are dealt in every day, and considered legitimate articles of trade, in which a good deal of business is done, as there is always a demand for them. It is believed that this paper is put forth as a feeler, and that "coming events cast their shadow before them."

Negotiations for the introduction of greater postal facilities between Germany and India, with reduced postage for letters and printed matter, have been opened at Berlin, for which purpose Mr. Monteith, the Postmaster-General of British India, has arrived in that city from Calcutta.

At the ordinary annual general meeting of the Deutsche Bank, held on the 5th inst., Herr Delbruck in the chair, 2,536 votes, representing 2.574,800 thalers of share capital, were present, and a dividend of eight thalers per share, equal to four per cent. for the working year 1873, was declared. As the report had been previously printed and distributed, it was taken by the meeting as read. It was announced by the Chairman with an expression of regret, that on the 1st July Herr Kaiser, one of the directors, leaves the institution, and that the Court of Administration had elected Herr Steinthal in his place. Herr Walter Hasenclever has been elected member of the Court of Control of the Bank, vice Herr H. Bischoffsheim, resigned. The other retiring members were re-elected, and the election of Herr T. Sarre as member of the Court of Control was unanimously confirmed by the meeting.

It seems now to be settled that the German Envoy at Peking, Herr von Rehfues, who has been now for some time in this country on sick leave for the benefit of his health, retires from the service at his own repeated request, and that the appointment is given to Herr von Brandt, hitherto German Minister Resident at Yedo.

The Emperor of Germany has been pleased, by patent dated Berlin, April 30, to appoint Herr J. H. Focke, Doctor Juris, to be Consul at Hiogo Osaka.

Arrivals from the Far East.—Herr Freese and family from China, H. Curjel from Shanghai, Vanabe and Harada from Yedo, George Richter from Hong Kong, van Duzer from Batavia, R. C. Pars from Manila, and H. Jonokara, J. Ohabanashi, and J. Yamagutchi, students from Japan.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

The slightest indisposition (that it may not rapidly run its disastrous course from bad to worse) should engage the immediate attention of the afflicted of all classes. A few doses of these thoroughly purifying and strengthening Pills will always be beneficial when the least disorder reigns, or when nervous fears oppress. Two or three pills at bed time have the happiest effect in promoting perfect digestion, whereby the muscles are rendered more vigorous, the spirits more buoyant, and the entire frame more hardy. Holloway's medicine increases the quantity of nutriment derivable from a given quantity of food, whereby the quality of the blood is improved, the tone of every fibre throughout the body is heightened, and the disposition to fall into disease is reduced to a minimum.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

Our advices from the Japan Ports by the present mail are of no later date than those received by Pacific mail on the 18th inst. and published in our last issue.

CHINA.

PEKING.

The latest news from Paouting is to the effect that the Governor-General, Le Hung-chang, would start for the Western Tombs on the 23rd March, for the purpose of examining the condition of the roads, inns, &c., on the route from the metropolis to that place, and of taking whatever measures might be deemed necessary that everything should be in proper order by the 10th April, when the Emperor will start from Peking on his visit. The Western Tombs are situated in the district of Echow, lying south-west, and distant about two hundred and forty le (eighty miles) from Peking. The Governor-General will reach Peking by about the 5th April, for the purpose of reporting to the Emperor that everything has been arranged.

At about 9.30 P.M. on the 5th April shocks of an earthquake were felt by the Chinese people of Tientsin and the surrounding villages, and immediately after they heard a rushing sound in the air. The household dishes, plates, &c., were lying or standing together, rattled from the motion.

Training has commenced for the Peking races, on a course near the Temple of the Sun, outside the East Gate of the Manchow City; and a tent made of matting has been erected at the course, in which coffee is served out to the visitors at the morning trainings.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 10th April; the P. and O. mail from London Feb. 20 arrived out on the 6th April. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

We have news of considerable interest and importance from the little kingdom of Korea. A revolution has happened, the power of the Regent been overthrown, and the party of the Queen mother, who is said to be a Christian, come into the ascendant. It is impossible to rely accurately on reports about a country which has so carefully cut itself off from communication with the world; but the present rumour comes through a trustworthy channel, and is so exceedingly likely in itself that we have little hesitation in accepting it. We cannot explain the position better than by referring to a letter signed Philo-Koreanus, which we published in March, 1873, and which gave some curious information about the state of Korean politics. The history is one of the intrigue so common in Oriental Courts, and the present revolution is simply an overthrow of the power of a Maire du Palais. The actual King of Korea is a lad of eighteen or nineteen, and is the son by adoption only of the Dowager Queen. The old King died childless in 1864, and his consort adopted the son of a mandarin named Li. This individual accompanied his son to Court; and, being an able and ambitious man, succeeded soon in getting the whole power into his own hands and putting aside the Queen, who should have been sole Regent according to law. The Dowager Queen is said to be a Christian, but uncompromising hostility to Christianity was a leading maxim in the Regent's creed. The massacres which occurred in Korea some years ago, and caused the flight to Chefoo of those missionaries who escaped death, took place under his inspiration. A tyrannical ruler, he was still evidently an active one; he spared no exertion to oppose the French and American incursions, and the withdrawal of both, after fruitless efforts to open communication with the capital, greatly enhanced his prestige. Some idea of the firmness of his rule may be gathered from an incident of the American expedition. The presence of men-of-war in the river cut off supplies from Kanghoa; but when the people began to grumble at the scarcity, he compelled the inhabitants one and all to carry rice on their backs to the capital, even nobles being obliged to take their share of the labour. It is easy to conceive that such a man would soon become hated as well as feared; and the revolution of which a report now reaches us was only a question of time. Now that it has happened, interesting problems arise as to the foreign policy of the new party regnant.

No doubt the complications with Japan have been at the bottom of the present change. Korea has always been in intimate relation with Japan, and more or less under the latter's influence. There is sure to be a strong Japanese party in the country, and the imminent danger of war has very probably been the "cry" in the present revolution. We may assume, therefore, that more friendly relations will prevail; the question is, may we venture a step further, and anticipate some departure from the rigid isolation which has lately characterised Korean policy? If the Queen Dowager is really a Christian, as reported, the probabilities are in favour of such a contingency. We only hope that her Christianity may prove to be of an intelligent caste, and that she will not fall as implicitly into the hands of the priests as she did lately under the power of their opponents. Any such result would be sure to lead, sooner or later, to another revulsion of feeling, and very probably to another massacre. In the meantime, we look with interest for further information.

A meeting of shareholders in the China and Japan Marine Insurance Company was held on the 6th April. The accounts showed a balance of profit available for distribution, on the 31st December last, of Tls. 44,696; out of which it was resolved to declare a dividend of 4 per cent. for the half-year, to return a bonus to contributors of 11 per cent. on the net premia, and to carry the balance of Tls. 11,000 to reserve. Messrs. R. W. Little, O. C. Behn and A. T. Carmichael were elected directors, and Messrs. Corner and Brandt auditors.

The annual meeting of shareholders in the Shanghai Gas Company was held on the 4th April. The accounts show a net profit of Tls. 21,582.79 for the year, out of which two semi-annual dividends of 6 per cent. have been paid, leaving a balance of Tls. 3,582.79 carried forward. Mr. Cowie asked various questions relating to the accounts, the plant, and the working of the company generally, and suggested that an engineer's report should in future be presented with the directors' report. The directors expressed their willingness to adopt the suggestion if on a show of hands it appeared to be generally desired, and the test proved to be in its favour. They also accepted suggestions by Mr. Cowie in regard to re-arrangement of some items in the annual statement. The report and accounts were then passed. Mr. F. D. Hitch was elected a director in place of Mr. F. B. Forbes, and the other members of the board, viz., Sir E. Hornby, Messrs. J. T. Brand, E. J. Hogg, and J. G. Purdon were re-appointed. Mr. O. Brandt was re-elected auditor.

A meeting of the North China branch of the Asiatic Society has been held, the Vice-President, Mr. Wylie, in the chair. Messrs. W. G. Stronach and — Cooper were proposed; and Messrs. G. M. Hart, M. O. FitzGerald, P. D. Tata, and Dr. Carmichael, Chefoo, admitted as members. The Librarian, Mr. Cordier, having announced contributions of books, the revised rules were passed, Mr. Kingsmill suggesting the addition of one (appended to the former code, but overlooked in revision) admitting missionaries to the privileges of ordinary members, with the exception of receiving copies of the Society's journals, without payment of subscription. Dr. Shearer showed a rare collection of botanical, geological, and zoological specimens and curiosities, which he had made among the Lusan hills, and in the neighbourhood of Kiukiang, during his residence there. The specimens were admirably prepared, and laid out in the lecture-room, and engaged a good deal of attention. Dr. Shearer also read portions of an account of one of his excursions, in which, apart from strictly scientific subjects, he touched on topics of general interest to all foreigners in Far Cathay. A short discussion followed, and at the close a vote of thanks was cordially awarded to Dr. Shearer, on the motion of the Chairman.

A meeting of the three Volunteer Rifle Companies has been held, to discuss the method of electing officers to the corps. At the meeting of July, 1870, when the corps was revived, the officers were elected by a general vote of the corps to save delay, and this principle has since been adhered to, under the impression that it constituted a rule. The command of No. 1 Company having, however, now become vacant, through the resignation of Captain Kidner, the members of the company claimed the right of electing their own commandant. As the constitution of the corps had not been very clearly defined, the question was referred to a general meeting of the three companies, and the principle asserted was unanimously affirmed—each company to elect its own officers.

Our anticipation of a contested election this year is to be realised. The names are notified of thirteen gentlemen who have been nominated for the Muncipal Council:—A. T. Carmichael, G. J. W. Cowie, M. P. Evans, F. E. Heyden, Wm. Kidner, F W. Lemarchand, R. W. Little, Robt. Mackenzie, J. G. Purdon, J. P. Tate, S. D. Webb, J. Wilson, and A. G. Wood. The present Municipal Council have set the good example of publishing a list containing the names of those eligible for election to civic honours; and any two persons qualified to vote may select and nominate any nine of these gentlemen they please—the consent of the nominees to serve being, however, essential. The nominations closed on the 6th April.

The amateur performers of H.M.S. Cadmus have given a performance at the Lyceum, in aid of the fund for the admission of sick poor to the General Hospital. The pieces were the farce Retained for the Defence, and the burlesque Acis and Galatea; and the assistance was given of an orchestra of amateurs under the leadership of M. Remusat. There was a fair attendance, and the entertainment gave lively satisfaction, and brought out some very good acting. The play wound up with a graceful farewell, set to the air of "Auld Lang Syne," and sung on behalf of the "Cadmusses" generally by the actors in the burlesque of Acis and Galatea.

The drama of The Bells, given by the Amateur Dramatic Corps, as the third performance for the season, went off with a success more complete than from its requirements some people anticipated. The actors were well up in their parts, the situations carefully managed, and the scenery most effective and artistic. On the whole, the play gave the greatest pleasure to a well-filled house, and was a judicious alternation from the performance which preceded it.

Among the numerous amusements now offering in Shanghai, the performances of a troupe of Japanese acrobats in a pavilion near the French Municipal Hall are not the least attractive. Those who remember the precocity of little "All Right" and other children who performed here some years ago in the old Lyceum will have an idea of the prowess of little Ima-kitche, a child only seven years old, who is one of the stars of the present troupe. Besides the acrobatic performances, some large stereoscopic views of Japanese scenery are exhibited—the whole combining to form a very agreeable entertainment; and as the price of admission is only half a dollar, we doubt not the pavilion will have a good many visitors.

A sham fight was held on Easter Monday between the Shanghai Volunteer Corps and a Naval Brigade from H.B.M.'s ship Cadmus. It was a little late in the season, and movements were somewhat restricted in consequence—out of regard to the crops; but the affair was on the whole successful.

The handsome new wall and railing replacing the dead brick wall which has hitherto formed the boundary between the British Consular Compound and the Bund, is now approaching completion, and has so far advanced that the entrance by the side of Messrs. Pustau and Co.'s hong has been closed up in favour of a new one opposite the bridge. The improvement is one which not only enhances the appearance of the locality, but must prove a great convenience to visitors to the Consulate from that side of the Settlement, and particularly to those connected with shipping who come from Hongkew.

Messrs. Bush Brothers, Newchwang Circular of the 1st April says the river was then quite safe for shipping. The British barque Prospector and German barque Lotte arrived on the 27th March. The American brig Vesta and the steamer Thales were also in port, the latter loading beancake for Swatow. No business in imports, except opium, was done during the winter, owing to the unsettled state of the money market. A few days ago it was arranged by dealers generally that transactions for the future shall be done in Sycee, as formerly, and we may expect a good and healthy trade will be the consequence. Under the "Kuo-lu" system it was impossible to calculate the laying down price of goods.

A correspondent at Shanghai writes:—English readers will be interested in the fact that there are now three weekly newspapers and one monthly magazine published in China. Two of these newspapers are managed by the Chinese themselves (one in Shanghai and one in Hong Kong. The Shanghai paper has a foreign director, but his power is not absolute. This paper has lately attracted much attention from its outspoken convictions on Chinese so-called courts of justice, and the offices of the paper have been threatened with destruction, and the compositors with durance vile by the partisans of the pulled-to-pieces mandarin. An opposition paper is now spoken of in Shanghai, entirely under native patronage and control. Foreign inventions, foreign news, and scientific matters are introduced into both the Shanghai and Hong Kong papers. The third newspaper is conducted by one of the Shanghai missionaries. It contains a religious article (Dr. Williamson, of Chefoo, is now contributing a series on Natural Theology), mission news, Chinese and foreign intelligence, miscellaneous news, and a scientific article. Its price is fifty cents per annum, and it has on an average twelve pages with illustrations. Its circulation is over 10,000 copies; and a large number of copies are bought by the Japanese. The Magazine is the organ of the Peking Society for Promoting Useful Knowledge, which you have drawn attention to more than once. It is written in a good style, illustrated, sometimes with coloured prints. Its price is one dollar a year; it is purely scientific and secular, but though with a more limited circulation, it is doing, one would hope, a good work of enlightenment amongst the officials and higher classes, who in many instances read it eagerly.

Under the auspices of Mr. Medhurst, a reading-room for the Chinese in Shanghai, with translations of foreign literature of all kinds, newspapers, models of engines, maps, &c., is about to be started; lectures on scientific subjects also are proposed. Yet amidst all this we hear of "uneasiness at Tientsin." I trust that ere long China will cast away her suspicion and antipathy, and opening her great gates wide to Western improvements and Christian civilisation, will advance not less surely but more rapidly along the path of true progress.

THE LOSS OF THE STEAMER "MANCHU."

The uncertainty which hung over the fate of the Manchu has been dispelled by the arrival of the S. S. N. steamer Shingking, bringing from Chefoo Captain Lowell, the second mate and one fireman—the sole survivors, it is unfortunately too probable, of the crew of the lost steamer. The story they have to tell is one of the most harrowing that can well be conceived. We give the simple facts, with but slight verbal emendation, as they have been stated in Captain Lowell's deposition made at the U.S. Consulate-General.

The Manchu left Nagasaki for Shanghai on the morning of the 14th March, with 823 tons of coal, including the contents of her bunkers. She had on board, besides Captain Lowell, D. R. Spedding, the registered owner; J. H. Coker, a passenger; H. T. Jones, mate; A. Courage, second mate; Tauchert, chief engineer; and Goder, second engineer. The non-European portion of the crew and passengers (we believe the latter were very few) numbered 45, so far as known to Captain Lowell. The steamer proceeded to sea, and about halfway from Nagasaki to Cape Gotto, a Japanese fishing boat was run into and sunk. The vessel was at once turned round, a boat lowered, and all the crew picked up. Of these there were five, thus making a total of fifty persons, besides Europeans, on board the Manchu. The steamer then continued her voyage, all going well until the 16th March, when a strong N.N.W. blow came on, with a heavy sea, which caused her to roll a great deal. In consequence, the two coal bunkers gave way at once, and the small coal running thereform choked the pumps and the engine, stopping the latter by falling in and all around it. From that time, about 5.30 A.M., the engine ceased to move. Every endeavour was used to free the pumps and pipes, but to no avail. The crew were set to work to bale with buckets, some coal which was in bags on the main deck was thrown overboard, and then all hands, including passengers, were engaged in baling. These efforts were futile, however, the water speedily gaining. Captain Lowell next got out drags to try to get the vessel's head to the wind, but they proved of little use, owing to the rolling of the ship, and the high and boisterous sea running. During the night of the 16th and morning of the 17th, the second mate, by his orders, was getting the boats ready, and putting provisions, water, compasses, &c., in them. At daylight on the 17th the water was up to the maindeck beams. Captain Lowell then ordered the crew and passengers into the boats, of which there were four, two life-boats in good order, and two ordinary wooden ship's boats. The boats were successfuly launched and, exhausted with fatigue and anxiety as they were, all embarked in them safely, and pulled a short distance from the ship. They had not been in them more than fifteen or twenty minutes however, when the mate's boat (a lifeboat) filled with water and swamped, losing the second engineer and a number of the crew. Captain Lowell went to their assistance, and pulled into his boat the chief engineer and six Chinese; these he apportioned between the two wooden boats, and then went back a second time to rescue some who still remained. Before he reached the swamped boat however, it had turned over, and all who were in it were lost, except Jones, the mate, and a Chinese boy, who were got into the Captain's boat, the former (Jones) being at this time insane from exposure. In a few minutes Captain Lowell saw that one of the wooden boats had swamped, and went to the rescue again, only to find when he reached it that all its occupants were drowned. This boat was in charge of the quartermasters, and did not contain any Europeans. At this time the sea became worse, and Captain Lowell heaved his boat to. The remaining wooden boat was last seen about an eighth of a mile distant, apparently water-logged, and drifting before the wind. In her was the chief engineer and two quartermasters. This left Captain Lowell in the only other boat with Mr. Spedding, Mr. Coker, Mr. Jones, Mr. Courage, and twelve Chinese. The condition of the chief engineer's boat renders it certain that she, one of the inferior wooden ones, waterlogged and helpless, must have shared the fate of the two already swamped; and though, seeing her dangerous state, the lifeboat would have gone to her assistance, Captain Lowell reports that the heavy sea running and the fact that his boat was overloaded rendered it impossible to do so. To diminish as much as possible the peril of his own boat's situation, Captain Lowell, therefore, kept her hove to until two P.M. of the 17th, when the wind hauling more to the westward, sail was made and a course steered for the coast of Japan. Her position at the time was about 130 miles from Cape Gotto, in a S.W. by W. ½ W. direction. About ten minutes after putting sail on her the boat swamped, and turned partly over, losing nine Chinese. She was now water-logged, and as each successive sea broke over her the frightful position of her crew may be imagined. About 4.30 P.M. Mr. Coker, in the madness of despair, jumped overboard, having bid his comrades good-bye, saying he could stand it no longer, the agony was insupportable, and he wanted to put an end to his sufferings. He had suffered from sea-sickness, and was sick when he went on board at Nagasaki. About dark, Mr. Jones, who had been in a state of raving insanity from the time he was taken from his own boat, crawled overboard. What must have been the feelings of the survivors, after a series of such fearful incidents, happening under their eyes, and which they were not only powerless to avert, but compelled to contemplate as their own probable fate! It is little wonder that about this time Mr. Spedding told Captain Lowell that he saw no chance of his life being saved, and that he wanted to get out of his misery. Utterly exhausted and reduced to despair, he drank some brandy, and died about an hour afterwards. A Chinese who ate a quantity of opium next died in the boat, but still Captain Lowell and his mate hoped on, and they were rewarded. The weather moderated, and they put the only two remaining Chinese overboard, with a rope to each oar, for them to rest on, in order that the water-logged boat could be baled out. While they were doing this, one of the Chinese threw up his hands, let go his oar, and disappeared. Shortly after, the boat having been baled out, and the sea being comparatively calm, the only surviving Chinaman was taken inboard again, and the two exhausted men rested themselves. The next night was passed in the boat. All this time the only things that had been found to eat and drink were two Chinese hams and one bottle of Bourbon whisky—the water beakers and much besides having been lost. At daylight of the 19th a sail was sighted, and the boat pulled for her, making signals with two towels on an oar. The vessel fortunately observed the signals, and running down to the boat picked up the small remnant which had survived such awful experience, to tell of them and the sad fate of fifty-four of the fifty-seven who had left the sinking steamer. The vessel that thus opportunely crossed the track of the castaways proved to be the German brig Otto, Captain Adamson, bound from Yokohama to Chefoo, and the greatest kindness was manifested to the shipwrecked men by all on board of her, during the eleven days which elapsed before Chefoo was reached.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 16th April; the French mail from London Feb. 27 arrived out on the 10th April, and the following P. and O. mail of March 6 was received on the 14th April. We take the following items of news from the China Mail:—

The ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Union Insurance Society of Canton was held at the office of the Company on the 10th April. There were present:—Hon. P. Ryrie (in the chair), Hon. R. Rowett, Messrs. Greig, G. Heard, Ede (secretary), Jensen, Karberg, S. D. Sassoon, J. S. Lapraik, Hoppins, Strack, Lindstead, Behre, and Captain Cairns.

The notice calling the meeting having been read, the Chairman said they had had the report before them for some time, and proposed its being taken as read. It was not a very long one, and there was very little to say about it, as there were no new matters to be brought forward. If there were no more serious losses attaching to the society, he did not think the report was an unsatisfactory one, when compared with those of other insurances offices here and other parts of the world. As might be observed, it gave power to the present committee to go on winding up the office, and declaring dividends without calling a special meeting. If any shareholder was of opinion that this should not be the case, perhaps he would say so, or if he wished a special resolution put to the meeting on the subject he might propose one. If the report were adopted as it stood, the directors were of opinion that that would be sufficient for them to go on winding up. The speaker then proposed the adoption of the report. Mr. Heard seconded, and it was unanimously carried. The Chairman intimated that the paid-up capital of the expired office would be ready for payment to the shareholders on the 13th April. He thought it would be satisfactory to them. The meeting then separated.

The coroner and a jury have been engaged in investigating the cause of the death of one Chun A-ngan, an umbrella-maker, at Queen's-road West. It appears that the deceased had been suffering from some cutaneous eruption on the forehead, and he consulted one Wong Achun, a herbalist, who sometimes prescribed for people suffering from any external complaints. He took the eruption to be leprosy, and accordingly gave the deceased a poisonous root known by the Chinese as Woo Min Keong. This plant has many technical names, but the most generally known is the one given above. According to the man's own statement, he gave the deceased about four maces weight of this root, with instructions to boil it into a soup with pork, and to be taken in homeopathic doses, so that the whole weight of the root would be sufficient for forty doses. But whether he did or did not give these instructions, or whether the deceased understood them or not the deceased made the whole into one dose, and soon after partaking of this decoction or soup, felt a giddiness in the head, followed by alarming symptoms. The herbalist was apprised of the fact, and he hastened to administer an antidote in the shape of goat's blood, mixed with some medicinal ingredients, but to no avail, as the deceased rapidly sank and died. At the inquest several Chinese medical practitioners were examined, all testifying to the highly poisonous nature of the root, and to its being never used as an internal medicine. None of them, however, had any personal experience of death having arisen from its use. What they deposed to had been gathered from theory and hearsay. Dr. Wharry also testified to the root being a poison from experiments on dogs, but the analysis of the contents of the deceased's stomach did not reveal any trace of irritant poison. The jury, after due consideration, found the herbalist guilty of manslaughter, with a recommendation to the Government to pass a law prohibiting the sale of poisonous medicines by Chinese druggists.

The Chinese Mail gives an account of the interview some of the leading Chinese had with the Governor on the 7th April. The deputation was the largest that had ever waited on Sir Arthur Kennedy, being composed of some thirty members. They spoke on behalf of the four Chinese sentenced to death for murder, and whom the special jury had recommended to mercy. The reason the Chinese gave in extenuation was that the moral character of the woman Chung Fooktai was bad, and that the neighbours tried to reform her. Moreover, that the day on which the occurrence took place was the second day of the Chinese new year. It was a day of great significance with the Chinese, and no doubt both parties had been indulging in liquor. The deputation next brought forward the nuisance and danger arising from the burning of paint oil. The effluvium it produced was offensive and injurious to health, while the danger of fire was great. The Governor said that by the existing law persons guilty of that offence could be prosecuted, but he promised to see into the matter. H.E. then pointed out to the deputation the evils attending the emigration of women. The law allowed only less than twenty females being conveyed without reporting to the Emigration Officer; but evil doers had managed to elude the law by taking only eighteen or nineteen, and these they put through a course of lessons, using threats, so that when they were interrogated, they might say they went to the places they were bound for to look for their husbands or some other relatives. H. E. requested the co-operation of the Chinese to put down the evil. The deputation finally brought forward the disgraceful state of Taipingshan. The Governor said he had consulted the Surveyor General on the subject, and attention would be paid to it as soon as possible. This state of the roads and streets there had existed for the last twenty or thirty years, and the evil could not be expected to be eradicated all at once. The deputation then withdrew.

The Supreme Court was engaged throughout the 15th April with hearing a suit in equity wherein the Manchester and Salford Bank were the plaintiff, and Messrs. John Burd and Co., defendants. The case was finally adjourned. Mr. Kingsmill appeared for the plaintiffs, Mr. Hyllar for the defendants, and Mr. Handley for the official assignee in the bankruptcy of Jors and Co., and Severs and Co.

We hear from Amoy that a severe storm passed over that port on the 12th April. The downpour of rain was tremendous, and the claps of thunder were appalling. The lightning shook the house occupied by Mr. Patterson, of Tait and Co., making two huge cracks in a wall, and knocking down a coolie, who was at first imagined to be dead, but who was found, however, afterwards to be more frightened than hurt. A wild cat, said to be of immense size, which has been prowling about Keelong, was seen lately, much to the annoyance of poultry breeders, whose yards he lays severely under requisition. Two Chinese gunvessels, the Ta-an-lan and the Chenghai, arrived on the 13th April, most probably in connection with the reported affair between Japan and Formosa.

In the Summary Jurisdiction Court Mr. Justice Bramston has delivered judgment in the case of Lee Luk v. Lee Si Moi. This was a suit between two Chinese females, and in the course of the examination, which has occupied the attention of the Court for two days, most conflicting evidence was adduced, the defendant denying in toto the existence of the promissory note. His Honour, however, believed the plaintiff's story, and gave judgment in her favour with costs. He did not take further notice of the defendant's evidence, as he thought the justice of the case would be met by a judgment against her.

The P. and O. Company's new coal wharf is progressing favourably, piles having been driven over 100 feet out. Mooring buoys are also being manufactured at the company's factory in connection with the same. We understand that the P. and O. Company are intending to abandon Hong Kong as a head-quarters, transferring their principal establishment to Shanghai.

We learn that the four Chinese convicted of murder at British Kowloong and sentenced to death have had their sentences commuted to imprisonment for life.

The Spanish steamer Formosa has arrived with the late mate, second mate, carpenter, cook, and five Malays, part of the crew of the German brig Gazelle, seized in Manila in September last.

The lighthouse on Cape de Aguilar is progressing fast, being some fifteen feet above ground. The house for the lighthouse keeper is built, as also a landing place. The foundations of the lighthouse on Green Island are being laid.

The ill fated ship Columbia, which was burned some time ago in this harbour, has been raised from the spot where she was scuttled at Kowloong, and is now afloat; by all accounts good salvage is likely to be made.

A petition to the Government for the release of Captain Heriot, sentenced to three months' imprisonment in connection with the Wan Loong catastrophe, is being signed. Opinions seem pretty fairly divided on the subject.

Admiral Shadwell proceeds North in the Iron Duke on the 18th April. The Frolic accompanies her. H.M.S. Teazer left this for England on the 4th April.

Major-General Whitfield has fixed his departure for the 25th April.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 23rd April. The P. & O. mail from London March 20 arrived out on the 20th April. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

There has been nothing occurring in our local politics during the fortnight. The Legislative Council has not yet resumed its sittings, and no fresh questions of importance have arisen. The Hon. J. W. W. Birch, Colonial Secretary, is still absent on a visit to Perak, and his office is filled in the meantime, as we noticed in our last summary, by the Hon. T. Braddell, Attorney-General, the duties of Assistant Colonial Secretary and Auditor-General being also performed by acting officers.

Singapore has contributed its mite towards the relief of the sufferers by the Indian famine. A working committee was organised last week, and subscription lists put in circulation, with such good effect that the committee have been able already to remit Rs. 10,000 to the Central Relief Committee at Calcutta, and further collections are still being made, a considerable sum being already in hand for the next remittance. This speaks well for the generosity of the place.

The greater portion of the Dutch troops have probably by this time been withdrawn from Atchin, and only a sufficient force to garrison the fort in the Kraton will remain during the rainy season, when operations will be impossible. Several vessels conveying the troops from Atchin to Batavia have already passed through the Straits. A Dutch official telegram from Penang announces that the long announced hostile attack of the Atchinese was made on the 11th April, but proved only a feeble demonstration, and was easily repulsed, the chiefs being able to assemble only about 200 fighting men. There have been further submissions of Atchinese States to Dutch sovereignty, and the people appear tired of opposing ineffectual resistance to the Dutch troops. It is, therefore, probable that the war is practically at an end, and that a third expedition next autumn will be unnecessary.

The criminal session, which opened on the 10th April, closed on the 21st. There were no cases of general importance, but in a murder case, before a special jury, the jurors drew attention in open court to the miserable interpretation by means of which they are compelled to arrive at the facts, and received the assurance of the Court that some endeavour would be made to remedy the evil complained of. The Judge of Penang, Sir William Hackett, proceeded home on leave of absence by last mail, and the Chief Justice will open the next criminal session at Penang.

On the 18th of April, as the crew of the police boat were going their rounds in the harbour, they were hailed from the Sarawak steamer Royalist, and informed that there was a dead body floating alongside the vessel. They took the body in tow, and drew it in to near to the Raffles Institution, where, on examination, it was discovered to be that of a police constable in uniform. The features were readily recognisable, and the deceased was identified as a constable named Jahya, who had only obtained leave of absence on the previous morning, and was seen alive in the evening. He had evidently met a cruel and shocking death, as his body bore no less than seven stabs, and the wounds had apparently been scalded in a vain endeavour to efface the marks, the flesh around the stabs being partially removed and perfectly white. The body was taken to the dead-house at the hospital for post mortem examination. An inquest is being held.

At Johore the extreme penalty of the law has been carried out in the case of four murderers. One, a Malay from the Batu Pahat district, killed another, and compelled the murdered man's wife to run away with him to Siak; he had evaded capture for five years. Another was a Chinaman, a gambier planter, who murdered his brother, also a gambier planter, because he would not give him sixty dollars. The other two were the Malays who killed the Kling pedlar and his coolie, from Singapore, in the old Johore river, a short time ago; a third was implicated, but as he bore witness against the others, and did not strike a blow, he was sentenced to twenty years in the chain gang. They all confessed their crimes, and acknowledged the justice of their sentence. They met their deserts by the bowstring with apparent indifference.

Lieut.-Colonel Barlow, who arrived by the last mail steamer, has assumed command of the 1st Battalion 10th Regiment here. Major Nicolls, R.A., goes home by the present mail.

The spring meeting of the Sporting Club concluded on the 11th April, and was a very successful one, both as regards the races themselves and the value of the prizes awarded; and we trust the very satisfactory result of the spring races will encourage the Sporting Club to hold a second meeting this year.

The Sarawak Gazette of the 1st April announces that the negotiations with the Sultan of Brunei respecting the murder of six Sarawak subjects by Tinjir people while working gutta in the jungles of Parram had resulted in the imposition by the Sultan of a fine equal to $8,000 upon the Barram people, payment of which he was enforcing through the aid of his Government steamer.

PENANG.

Our advices extend to the 25th April; the P. and O. mail from London March 20 arrived out on the 18th April. The following is from the Penang Gazette:—

The following is the gist of the terms offered to the different tribes on the Coast of Atchin by the Dutch, and we can only add that, if the latter will act up to what they promise, the former will have no reason to complain, and the sooner they come to terms the better will it be for all concerned. So far as British interests go, they are pretty well protected by the treaty of 1871, and our Government will only have to see the provisions of that treaty strictly carried out. We suppose it will be necessary to have a British Consul at Atchin Bezaar eventually.

The subjected States will be required:—1. To acknowledge the King of the Netherlands as sovereign and to fly the Dutch flag at land and sea. 2. To govern the country with justice; to maintain order and peace with the neighbouring States, to promote trade, industry, agriculture, navigation and likewise the welfare of the people. 3. To oppose slavery, kidnapping and piracy. 4. To afford help to the shipwrecked and to save stranded goods. 5. Not to afford concealment to Government subjects who are guilty of crimes. 6. Not to enter into political relations with foreign Powers. 7. All matters not touched upon above; if there be occasion therefore, will be regulated by the representative of the Netherlands India Government at Atchin, and the lawful Government of that country, in accordance with the existing state of things and with due consideration for existing institutions.

The ruling rajahs will be guaranteed independent government and the protection of the Netherlands, they will be exempted from all obligations, and from the payment of "hassil" and similar duties to Atchin Proper (Atjeh Bezaar), whereas the Government of the Netherlands demands nothing more than obedience to the above-mentioned stipulations, and will not even exact any tribute.

H.M.S. Avon proceeded up to Quedah on the 20th April, and anchored about five miles off the entrance of the river next morning. One of the Tunkus, with four row boats, met the ship on her anchoring, and conveyed the Lieutenant-Governor, Colonel Anson, and Commander Powlett ashore. The party were the guests of the Rajah till the next day, when a salute of fifteen guns announced their departure for the gun-vessel. The Lieutenant-Governor was present at the marriage of the Rajah's daughter with one of the princes of Purlis.

Mr. W. E. Maxwell, the magistrate of police in Province Wellesley, has been appointed Acting Judge of the Supreme Court of Penang.

KANDY, APRIL 30.

The changes that have taken place in the matter of coffee cultivation within the last three years are simply marvellous. New districts formerly despised have risen up like magic. Whole country sides of primeval forest have given way to the axe of the cultivator; and districts whose only inhabitants were the elephant, the chetah, and the elk, are now smiling plantations of luxuriant coffee. A space of ground of probably thirty miles long and ten miles broad can now be traversed in one unbroken field—a thing that I suspect could not be done in any other district of the country. All this is the work of new men and new money—new enterprise and new success. And prices have gone up to a figure hardly imagined—certainly not for many years previously realised. Until two years ago one could go to a Government sale and expect to buy the block of land he had applied for, or whether he had applied or not, at £2, or, at outside, £3 per acre. Indeed, about that time I have known of lands knocked down at such sales at the upset price of £1 per acre. But these halcyon days are past, and those who want land now must be prepared to pay £8 or £10 per acre for it, or go without. Curiously enough, too, it is only in the fancy districts of Dunbula, Dickuja, and Maskeluja that these fancy prices are obtained. Elsewhere, if land be put up, it is expected to be purchased, and generally is purchased, from £1 to £2 per acre. Altogether we live in exciting times. What fortunes could have been made had we known four or five years ago that matters would take this turn. As an instance, I will just tell you a case where I knew the parties. There was for sale a block of forest land of 200 acres. It was offered to two gentlemen, who jointly owned a neighbouring block, at £3¼ per acre, or £600 in all. They had not the courage to tackle it at £3 per acre, but a year later they voluntarily offered and bought it at £8 per acre, thus paying £1,600 for what they might earlier have had for £600. Such has been the demand for land in these new districts that as fast as it can be cut up and brought into the market there are eager buyers up to £8 and £10 per acre, and one lot was lately run up to £18 per acre. Prices of the bean, too, have during last year fluctuated more than during any one year of Ceylon's commercial history. Coffee which in the early part of 1873 sold for 80s. per cwt., went up to 125s. and 126s. Parchment, which was worth 14s. to 15s., went up to 25s. per bushel. And many crops changed hands two or three times, sometimes being bought back by their original owners, and again resold. Bold merchants are said to have made fortunes. But there is always the obverse to the picture. It is said that the system by which they appointed middle men to scatter their money among the native coffee gardens will leave a lasting reminiscence in the minds and pockets of many of them sufficient to counteract the effects of the fine bargains they have made, when they bought crops at 15s., and sold them at 20s. to 25s. Great also have been the fluctuations in rice—the food of the people. The famine in India has reached Ceylon. Unfortunately we are dependent on India for all our resources—for the labour with which we work our plantations—for the food that feeds that labour and for the rupees with which we pay their wages. India being now in the midst of a famine rice goes from the districts whence we draw our supplies in South India, and which are not famine stricken, to those in Northern India which are. And the result is we are punished by having to pay considerably enhanced prices. Let us hope this will soon pass away, and things will soon revert to their normal state. More untoward as regards our cultivation than all these, however, has been the leaf disease, of which no man sees the end yet, nor has discovered a cure. It is a fungus that attaches itself like a miniature mushroom to the lower side of the leaf of the coffee-tree and appears to extract its vitality, for the leaf withers and dies under the infliction. It has now been among us for four years, and has done an incalculable amount of mischief. To it no doubt we are indebted for the very short crops we have lately had. Indeed, during the past three years old estates especially have gone down in bearing enormously; and even high and young estates have not yielded in anything like the proportion expected of them. After the rest the estates have had for the past year, when they they did not yield more than a half—some not a fourth—of previous crops, it was natural to expect a very large crop in the coming year. But it is not to be; as usual, something comes in the way to mar our hopes, to blast our prospects. In March, in many districts, a good part of our best blossom was destroyed by too long a spell of drought, and the blossoming season is now over, so that we cannot expect that lost blossom to be replaced; we shall, therefore, only have a moderate crop this coming year. Let us hope prices will be maintained, so that we may have some set-off against the deficiency in quantity. At present things certainly do not look bright.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

CHEFOO.—Messrs. Cornabe and Co.'s Circular, dated April 2, says:—Our last Circular advices were issued on the 4th ult., and since that date business generally has been very dull. In Manchester Goods scarcely anything has been done, and rates have gradually declined from the prices reported in our last to those quoted below. Metals: Lead and Iron have both been in fair enquiry, but the lowness of stocks has restricted sales.

HANKOW.—There had been some activity in the market for Cotton Piece Goods, but the business transacted had been done at gradually declining prices, and for most fabrics weakness was the chief characteristic. Stocks were fairly large and supplies were coming forward freely.

SHANGHAI.—The past fortnight had been a dull one for all descriptions of goods, and there appeared but little anxiety on the part of the natives to do business. Prices for most manufactures were nominal, in the absence of general demand. Cottons: Grey Shirtings had met with but small enquiry, and a further decline had been established, more especially for the lower qualities. T-Cloths had been taken to a moderate extent, at a slight reduction. White Shirtings had also somewhat declined, but not to the same extent as Grey goods. Drills were still neglected. Fancy Cottons were without alteration. Woollens: The market remained quiet for all descriptions, and there was no new feature to notice. Good Camlets had been offered at Tls. 14.2.0. Metals: The fortnight had been without animation, and prices were nominally unchanged.

FOOCHOW.—Sales had been:—T-Cloths, 7lbs., 1,300 pieces at $2.10 to $2.25 per piece; 8 lbs., No. 1, 500 pieces at $2.00 per piece; 8 lbs. No. 2, 1,000 pieces at $2.55; Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., 1,000 pieces at $2.65 per piece; Lead, 692 pigs at $8.00 per picul.

HONG KONG.—There had been no amelioration of the dulness which previously existed in the Import market, which was still in a most unsatisfactory state. The low prices ruling were as injurious to the Chinese dealer as to foreign Importer, and the trade with the interior did not appear to improve.

BATAVIA.—There had been no change of importance in the import market; there continued to be some demand for certain descriptions of Dutch Staples, the superior makes of which were comparatively light of stock. For Prints and other fancy goods the demand was less active, whilst Yarns of almost all descriptions were extremely dull of sale.

CANTON.—Lead had further receded in value. L.B. was worth $7.55 to $7.60, sales 200 piculs, stock 2,800 piculs; W.B. $7.75 to $7.80. Quicksilver was rather lower, $196.00 to $197.00 being the current quotations.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead's Report says:—Business in Piece Goods has been quieter during the past fortnight and sales are on a smaller scale. Prices have ruled slightly in favour of buyers but latterly there is a firmer feeling owing to more favourable home advices. Grey Shirtings have been taken to a moderate extent and stocks are not excessive. T-Cloths 6 lbs. are scarce and in good demand; other weights are dull. White Shirtings: Medium reeds keep in fair request; fine descriptions are in less demand. 40s. Grey Yarn has been very quiet and few sales are reported. 18/24s. mock water has been taken to a small extent at low prices. Dyed Cottons are in small inquiry. Woollens keep in moderate request. Iron is without change in price, though there is not so much disposition on the part of buyers to purchase so freely as formerly. Yellow metal sells very slowly at declining rates. Copper Sheathing is little inquired for. Zinc Sheathing is out of stock and in some request. Roll Zinc is difficult to place. Brasswire is quiet at last rates. Pig Lead, affected by late China advices, has become very weak in price and almost unsaleable. Prices of Paint Oil and Turpentine are declining. Assorted Paints find few buyers at present. White Lead is wanted. Coal Tar is out of stock and inquired for. The market for Cardiff Coals is a little firmer, while West Hartley are without change in price.

PENANG.—There had been a good demand during the fortnight for the principal Grey Staples, and transactions had been on a larger scale than for some time previously. In one or two instances an advance on last prices had been obtained, but holders generally had met the demand freely. The demand at the close was again rather quieter, but stocks generally were much reduced.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

SHANGHAI.—Black: The market was closed. Green: No settlements had taken place during the interval, but a chop of 886 half-chests local packed tea was put down as "shipped." Additional arrivals had consisted of three parcels of Pingsuey. The Stock consisted of 1,394 half-chests Country Tea, 955 half-chests Pingsuey and 700 half-chests Local packed.

FOOCHOW.—Teaman were expecting to leave at once for the country, their arrangements being about complete.

AMOY.—Nothing of interest had transpired.

CANTON.—No musters of new Scented Teas had been shown, but a fair quantity of the Scented Caper leaf had arrived from the country. Considerable competition had existed amongst the native buyers in the country for "new make" Congou leaf at prices ranging Taels 4 to 5 above those of last season.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—A fair business had been transacted throughout the fortnight on about the same basis as the previous quotations, but sales being chiefly confined to odd lots, no actual quotations can be given. The sales include a small lot of Nos. 3 and 3½ Chick Chop, at Tls. 350 and Tls. 320 respectively; Nos. 2, 3, and 4 Gold Lion, at Tls. 375, Tls. 355, and Tls. 335; with Yellow and Blue Elephant, at Tls. 347½ and Tls. 322½ respectively. Settlements for the fortnight, Chinas, 1,400 bales. Total settlements since June 1, 1873, 55,400 bales; against 1872-73, 55,500 bales; 1871-72, 49,400 bales. Comparative unsold stock on this market on April 8, 1874, 1,200 bales; 1873, 400 bales; 1872, 200 bales.

CANTON.—A fair amount of business had been transacted in this staple, considering the season of the year, and settlements had amounted to 156 bales, of which 31 bales were Loongkongs, and the remainder No. 3 Tsatlees and lower grades, most of which went forward per last French mail steamer. There was very little silk left upon the market, but prices were quoted $5 to $10 higher than they were a fortnight ago. The near approach of the new season made holders somewhat anxious to realise, and there was consequently a downward tendency in prices. New Silk: The crop is reported to be progressing favourably. Stocks are estimated at:—70 bales Loongkongs, 150 bales Tsatle-reels, 100 bales Kowkongs, 50 bales Cumchucks, Lacklows, &c., and 200 bales of inferior description.

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

Advices by the present mail state that New Contract Congous were arriving freely at Canton and Macao, and that fair quantities had already been shipped for London by steamers. These Teas being purchased under contract the prices at which they were settled are not reported, but it was known that the native buyers in the country had paid considerably higher rates than were current last season for similar kinds.

The directors of the Messageries Maritimes have declared a dividend for the year 1873 of 8 per cent.

ANOTHER of the fine iron steamers that are being built on the Delaware for the Pacific Mail Company was launched from ROACH'S yard at Chester on the 13th inst. This vessel is named the City of Tokio, and is in all respects similar to the City of Peking, which was launched some time previously. Her length over all is 423 feet; depth 38 feet 6 inches; beam, 48 feet, and tonnage, 6,000. She will accommodate about 2,000 passengers.

ADMIRAL GARMAULT, who lately arrived at Teulon in the Belliqueuse, from Saigon and Eastern Seas, has not yet had an interview with the Minister of the Colonies in Paris, owing to pressing engagements caused by the change of the Ministry.

THE AMERICAN SILK ASSOCIATION.

At the annual dinner of the Silk Association of America, given at New York, Tomati, the Japanese Minister, responded to the toast of Foreign Silk Producing Countries. He congratulated the Association on the progress which attended its efforts, observing that in silk manufacture there was no clashing of interests between the producers in Japan and in America. Their interests were identical, their commerce was the same, and they were united in questions affecting their commercial and general relations.

The business meeting of the Association was afterwards held, at the Rooms of the Association, when Mr. Franklin Allen, secretary, submitted the annual report, which showed a general satisfactory condition of the silk industry of the country. The operatives of the silk mills throughout the country, the report stated, had been very generally maintained at work, the reduction of labour in all the mills averaging but twelve per cent. in the past year. The report referred in encouraging terms to the advantages resulting from the proximity of the market to China and Japan. The following is the value of the silk production of America for the year ending December 31, 1873:—Spun, floss silk, tram and Orgsne, $2,585,237; broad silk, $1,179,300; handkerchiefs and necktie silks, $1,229,117; ribbons, $2,054,511; pongees, $350,000; laces, $150,400; sewing silk, $992,210; machine twist, $5,517,412; braids and b'ndges, $364,000; silk and cotton, $150,000; upholstery, primage, and coach-laces, $169,000; passementerie, $2,753,000; total, $18,704,187.

THE LATE MR. H. F. PLOW.—A gloom has been cast over the village of Bradley, in Hampshire, and neighbourhood, by the loss of Mr. Henry Frederick Plow in the British and African Company's steamship Liberia, which sailed from Liverpool, with the African mails, on April 11th, and is reported as totally lost, with all the passengers and crew, off the Scilly Isles, in the storm of April 13th, two days only after departure from Liverpool. The lamented gentleman was the eldest surviving son of the Rev. Henry A. Plow, Rector of Bradley, and also younger brother of the late Rev. Anthony J. Plow, formerly curate of Wickham. After leaving Cambridge, he entered the Diplomatic Service, and was for sixteen years the private secretary and faithful friend of Major-General Sir Harry St. George Ord, C.B., R.E., during his several Governorships of Dominica, Bermuda, and the Straits Settlements. When Sir Harry Ord was appointed, in 1864, as Her Majesty's Commissioner to examine into the state of the British Settlements on the Gold Coast, Mr. Henry F. Plow was appointed to the Commission as official secretary. The result of this Commission was the production of a Blue-book, of most important value and interest at the present moment, when the Gold Coast affairs are under consideration. In March last he was appointed by the Government to the important office of chief magistrate of Lagos, a post of considerable responsibility in the present state of the Gold Coast Settlements; and he was on his way in the Liberia to enter upon his duties when his most promising career was cut short. His loss will be deeply regretted by a large circle of official and private friends, who highly esteemed him.

THERE has been launched from the building yard of Messrs. Henderson, Coulborn, and Co a fine screw-steamer of 1,000 tons gross, built for the Eastern and Australian Royal Mail Steamship Company, for their trade between Singapore and the Australian colonies, and named the Somerset. She will be handsomely fitted up for sixty first-class and thirty second-class passengers. Her engines are on the compound principle, of 160-horse power nominal, combining all the latest improvements.

DURING the ten days ending the 20th inst. thirty-nine ships passed through the Suez Canal. The transit revenue of the Canal Company amounted in the same period to £30,000 in round figures.

THE AMEER OF KASHGAR.

A SHORT debate on the Kashgar question was raised by Sir CHARLES DILKE in the House of Commons on the 15th inst. How long YAKOOB KHAN will retain his dominant position in Eastern Turkestan it is, of course, impossible to determine, but as the case now stands we have entered, by the agency of Mr. FORSYTH, into a treaty of amity and commerce with that Potentate, and the terms of our compact are regarded by the India-office as a distinct recognition of his independence. The report runs that by this treaty a new market of great extent and importance will be thrown open to British piece goods; but while we shall be wise to await future information before we speak with certainty on the commercial aspects of the Kashgar question, it is worth while to call our readers' attention to the points raised in the late Parliamentary discussion which bear upon the relations between YAKOOB BEG and China. We have for a long time past been in treaty with the Chinese, and now we have recognised the independence of one whom the Chinese hold to be a rebel, and made a commercial alliance with an invader whom they deem to have taken forcible possession of an integral portion of their own Empire. The truth of the matter is that China, at the invitation of one among the contending factions in Eastern Turkestan, took possession of that country some 120 years ago, and held it more or less completely under its rule for 108 years in succession. Throughout that period Chinese generals were in command of garrisons at all the principal towns in the district, and the administrative policy of the authorities was directed by the Court at Peking. At this moment the Emperor of CHINA still nominates officials to the entire series of actually untenanted posts, and these military and civil authorities are supposed to be collected on the Western frontier of China, ready once more to resume their ancient functions should YAKOOB BEG be by chance overthrown. One danger that has been hinted at more than once is lest Russia should take possession of YAKOOB'S dominions really for her own benefit, but in the name of the Chinese. This suggestion does not, to us at least, seem to merit any great weight. If Russia seize Eastern Turkestan she will surely do so in her own name, and thus avoid needless complications with the authorities in China. On the other hand, it is by no means so certain that the Chinese themselves are not proposing to attempt the recovery of their lost dependency, our last intelligence being that an army has advanced from China against YAKOOB BEG'S possessions. For our own part we would rather see the EMPEROR abandon all idea of re-conquest. He has quite enough to do within the limits of his own "Flowery land;" and if he will concentrate the wisdom and energy of his officers in the development of trade, and on caring for the lives and property of his subjects at home, he will earn more real glory and do far greater good than by wasting his own resources and harassing the Mussulmans in efforts to subdue a nation so far distant and so alien as the Turkestanees. As to trade, we are likely to get much more out of our trade with YAKOOB BEG than we should out of a dominant staff of Chinese officials. Thibet is good example of this. Assam tea and Manchester cotton would soon find their way to Lhassa were it not for the jealous and untiring opposition of the resident Chinese monopolists. At the same time we must admit that were the Emperor of CHINA really to put forth his full strength the Ameer of KASHGAR would in the end be overthrown, and this because of late years the Chinese have provided themselves with rifles, cannon, and mitrailleurs, which the Mussulman fanatics of Central Asia would be totally unable to face. We hope, however, that some higher motive than the mere lust of dominion will guide the decision of the Peking Government on the question. To hold by mere force of arms an outlying province of hostile fanatics would be much more a source of weakness than of strength; for ourselves, for China, for Russia, and for Kashgar, the best thing that can happen is that the de facto ruler, YAKOOB BEG,—who, if he does nothing else, represses crime with an unpitying hand, and keeps the caravan roads open and free—should be recognised in his sovereignty; but it should be insisted that he remove from trade all vexatious imposts or restrictions, that foreign merchants be admitted to his dominions without let or hindrance, that he rule his own subjects with justice and moderation, keeping faith with his allies, and taking care that the grievances of foreign traders in all cases be equitably redressed.

THE "PALL MALL GAZETTE" ON THE CONSULAR SERVICE IN CHINA.

THE Pall Mall Gazette of May 16 remarks at considerable length upon our recent articles on the above subjects, and although its writer cannot refute our arguments or upset the conclusions we arrived at, he shows a disposition to carp at some of our statements of fact with regard to the Consular Service in China,—statements, too, which were based upon a thorough and intimate personal knowledge of the whole question. The Pall Mall Gazette would "be sorry to think that there was any sufficient foundation" for such sweeping charges . . . . as are brought "without qualification against the whole Service." The charges which we are said to have made thus sweepingly we spoke of as what appeared to us to be the besetting sins of the Service during the past ten or fifteen years; and if the writer in our contemporary had been well acquainted with the condition of things in China he would have known that there was unfortunately a very sufficient foundation for our strictures on the Consular Service in these respects. The Pall Mall Gazette is entirely mistaken upon the three points on which its writer lays so much stress. We are not ignorant "of the continuous and concentrated application necessary to make any progress" in the Chinese language; but what we maintain is, that the study of the Chinese language, as carried on by the youthful student interpreters at Peking, is not in itself sufficient to form a real occupation, and we are inclined to think that our Government has provided somewhat too freely for their "amusement" at the Chinese capital, especially when we consider that their initiation into pony-racing pursuits (the bane of the Treaty Ports of China) is encouraged and countenanced "by the moral influence and "general supervision of the Minister and his staff, the "Secretaries of Legation." The Pall Mall Gazette signally fails to comprehend the drift of our observation respecting the stationing of unsteady men at lonely and isolated places. At a large port such men would be under some sort of control, either of authority or of public opinion, whereas, under the conditions we referred to, there is nothing to check, but everything to encourage, a disposition to intemperance and immorality. With regard to the overmanning of the Consular Service in China, we maintain that the fact is notorious, and admitted by all who have any real knowledge and experience of the subject; and we further maintain that this "absurd overmanning" has an undoubted tendency to engender idleness amongst the members of the Service.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS COURTS BILL.

(May 19th.) The Earl of CARNARVON moved the second reading of this Bill, which he stated was for the establishment of Courts for the better trial of offences in the Straits Settlements.

After a few words from Lord STANLEY of ALDERLEY the Bill was read a second time.

(22nd.) The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE MALAY PENINSULA.

(19th.) Lord STANLEY of ALDERLEY, while disclaiming any hostility to the noble earl the Secretary of State for the Colonies, to the late Secretary of State, or to Sir Andrew Clarke, who had done good service in the posts he had previously filled, felt it to be his duty to warn Her Majesty's Government against giving its sanction to the plans of the Straits Government, by which it would not only be entering into equivocal and entangling engagements, but embarking in a course which must inevitably lead to the invasion and conquest of the whole of the Malay Peninsula. The Straits Government were projecting an encroachment upon two independent Malay States—Perak and Salangore. He would take first the case of Perak, a statement of which was published by The Times on the 5th of May, and The Times Correspondent, though apparently advocating the action of the local Government, had the honesty to point out that this interference might probably drag us into another Ashantee business. There had been for some time a state of anarchy in Laroot, a district of Perak, caused by fights between different parties of Chinese miners from Penang. This anarchy had been increased by a Mantri, or Minister of the Sultan of Perak, setting up as ruler of Laroot. Captain Speedy went to that country some time ago and recruited Sepoys for India. That recruiting was stopped by the Indian Government; but he believed Captain Speedy was still at Laroot, and he asked for information on that point. The Straits Government appeared to have taken advantage of this anarchy, for not preventing at least a part of which it was responsible, to arbitrate between the different parties in opposition at Perak, as described in the statement published in The Times. But the object was in reality to impose upon the Sultan of Perak two British officials, to be called Resident and Assistant Resident, to be paid out of the Perak revenues, and with powers which would make them the virtual rulers of the country. The Straits Government had also exacted the cession of two strips of territory, one along the frontier of Province Wellesley, not of much importance, but the other, twenty-five miles long by five broad, near Pulo Dinding, was exacted under a Treaty drawn up in 1826, but never ratified or accepted by the East Indian Company, and now brought out from the oblivion in which it had remained till lately. The report in The Times showed that this had been yielded under pressure only. He entreated Her Majesty's Government not to allow the officials to whom he had referred to be called Residents, a title which in Java was equivalent to that of Governor, and which in British India was associated with annexation, and, above all, to appoint respectable persons, responsible to the Home Government and independent of Singapore local interests and influences. It was with the utmost amazement that he heard the noble earl (Lord Carnarvon), when speaking of the Gold Coast, describe with complacency his arrangements for the government of the Straits Settlements after their transfer to the Colonial-office, as though he had found there a tabula rasa without any institutions, whereas whatever he did, judging by the results, had been the reverse of improvement. The noble earl neglected to renew or enforce the salutary rule of the East India Company, forbidding their officials to accept presents. The consequence was the acceptance of presents by the Governor and other officials became so general as to be commented upon by the Singapore press. The noble earl had the ill-luck to appoint this Governor, who disorganised the public service, squandered the revenues of the colony on building a house for himself, and for that purpose seized the bricks which the municipality had provided for waterworks and drainage, and on their remonstrating threatened to suppress them—a Governor who had left behind him a reputation which could only be compared to that of a Roman proconsul of the time of Cicero. Under the auspices of the noble earl an Attorney-General was appointed who had no knowledge of law, and who had been specially passed through Gray's Inn within one year, as he was only to practise in a colony. The noble earl's successor (the Duke of Buckingham) was equally unfortunate in the Straits, for when the inhabitants of Singapore petitioned for the maintenance of the independence of the Judges, which they had till then enjoyed, he refused their petition, and his reasons were worse than the refusal itself. Under these circumstances the purity of administration of the Straits Settlements is not such as to commend itself to the House or to others for extension to the Malay Peninsula. He came now to the case of Salangore. The Sultan of Salangore had three sons, and a daughter married to Tunku Dhya Udin, a brother of the Sultan of Keddah. The Sultan had given extensive powers to his son-in-law Tunku Dhya Udin, but about 1870 he found it necessary to revoke them. Tunku Dhya Udin obtained the support of some of the merchants of Singapore, and money advances from a lawyer, to be repaid, it was said, by a share in the revenue which Tunku Dhya Udin collected. In June, 1871, a Chinese junk sailed from Penang, some Chinese on board seized on the vessel and killed the rest of the crew and passengers, and took the junk into Salangore. Colonel Anson, who was then administering the Straits Government, sent the Pluto in search of this junk. This gave rise to the proceedings and bombardment of Salangore, related in the papers laid before Parliament in 1872, in which occurred the following passage in a despatch of the Earl of Kimberley of September 26, 1871, to Acting Governor Anson:—

"I observe that Mr. Birch, in the concluding paragraph of his letter to the Sultan, speaks of assistance to be given to the Sultan's Vakeel (Tunku Dhya Udin) in case his authority is disputed. I conclude that this referred to general countenance and support, and that no promise of material assistance was given by Mr. Birch."

Tunku Dhya Udin had been supported by the Straits Government against the Sultan of the country and the opinion of the inhabitants. The Straits Government proposed to support him still further by the appointment of a British official with the title of Resident, probably to be paid out of the revenues of Salangore, as in the case of Perak, and who would virtually be the ruler of the country. Should he meet with any difficulties, British forces would be probably required for his support, and they would be committed to hostile operations in a country abounding in forests, and on a coast lined by mangrove thickets. If it were merely desired to assist the States of Salangore and Perak to maintain order and improve their Government, it would have been as easy to do so without committing this country to the possibility of war and annexation, by sending to those States a British official of some experience to act under their authority. An intermediate course between that and the one proposed by the Straits Government would even be better than the plan proposed by the Straits Government—namely, to appoint officials with the title of Consuls, taken from the Consular Service, and responsible to the Home Government. The noble lord concluded by moving for papers.

The Earl of CARNARVON said that the noble lord began his remarks by stating that he had no wish whatever to censure either himself (the Earl of Carnarvon) or the noble earl the late Secretary of State for the Colonies, or the Governor of the Straits Settlements. He quite accepted the expression of the noble lord's wish with regard to himself, but he was bound to say that if anything could convey censure upon all the three persons mentioned by the noble lord, what the noble lord had just said did so. The noble lord was not justified by the facts in what he had said. The noble lord stated that the Act by which the administration of the affairs of the Straits Settlements was transferred seven years ago from the India-office to the Colonial-office had been an entire failure. That Act was the result of an application of the inhabitants of the Straits Settlements to be emancipated from the control of the India-office. For some reason they begged to be taken under the protection of the Colonial-office. Whether they were right or wrong in their application it was not for him (the Earl of Carnarvon) to say. He believed both the Government and the administration of the Straits Settlements had been perfectly successful. The noble lord had traversed a very wide field, but he (the Earl of Carnarvon) was of opinion that the House did not think it was necessary for him to enter into an apology with regard to all the matters referred to by the noble lord. Sir Andrew Clarke, the Governor of the Straits Settlements, had succeeded in putting an end to the impunity which had been practically accorded to the pirates of Salangore. And as to the pirates of Perak, who had been worse than those of Salangore, so far as he (the Earl of Carnarvon) had been able to judge, Sir Andrew Clarke showed remarkable energy in dealing with them. Sir Andrew Clarke, he believed, had suppressed their piratical pursuits by capturing and burning their boats, and capturing and punishing pirates who had been guilty of most atrocious outrages, and, lastly, by sending an expedition into the interior of Perak to extinguish the sources of piracy. He opened a communication with the hostile party, he conciliated them by his personal influence, and bound over a certain number of them, under a penalty of $50,000, to keep the peace. Besides that, he sent a commission into the interior to adjust differences with regard to mines. Treaties were entered into under which two English officers had been appointed residents at the native Courts. In order to avoid all misapprehension, he wished to add that the residents had been appointed at the distinct request and entreaty of the Rajahs to whose Courts they had been sent. In regard to the question whether the Home Government would approve of the proceedings which had been taken, he might state that they were awaiting a further and, as he believed, final report from Sir A. Clarke. Till that report came to hand it would, of course, be improper to express any final opinion on the subject, but he felt no hesitation in saying that in so far as he had become acquainted with the proceedings, the conduct of Sir A. Clarke seemed to him to deserve approval. A great necessity for intervention had existed. The country had been in a state of terrible misrule, trade had been perilous, and even in our own territory riots had seemed imminent. Under such circumstances, it was but the common duty of an English Governor to do all that was necessary to repress lawlessness and to protect British subjects; and if Sir A. Clarke used his personal influence, which undoubtedly was great, in order to discourage animosities and restore peace and order in neighbouring territories—in a region which was one of the fairest under the sun, and which, under wise Government, might become as happy and as prosperous as any country—it certainly could not be said, at the worst, that he very far exceeded his duty. It was too early to speak of results, but he might mention that only the other day he received a telegram which implied that trade had already revived, and that the state of the country, in regard to public order, was more satisfactory than it had been for a long time past. As to the motion for papers, it was impossible for Government to assent to it. When the correspondence was complete he would have no desire to withhold it from the public. (Hear, hear.)

The Earl of KIMBERLEY would not have troubled the House with any remarks, after the satisfactory statement which had just been made, if it had not been that the noble lord who introduced the subject had included in his censures the late as well as the present administration of colonial affairs. At the same time, it must have been seen from the observations of the noble earl that the administration of the Straits Settlements since the time when they were transferred from the India-office to the Colonial-office had not been quite so bad as had been represented. In regard to the matter of the Salangore pirates, there was some reason for surprise that the noble lord had allowed three years to elapse before calling attention to it. (Hear, hear.) The proceedings of the Government of the Straits Settlements were not at the time challenged in Parliament, and to discuss them now was like dealing with a matter which belonged to past history. (Hear, hear.) It was desirable, however, in fairness to the officers serving in the Straits Settlements, to bear in mind that these pirates had been guilty of the murder of between thirty and forty peaceful persons who had left Penang on board a junk. It was the first duty of the British Government towards other civilised Powers to prevent piracy in these seas by all legitimate means. (Hear, hear.) The information which reached the Colonial-office when he was at the head of it in regard to the proceedings of Sir A. Clarke was meagre, but the opinion he formed on the materials then before him was favourable to that Governor. Laroot had for a long time been in a state of extreme disorder, and this disorder had been caused for the most part by Chinese who had left our own territory at Penang. In regard to the details of the intervention and of the Treaty engagements, he wished to reserve his judgment, as he had no information on the subject beyond what he had derived from the Press. He was inclined, however, to think it would be found that Sir A. Clarke, in whom he had great confidence, had exercised a wise discretion in the proceedings he had taken.

After a few words in reply from Lord STANLEY of ALDERLEY the motion for papers was negatived.

(21st.) The Earl of CARNARVON referred to certain remarks which fell from Lord Stanley of Alderley in the debate on the 19th on the action of the Straits Government, and stated that there were no grounds whatever for the charges which the noble Lord made against Sir Harry Ord, the late Governor. If there were any meaning in the language of the noble Lord it meant that the late Governor had been guilty of corruption in receiving certain presents. It was true that in 1868 the Sultan of Siak did present him with an ornamented dagger, but so reluctant was Sir Harry Ord to receive it that he sent home a printed statement of the matter to the Colonial-office. The rule of office, however, at that time was that though a Governor might not receive a gift from an inhabitant or any body of people over whom he ruled, there was no prohibition against his receiving a present from an independent Rajah, and there had therefore been no violation of its regulations. The present in itself was of little real intrinsic value, but since the occurrence the Colonial-office had adopted the Indian rule, which prohibited the reception of gifts by officials under all circumstances. The noble Lord's attack on the Attorney-General at Singapore for incompetency was equally without foundation, and it was to be regretted that he should have thought himself justified in making them on the bare statement of a colonial newspaper.—The Earl of KIMBERLEY said that he held the seals of the Colonial-office when the transaction in question took place, and the facts were as stated by the noble earl. When the matter was brought under his notice he directed that the Indian rule, which prohibited the acceptance of gifts under any consideration, should for the future be adopted, but not the slightest imputation of any misconduct rested on Sir Harry Ord. He had served Her Majesty in all parts of the empire with credit for many years, and he certainly did not deserve the censure which was implied in the remarks of the noble lord.—Lord STANLEY of ALDERLEY admitted that the noble earl had fully exonerated Sir Harry Ord from all blame, but he denied that his remarks were either unjust or ungenerous, maintaining, at the same time, that the matters which he had brought before the House called for investigation.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THE AMEER OF KASHGAR.

(May 15th.) Sir C. DILKE called attention to the necessity of a recognition of the independence of the Ameer of Kashgar, and of a delimitation of his territory. In the East Yakoob Khan was still looked upon as a usurper, and our making a Treaty with him was not regarded as a recognition of his independence. Russia had made arrangements with many small princes whose sovereignty she had at other times entirely repudiated. Russia regarded Yakoob Khan as merely a sort of successful robber, and the Chinese Government was so far from abandoning its claim to Kashgar that it still appointed governors and military commanders for that territory. It would be found, on consulting the latest maps, that the position of Yakoob Khan was most precarious. The Russians had pushed their frontiers to the southern limits of the range of mountains which on one side formed the boundary of his dominions; and, possessing as they did complete command of the passes, they might, within five days after a declaration of war, be within the walls of the city of Kashgar. Indeed, there were at present something like 8,000 Russian troops within distances varying from three to ten days' march from Yakoob Khan's capital. It was true that Russia had of late appeared friendly to the ruler of Kashgar, but she had never recognised him, and it was quite possible that a change for the worst might arise from the expected appointment of a new Governor of Turkestan. There was no expectation that Russia would occupy Kashgar ostensibly on her own account, but it was conceivable that she might do so on behalf of China, and it would come to the same thing, in so far that it would excite the native mind in India and be a menace to our own position. The object in view in calling attention to this subject was to give the noble lord the Under-Secretary for India an opportunity of explaining how far Her Majesty's Government were aware of the importance of preserving Yakoob Khan's power in Central Asia, and of stating whether they were prepared to recognise his independence more formally than they had hitherto done.

Mr. FORSYTH apprehended that there was a recognition of independence in the very fact of our having sent an envoy to Kashgar. With regard to the Chinese they had been themselves mere usurpers, having conquered the territory about a hundred years ago and been at last expelled by a rising of the people. When the Chinese domination came to an end, a member of the old ruling family was set on the throne, but he proved himself so utterly unfit for the position that one of his chief officers—no other than Yakoob Khan—was placed by the people at the head of affairs. Since that time Yakoob Khan had been the undisputed ruler of the country, and the Chinese were regarded by the people as having had no right to be there at all. The hon. baronet seemed to be very much afraid of the approach of Russia, but any one who looked at the map would see that Russia was separated from Kashgar by a series of almost impassable mountains. Mr. Forsyth (brother of the hon. member), who was now returning from a mission to Kashgar, had written in a private letter that he had the most complete assurance the Ameer would give no just cause of offence to his neighbours. The hon. member went on to say that he saw no reason for alarm, and that he expected no other rivalry between England and Russia in regard to Kashgar than that which would occur in commercial dealings.

Lord G. HAMILTON congratulated Mr. Forsyth on the success which, through the energy, tact, and ability of his brother, had attended the mission to Kashgar. The Treaty had been received, and there would be no objection to lay it on the table. In the preamble of the Treaty the Ameer was recognised as distinctly as words could do it, for it was there stated that the engagements were entered into with the Ameer of Kashgar and his heirs and successors. Sir Alexander Buchanan, writing on the 2nd of November, 1869, to Lord Clarendon, said he had a conversation with Prince Gortchakoff, in the course of which Prince Gortchakoff told him that Mr. Forsyth had "spoken to him of the expediency of establishing friendly relations with Kashgaria and the Government of the Atalik Ghazee, but he said that though that ruler might have established a Government de facto, Russia had treaties with China, and could not enter into diplomatic relations with a successful insurgent against the authority of the Chinese Emperor." Sir Alexander Buchanan somewhat combated that view, and Prince Gortchakoff replied that "the Atalik Ghazee had nothing to fear from Russia; but, as the Government had no relations with him, and the Government of India appear to have dealings with him, 'you can assure him on my authority that Russia has no hostile intentions towards him, or any desire to make conquests in his territories.'" With regard to the delimitation of the Atalik Ghazee's territories, the hon. baronet would admit that only under certain circumstances was the delimitation of territory possible; one condition rendering it possible was that they should have the consent of the ruler whose territory it was sought to define. Now, the Atalik Ghazee had not intimated to the Government of India any wish that his territory should be defined. Moreover, he was informed that the Chinese Government had recently sent an army with the view of recovering certain territories which the Ameer of Kashgaria had acquired, and thus at this moment the Ameer was at war with China. Therefore, under present circumstances it would be impossible for the Government of India to act independently, without the sanction of the Ameer of Kashgaria, and suggest to him that it should define his territory when, very possibly, that course might not be palatable to him; and even if it were palatable, the fact that he was engaged in a war with the Chinese placed insuperable difficulties in the way of such a proceeding.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, MAY 16.

There is quite a lull in politics, the whole country being still occupied with the festivals in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the King's accession. An enormous sum of money has been spent for this purpose, and if the weather had not been so wet and so bitterly cold perhaps the success would have been greater than it has been. I should take up too much space if I attempted to give you a full description of the ceaseless round of ceremonies and amusements which have taken place. Official dinner parties, banquets, fireworks, speeches, decorations everywhere have been the order of the day, and have been entered into with an enthusiasm most astonishing to foreigners, who seem to have the idèe fixe that we always take things coolly. We have, however, during the last fortnight shown that we can sometimes be enthusiastic. The impression abroad would perhaps be more favourable if the correspondents of the foreign newspapers had not been ill-treated at Amsterdam. They were either excluded altogether or placed in such positions that they could neither see, hear, nor write. It was this proceeding which caused me to send you last week a somewhat inaccurate interpretation of the Royal speech referring to the disposal of the national gift—amounting to the rather small sum of £15,000, contributed by 900 places. We could not hear one-half of his Majesty's observations, and when we put together the few words we could catch, we concluded that the money was to be devoted to the benefit of the wounded soldiers who have returned from Atchin. I find, however, from the official report of the speech, that the contents of the beautiful portfolio handed by the Burgomaster to his Majesty will be expended on behalf of our poor invalids generally, and not specially for the army. The Royal speech made such an excellent impression that many have subscribed double and treble the amount which they intended. It needs not to be added that all the estivities have been orderly; we are too calm a people to create a disturbance, even after under the influence of an extra indulgence in intoxicating drinks. Drunkenness here only exhibits itself in an overflow of patriotism. This May-feast will never be forgotton by the nation. I may add that his Majesty and the Queen have been presented with an enormous number of gifts, of course more or less valuable, not only by the residents here, but by Dutchmen in every part of the world.

Business both in merchandise and on the Bourse has come to a complete standstill, owing to the national holiday.

I regret to record the death of Dr. Taco Roorda, the well-known professor. He has well deserved the thanks of the Javanese. For many years he laboured hard to introduce those reforms which he thought necessary to increase their general welfare, and his name will live in the history of Java. His endeavours have not been so successful as they might have been, but they may yet bear good fruit.

Some time ago I told you that the Minister of the Home Department laid before the members of the Second Chamber some documents respecting his Reform Bill. They have been examined in the sections, and the conclusion is, "thankful, but not satisfied."

In some parts of the country strikes have again taken place, more especially amongst the maid-servants.

ROTTERDAM, MAY 21.

A trading firm at Hiogo—the name is not mentioned in the papers—received some time ago a consignment of merchandise with instructions that the goods should not be sold under a stipulated value. This condition was not observed, notwithstanding that the highest market price was obtained. A partner of the firm has since arrived here, and has been proceeded against by the consigners, and the Amsterdam Court found a verdict against him, so that he will have to pay the difference.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Steamship Company Nederland was held yesterday at Amsterdam. The report and balance-sheet, of which I have already given you the outlines, were approved, and Messrs. MM. de Monchy and C. A. Crommelin were re-elected Commissaries.

PORTUGAL.

LISBON, MAY 9.

Mr. Jose Maria Lobo d'Avila, member of the Lower House, is appointed to the post of Governor of Macao, in the place of Viscount S. Januario. I must tell you that Mr. Avila has had no practice in administration, although he seems to possess some of the necessary qualifications. Mr. Avila was recommended to the Government on account of his position in the Cortes. He belonged to the Opposition party, and it was necessary to withdraw his vote in the debates. By his acceptance of the post the numbers of the adversaries of the Government is diminished. It is known that Viscount S. Januario tended his resignation some months ago. Although the Government refused it at the time, yet Mr. Baptista Andrade, Governor of Angola, was offered the post. Mr. Santos Silva, one of the most eminent orators of the Lower House, is dead. He belonged to the Opposition party, although he was always very energetic in his arguments against certain measure of the Government which he deemed illiberal; yet he was always courteous. The Ministers attended his funeral.

The Spanish Charge d'Affaires having informed the Foreign-office of the entry of Serrano's troops into Bilbao, was requested to communicate the congratulations of the Portuguese Government to the Marshal. The receipt of the news caused rejoicings in various parts of the provinces, and the event has furnished the principal topic of conversation lately. The Miguelite party were very gloomy at the receipt of the intelligence—they were on the point of organising a little force in the province of Minho. A correspondent in Badajos says that the news was received by the people there with great rejoicing, and celebrated in a peculiar manner by chasing a bull up and down the streets.

A letter has been received from Hong Kong and published in the Diario Popular from Mr. Francisco do Silva Magalhaes, in which Viscount S. Januario is attacked on account of the means he used to oppose the election of Mr. Magalhaes as deputy.

The attention of the Prime Minister is given to the organisation of the army. Our fortifications have been repaired, and some hundreds of men are employed in the Serra do Monsanto, one of the most important points in the city.

The Minister of War has resolved to develop the means of instruction in the army; he intends to send a division this autumn to the school of Tancos.

SERVICE OF PLATE FOR THE KING OF SIAM.

A magnificent dinner service of solid silver, weighing 15,000 ounces, and of the total value of £10,000, has just been completed by the eminent firm of Messrs. Elkington and Co., Moorgate-street. The great taste displayed in the design and workmanship of the articles reflects the greatest credit on the manufacturer's art. The service is made specially to be used on State occasions, and is in every respect well fitted to grace a Royal table. It consists of a large number of pieces, being intended to dine about sixty persons. Conspicuous amongst the service is a splendid centre-piece, a massive piece of workmanship, nearly four feet high. The design is that of a three-headed elephant, standing upon a plateau, and bearing on its back a castle, above which is a double vase with a tower-shaped stem. The trappings of the elephant are of delicate gold work, and gold tassels depend from the ears. Though the idea of gracefulness in conjunction with a three-headed monster might seem rather difficult to conceive. the heads are so arranged as to detract in no degree from the appearance of the figure. Standing in front, just under the heads, are two keepers in martial attire, each with a long staff, from the top of which projects the national flag of Siam. This piece, which weighs 700 ounces, bears in three places the coat of arms of the King, in high relief, and richly moulded and chased. There are fourteen other centre pieces of smaller size, but all of the same design as the principal one. Six four-light candelabra, of palm-tree design, with a three-headed elephant standing under each, will help to illumine the Royal banquet whenever the service is used; and among the other pieces which compose the set are six wine coolers, six large hot-water dishes and covers, six rice dishes, six oval entrée dishes, twelve bread baskets, eight sauce tureens, six cruet frames, four large oval trays 28 inches long, and four salvers of smaller size, and about 150 dozen of spoons and forks. The design is Oriental, and the elephant, single-headed as well as three headed, figures largely in it; an elephant with one head forming the handle of each of the dish, tureen, and other covers. Every piece has also carved upon it the King's coat of arms and his name in a monogram. The room in the King's palace in which the service will be used on State occasions is 100 feet long. The whole service is wrought and chased in the highest style of art, and has been manufactured by Messrs. Elkington and Co. from drawings sent by them direct to the King of Siam, and approved of by his Majesty personally.

RANGOON AND WESTERN CHINA.

At the monthly meeting of the Huddersfield Chamber of Commerce Mr. Haigh stated that the survey of the proposed route from Rangoon to China, which was suspended in 1867, would now be resumed, as the Marquis of Salisbury had given his sanction to it. Several important Chambers of Commerce had repeatedly memorialised the Indian Department to complete that survey, and it was now gratifying to find that the Marquis of Salisbury, whether in deference to those memorials or from conviction of the importance of extending our commercial connections in the East, had paid recognition to the demands of the commercial community. The proposed Rangoon trade route would enable goods to be transmitted from Liverpool to China in thirty-five days, and would thus open out to England an immense trade with a country containing three hundred millions of people. For the past fifteen or seventeen years Captain Sprye had been fighting with laudable anxiety to accomplish the survey of the proposed route, but until now without any prospect of success. Meanwhile other countries, conterminous with the important Chinese market, had been making all the headway they could. Russia, either for commercial or military purposes, was extending its power in that direction. France some years ago gained a footing in the State of Cochin-China, and thus got command of a very important river, which, however, was not found sufficiently navigable to give her an entry by that means into the Chinese market. The English, therefore, had no reason to fear that as a competitive route. The French, who were very enterprising traders, had gained command of another river, the Songka, in Tonquin, which had been declared navigable by Baron Richthofen, and which had been proved so by very enterprising French merchants desirous to get a footing. This river gave them access to the province of Yunnan, where the English wished to come. The river then ran into that province under the Chinese name of the Hoti River. Of course the extra sea voyage to Cuacum, the port in Tonquin, was in our favour. All those facts showed how eagerly other countries had been, and were trying in to get an early footing into the market, whose population is about one-third of the whole human family; while England, with superior means, and much better physical position, had been criminally and stupidly neglecting the opportunity, in spite of urgent appeals from all the principal centres of commerce. Although England required new outlets for her productions, she had foolishly given other countries a chance to get in before her, and, perhaps, make such treaties as might be to her disadvantage. The Government had wasted time and money in surveying other schemes like the Bhamo route, which, if practicable, could never answer the same purpose. The only way to account for such folly was by supposing that private interests in England and India had secured the ear of the Government to the injury of the great manufacturing and commercial interests of the country. The question here arose, whether English traders were passively to look on, while other countries were using private enterprise and Imperial power, for the extension of their trade in the East, especially with China. Russia, particularly, was most enterprising in that direction. He strongly complained of the supineness which for years the English Government had shown in regard to this question, and remarked that in a country which boasted of enterprise and enormous wealth, and which regarded itself as the workshop of the world, it was disgraceful that Chambers of Commerce should have had to knock at the door of the Indian Department for fourteen years to get them to sanction the paltry survey of 500 miles of land; the only reply they could get from the Duke of Argyll being that the Indian Empire could not bear the expense. He was happy to say that the Marquis of Salisbury had taken a different view, and that the Rangoon survey would probably now be completed.

THE SITUATION IN JAPAN.

The New York Herald, in the course of an article upon recent events in Japan, remarks that the Government at the present time has two difficulties to encounter—the importunities of foreigners for still further concessions and the prejudices of the people against those already made. The significant expression in the reply of the Mikado to the address of the foreign representatives on New Year's-day, to the effect that Japan would accept such intercourse with foreign Powers as was consistent with her dignity as a nation, indicates a growing impatience with outside pressure. This manifestation of impatience has no great significance, however, for Japanese progress has been too fast rather than too slow, and it may have been the result of foreign jealousies and intrigues rather than of deep-seated discontent on the part of the people. The English and Americans at Yokohama confessedly have no great love for each other, and they are constantly pouring countercharges into the ears of the authorities—the Englishmen, on the one hand, seeking to impress the Japanese with the idea that the Americans desire to establish a republic in Japan, and the Americans, on the other, intimating a purpose on the part of the English to make the people of the Empire the subjects of the Queen. It is a foolish and almost wicked jealousy, and may do more to retard Japanese progress than any opposition likely to come from the samurai and the people. The only thing necessary to Japanese progress in civilisation is to let it alone.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM BARTON, late of the Grenadier Guards, and for some years latterly Postmaster-General of Ceylon, died at St. Heliers, Jersey, on the 14th inst., in his seventy-eighth year. The deceased officer was gazetted an Ensign in the 87th (or Prince of Wales's Royal Irish) Regiment in 1811, and was transferred to the 1st or Grenadier Regiment of Foot Guards in 1813, being promoted to Lieutenant and Captain in that corps in 1815. He served during the campaign in Holland in 1814, and in the campaign of 1815, being wounded at the battle of Quatre Bras, and likewise with the expedition sent to Portugal, under General Sir William Clinton, in 1826. After the lapse of many years he was temporarily employed in the department of the Commissioner of Roads, Ceylon, in 1843, after which he held the following appointments in the Ceylon Civil Service:—Commissioner of requests and police magistrate of Matura, 1845; acting assistant Government agent, Matura, 1847; commissioner of requests and police magistrate of Negombo, 1847; acting assistant Government agent, commissioner of requests, and police magistrate, Kaigalle, 1854; acting in the same offices, and also district judge, Ratnapoora, 1854; assistant Government agent, Matura, 1856; and postmaster-general, 1859; retired May, 1867.

TELEGRAPH COMMUNICATION WITH THE EAST.—The French Government, with a view to obtain a reduction of rates for telegrams to the East, has granted a concession to an Anglo-French combination of capitalists for the exclusive right to lay cables between the South Coast of France and the Eastern shores of the Mediterranean, with special privileges for the direct and uninterrupted transmission of messages from England through France to the East. The concession further grants a reduction of one-half of the ordinary rates over the French telegraphic system. This action on the part of the French Government will, it is believed, materially reduce the existing heavy rates on messages between England and the East, which now pass either via Gibraltar or Algiers.

THE Rev. T. Fleming, formerly a missionary at Ningpo, has been describing, at Winchester, his labours among the Chinese. He spoke very hopefully of the future of that mission.

Monetary and Commercial.

The tenders for £200,000 in bills on India were received on the 20th inst. at the Bank of England, when the amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £177,200; to Bombay, £22,800. Tenders on Calcutta and Bombay at 1s. 10⅝d. will receive about 56 per cent. These results show a falling off in the demand for means of remittance to the East.

The tendency of the Japanese Loans has been undecided, and in the absence of sales of importance a slight decline has ensued. The Nine per Cent. Loan closed at 104 to 106, the Seven per Cents. at 94 to 96.

The report of Reuter's Telegram Company (Limited) shows an available total of £9,051, including a previous balance of £291, and recommends a dividend of 7½ per cent., making with the interim payment 10 per cent. for the year.

The suspension is reported of Messrs. Harrisons, Camidge, and Co., of Whalley and Sabden, cotton manufacturers, with liabilities stated at about £6,000. A meeting of the creditors of Mr. R. Driver, top maker, of Dudley-hill, has been held at Bradford. The liabilities were £10,000, and the assets £4,500. It was resolved to liquidate by arrangement. A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Lister, Greenhough, and Co., woolstaplers, Bradford, has been held. A statement of affairs produced showed the liabilities to be £31,029 9s. 7d., and the assets £4,194 18s. It was resolved to wind up the estate in liquidation.

Copper dull. £74 has been accepted for some large parcels of bars. Lead firmer. The price has advanced about 5s. per ton during the week.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

The Market has been quieter in tone. The demand for both Goods and Yarns has slackened, yet producers of the better descriptions have adhered, and still continue to adhere, firmly to their full quotations, and no alteration on last mail's rates can be noted at the close. In the lower qualities of goods, however, some anxiety is manifested to realise, and prices of these rule in favour of buyers.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—The market both for Brazil and mild Coffees remains sluggish, consumers buying sparingly. We quote as follows:—Java (Government bags) 24c. to 25c.; Java (mats) 23c. to 25½c.; Singapore, 19½c. to 21c.; Ceylon, Native, 19c. to 21c.

CORDAGE.—The following are the current quotations:—Manila Cordage, sizes above 12-thread, 17c.; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, ¼ in. and 5-16 in. diam., 18c.; do. 12-thread, ⅜ in. diam., 17½c.; do. Hay Rope, 17½c.; do. Cordage, Bolt Rope Yarns, 19c.; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, 20c.; Tarred Manila, 16½c.; Fine Tarred Manila Lath Yarn, 18c.

HEMP.—The demand for Manila is very light, and there is scarcely any business doing.

INDIGO.—The market is steady. We note sales of 14 to 15 cases Manila at 65c. to 85c., and 10 cases Madras at 85c. to 90c.

RICE.—The demand is fairly good, but it is principally for home consumption.

SUGAR.—The market for Raw Sugar, after being buoyant, is a shade duller, but prices are firm. The Refined article is less active, and prices have receded.

SPICES.—Nutmegs are well held, and for most descriptions of goods there is a fair demand at the following quotations:—China Cassia, 25c.; Batavia ditto, 26c.; Nutmegs, $1.10 to 1.15; Mace, $1.18 to 1.26.

TIN.—Straits Tin is quoted 24⅝c. to 25c., and Banca 26½c. to 26⅝c. (gold).

TEA.—The auction sales exert a depressing influence on the market for invoices, the jobbers supplying their wants to a great extent from these sales. We hear of no new feature in the market. The sales are 2,950 half-chests Green, 4,700 ditto Oolong, 2,400 ditto Japan, and 700 ditto Pingsuey. By auction, 961 half-chests Green sold at 21½c. to 66½c.; 440 ditto Formosa Oolong 46c. to 54c.; and 536 ditto Amoy ditto, 27½c. to 30c., cash.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS supply to suffering humanity all that knowledge, science, and skill can accomplish for its alleviation and cure. Neuralgia, sciatica, muscular aches and pains, lumbago, gout, rheumatism, and cruel rheumatic gout give way before the soothing and anti-inflammatory powers exercised by Holloway's Ointment, which, when properly carried out, is competent to clear away the enlarged and stiff joints, contracted sinews, stiffness, lameness, and weariness too frequently the sad sequels of the above afflictions. Holloway's Ointment, rubbed upon the pit of the stomach, right side, and loins, relieves indigestion, bilious complaints, palpitations, uneasiness, or disorders of the kidneys; and, when rubbed upon the abdomen, arrests irritation of the bowels, diarrhœa, dysentery, and spares its excruciating tenesmus or straining.

MISSIONS TO CHINA.

THE LONDON MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

At the meeting of the London Missionary Society, held last week, the Rev. J. Lees, of Tientsin, spoke as follows upon the work of the Society in China :—

It is remarkable that after 4,000 years of ups and downs the Chinese nation was never so prosperous, never so numerous, never so consolidated as I believe it was during the first half of the present century or the last half of the preceding one. If you are really in earnest in seeking the salvation of the world you could not do better than attack vigorously a great empire like that. Then there is another thought. You are debtors to China. Why are Englishmen in China? Why are missionaries there? You want something from her. She did not want you, but you wanted her tea and her silk, and I heard only a little while ago in conversation with a gentleman that the tea imported into England last year was 140,000,000 lbs. I cannot recall the value of British trade with China, but it is enormous, and mark you, nearly the whole of the foreign trade of China is British, nearly the whole of the foreign shipping engaged in the trade is British. You owe something to China—you cannot do without her—she is helping to make us a great nation, and the very least we can do is to help to give to her that which is more precious than her silver and gold. But more, we owe China reparation. In the first place you know all are not great and good men who go to China. It is true that we have noble merchants there, liberal men, thoughtful men, earnest men, philanthropic men ; but we have also others of another class. Moreover, when so many go from the Western States, there must be a considerable amount of what, to use a word that has become rather classical of late, we may term the residuum there. A considerable number of men go there who are not such as we would wish to represent us, either nationally or as Christians. There is a great deal of drunkenness there. During the whole of my residence in China I have not seen three drunken Chinamen, but I have seen scores of drunken Englishmen. Your sailors are often not what we could wish them to be. Out of the several thousand foreigners who reside in Shanghai, out of the considerable foreign population of Hong Kong and other ports, you may pick readily enough men whom you could heartily wish to deport and send away to the lands from which they come. These are the main obstacles in our way, and the very presence of such men renders it more and more imperative on you to send them those who shall teach them that the Gospel does not necessarily, nay, that when it is accepted, it does in no case sanction, much less produce anything such as that. When I spoke about reparation just now you cheered me. I know why you did that. Of course you thought I was going to refer to opium. Now, so much has been said upon that subject that it is not necessary for me to say anything here this morning, but I will say this much, that just as in the olden times there was an old Roman who felt it his duty to stand up from time to time and say "Carthage must be destroyed," so whenever a Chinese missionary stands on an English platform, it is his duty, in more or fewer words, to declare our guilt in this matter, and utter a heartfelt prayer that English Christians would only realise the degradation of the nation in their participation in that fearful traffic, and would determine to smite it for ever. But I have more to say yet. If we owe China the Gospel as a matter of reparation, we ought also to give her the Gospel in self-defence. Now, my dear friends, I want you very carefully to weigh that. A great deal is said nowadays about being practical. This is a very practical question. There are some men who won't yield to the sentiment of missions, but they can appreciate certain facts. It is to such men I would speak now. I say, consider the tremendous influence that China must yet exert upon the future of the world. There are two facts which I can very little more than state, and just leave them with you. In the first place it is unquestionable that at the present time China is along with ourselves the great emigrating and colonising power of the world. That is a startling fact ; and, mark you, this is no new characteristic in Chinese life. Because we simply knew nothing at all about China, we have been disposed to think them very exclusive and unwilling to leave their own boundaries. When first they went to China they settled in the north-west corner of the vast dominion they now occupy, and they have been spreading and spreading until they fill China proper, and down the eastern coast of Asia, and then in Cochin China, in the Malay Peninsula, and the Straits of Malacca, and even in Burmah itself. And to the north of the Great Wall they are spreading, slowly, of course, but still certainly, for they do not retire when once they have taken up a position. They are gradually making their way, and are displacing the old Mongol population. Then, you know, there are thousands of them in Australia. They are emigrating and colonising at the rate of something like 20,000 a year. All these facts point to a wonderful future for that race. They are admirably calculated to colonise a new country. What a wonderful influence they must exert, then, upon the future! There is another fact. China will one day have our material civilisation. Ah! do you see what that points to? China, at the present day, is unwilling to have our railways and telegraphs ; and there are reasons for those things into which we cannot go this morning—perhaps they are more excusable than we are apt to think sometimes—but the day is coming when the barriers will be broken down ; and, perhaps more speedily than some imagine, railways will cover the land and all the signs of material progress. She will get all the results of our material advance. Now the question for us is whether China shall have that plus our Christianity or without the Christianity. You do not tell me that that is an idle tale. It is very significant indeed that while the Chinese are very unwilling to accept many of the peaceful improvements that we have made in western lands, they are accepting our material of war. When I left Tien-tsin there had been for some time in existence there a powder factory, a very large place. I think one of the over-lookers told me it was nearly a mile in length and half-a-mile in breadth, with a large number of buildings spread over a large area of ground, and it turned out eight cwt. of powder every day. They have a large arsenal in Shanghai, another in Foochow, they are arming the forts at Foochow and other places with Krupp cannon ; they have a large number of troops armed with our own rifles. All these things show that China is willing to accept our material progress so far as they develop her material power. They have a number of gunboats built in those arsenals to keep the coast of China ; they have already built one frigate, and they intend to launch another. The next war with China—if such a terrible event should take place, and there are many who fear that it cannot be possibly averted—depend upon it will be a very different thing from the last. Put together these facts, that China is one of the great emigrating and colonising countries of the world, and that she is certain to have our material civilisation, and they form a tremendous argument for the evangelisation of that country. If we do not want to have the Goths and Vandals over again in a far more terrible form, then we must give the Gospel to China. You say there are difficulties in the way. Yes ; one is the size of the field, and the difficulty of enabling people at home to realise it, but there is also the opposition of the literati. I hold in my hand a little book published in China a year or two ago, and which had a considerable effect at that time in increasing the hostility of the people against foreigners. The opposition of the literati against foreigners is largely founded upon ignorance. They cannot understand the strange teachings of the Gospel. Many Gospel truths are also opposed to what they feel to be good. They confound us with Romanism ; they are opposed to the results of science ; they cannot understand our presence simply as teachers, and they imagine that we are Government agents. There are some people who speak about failure, and say that we have failed in China. Now, up to 1841 you had only had fifty-eight missionaries there ; it is an actual fact that our work has gone prosperously forward in China only since 1860. We did not begin to work really vigorously before that. Within the last week I have had a letter from one of our missionaries in North China, complaining to me that it is reported that I am going up and down England telling the people that we have some 15,000 Protestant converts in China, that this was doing a great deal of harm, and that he had given the lie to this, and wished me to do so publicly. I do so very decidedly, and with a very emphatic condemnation of the way in which many men seem to be terribly anxious to get hold of anything that will hinder Christian missions. I never said anything of the kind. In 1866 it was supposed we had 5,000 converts in connection with Protestant missions there. When Griffith John was in England a year or two ago, he told you we might estimate the number of converts at 7,000. Now I have to tell you that when I left last June there was a general agreement of opinion that we could not put the entire number at less than 10,000; but with respect to the northern province, where I have been labouring, the result has been still more extraordinary.

THE PRESBYTERIAN MISSIONS.

At last week's meeting of the Presbyterian Synod Mr. Hugh M. Matheson presented the report on Foreign Missions. The China Mission, which so largely occupies the attention of the Church, was commenced twenty-five years ago, and during the past year has enjoyed uninterrupted prosperity and success. The Mission is divided into three divisions—viz., Amoy, Swatow, and Formosa. Connected with these are fifty-four stations ; forty native evangelists ; ten ordained and three medical missionaries. There have been two hundred and forty-one baptisms of adults, and the number of converts amounts to 2,022. There are now four of the missionaries at present in this country recruiting their health. The prospects of the mission are very encouraging. "Every year," says the report, "enlarges our opportunities for proclaiming the Gospel. The prejudices against foreigners, but recently so formidable, are rapidly melting away ; and in many places where the missionary would once have been regarded with suspicion or scorn, hundreds now gather to listen quietly and attentively to his message. The very abundance of opportunities is embarrassing. A wide door is open ; but there are few to enter. The fields are white to harvest ; but there are not labourers to reap the ripe grain, or to gather and garner what has been reaped. We have been all this year earnestly seeking three additional missionaries, but we have not found one. At all the stations the mission is undermanned. The missionaries are overtasked ; and yet the work which should be done, and which they would fain do, cannot be overtaken. The need of more men is now very urgent." Notwithstanding the great paucity of labourers yet in Amoy, "some of the older congregations have grown so large that the chapels have become quite unsuitable for the numbers which have to be crowded into them." The medical missionaries had been constantly employed, and with great success. In Swatow "the hospital," says the report, "has been the means of adding a sixth of the whole number baptised. For the greater part of the year Dr. Gauld has had his hands very full of work, and many of his patients, no doubt, have returned to their homes with their faith in idolatry shaken, and with some knowledge of the way of life." In the island of Formosa the whole district is now open to the Gospel. It is stated that the Rev. William Campbell had paid a visit to the northern part of the island, going through the villages preaching the Gospel. The report states that "while at Posia Mr. Campbell paid a visit to the Chayhoan savages. The chief, whose name was a terror to the inhabitants of the western side of the hills, was ill, and desired to see the foreign doctor. With three attendants, one of whom acted as interpreter, and guided by the son of the chief, after a hard day's walking over hills and across streams, the head-quarters of the tribe was reached. Nearly all the inhabitants turned out to have their first sight of a foreigner. Rows of human skulls, eloven in and but recently exposed, were strung on the ends of the houses, thirty-nine being on that of the chief's ; and from a rafter of the room in which the missionary lodged a large bush of hair dangled, evidently the "pigtails" cut from the heads of decapitated victims. All effort to make any religious impression on the minds of these degraded people appeared to fail ; but when Mr. Campbell left there was a friendly expression on every face. Another savage tribe was visited, who live on the shores of a beautiful lake ; and during every evening of the week spent with them Bible-stories were told to about thirty, seated round a large fire." The accounts showed that the total income for the China Mission was £8,478 18s. 1d., the expenditure £8,117 11s. 9d., leaving a balance of £361 6s. 4d. in the hands of the treasurer. The principal expenditure had been for missionaries' salaries, £4,101 8s.; travelling expenses, £650 12s. 5d.; home charges, £360 11s. 5d.; rent of mission premises, salaries of native preachers and teachers, medicines, &c., &c.

Mr. Matheson, in moving the adoption of the report, said that when he visited China twenty-eight years ago very few had then been gathered from heathendom to the fold of Jesus. God had given to China faithful men, whose names are honoured wherever Christians are known—Morrison and Milne were names with which all were familiar. It was only in 1842 that China was at all open to receive missionaries, but it was not till 1860 that the door was thrown open wide and their brethren were able to penetrate in every direction, carrying the message of salvation. Very thankful were they to God who has given His blessing on the work which His servants went forth to accomplish. The past year had been one of much mercy; when they considered the great difficulty of the field; when they remembered what a difficult language it was, how long it took to learn it, how hard a study to acquire the power of speaking it; when they reflected on the state of that heathen civilisation which exists in China—a civilisation, as they all knew, of very ancient date, for they were civilised in China long before we were in Great Britain—and when they had such results as they had, it should encourage them to go forward, looking up in faith to Christ to continue His blessing and extension of the work. A great responsibility rested upon them in connection with their mission in China. They could not draw back, but were being drawn forward by every step they took. The door was so open because when the people heard the Gospel many among them are desirous to make it known to their fellows. Without taking the rosy view of the subject, there could be no doubt that in connection with some of the stations there had been a distinct missionary spirit. The Word spoken in weakness by native Christians had often been of more effect than that of the missionary himself. The missionaries now in the field find that the work has got beyond their strength. In every one of the stations the work was greater than the men on the spot were able to overtake, and they had great need of help. In the first place it was required that native helpers should be raised up and trained for the necessary work of going out among their countrymen, and being settled over congregations as pastors and as missionaries. In this direction they had not been able to do so much as they wished to do. At Amoy they had a training school, and they were endeavouring to set up a similar institution in Formosa, but the missionaries had been so occupied as to be unable to undertake anything in the way of training. For that alone they needed an increase in the staff of European missionaries.

The Rev. George Smith, of Swatow, addressed the meeting. Having described the district which is the field of his labours—a fertile tract at the extremity of the Canton district, with a population of at least six millions—he said that at the time the mission commenced that part of the country was almost without a knowledge of the Gospel. Some few persons had heard of it in other places, and had adopted or professed the Christian religion, and some had become possessed of Bibles. Otherwise heathenism prevailed everywhere. The social condition of the population, also, was very low, and infanticide very prevalent. Politically the country was in a still sadder state. Piracy, opium smuggling, and the coolie traffic were carried on. At the time that missionary effort was commenced, Swatow was not a treaty-port, and the first pioneers went there simply in obedience to the general command of Christ. It was a singular thing, nevertheless, that the very political anarchy which prevailed at the time was one of the means employed by Providence to favour the ingress of the Gospel, for the villagers often protected the missionaries at that time, simply out of opposition to the mandarins. The first efforts were made by a missionary from the Basle Society and next by a native convert, who was succeeded by the Rev. W. Burns and Mr. Taylor, the latter of whom, however, only remained for a short time. Progress was at present being made in all directions as far as eighty miles from Swatow, and within a radius of fifty miles from that place they had altogether forty or fifty larger, and several smaller stations. In regard to the in-gathering of converts they had not had such a large number as at Amoy, nor had they been so rapidly successful as the brethren at Formosa, but they had received into communion 375 adults, and baptised about 100 children. It was, comparatively speaking, a day of small things, but they did not despise these; on the contrary, they were led to wonder at what God had done for them, and to take courage and hope for the future. With regard to the means they had been using, these were the old means of preaching the Gospel; they had given the chief importance to preaching the Word indoors and outdoors, in highways and byways, and God had blessed their efforts—both their own and those of their native assistants. Another means had been—teaching, and that also had been blessed, as had likewise the distribution of Bibles and tracts. A means that had been especially owned of God was the hospital. God had blessed the hospital, not only in removing the prejudices of the Chinese, but in bringing souls to His Kingdom. They had been much helped by the men, but more by the women, who were qualified to take their place side by side with the most devoted women in England, and both men and women had withstood much and cruel persecution. On the restoration of law and order the missionaries had been favoured by the mandarins, and in other ways they had been helped by God's providence. With regard to the ends they had in view, the first was the salvation of souls. But their work had a human side also, and it might be asked—What was the effect of their teaching as to the Christian life? To that he replied—Their converts had been tested in various ways. Several had encountered severe persecution for their faith, and remained steadfast. Then, as a whole, they were living a Christian life. There was, besides, another end which they contemplated—they considered that the end of the missionary work was to raise up a native Christian Church. True, very little had been done in that way yet, but he thought they had got the idea into the minds of the Chinese. And they were in the meantime seeking to raise up a native eldership and deaconship to rule it, and to raise up men to be pastors and evangelists.

Rev. Hugh Cowie, Amoy, said he came before them to thank God for what He had done, and take courage for the future. The word "failure," and all similar terms, were quite out of place in reference to the Foreign Missions of their Church. They were to consider the recent state of Protestant work in China. Thirty years ago saw the beginning of it; and while it was estimated that there were now 10,000 converts in China, what were they in a population of four hundred millions? But they must recollect that these 10,000 had not been reclaimed from the masses of London, but from heathendom. Viewed in this light, the mission was a glorious success. Then, again, a very small portion of those converts were obtained in the first half of the thirty years. When he went to Amoy, eleven years ago, the membership was about 200, and now they had grown to 2,000. That, he said, was surely success; and there was evidence of the presence of God's Spirit being with them. There had not only been a growth in the numbers, but in the many new fields which had been taken up. All over China mission work had been commenced, amid a deep-seated hatred against the foreigner or savage. Much of the same feeling still remained in a latent or subdued form. After speaking on the geographical position of the stations, Mr. Cowie spoke at length on the thorough organisation of their work, and the successful attempt that was being made to train up a native agency. These were the two prominent features of their Amoy work. In the Presbytery of Amoy they had fifteen congregations fully organised, having sessions of their own, and seven were directly connected with their mission. Mr. Cowie referred to the manner in which the Presbyterian system came naturally to the Chinese with their village elders, and they were already educated up to it, and took kindly to it. All receptions of members were by the sessions, and the whole membership was under their supervision. The people took a great interest in the Presbytery, which met twice a year. They had come to that stage in the work that they must transfer much of their work into the hands of native agents. They had at present three pastors and four young men licensed, awaiting to take the charge of congregations, and several stations were on the verge of calling pastors. The most important work they could do was to train up teachers to teach the Chinese. In conclusion, Mr. Cowie said there was no cause for apology for the work done in the past nor despondency for the future.

THE CONSULAR SERVICE AND BRITISH INTERESTS IN CHINA.

(PALL MALL GAZETTE.)

The London and China Telegraph has devoted two articles in a recent issue to the discussion of various questions bearing on the alleged unsatisfactory state of the Consular Service and British interests in China. Under the first head the writer speaks of the "incompetency of the Consular Service," and, assuming this to be an established fact, he discusses the causes which have led to so "eminently unsatisfactory" a state of things, and the necessity of providing a remedy. We should be sorry to think there was any sufficient foundation for such sweeping charges of "idleness, incompetence, and misappropriation of public funds," as are brought without qualification against the whole service. It cannot, however, be denied that within the last few years two flagrant cases of malversation have been before the Courts in China; nor is it to be disputed that there has long existed a spirit of discontent among its members, accompanied by great discouragement, and that evidence of this has been furnished in the readiness with which any opportunity has been seized of leaving the service for Chinese employment, or retiring on a comparatively small pension in order to escape from conditions felt to be intolerable, or which left no inducement to remain. There is enough in these facts to warrant anxiety and to call for serious inquiry into the causes. In the article before us these are attributed principally to the impr ovidence, incompetence, and general misconduct of the individuals, and only remotely to the Government which originally selects them. In one respect only it lays the blame directly on the Foreign-office, for the system of training at Peking, where all have to pass some two years as students to acquire the Chinese language. The writer further maintains "that the authorities at Peking are not free from blame, inasmuch as they have stationed at isolated and lonely places men who were notoriously of unsteady habits." As to the policy of sending "mere boys fresh from school, to be collected in a place like the Chinese capital with no real occupation—for we cannot allow," observes the writer, "that the study of Chinese is sufficient for that purpose"—we think the writer is entirely mistaken in "emphatically condemning" it. Assuming, what no one with any knowledge of the subject will deny, that it is essential that a youth on entering the service should learn Chinese, and that as a student he can never qualify himself so well or fitly as at the capital and in the beginning of his career, it is difficult to understand where else he could be favourably placed for that purpose. At no place in China—certainly at no port—could he have the same educational advantages, be less exposed to temptation or distraction, or more thoroughly under the moral influence and general supervision of the Minister and his staff, the secretaries of Legation. Within the walls of the Legation every provision has been made by Her Majesty's Government, at great outlay, for educational purposes, health, and amusement. The foreign Legations offer them society of a superior kind, and the smallness of the circle is under these circumstances an additional advantage. Young men may go wrong or fall into irregular and evil habits under such conditions, but it is hard to understand where they could be more favourably placed. As to the study of the Chinese language affording no real occupation, we can only conclude that the writer is totally uninformed on the subject, and is ignorant of the continuous and concentrated application necessary to make any progress. In like manner the objection that men of notoriously unsteady habits are sent to isolated and lonely places might, if true, receive its explanation in circumstances and conditions which the writer entirely ignores. If the service were, as he contends, absurdly "overmanned"—(the exact reverse having been shown by the evidence of Sir Rutherford Alcock and several other witnesses of great knowledge and experience before the last Select Committee on the Consular Service)—it might be a doubtful question if anything better could be done. Assuming such undesirable consular officers to exist, together with the impossibility of weeding them out by summary dismissal, whether it would be better to send them to isolated posts where the duties are less important and pressing and the temptations to dissipation less or to give them posts at the larger ports and leave them to contaminate better conducted officers in the same consulate, amidst greater facilities for intemperance or dissipation, must at least be very doubtful. Perhaps of the two evil alternatives a sentence of isolation where there is less liability to mischief is about the best course open to a minister if he has not the power of elimination. "Habits of idleness and self-indulgence," unfortunately, are weeds that grow in all countries and under a great variety of outward conditions. The true corrective for these evils, in a branch of the public service such as the consular staff in China and Japan constitutes, would be to have some better mode of selection than a competitive examination affords, to make good conduct and application a condition of permanence in the service, irrespective of any acts of gross or flagrant misconduct; and though last, not least, to so regulate the terms of service that all the several grades may have sufficient pay to meet the actual and reasonable requirements of their position, and fair prospects of such advancement as shall afford a stimulus of hope to keep them in heart during the many years they must of necessity occupy very subordinate positions with a bare subsistence. The late Ministry, in their intense desire for economies and retrenchments, lost sight too much of the danger of cheeseparing, until nothing was left to a whole service worth striving for. Good service and loyal devotion to its duties in a contented and hopeful spirit are not to be secured under any such conditions. If this is what is wanted—and in no country in the world is it more needed—this and every other Government seeking it must be content to pay the price at which alone such service can be secured.

As to British interests in China and the wants of our merchants in the Far East, there is much to be said, no doubt. The reform and improvement in the Consular Service so strongly advocated would be a first step, and go a long way to improve our relations with the Chinese. But no diplomatic or Consular changes can ever effect what the merchants mainly desire and enumerate among their principal wants:—The abolition of Chinese guilds, which control trade unfairly; the conservancy and dredging of treaty ports and rivers; the opening of coal mines to foreigners on payment of a royalty; and the opening of the inland waters to steamers, with the laying down of railroads on land. These are all—except the second, the improvement of the ports—beyond the reach of diplomacy at present. So long as the Treaty Powers are not all united in policy affecting these and other matters—and they never will be—or are not prepared unanimously to resort to the same means for attaining a coercive power over the Chinese Government and nation—and that is still more improbable—British interests in China, so far as the attainment of these objects is concerned, must be left to the slow developments which commerce and advancing civilisation bring in their train. Any step forward in either of the three directions will assuredly only be taken under one of two conditions—the pressure of a foreign Power too strong to be resisted and too determined to be refused, or the spontaneous desire of the Chinese for them, in order to advance some object of their own. This is plain to all who have studied the Chinese unbiassed by exclusively trading interests, and the sooner it is recognised the better. We shall then, at least, not be induced to waste time and effort in beating our heads against stone walls. As to the Fengshuy—a great force always in reserve, and of which we hear so much whenever material improvements are urged upon the Chinese—that will no doubt be effective only so long as those who now invoke its aid desire that it should be so. But if Sir Charles Murray, our Minister at Lisbon, utterly failed when he recently went over to Madeira for the purpose of establishing a sanitarium for our Gold Coast invalids, and was foiled by the superstition and prejudice of the population of that little island, it is easy to understand the insuperable obstacles the Fengshuy can present with a colossal empire like China for its fulcrum. The populace of Madeira would not allow the lazaretto to be used, and, full of fear and fury lest they should get the yellow fever into the island, threatened to burn it down, as they had already done once before. But, as was observed, how is it "possible to convert to common sense a people who believe that the grape disease was a visitation for their sins, and who protest against telegraph wires being carried over their houses to reveal to the world all that goes on inside?" The Chinese are capable of believing a great deal more than this, and things infinitely more beyond the reach of reason or argument, when they are required to work coal mines with foreign engines, lay down railroads, or set up telegraph wires.

THE MALAY PENINSULA.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph,)

SIR,—It is doubtless a matter of great public advantage to have a person in the exalted position of a peer of the realm take an interest in the past and future of the Mahomedan races in the Far East, but it is at the same time a subject of deep regret when the good intentions which guide the efforts of that person are seriously injured by his want of knowledge of the latest events—a knowledge which might have been obtained with a little trouble, and which would have contributed essentially to promote the success of the interests involved, or to increase the force of the blow which it was intended to administer. These remarks are made with reference to the speech delivered by Lord Stanley of Alderley on the state of affairs in the Malay Peninsula on Tuesday last. His Lordship referred to matters which occurred several years past, and seemed to forget that in these days of fast living the events of yesterday are already ancient history. What do the people in the Straits now care for Sir H. Ord's lavish expenditure in building a house for himself, or for any of the many other acts which gained for him a reputation which his Lordship describes as "only to be compared to that of a Roman proconsul in the time of Cicero?" The point the public there have to consider is this: The Malay States "independent"—very independent some would say—had arrived at the last state of disorganisation—piracy was rife, murder of common occurrence—and a bloodthirsty war was being carried on; provisions, arms, and ammunition, war vessels and fighting men being supplied from British possessions, mostly by persons calling themselves British subjects. Sir Andrew Clarke felt it his duty to put a stop to a state of affairs disgraceful to any civilised Government. What was the consequence? The native chiefs came forward, and asked him to arbitrate in their quarrels, and when these were settled to appoint some persons in whom he had trust to help them to govern their countries. Sir Andrew proved himself worthy of the confidence they placed in him. He called the chief Malays and the head men of the Chinese together, and proposed terms to them, which they at once and eagerly accepted. So much for Perak.

At Salangore Tunku Dhya Udin was for years fighting against Malay chiefs whom the Sultan had declared "pirates" in 1872, but whom he chose afterwards to patronise, because they made it worth his while. He had been twice recognised as Prime Minister by the Sultan, and he again, of his own free will and accord, renewed the appointment in the presence of the Governor. As to the "opinion of the inhabitants," "another war with the natives or annexation," his lordship may rest satisfied. The native opinion is with the Government which gives them the least trouble and anxiety; and that will be an administration under the simplest rules of civilised law. No native chief is likely to try his chance with us at war in countries where the simplest blockade would entail starvation; and the fearful alternative of annexation can only be brought about by such mismanagement on the part of the Straits Government as would more than justify the recall of a dozen Governors.

Whilst regretting Lord Stanley of Alderley's speech as premature and ill-founded, it can be but a matter of congratulation to find two Ministers, past and present, boldly vindicating the straightforward and enlightened policy of Sir Andrew Clarke, and it is devoutly to be hoped that they will continue to do so, so long as he carries out a policy so truly consistent with the best interests of his country as that which he has lately initiated.—I am, &c., &c.,

THE GOVERNMENT OF PAHANG.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—I am sorry to see in your last issue an article referring to Pahang as a country "miserably misruled, and the trade of which with Singapore is crippled, owing to the insecurity of life and property." This statement is likely to mislead your readers; for, if local knowledge and experience are of any value, I do not hesitate to affirm that of all the native States Pahang is that which is the most orderly and the best governed. The policy pursued by General Cavenagh and Sir Harry Ord towards the Bandaherak was certainly not such as to render that chief friendly to British rule, but I have no doubt that Sir Andrew Clarke will gain his confidence by his straightforward and open-handed conduct and acknowledged tact, and will remove the chief causes of the misunderstanding which at present undoubtedly exists, and for which Pahang cannot be blamed.—I am, &c., &c.,

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

NAGASAKI.

We take the following items of news from this port from the Nagasaki Express:—

An arbitration case between the Japanese Government and the trustee of the estate of Glover and Co., comprising various claims against the Takasima Colliery, in which the amount of $45,000 is involved, has been occupying the attention of the United States Consular Court at this port for several days past. The case, which is being heard before W. P. Mangum, Esq., sole arbitrator, commenced on the 25th March, and the Court has since that time been daily sitting to hear the evidence connected with the claims. It will probably occupy some eight or ten days more before the proceedings are concluded. Mr. Y. Ito, Commissioner of Mines at this port, represents the Government, and the case is defended by Mr. J. J. van der Pot, the trustee of the estate.

On the 29th March the Governor and Vice-Governor of Nagasaki, together with the whole of the officers of the Kencho of every rank, assembled together at the Temple Sofukiji to celebrate the restoration of peace in the Hizen ken. A telegram has been received by the Governor, stating that the chief rebel Yeto had been arrested at Chikoku. Fushiminomia, who was expected to arrive here, will not, we understand, come to this place. A residence had been prepared for him in Ima-machi, on the outside of which appeared the crest of the Mikado, but information has recently been received by the Governor of Nagasaki that he will proceed to Tokio from Hiogo.

A sailing boat, with a resident of Nagasaki on board, a few days ago capsized in the harbour, near the Riojo-kan and Stonewall, and we have much pleasure in testifying to the promptness and celerity with which three boats were sent to the rescue from the above-named vessels. They righted the boat, baled her out, and towed her to Namenohira, to the admiration of several old English salts who were eye-witnesses of the whole affair. It is only right that an act of humanity of this kind should be publicly noticed, and we think that the thanks of the foreigners are due to the captain or officer of the watch who so promptly rendered assistance to the European boat in distress.

The United States corvette Lackawanna, which left here last week on a cruise to search for any traces of the American steamer Manchu, returned again into port on the 1st April, after an unsuccessful trip. The Lackawanna left this port again on the 3rd April for Hong Kong, to which place she proceeds en route for the southern ports and India.

Good Friday was kept as the anniversary of the birth of H.M. Jenmutenno, the first Emperor of Japan, and the Custom-house and other Government offices were also closed, and a great number of the native inhabitants attended at Suwa temple to worship him. This Emperor was born at Huga province, in the island of Kushiu, and conquered the whole of the islands of this Empire excepting the middle part (Niphon), which was still in a state of confusion and darkness. He ultimately conquered the remaining parts of the country and took possession of them, accompanied by his son and brothers. He killed and captured the chiefs, and having gained a complete victory he removed the capital to Kashiwabara, in Yamato province, and was there crowned. These events occurred about 2,544 years ago.

CHINA.

PEKING.

The correspondent of the North China Daily News writes as follows :—The Peking Gazette of the 1st April appoints Chung-shih, President of the Board of Punishments (brother of Chung-how) ; Paoukeun, President of the Hanlin yuen College (a member of the Tsungle yamun), and two other high officials, to re-examine to a certain degree the students of the province of Chihli who last year competed for and obtained the literary degree of Keujin, and who will this year compete for the degree of Tsinsze. His Majesty also appoints six censors to watch the proceedings. On the following day it was announced that the Board of War had memorialised his Majesty to appoint high officials to control the camels and horses going with the Court to the Western Tombs. His Majesty had, in consequence, appointed Chung-shih, President of the Board of Punishments, Cheng-lin, Vice-president of the Colonial-office and Right Lieut.-general of the capital, and two other officials, as the superintendents.

During the afternoon of the 1st April Le Hung-chang called upon Prince Kung and staid with him for about three hours. On the 2nd April Le Hung-chang had a second audience of his Majesty. Next day his Excellency again had an audience of the Emperor. I hear that Le will leave for the Tombs on the 7th April, three days before his Majesty starts for them. I must remind your readers that Le Hung-chang, besides being Governor-General of the province of Chihli, holds the post of Commissioner for Foreign Affairs for the northern ports of China, and in that position falls into contact with the Envoys for Foreign Powers coming to Tientsin, or via Tientsin for Peking.

The minds of the thinking portion of the Chinese inhabitants of Peking are at present principally occupied with the approaching examinations for Tsin-sze, and the visit of the Imperial Court to the Western Tombs, but mainly, I fancy, with the first event. From the extracts I have from time to time made from the Peking Gazette, of the arrangements made by the selection and appointment of high officials to carry out the examinations for Tsin-sze, we can judge of the importance in which these are held by the Emperor and his Privy Council, and of their endeavours to preserve this important national system in complete purity.

The weather during the last week has become mild, and we now see the peach trees in blossom, and the willows shooting out their leaves. Bats may be seen flying about every evening, and three evenings back I saw a flock of about two hundred wild swans flying straight north over my residence. All these signs denote that the cold weather in these regions has come to an end for the spring of 1874.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 17th April ; the French mail from London Feb. 27 arrived out on the 16th April. The following items of news are from the North China Herald :—

The annual meeting of friends and subscribers to the Chinese Hospital has been held at the house of the medical officer, Dr. Johnston. G. F. Seward, Esq., United States Consul-General, occupied the chair, and there was a good attendance. After going through the new building, the commodious and well-ventilated character of which was much admired, the gentlemen present proceeded to despatch the business upon which they were met. Dr. Johnston read a few extracts from his report, showing the results of the past year, and the whole was passed by acclamation, with a vote of thanks to Dr. Johnston, to Dr. Henderson for his co-operation, and to the Chinese Assistant Sung-foo. Mr. R. I. Fearon, the hon. treasurer, then presented the accounts, stating that the grant of Tls. 2,000 from the Municipal Council (the amount voted for the Lock Hospital or this alternative object at last ratepayers' meeting), and various handsome subscriptions had enabled them to meet the cost of the new building, and left a balance. The accounts were passed, and it was resolved that copies of them and of the report should be forwarded to various subscribers, with the thanks of the meeting for their generous donations to the funds. A long discussion followed, as to the advisability of looking to Chinese patrons or patients for some pecuniary support. The meeting generally was against making any rate of charge, even for patients who might be able and willing to pay, but expressed its opinion by resolution that in an entirely voluntary way "opportunities should be given patients to subscribe." The oft-discussed question of training native medical students was again brought up, and a variety of offered Mr. Seward was elected a trustee, in room of Mr. Dick, and Mr. Glover takes Mr. Gamwell's place on the committee. In answer to enquiries by the Chairman, Dr. Johnstone said the new building would be ready for use in about six weeks, and that it would accommodate seventy patients with greater advantages than the old one would thirty.

The steamer Ping-on, so long in dock, and so much in the newspapers, has made a trial trip to test the value of the extensive alterations that she has undergone. She is now under British colours, and commanded by Captain Mooney. The alterations consisted of adding forty feet to her length, doubling her sides diagonally with teak, changing her boiler for that of the late steamer Chieftain, adding a new screw and the like improvements, the particulars of which are best known to those who footed her bill of costs. The result of the trip fully justified the utility of these changes, which were projected by Mr. Mackie, her former owner, and reflect credit also on her contractors and on Mr. Wigdon, her skilful engineer. Messrs. Tucker, Roberts, and Blethen, with a number of experts, and also a squad of dead-heads, availed themselves of the opportunity to learn the results of the expensive experiment. On reaching Half-way Point, the patent log showed that she was making over nine knots, a rate of speed which was, maintained throughout the trip, even when she was going against the tide and a strong head wind. As her screw was but partially submerged, it was calculated that under the same consumption of coal (at the rate of eight tons a day) she could make another knot. Her revolutions were from seventy-three to eighty per minute ; she answered her helm admirably, and, in a word, proved a perfect success, surpassing the expectations of the most sanguine. On reaching the red buoy she anchored, being unable to extend her trip to the lightship in consequence of a dense fog that came rolling up the Yangtsze. On her return she went a short way above the Arsenal, and back to her anchorage in good time.

The annual meeting of subscribers to the library was held on the 13th April, Rev. Mr. Butcher in the chair. The accounts showed that the subscribers had fallen off by one-half, chiefly owing, it appeared, to the opening of the club library ; and that the income for the present year would fall Tls. 1,000 short of the expenses. After discussing this unfortunate position of affairs, the meeting passed a resolution to the effect that, to ascertain whether it were attributable to temporary depression or to a permanent falling off of interest on the part of the public, the committee be empowered to confer with the trustees of the Recreation Fund, with the view of obtaining the assistance necessary to carry on the institution for a further term. The new committee appointed were Rev. Mr. Butcher, Dr. Macgowan, Messrs. Medhurst, How, Cordier, FitzGerald, and Maclellan.

Shanghai is likely at last to have a Museum established on a permanent and popular basis. At the suggestion of the president, the North China branch of the Royal Asiatic Society took the matter in hand at its annual meeting in February last, and a meeting will be held at the library to give effect to the resolution then passed. We understand that the trustees of the recreation fund have undertaken to advance Tls. 1,500, at 5 per cent. per annum interest, to start the scheme, while the Asiatic Society provide the funds requisite for current expenditure. The Museum will, in fact, be a department of the Asiatic Society, which will, no doubt, thus gain a large accession of members, especially as the annual subscription is only $10. It is intended, we believe, to make the Museum as wide in scope as possible, but the Natural History section will probably prove the most attractive. The Asiatic Society have been fortunate in securing the services of a Chinese preparator educated by Pere David, and who thoroughly understands the skinning, stuffing, and setting up of specimens. It will add a fresh zeal to up-country expeditions to know that we have at hand the means of preserving and classifying any curiosities of natural history which fortune may bring in our way.

The Municipal elections continue to attract attention, and a number of amusing skits in the form of election addresses have been placarded over the Settlement.

HONG KONG.

We have failed to receive our usual advices from this port by the present mail.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 1st May. The French mail from London March 27 arrived out on the 29th April. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times :—

Digitized by Google

A private letter from Penang gives the particulars of the death of the Rev. A. S. Malet, chaplain of H.M.S. Cadmus, by falling or jumping overboard from the P. and O. steamer Arcot, shortly after leaving Singapore. It appears that shortly after the pilot left the steamer, and when off the Cyrene Shoal, a man was reported overboard. The engines were stopped immediately and a boat lowered, of which the chief officer took charge, and pulled back over the wake of the ship for about a mile and a half, and when returning cruised across her track at angles, without seeing anything of the unfortunate man. After the boat returned to the ship the steamer's engines were reversed, and she was backed slowly over her track, with several men aloft on the look-out, but nothing could be seen of him, and as no hope remained, she then signalled "Suicide" to the Singapore flagstaff, and proceeded on her voyage. The deceased was a passenger from Shanghai for Southampton, and had appeared during the voyage to be in a weak state of mind. It was thought by some on board the vessel that his watching the Malay boys diving beside the vessel had so possessed his mind that he had himself plunged overboard in imitation of them. It is, however, quite as probable, and more reasonable, to suppose that he had become giddy while looking over the rail into the water, and losing his balance had fallen overboard. As there is a strong under current where the accident occurred, it is not probable the body will ever be recovered.

On the 30th March we reported a murder and assault said to have been committed by Bugis at Pulo Dammar. Inspector Richards has since been engaged in working up the case, on the sight clue he obtained, with such good effect that two more of the murderers are now in custody, making three in all. The third prisoner was arrested at the Carimons; all three have been taken before the magistrate and remanded. The last prisoner has, we understand, turned Queen's evidence, and gives a circumstantial account of the murder, which is also admitted by the other two prisoners. According to his confession, six Bugis were concerned in the murder, going in two boats to attack the Chinamen, but only four of them took an active part in the assault, the other two looking after the sampans. There is reason to hope more of the murderers will yet be secured.

From Labuan we learn that the trial of a Malay named Bakar Ben Shahan, lately a clerk in the employment of the Oriental Coal Company, and of a Chinaman named Ah Fat, for being concerned in the robbery of a large sum of mony from the Company's offices at Coal Point, had terminated in the conviction of the former. It appears this robbery had been well planned by Bakar Ben Shahan and others, and that he had got a key of the iron safe in the offices made from a wax model of the original one so far back as 1871. The iron safe was opened by means of a false key in January last, and the money carried of within one hour. A large reward was offered for any information, but we believe none of the money has been recovered. From various circumstances suspicion was fixed on the prisoners, and two or three others in the employment of the company. In the preliminary investigation before the police magistrate the latter parties were released for want of evidence, and Bakar Ben Shahan and the Chinaman, who was said to have made the key of the safe, were committed for trial before the General Court. After a protracted trial the prisoner Bakar was convicted of being an accessory before the fact to the robbery, and was sentenced to five years' penal servitude, while the Chinaman was acquitted.

A Chinese bullock cart driver has been gored to death by his own bullock on the Bukit Timah-road. The animal was a young bull, which after considerable difficulty was secured by four Klings and taken to the pound, where it was made fast. It continued very fierce, and would allow no one to approach, becoming ungovernable at the sight of any of the police peons in uniform, for several days. It has, however, been calmed down by putting it on short commons, and has during the past two or three days permitted the brother of the deceased to come near.

During a shower, a Chinaman passing along under the trees opposite the Clarendon Hotel, holding a steel-ribbed umbrella over his head, was struck by lightning. The umbrella, which had evidently attracted the lightning, was shattered into a complete wreck, and the electric fluid, passing down, struck the Chinaman in the back between the shoulders, causing only a severe blister, while his hand and arm were benumbed from the shock inflicted through the stalk of the umbrella. He was taken at once to the hospital, but has since been discharged, having had a very narrow and lucky escape. Two other Chinese near him escaped unhurt; one fell to the ground apparently from fright, but on discovering he was uninjured, took to his heels with all speed and was soon lost sight of.

We are indebted to Mr. Condon, late passenger in the schooner Kate, for information as to the fate of that vessel. She was bound from the Caroline Islands to Singapore, when she was wrecked on the Louisa Shoal in the China Sea. The crew and passengers were all saved, but suffered great hardships, being for seven days in an open boat with only a small quantity of water and provisions. At length, however, they made the coast of Borneo, where a Chinese trader named Lim Teo treated them with much kindness, and sent them in one of his prows to Labuan where the loss of the vessel was reported to the proper authorities. We are requested, on behalf of the rescued men, to express publicly their gratitude to Captain Ross, of the steamer Cleator. This gentleman supplied them with funds, gave them a passage from Labuan to Singapore, and treated them with sympathy and kindness. Our informant has not furnished us with the date of the wreck.

The brig Janet Stewart has arrived here with horses from Swan River. Twenty-one horses were shipped at Fremantle on the 14th March. The vessel had a quick run of seven days to within three hundred miles of Anjer, when she encountered a tremendous gale, and was driven far out of her course. During the gale the horses suffered much, and seven of them died. The remaining fourteen, with one exception, arrived in good condition, and are to be sold by public auction.

Shortly after the steamer Diomed left Hong Kong two Europeans emerged from the coal-bunkers, reeking with perspiration and covered with coal-dust, until they were as black as negroes. They had, it seems, stowed themselves away unperceived in the bunkers, but had been literally roasted out of their hiding-place by the heat of the furnaces. They proved to be deserters from H.M.'s 80th Regiment at Hong Kong, and on the steamer's arrival here they were given in charge of the police, who handed them over to the military authorities.

As the steamer United Service was leaving the Tanjong Pagar Wharf for China she fouled the British ship Janet Ferguson, her davits catching in the ship's mizzen rigging, carrying away the steamer's quarter-davits and boat, and bringing down the ship's mizzen topgallantmast, but luckily doing no other damage. The steamer proceeded at once on her voyage.

The cricket match between the Singapore Cricket Club and members of the Garrison, played at the Garrison Cricket Ground on the 18th and 25th April, resulted in a victory for the S.C.C., who won by 137 runs.

H.M.S. Growler put into Labuan on the 2nd April, and left for Hong Kong on the 4th. H.M.S. Midge arrived on the 16th April, and departed on the 19th for the same destination.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—The Brazil Coffee market has continued dull, and quotations have been little more than nominal. There is some inquiry for mild Coffees, as stocks are low. Quotations are as follows :—Java (Government bags) 22c. to 25c. ; Java (mats) 23c. to 25½c.; Singapore, 19½c. to 21c.; Ceylon, Native, 18½c. to 21c.

CORDAGE.—The prices are as follows :—Manila Cordage, sizes above 12-thread, 17c. ; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, ¼ in. and 5-16 in. diam., 18c. ; do. 12-thread, ⅜ in. diam., 17½c.; do. Hay Rope, 17½c.; do. Cordage, Bolt Rope Yarns, 19c. ; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, 20c. ; Tarred Manila, 16½c. ; Fine Tarred Manila Lath Yarn, 18c.

HEMP.—Manila is dull, the quotation being 9½c. to 10c. gold. There is but little business doing.

INDIGO.—The market is steady, prices remaining unaltered. We note sales of 14 to 15 cases Manila at from 70c. to 80c., and 6 chests Madras at 85c. to 90c. currency.

RICE.—With the exception of the usual inquiry for home use, there is nothing to note in this market.

SUGAR.—The Raw Sugar market is very dull, the continued large receipts, combined with a heavy stock, causing lower prices. Refined Sugar is also tending downward.

SPICES.—Prices, to a great extent, are nominal and business is generally inactive; quotations are as follows :—Nutmegs $1.10 to $1.15c. ; Mace, $1.18c. to 1.26; China Cassia, 25c. ; Batavia ditto, 25c. (gold).

TIN.—Straits Tin is quoted 24c. and Banca 26½c. (gold).

TEA.—The market is very quiet, and prices for all descriptions are a shade lower. Japan has been in request and sales foot up fully 3,000 half-chests at a slight reduction in prices from previous sales. Green is weaker ; some good grades, we understand, are selling at less than first cost ; holders, however, are not pressing goods, and we hear of several who have withdrawn their stocks from the market. Oolong is weak, and the inquiry for all kinds is light. The sales besides the above are 1,350 half-chests Green and 1,500 ditto Oolong. By auction, 1,000 half-chests sold at 25½ to 55 cents for Gunpowder; 24 to 45 for Imperial ; 25½ for Hyson; 25 to 50 for Young Hyson ditto; 18 for Twankay; and 50 to 51 for Japan, cash.

THE P. AND O. COMPANY'S REPORT.

The following is the report of the Board of Directors to be laid before the proprietors of the P. and O. Company at the sixty-seventh half-yearly meeting on the 4th inst.:—

The directors beg leave to submit to you their report for the first six months of the financial year, which commenced on the 1st of October last, the half-yearly meetings being held, in conformity with the provisions of the deed of settlement, for receiving such a report, and, when the operations of the period admit of it, for declaring a dividend in anticipation of the result of the twelve months' working, the accounts for which are submitted at the annual meetings held in December.

A tabular statement, showing the number, tonnage, horse power, and stations of the company's fleet, is prefixed to this report. The alterations to be noted in the list since the last report are as follows :—The Teheran has been completed and despatched on her first voyage to India. Her sister ship, the Thibet, will be launched shortly. Of the two remaining paddle-wheel vessels, the Delta and Massilia, the former disappears from the list, having been sold to the Japanese Government. The Candia, recently employed in connection with the Ashantee Expedition, has been paid off, and being no longer suited to the company's requirements, has been advertised for sale by public auction. The directors are glad to state that no accident of importance has occurred to any of the company's vessels. Two sister vessels, of 2,600 tons and 450-horse power, built by Mr. J. Laing, of Sunderland, and engined by Messrs. R. and W. Hawthorn, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, have been purchased by the company, the first vessel having just left the builders' hands, and the second not being completed. The first steamer, named the Khiva, is now returning from Calcutta, and the second, named the Kashgar, will be despatched to India within the next three weeks. These vessels were originally intended for a mail service of another company, between London, Antwerp, and South America, and possess all the requisites for this company's work.

The Sumatra and Mongolia have resumed their places on the active list. The Geelong, Malacca, Sunda, Surat, and Poonah are in the builders' hands. The first three vessels will shortly be completed, after which the Avoca and Bangalore will be laid up to receive new machinery, and to be otherwise improved. A contract has been made for new boilers to be supplied to the China. The Deccan's engines were recently disabled by the breaking of the forward cylinder, and the directors considered it better, instead of repairing the damaged machinery, to make arrangements for supplying her at once with compound engines, by which her consumption of coal will be materially reduced, while her carrying capacity will be increased.

As stated in the last report, the directors have been in negotiation with Her Majesty's Government for permission to run the company's steamers with the heavy portion of the mails through the Suez Canal, in the same manner as similar services have been performed for the last four years by the French, Italian and Austrian packets. The company have based their proposals to the Government upon a general improvement of the mail services, and an acceleration of the mails to an extent varying from twenty-four to forty hours. These negotiations have not yet been closed, but in the meantime the Company's steamers have passed regularly through the Canal. The passages have been performed most successfully, and the improvement in transit thus effected has been thoroughly appreciated alike by shippers and passengers.

The result of the company's operations, in so far as it can be estimated, does not appear quite so favourable as at the corresponding period of last year, and the directors can only, therefore, recommend an interim dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum. The revenue of the company has been fully maintained, but with an increase of working expenditure, more especially in the Suez Canal and Egyptian Transit dues, owing to the extent to which the company have been compelled to use the Canal to meet the requirements of traffic. The warrants for the dividend for the half-year will be payable on and after the 24th inst.

THE FLOGGING OF A BRITISH VICE-CONSUL.

The American newspapers received this week contain details of the brutal outrage on the British Vice-Consul at Guatemala and of the summary punishment of his persecutor. The World of the 13th inst., in a special despatch dated the 2nd May, says :—"Immense excitement has followed the arrival of the Pacific Mail steamship Arizona at this port, with news that Mr. John Magee, British Vice-Consul at San José de Guatemala, had received 200 lashes, and that his brutal treatment had been avenged by the assassination of his persecutor. General Barrios, President of Guatemala, has promptly disavowed the outrage, and no doubt will meekly pay such indemnity as Great Britain shall determine. The circumstances of this outrage are as follows :—

"Mr. John Magee, British Vice-Consul at San José de Guatemala, who is personally one of the most popular officials on the coast, had incurred the enmity of Colonel Gonzales, the Commandant at that port. Mr. Magee held a semi-official Government position, which placed him out of the Commandant's jurisdiction, and this increased the dislike of the latter. On the 24th of April the steamship Arizona arrived at San José, and, providentially, this was the day that Colonel Gonzales had fixed upon for venting his wrath on Mr. Magee. Early in the morning he summoned the Vice-Consul before him, and when the latter excused himself on the ground of lameness, sent a file of soldiers with orders to bring Mr. Magee 'dead or alive.' Accordingly the sufferer was brought in on a cart, insulted, struck in the face with the butt of a pistol, imprisoned, and ordered to receive 400 lashes. At four P.M. the surgeon of the port protested that it would end in the victim's death. The Consular Agent of the United States, Mr. James, presented a written protest, under his official seal. Gonzales brutally replied that he would not only administer the punishmeut, but would shoot him at four o'clock the next morning, and afterwards put to death every foreigner in San José. Mr. Magee was brought out from his dungeon, thrown upon the ground, and a soldier sat upon his head, while four others sat upon his hands and feet. After his coat and vest had been stripped off 200 lashes were administered by four soldiers, the Commandant sitting by and keeping tally. At this point Mr. Magee became insensible, and the rest of the flogging was put off until the following day. Then the Commandant drank whisky, plundered the British Cousul's office and the houses of other foreigners, and all night long kept a drunken orgie with his soldiers. Occasionally he went to where Mr. Magee was confined, and putting a pistol to his head asked his victim how he would like to die, and if it were not best to put him out of his misery. Colonel Gonzales had seized the telegraph, but during the excitement Mr. Moncrieffe, the agent of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, managed to make his escape, and telegraphed to the capital for aid and protection. General Solano was despatched at once with 100 soldiers, and at 8 A.M. was near San Jose. Mr. Magee in the meantime was made ready for punishment, but, hearing that aid was near, suggested to the Commandant to make his escape to the Arizona, promising him a letter to insure his protection. The Consular Agent also promised to go with him. Gonzales eagerly accepted this offer, but as soon as the letter was written tried to persuade his men to shoot Mr. Magee. They refused, and he made his escape in a small boat with three men, and accompanied by Mr. James. In the meantime all had been excitement on board the Arizona. The passengers wanted to go on shore and protect Mr. Magee with such arms as they had. They would have gone to their death if they had ventured. There were ten field-pieces on the wharf also that covered the Arizona as she lay at anchor. Fortunately, Captain Morse, who was in command, was able to restrain the excitement in a measure, and would allow no one to go on shore. When news came that the Commandant was about to seek refuge in the Arizona, everybody's feelings were wrought up to the highest point of tension. Captain Morse laid his plans admirably. His officers and men were armed and surrounded the gangway. It was the intention to seize Gonzales, tell him that the ship's authorities could not be answerable for his life unless he released Mr. Magee, and then to send on shore for that gentleman. Then, protection would have been afforded to all parties. Fate ordained otherwise. The boat that held Gonzales neared the ship's side. The gangways were crowded with passengers, many of whom were ladies. Mr. James stepped on deck, the Commandant followed, cool and wary, and had got halfway up the plank, when a shot was fired from the guards, wounding him. He stepped back into the boat and seized an oar, two other shots followed, and one was returned from the boat. Then the boat pushed off to shore, and when it touched, the wounded man rose and walked into the town, which he was made prisoner by General Solano. Mr. Magee was considerably bruised, but not seriously hurt. Fortunately for him, the soldiers did not make their blows as heavy as the Commandant desired. He was able to be on board the Arizona before she started, and was cheerful, though suffering acutely."

Guatemala advices of later date affirm that Gonzales is to be flogged and shot.

OUTRAGE BY ARABS UPON ENGLISHMEN.

An outrage on two Englishmen by Arabs is reported. On the 25th of November last Mr. Charles Hamilton was visiting Zagazig to do a little shopping, and looking at the ruins of Tel Basta, the ancient Phe-Bushti of Scripture, and while he was quietly riding on his donkey, accompanied only by the donkey-boy, about four miles from Zagazig, near a village called Sherwenda Nahurme, suddenly he heard the donkey-boy cry out, "Kabea-kelp!" which means in English "Large dog, or wolf," and Mr. Hamilton saw a large animal, wounded and bleeding, passing through the dhoum, or Indian corn. Directly afterwards he heard an English voice calling in his native tongue for help, as if the person were in great distress. Mr. Hamilton immediately turned in the direction of the voice, and at a few yards distance he saw a number of Arabs beating a Mr. Clark in a most fearful manner. He went to try and help the victim, as he imagined he had gained some influence from his many years' travel in foreign and barbaric countries; but before he could make many steps to his assistance Mr. Hamilton was knocked down with a gunstock, beaten almost to death, and bound back to back with Mr. Clark, and they then were dragged along, being beaten with a large nabob, a stick of considerable size which the Arabs use in husbandry. To use the words of their own Government doctor, whom he saw, "Any other than a strong Englishman must have died under such savage treatment." All the Europeans who saw Mr. Hamilton declared him to be the most beaten and shattered man they had ever seen alive. Mr. Clark was also dreadfully beaten, but, being a slighter-made man, he escaped with less damage from the blows. Mr. Clark and Mr. Hamilton were released and their lives spared by the timely intervention of a French gentleman and a Greek. This happened on Mr. Hamilton's going through Egypt on his return from Abyssinia, where he had been into the Boghas country, the new possessions of the Viceroy of Karen.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

IONIDES V. PENDER.

This was an action on policies of insurance, which raised a highly important question as to insurance of profits expected from a commercial adventure and the effect of over-valuation of the profits on goods insured. The action was on three valued policies of insurance on goods commission on goods, &c., shipped on board a vessel called the Da Capo. The case was tried at Guildhall, before Mr. Justice Hannen and a special jury, when the jury found a verdict for the defendant. A rule nisi for a new trial was afterwards obtained on behalf of the plaintiff, on the grounds of misdirection by the learned judge, and that the verdict was against the weight of evidence, and the question now argued was whether the rule should be made absolute and a new trial granted. The insurance in question was effected on goods, profits, and commission, for a voyage from Hamburg to Wladiostock, on behalf of two persons named Wernike and Dieckmann, the latter having chartered the ship. A large number of insurances were effected on their behalf with various underwriters and insurance companies, and in the result, spirits, cigars, haberdashery, and other goods of various sorts were insured for about £16,000, the cost price of which, with 25 per cent. added for profit, had been between £11,000 and £12,000. The ship and freight were also insured, but it was not suggested that there was over-insurance on ship or freight. The ship sailed on the 2nd of May, 1871, and after meeting with variable weather, foundered from some unexplained cause, on the morning of the 18th of May, about 200 miles from Madeira. The weather on that and the preceding day was fine, and the crew rowed in their boats to a barque called the Ocean Belle, which was a few miles distant from the Da Capo. The captain stated that he had felt a shock, and it was suggested that the ship had struck against a submerged piece of wreck. It appeared, however, that no one else on board had felt the shock; and evidence was given by the defendants that a space had been left in the hold, by which it was easy for any one desiring to do so to get at the bottom of the ship. The plaintiff explained the alleged over-insurance by evidence that Wladiostock was a new port at which, if the ship had safely arrived, there would have been practically a monopoly for the sale of the goods, and that the spirits especially were highly valued because a duty was about to be imposed, which these spirits were shipped early enough to escape. The defence raised at the trial by the underwriters was that the ship had not been lost by perils of the sea, but had been fraudulently cast away by the captain in collusion with the assured, the goods having been over-insured, and further that the policies were avoided by the concealment from the underwriters by the assured of material facts, such facts being that the goods on board the Da Capo were to an excessive amount over-valued and over-insured. In answer to questions put to them by Mr. Justice Hannen the jury found (1) that the vessel was not lost by perils insured against; (2) that there was not sufficient evidence for them to say whether she was made away with by barratry of the master or by collusion between the master and owner or charterer, or at all; and (3) that whether fraudulent or not there was a concealment by the assured from the underwriters of facts material to be known by them; and finally they said that they wished to find a verdict for the defendant. On these findings the verdict was entered for the defendant, and the question now argued was whether the verdict was to be set aside. It will be seen that there were two important questions,—first, what was the effect of the jury's finding as to the cause of the loss; secondly, was there a concealment which avoided the policies? The evidence was extremely voluminous, and in the course of the argument it was suggested by the Court that the arguments should be confined to the question of concealment which, if decided in favour of the underwriters, would conclude the case. It was argued on behalf of the plaintiff that on the evidence given at the trial the jury ought not to have found that the over-valuation and over-insurance were excessive, or that there was any concealment from the underwriters; but, further, that even assuming these facts against the assured, still, in the absence of fraud, which had not been found by the jury, concealment of the fact that the subject matter of insurance was over-valued and over-insured was a concealment merely of a collateral matter, and not of a fact material to the risk, and therefore did not avoid the policies. On the other hand, it was contended on behalf of the defendant that the verdict of the jury was right upon the evidence, and that where in a valuation for insurance a margin is allowed by the assured for profits greatly exceeding that which an underwriter might reasonably suppose had been done, that was a fact which ought to be communicated to the underwriter, as affecting the risk by giving it a speculative character, and at the same time diminishing the inducement to the assured to exert himself for the safety of the goods, and holding out a temptation to dishonesty.

The case was argued before Justices Archibald, Blackburn and Lush, and Justice Blackburn delivered the judgment of the Court. My brother Hannen's direction, he said, may perhaps have been too favourable to the assured, as it made the question of excessive valuation depend on whether the valuation was so high as to amount to a wager; but the plaintiffs cannot object to it, and we think that the evidence was sufficient to justify the jury in finding that the valuation of the spirits, at least, was excessive, according to the definition thus given, so that the finding cannot be considered as against the evidence. The finding that the excessive valuation was concealed from the underwriters was impugned on the ground that the statement in the German valuation amounted to a disclosure that the valuation was excessive. As to this, however, the learned Judge assumed that the defendant's representative had knowledge that the valuation was for profits, however high. But he asked the jury to consider whether that was a disclosure that there was an excessive valuation in the sense in which he had explained it—that is, on an estimate of profits formed with the knowledge that it had no real foundation. The jury must be taken to have found that it was not such a disclosure; and we cannot say they were wrong. The finding of the jury that the concealment was material was impeached, both on the ground that it was against evidence, and that of misdirection; as it was contended that the judge ought to have told the jury that the fact of an excessive valuation was not one which the assured was bound to disclose. It is well understood that a concealment of a material fact in a case of insurance, though without any fraudulent intent, vitiates the policy. But is the obligation of disclosure limited to facts that are material to the risks considered in their own nature; or does it extend to all that may be deemed material by the insurer, and would be likely to influence his decision? It is certain that a knowingly false representation of a matter which, though extraneous to the risks, may affect the judgment of the underwriter will vitiate the policy, and there is a decision of the House of Lords to that effect. But Duer (an eminent author on insurance) lays it down as the most reasonable opinion that those facts only need be disclosed which are material to the risks in their own nature; and it was argued before us that the nature of the risk—i.e., the strength and seaworthiness of the ship, and the probability of encountering storms on the voyage, and so forth—were not in the least affected by the amouut at which the goods were valued, which no doubt is true. The underwriter is not liable for any loss occasioned by fraud of the assured, and it was argued, therefore, that the objection which an underwriter might have to take a risk on account of the temptation which the assured might have to make away with the venture ought not to be taken into account. Whether or not Duer would have gone so far as this is not clear; but if he would, the Courts of America have refused to follow him, as appears from a case in the Court of New York, which was cited. It is to be observed that the excessive valuation not only may lead to suspicion of foul play, but that it has a direct tendency to make the assured less careful in selecting the ship and captain and to diminish the efforts which, in case of disaster, he ought to make to prevent or diminish the loss; and it cannot, therefore, be properly called altogether extraneous to the risks. But we would hardly base our judgment on so special a ground. We agree that it would be too much to put on the assured the duty of disclosing everything which might influence the underwriter's mind. Business could hardly be carried on if this was required. But the rule laid down in "Parson on Insurance," that all should be disclosed which would affect the mind of a rational underwriter governing himself by the principles and calculations on which underwriters in practice act, seems to us a sound one; and there is nothing in Duer contrary to it. Applying it to the present case, there was distinct and uncontradicted evidence that underwriters do, in practice, act on the principle that it is material to take into consideration whether the over-valuation is so great as to make the risk speculative. It appears to us a rational principle. We think, therefore, that the Judge could not have done otherwise than leave the question to the jury, and that their finding on it was not against the evidence. We desired the counsel to confine themselves to the plea of concealment, leaving it for further discussion whether that would dispose of the case; and we leave it to counsel on both sides to consider the effect of our judgment upon it.

[This, probably, has reference to the course the parties may think proper to take with reference to an appeal, for which purpose they might desire to argue all the points. But we believe that, as the matter stands, the effect of the decision is actually that the verdict stands for the defendant, subject to appeal.]

Naval and Military.

Major-General H. Renny, C.S.I., Colonel F. E. Drewe, and Lieut.-Colonel J. H. F. H. Hudson are to return home from Ceylon. Captain W. P. Mortimer, the present Deputy-Assistant-Adjutant and Quartermaster-General, will succeed Colonel Drewe as Brigade Major.

Two changes in the commands of vessels on the China station are gazetted. Commander the Hon. E. S. Dawson (1869) is appointed to the Dwarf, vice Commander Bax; and Commander R. H. Harris (1870) to the Elk, vice Commander Barnett.

It is reported on good authority that Vice-Admiral Chads has been selected as the successor of Vice-Admiral Shadwell in the command of the China squadron.

Her Majesty's ships Narcissus and Endymion have been ashore at Palermo. On the 9th inst., two days after leaving Malta, the Topaze, while under steam, deliberately—so runs the letter—ran into the Narcissus, carrying away all her starboard boats and side gear. On the next day the Narcissus and Endymion touched the shore, and had a narrow escape. It was expected on board that in consequence these ships would go to Malta to be docked, but their subsequent arrival at Cagliari, reported by telegraph, shows that they did not go to Malta, but proceeded on their voyage home.

The terms of the report of the Officers' Memorial Commission have, i is said, been settled. Their recommendations, it is believed, will be to the effect that officers who entered the Army before the abolition of purchase shall receive £450, the value of an ensign's commission, and that they shall have the power of disposing by will of the balance of the value their commissions would have been worth under the old system.

The receipts of the Royal Naval Scripture Readers' Society have never, since the commencement of the operations of the society, been so great as this year. On the China and Japan station, we learn, there is hardly a ship in which there is not one or more earnest supporters of the cause, and in one ship there are no less than twenty.

The Rinaldo, from the China station, left Malta harbour on the 14th inst. for Gibraltar and England, to be paid out of commission, but subsequently put back, having carried away her mainyard in the neighbourhood of the Island of Linosa.

Lieut. A. E. McMurdo is appointed to the Dwarf, Lieut. E. P. Hocker to the Avon, Lieut. C. H. Herring to the Curlew, and Lieut. A. O. H. P. Lowe to the Thistle, on the China Station.

THE REPORTED MASSACRE OF CHRISTIANS AT TONGQUIN.

WE notice in some of our French cotemporaries rather startling accounts of an outbreak and massacre got up against the villages of native Christians in the northern provinces of Cochin-China. If we may accept the versions forwarded from the scenes of the persecution by the Roman Catholic missionaries it is the literati (lettrés), the semi-official, semi-religious students connected with the Government colleges, who have planned the attacks upon their Roman Catholic fellow-countrymen, and who have headed the rabble in their expeditions of bloodshed and pillage. This seems probable enough, if we may believe, what has certainly been a "thing not generally known," that in Tongquin as in China, an influential wide-spread sect or class of literati really exists. For ourselves, we had hitherto supposed the institution to be exclusively Chinese. Be that as it may, in the face of the various, detailed, and authentic particulars which have already appeared in print, we cannot deny that there must have lately been some very deplorable disturbances in more than one of the provinces of Tongquin, and that the native Christians have been the special objects of the popular fury. Thus Monsigneur CROC has sent word from Cochin-China that, "as a conse-"quence of the French expedition to Tongquin, the "lettrés rushed upon the Christians with a fury truly "diabolical. In our Mission we number 80,000 con-"verts, and in the space of a few days 10,000 of these "were burned, drowned, or beheaded. . . . I have myself "no hope of escaping death." From another source we learn that in many places a crucifix was laid across the street, and any Christian who refused to outrage his own conscience by leaping over it was pitilessly cut down. Several Roman Catholic villages were sacked, and in them not even the women or the children escaped the sword. In one passage we read that "so many villages have been "burnt down that 25,000 Christians find themselves, in "the month of February, without a house for shelter, with-"out rice to eat, and with the prospect of having escaped "death by violence only to perish of starvation." The material losses thus incurred have been estimated to exceed a quarter of a million in English money. Fourteen priests' houses, five convents, seventy churches have been destroyed by incendiaries, and a general massacre was anticipated. The persecuted Christians were flying to the caves and forests in the mountains, and to rocky fastnesses along an ironbound coast; and even in these places of refuge CUN and MAI, two of the lettrés, who had been condemned to death for similar outrages in 1868, and afterwards respited, were gathering together a company of evildoers that they might hunt down and massacre "the followers of a perverse religion, the allies of France." Intelligence a fortnight later in date only confirms the previous melancholy tidings. Missionaries who had to fly for their lives from the scenes of their labours reached Saigon on the 27th of March, and implored the French Admiral to intervene. They described how the outbreak began with the murder of two Roman Catholic servants on the 25th of February, how three villages were burnt the same day, and their inhabitants put to the sword, how slot-hounds were used to hunt down the fugitives who sought shelter in the jungle, and how those who were caught among the rocky defiles along the sea shore were burnt at the stake. "In several places an "entire family was seized; father, mother, and children "were then bound together with bamboos, and in this con-"dition set adrift on a raft in the river." Even miracles were not unknown, for "out of the multitude of corpses "thus lashed together in groups of six or eight, and floating "in the current of the main stream, not one, to the as-"tonishment of all the world, exhaled any disagreeablet "stench."

It is not necessary to give further details, but if the published particulars are only substantially correct, there took place in the dominion of Tongquin during the latter part of February and the beginning of March a concerted massacre of the Christian communities which raged unchecked throughout every province of the Empire, and which swept off thousands of the innocent and the helpless by the most cruel deaths which a savage populace could devise. This, at least, is the version supplied by the Roman Catholic journals; but though we have now reached the close of May there has, as yet, been no confirmation of the story published from French official sources. We shall hardly be charged with an ill-advised incredulity if we predict that should the real facts ever come to light it will be found that a great deal of the sensational descriptions of which we have just supplied some samples are based on the exaggerated tales of terrified refugees, enlarged still further by the excitement, distress, and alarm natural to those poor priests whose flocks were being persecuted, and whose own lives were not secure. There are three sides to this story. There is the version of the sufferers, that is already before us; there is the account which the Cochin-Chinese officials may have to supply; and, finally, there is the French official statement. Neither of the two last has yet been made known, and public judgment cannot fairly be pronounced until all the facts are disclosed. It is to be noted that in spite of the violence of the outbreak not a single French priest is described as having been injured; and though some priests' houses and churches were burnt, these may have been in the custody of native priests for anything we yet know to the contrary. The miraculous events to which we have already referred will not strengthen the general belief in the narrative. As to the barbarous details described, these are by no means unlikely to have occurred, for Asiatics, however gentle and mild in their ordinary moods, are ungovernably cruel, delighting in the most revolting refinements of barbarity and torture when once their passions have been aroused. On the other hand, if all this violence and bloodshed—the result of long previous organisation, and continuing unchecked for many days—really occurred as eye-witnesses profess to describe it, we wonder at the calm business-like diplomatic negotiations which were all the time being carried on between the French officials and ambassadors from Cochin-China. A solemn treaty was ratified at Saigon on the 15th March, and a clause was specially introduced into it providing that an indemnity of 1,000,000 piastres should be paid by Tongquin to Spain, but not a word is said about the much more serious damages due to the burnt out Christian communities in Cochin-China; and yet was there no French gunboat cruising off the Songkoi and neighbouring coasts which might have carried the news of the outbreak of February to the Admiral at Saigon? Another strange circumstance is the apathy of the Tongquinese officials. Surely TU-DUC and the governors who rule over his provinces are not so mad as to think that the French will let such outrages as these go unpunished. If they meant to resist France they would levy war against her openly, but after having sent an embassy to Saigon to agree upon a treaty, they know well enough that to permit at that conjuncture an outrage upon the native Christians would only make France exact harder conditions than before. Amid these strangely contradictory considerations a suspension of opinion seems the wisest course. If there be truth in the tale further particulars cannot long be delayed; but this much we may safely say, that should the French want the support of public opinion before actually annexing Tongquin, they are most likely to obtain it by getting up a thrilling story of the massacre and torture of missionaries and their flocks; while, on the other hand, if there be any question more than another which gives rise to irritating squabbles between European officials and native potentates, it is that which turns so frequently upon the claims of the Roman Catholic missionary to exclusive control over his own community. Extra-territorial rights are essential for the protection of Europeans in Asiatic States, but when the French priest, as is too common, claims the same extra-territorial privileges for each of his converts—the born subjects of the ruler of the country—he lays a trap to catch a "persecution," and very often he succeeds.

LORD STANLEY of ALDERLEY'S remarks on present-taking in the Straits elicited the satisfactory announcement from Lord CARNARVON that the Indian rule on that subject was to be forthwith restored in the Colony. As regards Sir HARRY ORD, the charge was not denied; the defence was, that the colonial prohibition extended only to receiving presents from the inhabitants of the Colony, and that Sir H. ORD'S presents had come from independent princes—a dagger from the King of SIAM, and "one or two" arms from Rajahs, all of no pecuniary value. If this be the whole truth, and "two or three" worthless weapons are the only presents ever received in the Straits by Sir H. ORD or his family he has been much maligned, and the Straits people must have lively imaginations. Certainly, never was so much smoke produced by so little fire. We confess, however, that we miss everything like an assurance that the dagger which was thought worthy of a printed description for home use, and the "one or two" other arms complete the cabinet of presents. The man who is charged with horse-stealing would hardly be thought to meet the accusation completely in confessing that he took the bridle. Some people would say it looked like an admission that he had taken the horse and saddle also.

M. DESPREZ, Political Director, and M. The "Pourparlers," with H.E. GLINMAHAMENTHA SAY, chief of the Embassy now in Paris, will begin at the end of the present week.

H.E. SAMESHIMA, Japanese Minister in Paris, has, we hear, been raised to the rank of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, and will probably present his credentials to the PRESIDENT this week.

BARON VON RICHTHOFEN ON RAILWAY COMMUNICATION WITH CHINA.

At the sitting of the Geographical Society at Berlin on the 11th of April a highly interesting paper "On the most Favourable Route for a Railway between China and Europe" was read to the meeting by Baron von Richthofen, and created such a favourable sensation that it was unanimously agreed to have it reprinted from the Transactions of the Society and published as a separate pamphlet for the general information of the public.

He commenced his remarks by pointing out that as soon as the Atlantic and Pacific had been united by the great trans-continental railway in America it was natural to foresee that public attention would soon be turned towards a similar undertaking for connecting Europe with Asia, the more so as if it was deemed feasible and expedient to open up a communication between the eastern and western coasts of a country containing scarcely more than forty million inhabitants to save the long and tedious voyage round Cape Horn or the inconvenience of a transhipment of goods by the shorter route of the Isthmus of Panama, how much more important to the commerce of the world and the welfare of all nations as well as the progress of civilisation by placing the four hundred millions of the East in direct communication with the three hundred million inhabitants of the West. In the present advanced state of science engineering difficulties could all be easily surmounted, and the whole subject was reduced to a question of pounds, shillings, and pence. With regard to the best route to select opinions differed, and there are two projects in the field, both of which have their supporters. The first of these, which may be termed the Russo-German, proposes Nijni-Novgorod as the starting point, because it is the most advanced station towards the East, and already in railway connection with the rest of Europe, taking advantage of the line approved of by the Russian Government and about to be immediately commenced and carried through the defiles of the Ural mountains to Tjumen on the Eastern side of that chain and a good distance into the flat steppes of Siberia. When this extension is completed one-half of the distance between Calais and Peking will be accomplished. It is then proposed to continue the railway in the same direction through Omsk, Tomsk, and Irkutzk to the Chinese frontier at Kiachta, and thence through Mongolia to Kalgan, which may be called the gate for entering China proper, and so on to Peking. Tempting as this line may appear at first sight, it is not without its drawbacks. It is true that the country to be passed over is generally level, with the exception of the mountainous regions in the vicinity of Irkutzk and from Lake Baikal to Kiachta; but on the other hand there are some formidable rivers in Siberia to be bridged over and embankments made to ensure the line being built on a sufficiently high level, so as to prevent the traffic from being interrupted by the frequent inundations. Another objection to the proposed route is to be found in the paucity of towns of any importance, the long distances of unbroken steppe to be passed, the absence of a dense and industrious population, the possibility of the interruption of the traffic by the inclemency of the weather during the winter, which may be said to last one half of the year, and the important item of the geological formation of the country affording not the slightest chance of ever discovering coal, which implies the necessity of bringing that indispensable generator of motive power from a great distance and at an enormous addition to the prime cost of the article; and finally, in fixing on Peking as the termination of the line it may ensure the traffic of goods from Europe to China, but it could have but little effect on the exports of native produce, unless extended down to the tea and silk producing districts, and in fact to the coast and shipping ports generally. The second proposed route, which may be called the English project, takes India with its population of some 250 millions as the central point from which the railway should radiate in two directions,—to the North-east and China, and the North-west and Europe, both of which would involve an enormous outlay and the surmounting of unknown engineering difficulties from the mountainous nature of the country, hitherto but very imperfectly and only partially explored. It will soon be known if the plan of making a railway to India, either by way of Asia Minor and Persia or the route recommended by M. de Lesseps through the valley of the Amu-Darya and Peshawar is practicable, with the scientific and geographical knowledge we possess at present; but the Baron considers the Eastern branch scheme to be quite out of the question, and may be at once dismissed as impossible of realisation. The most advanced Eastern terminus of the Indian railway is Dacca, situate in the Delta of the Bramaputra, from which it is no doubt possible to extend the line either to Sudya or to Ava and Bhamo. But in both cases the railway would run into a cul-de-sac; for the nearest place in the level part of China which it must be the object to reach is I-tchang-fu on the Yang-tsze river, and the distance from that place either to Bhamo or to Sudya is as great as from Berlin to Constantinople, whilst one can only form an idea of the mountainous character of the intervening country by imagining a succession of the wildest parts of the Alps filling up the space between the two last-mentioned capitals.

Having disposed of these two lines to his own satisfaction as totally impracticable, the Baron comes forward with a project of his own, in favour of which it must be confessed there is a great deal to be said. To a person taking his stand in China and looking towards the West, the most natural direction for a railway would be, he says, the ancient trade route from Si-ngan-fu through Hami to Kuldja. The first-named place is the capital of the Province of Honan, and is situated on the Hwang-ho, commanding easy access to all parts of the immense alluvial plain between that river and the Yang-tsze, extending to the great modern emporium of Shanghai, and including most of the Treaty ports on that part of the sea-board. Taking, then, Si-ngan-fu as the point of departure, the road lying to the north of the Kwen-lun range of mountains, the traveller first comes to Lan-tschou-fu (according to the German orthography), the capital of the Province of Kan-Su, a distance of 1,470 li, or 370 miles; thence to Su-tschou, 1,450 li; from Su-tschou to Hami, 1,560 li; from Hami to Barkul, 330 li; and from thence to Kuldja, 3,210 li; total distance 8,020 li. As 250 li go to an Equatorial degree of longitude, the above would be 1,921 English geographical miles. This is the Chinese gate to the extensive high-level plateau of Central Asia. Whilst the Chinese never attempted to make conquests in the North or South for the increase of their territory, it has been their policy for more than two thousand years to guard this gate with the greatest jealousy, and prevent any one entering it without their special permission. With regard to the nature of the country it does not appear to offer any great difficulties, as all accounts agree in the statement that the native traders perform the journey seldom on camels, but mostly in wheeled vehicles, which can be hired at a very moderate charge. Thus a two-wheel cart drawn by two mules and capable of accommodating two persons and the driver, besides 700 lbs. of luggage or goods, or 1,100 lbs. of merchandise without passengers, may be hired at Si-ngan-fu for Tls. 64, or about £22, and perform the whole journey to Kuldja with great regularity in eighty days, including stoppages. The most difficult part of the road is probably the section between Si-ngan-fu and Lan-tschou-fu, where a high chain of mountains has to be crossed; but it may be inferred from the great distances between the halting stations and the mode of transit employed that the gradients are not severely steep, particularly on the western slopes. It would certainly be possible, and even easily accomplished, to construct a railway from Hami to Yarkand parallel to the course of the Tarim or Erguo, which loses itself in the waters of Lake Lop; but that again would only be a cul-de-sac, as the continuation of the railway would be stopped from further progress by the insurmountable intervention of the Belur Tagh, the Hindoo Kush, and other offshoots of the Himalaya proper, whilst to the south the Kwenlun range effectually blocks up any exit from that quarter into India. The only practicable extension of the railway to Europe would thus be to go on to Kuldja, as above indicated, from which the Altyn Imel Tau might be crossed in two directions, either by following down the course of the Ili, or by the pass of the Tschugutschak, which is used by the natives as the key of communication to the west. In both cases the railway would descend to the comparatively level country of the Khirgese Kaizaken, through which flows the Yrtish in a northerly direction to Semipalatinsk and Omsk, at which latter place it would fall into the Russian Siberian railway system. The advantages to be gained by adopting his proposed route the Baron considers obvious. In the first place, the railway would follow the shortest and most direct road between Europe and China, and enter the latter by the only practicable opening from the west, and which has always been used by the traders in Central Asia. The access from the plains in the eastern provinces of China is not difficult, by all accounts, though it must contain a certain quantity of clefts and fissures from the nature of the formation, which is soft and porous, being what the German geologists call Loess. There are no large rivers to be bridged over, with the exception of the Hewang-ho, and nowhere would the line be exposed to floods and inundations, whilst the climate, though perhaps raw and cold in the mountainous regions, is of such a temperate character that there is no fear of snow falls interrupting the traffic. With regard to density of population, the proposed line of route is not much better off than the greater part of East Siberia; but it has this advantage over it, that it contains many important trading stations, and is crossed in all directions by roads, over which the produce of China—especially brick-tea and silk—is conveyed to the various countries of Central Asia. Thus from Lan-tschou-fu a road diverges to Si-ning-fu, by which China produce is conveyed to Kokonor and Thibet, and another to Ning-hia-fu, leading to the Ordos country and parts of Mongolia. Putting aside the lesser stations of Liang-tschou-fu, Kan-tschou, and Su-tschou, Hami and Turfan would be important places,—the former for the trade with Yarkand, and the latter for the traffic to Uliassutai, Kobdo, and a number of other centres of commerce to the north of the Tien-shan mountains. But what gives the greatest importance to the proposed route and recommends it to most especial consideration is the geological element and its unlimited coal-seams. The Baron, who in the course of his researches and travels in China has traversed it in all directions, was deeply impressed with the extent and richness of the coalfields to be found in the provinces of Shansi, Shensi, and Kansu, and asserts that none others in any part of the world can for a moment be compared to them. Every province north of the Kwen-lun mountains contains an inexhaustible supply of this fuel, and the quality is most excellent. From thence to Hami, and from Barkul along the northern foot of the Tien-shan as far as Kuldja, coal is everywhere found cropping out on the surface, and is extensively and generally used as fuel, whilst it does not exist on the south side of that range, the inhabitants being obliged to content themselves with dried grass and the stunted trees that grow on the slopes of the mountains. As in China the conveyance of coal is seldom or never to a greater distance than twenty or thirty miles from the pit's mouth—for with the rude and imperfect means of land transit at their disposal to send the article to a greater distance would not cover the expense—these unbounded coalfields would not only provide the railway itself with the requisite supply for the use of their own locomotives, but could not fail in time to open up a new branch of trade and industry by carrying coal to other districts, and thus tending further to develop the resources of the country and introducing a hitherto unknown article of consumption into their home markets. The Baron was credibly informed in China—and from his own personal observations he believes it to be perfectly true—that nowhere is there a break in the coal formation of more than a hundred miles all along the proposed line, thus affording an inexhaustible and practically uninterrupted supply of fuel for every station, from the eastern slopes of Shansi to the extreme western point at Kuldja on the river Ili—that is to say, embracing no less than thirty degrees of longitude.

In proposing and arguing in favour of the railway from the Eastern part of China to Si-ngan-fu and thence to Hami and Kuldja, as the natural and sole practicable route, Herr von Richthofen considers his mission accomplished and the geographical part of the question concluded; he therefore modestly disclaims any intention of offering any suggestions as to the further course of the railway, only insisting on the expediency, and even necessity, of the line from the East forming a junction at Kuldja with that which he advocates as the Chinese portion.

We may here remark as a proof of the interest taken in the project of railway communication with China by the public in Russia, that the Baron's plan has already been translated into Russ and extensively circulated by the principal organs of the press at St. Petersburg and Moscow; and we cannot but consider it a significant sign of the intentions of the Czar and his Government that a fresh expedition has just been organised to examine closely into the Baron's project. This expedition is under the command of Captain Sossnowsky, of the Imperial Engineers, who has with him a topographic draughtsman, a photographer, and an escort of Cossacks. They travel first to Irkutzk, Kiachta, and Peking, and from thence to Si-ngan-fu and Hankow, afterwards passing up the river Han to Mienhien and thence to Kuldja, surveying the pass in the mountains mentioned above, and the valley of the Yrtish from Semipalatinsk to Omsk. We may therefore expect some important scientific results combined with a practical view of the projected railway from the personal observations of an officer of high repute for intelligence, zeal, experience, and scientific attainments. Visionary and premature as any project for such a gigantic scheme may appear at the present day, it is doubtless only a question of time, and its execution depends chiefly on earlier or later development of the circumstances of China and accommodating themselves to the modern improvements of civilisation and progress as practised in the West. Many people may think that it is as yet far too early to discuss such an important question as Baron Richthofen's project when we know the strong Conservative opinions of the Chinese and their objections to any innovations. It is quite true that in this respect they differ vastly in their national character from their neighbours the Japanese, who rush headlong into the manners and customs of the foreigners, in many cases without the display of any judgment or the power of distinguishing the good from the bad. But on the other hand it must be borne in mind that when an extraneous idea has once taken root in China there is no retrogression, and it remains a fixture there for ever; so that the introduction of any novelty, if militating against their national customs and prejudices, must of necessity be gradual and slow. The native merchants in the seaport towns have already learned to appreciate the importance and convenience of the electric telegraph, and only last year the Chinese Government gave a signal proof of their recognition of the benefits to be derived from steam navigation, not only by a State Document, but by the practical support they granted in the formation of a Chinese Steam Company. So it will in all probability be with railways; ce n'est que le premier pas qui coûte, and judging of the future by the experience of the past we may expect some day, when their prejudices are once fairly overcome, to see the country covered with a network of railways, for which it is so pre-eminently adapted, and containing, as it does, an inexhaustible supply of easily attainable fuel of excellent quality, and cheaper than in any part of Europe. It is impossible to predict when that period may arrive; it may be deferred for years, or it may happen to-morrow. Every improvement that has been introduced into China of late years has been forced on the inhabitants, but their practical good sense teaches them to appreciate to its full extent the pecuniary advantage they derive from them. We, therefore, consider ourselves justified in anticipating the same from the introduction of railways in China, and when once the ice is broken, and the prejudices are removed, we may confidently expect that the opening of the first railway will be the signal for creating a spirit of enterprise second to none that we have witnessed in Europe; for strategical, political, and commercial considerations would all combine to make the construction of a railway from Si-ngan-fu to Hami and Kaldja, to form a junction with the Russian system at the latter place, one of the most important problems for the solution of Chinese statesmen, and there would be no insurmountable difficulties for the execution of this great work, though perhaps many people may at first be startled by the magnitude of this gigantic undertaking.

STUDENT INTERPRETERS IN CHINA.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—From your articles on the State of the Consular Service, and from that on the same subject in the Pall Mall Gazette, it would be inferred that the length of residence of Student Interpreters in Peking is limited to two years. But I have before me a Foreign-office List of January, 1872, from which it appears that there were then fourteen students at Peking, and of these five had been there over four years, four had been there two years and ten months, three had been there one year and nine months, one had been there one year and six months, and one had been there six months. I have not a List of later date by me, but I do not think that things have much improved since 1872. Were the residence of students strictly limited to two years I am sure that they would not find the time hang on their hands, as eight or ten hours a day is not too much to give to the study for that period. But after that it is not necessary to give so long a time, and the "hope deferred" of promotion no doubt makes the heart too sick and weary to pursue any study with earnestness and pleasure. I do not presume to take upon myself to say who is responsible for this, but I am sure that many of the bad habits and the listlessness which you state to exist in the Consular Service are traceable to the long period of enforced idleness at Peking. Other causes there are which make those who can do so glad to leave the service, and which dishearten those who remain; and of these the principle of reducing the pay of the higher posts, as they become vacant, and thus removing all stimulus to exertion is the most active.—I am, &c.,
